TORONTO, July 22 — (C.P.). — Three 10-year-old Toronto boys were in custody on theft charges to-day as police investigated a series of thefts from automobiles in the east end of the city. Police believed that boys were responsible for the theft of several automobiles which were driven downtown and abandoned.

"We can drive a car backward and we can drive forward like heck!" one of the lad told police.

A NEW DALAI LAMA

Lad Not Yet Three Found On Central Area Plains.

LONDON, July 22 (CP-Havas).—A 2½-year-old boy from the plains near Lake Kokonor in Central Asia has been officially recognized as the reincarnation of the late Dalai Lama, supreme chief of the Tibetan Theocracy who died at Lhasa in December, 1933, a Reuter's dispatch from Nanking said last night.

His "discovery" was held certain to strengthen the position of his adherents, generally regarded as responsible for the pro-British policy of Tibet.

ONTARIO AVOIDING SHARE IN STRIKES MINUS INVITATION

"DIFFERENT FROM U.S."

TORONTO, July 22.—(CP)— Unless requests are made for Ontario government intervention no action will be taken in the strikes at Brockville and Cornwall, Premier Hepburn said today.

"We stand ready of course, if there is any request from the municipal authorities or the employers or employees," he said. "Our labor and industry board is prepared to lend assistance in effecting a settlement. If there is any lawlessness with which the municipalities cannot cope we will send in police for the protection of either employers or strikers. But we are not settling strikes that way."

Mr. Hepburn surveying the picture of industrial relations in Ontario said he was pleased with what he saw. "The employers of labor are amendable to reason and all reasonable requests of their employees are being met."

He was particularly pleased with the situation in Northern Ontario where he said industrial peace had been a major factor in increasing employment. Recent reports showed that in North Bay, Timmins and Sudbury there was not one employable man on the relief rolls. In Sault Ste. Marie there are only 54, in Port William 127 and in Port Arthur 86.

"That is a far different picture from the United States where the opposite is happening and where industrial production is falling off as the result of labor troubles," he said.

Drought May Cut Wheat Crop On Prairies Nearly Two Thirds

SEVEN DRY YEARS

OTTAWA, July 22 (C.P.). — Canada's Prairie Provinces which in 1928 produced 544,590,000 bushels of wheat, may this year produce less than 200,000,00 0bushels. Some estimates range as low as 150,000,000. The reason is drought.

For seven successive years vast areas of Western Canada, with South Saskatchewan as the centre, have suffered; and in that province particularly a broad strip of territory just north of the United States boundary was reverted to desert. Throughout the West more than 1,000,000 persons are directly affected, and indications are that this year close to 400,000 persons will need "drought relief."

What this means in monetary loss to the Canadian West was indicated yesterday by Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner. He cited figures he had given some time ago in the House of Commons which showed that while the three good years from 1926 to 1928 inclusive yielded the Prairie wheat growers $1,180,000,000, the next three from 1929 to 1931 produced revenue of only $380,000,000—or a loss at that time of $800,000,000.

Loss Never Made Up.

This loss has never been recovered. Year after year, since those days in 1928 when the Prairie crop topped the half-billion bushel mark, the yield has been dwindling. In 1931 it hit a low of 301,181,000 bushels; but in the following year there was a rally to 426,945,000. The recovery

Secret World Flight Hinted By Ottawa

Ottawa, July 22 (CP).

AVIATION officials here were reticent to-day on so-called "secret" flights round the world. While declaring "something of that kind might be brewing" they declined to indicate when or by whom.

The customary requests from foreign aviators to fly over Canadian territory were being received all the time, and as a matter of routine the requests were granted, they said. Beyond that, they had no comment on reports of mystery planes in the north Atlantic, or of new stores of high-test gasoline in Edmonton.

Hamilton, Ont., July 22 (CP).

MRS. JESSIE LOUTTIT pleaded today with Magistrate H. A. Burbidge to send her 16-year-old son, convicted of 18 burglary charges, to a reformatory.

"He's done enough damage, let him suffer," the woman asked the Magistrate, who sentenced Ross Louttit to Ontario Reformatory for nine to 15 months. Louttit's companion, Joe Peyton, also 16, received five months definite and four months indefinite on six charges of burglary.

"He's been warned a dozen times and suspended sentence or the strap would do him no good. He would be better off dead than free," said Mrs. Loutlit as her son, his eyes to the court room floor, listened.

"You are somewhat of a Spartan mother," the Magistrate replied. "Strangely enough our psychiatrists agree with you. They have advised institutionalization if all other methods fail."

PLAN SHELVED FOR PARTITION OF PALESTINE

British Commons Sends It To League Of Nations Without Its Sanction

LONG, BITTER DEBATE

Move Means No Ratification Possible At Least Before Next Winter

LONDON, July 22.—(CP)—Plan of the British government to partition Palestine into three states, described by William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, colonial secretary, as the only solution was deferred early today and observers forecast no action on the proposal until at least next winter.

After a long and bitter debate, with the Labor party firing broadsides at the proposal made by a British Royal Commission, the House of Commons by almost anonimous vote adopted an amendment providing the commission's report be submitted to the League of Nations.

As a result, Ormsby-Gore will go before the mandates commission in Geneva next week with the royal commission's proposals for partitioning Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states and a third British mandated territory instead of the present set-up under which the whole area is supervised by Great Britain under a League of Nations mandate.

Secretary Handicapped

Because the Commons failed to approve the plan, the Colonial Secretary will be without authority to say that Parliament favored it in principle or detail. The House of Lords wound up debate last night without a vote.

As Parliament adjourns next week until the end of October, the partition scheme cannot be approved even in broad outlines, until early in the winter even if it is accepted by the League Council in September.

Since all parties except the Independent Labor Party, which has three men in the house, obviously favored the compromise, the usual method of voting was omitted and

VOTE TO RECOMMIT COURT MEASURE

Senate Move Will Clear Way For Drafting Of New Bill

WASHINGTON, July 22 (A.P.).—The United States Senate Judiciary Committee voted to-day to ask the Senate to send back to it the Roosevelt Supreme Court Reform Bill with instructions to draft a substitute dealing only with the Lower Courts within 10 days.

In an hour and a half executive session attended by Vice-President Garner and administration leaders, the committee instructed Senator Logan (D., Ky.) to make the motion in the Senate to-day to recommit the pending Compromise Court Bill.

Only two Senators opposed the decision, first Senators leaving the committee room said.

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), one of th leading foes of the Bill, said the committee's action would clear the way for drafting a new Bill dealing only with procedure in the Lower Courts and eliminating all references to the size of the Supreme Court.

If the Senate agrees to the proposal, the committee will have 10 days in which to whip the new Bill into shape for presentation to the Senate.

Maddened Cow Kills Woman Assisting Farmers In Roundup

Sister Is Also Trampled By Same Animal As It Runs Amok

LEAPS INTO YARD

MOORETOWN, Ont., July 22 (C. P.). — Attacked by a maddened cow, Miss May Smith, 45, of Moore Township, was fatally injured yesterday. A sister, Flossie, was injured when attacked by the same animal. Mooretown is 10 miles south of Sarnia.

The cow was one of two being driven along the road by the owners, Charles and Dryden Nisbet, neighbors of the Smith family. As they were passing the Smith farm, the animal broke from the road and ran into the Smith yard.

As soon as efforts were made to round up the cow, it ran amok, leaping over fences and tearing around the buildings.

As Flossie Smith came to assist the neighbors rounding up the cow, the animal turned on her and she was knocked to the ground.

The animal charged her, knocking her down, and trampling her on the chest. Despite her injuries she managed to crawl to an outbuilding where her moans were heard by her mother, Mrs. Ada Smith, and by the owners of the animal. She was taken to hospital in Sarnia, where she died.

Storey, aged 65, was found floating in the river last night west of here, by Frank E. Hammond, who was fishing there. Storey was a retired foreman painter in the Canada Carriage Company here.

FARMERS KEEN AS SOIL STUDY COMES TO FORE

Thirty-Seven Samples Submitted For Analysis To O.A.C. Expert

CUP IS PRESENTED

Farmers of Peterborough county are gradually becoming more actively interested in soil fertility. Thirty-seven samples of soil were submitted for analysis to R. J. Bryden of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, at the office of A. D. Runions, Wednesday afternoon, and more are expected today before his local work is completed.

In the evening Mr. Bryden addressed a group of farmers at the demonstration field of oats on the Toronto Savings and Loan Company's farm in North Monaghan at the head of Weller street, and at the conclusion of the meeting Gordon Hancock of Smith was presented by J. J. Duffus with the silver cup he gave to the Peterborough Exhibition last year to stimulate interest in its field crop competition. As winner of the competition in 1936 Mr. Hancock is the first Peterborough grain grower to have his name inscribed on the Duffus trophy.

The importance of soil study and analysis as illustrated by Mr. Bryden in the fact that it disclosed the suitability of Norfolk county land for tobacco culture which, he said, has already returned millions of dollars to the producers.

The demonstration field of oats west of the city was an example of a built up soil in regard to its mineral content. Samples taken to Guelph were found to be low in phosphorus with a medium supply of potash, and calcium was excellent. On the basis of that information the soil was built up to the desired level of fertility by a heavy application of the minerals which were found to be deficient, phosphorus and potash.

Production of grain crops, dairy products and beef cattle, major operations in agriculture, gradually impoverishes farms, Mr. Bryden said.

"We are fortunate in Ontario in having good soils and favorable climatic conditions, and it is easy to get satisfactory crops. But we are now finding smut and light heads in oats, and one thing or another, and perhaps the fertility level of the soil has a lot to do with it. Good soil is the foundation of agriculture, and we should look after maintaining now, or it may be too late. It was decided to make soil and crop tests on selected farms throughout the county in order that farmers could see for themselves the advantages of this work. When this crop of oats is cut sheaves will be taken from different parts of the field and will be threshed at Guelph and the yields estimated. We made a heavy application of fertilizing minerals because it has been found that light annual treatments simply stimulated im-

Department Of Labor Official Wires Committee To Meet Him Here

RELIEF IS NEEDED

Organizer Says Supply Is Not As Steady As It Has Been

Leaders of the four-weeks'-old Dominion Woollens strike will meet Louis Fine, conciliation officer from the Ontario Department of Labor, early this afternoon in hopes that a new movement toward settlement of the deadlocked dispute may be launched. Despatch of Mr. Fine to the strike scene here was announced in a telegram from Deputy Minister of Labor J. F. Marsh, which arrived while a general strike meeting was in session in the East City Community Hall, Wednesday afternoon.

Cheers were won from the assembled strikers as the brief message was handed to the platform and read: "Will you please meet Mr. Fine, conciliation officer, Empress Hotel, Thursday noon, July 22," the telegram requested. It was the response to a request for departmental mediation, wired by the strike committee Tuesday. Textile Organizer Alex Welch urged that strikers remain fast and await the outcome of the government intervention before planning further manoeuvres.

"The eyes of Ontario seem to be on this strike," Chairman Mike English told the meeting. "On the success or failure of this strike depends the success of the organization of other plants in Central Ontario in the near future. Our success will represent an immediate appeal to the other factories of Central Ontario to organize."

Alex Welch declared: "We have reached a point in the strike now where it is a matter of opening new activities to compel the company to re-open negotiations. The company will try to postpone these negotiations as long as possible in an effort to wear us down. It is a question how long we can stay out. The answer rests with our relief committee."

Relief Is Needed

He said the supply of relief commodities is not at present as steady as it has been and that the appeal to the public must be stressed. He expressed confidence that sufficient relief supplies can be obtained and that the company could be beaten "at its own gameof stalling."

Urging strikers to keep their strike machine in efficient running form, Welch hinted that reorganization of the present strike executive may be necessary. "If a cog does not fit properly into a machine, it must be replaced. If a man is removed from one job because he is no as efficient as other it is no reflection on him for he may suit better some other job.

Welch declared strikers must prepare themselves to exert every effort to make a success of the Saturday tag day. The support of the citizens can be obtained only if the strikers go out actively and work hard for it.

WOUNDED GUNMAN FIGHTS OFF DEATH

Will Face Armed Robbery Or Kidnapping Charges If He Lives

HUGO OKLA., July 22 (AP)—Return to a Texas prison farm loomed today for Roy "Pete" Trexler as the slippery gunman continued to withstand the effects of a bullet wound over the heart.

His companion in a 12-day flight lay in a morgue, a victim of the desperadoes' own guns. The companion, Fred Tindol, was slain and Trexler was shot by two hostages the outlaws had kidnapped in their flight from almost 1,000 officers in Southern Oklahoma.

Frank Trimmer, 50, a farmer, and J. E. Denton, oil field worker, snatched guns from the men's sides when the exhausted fugitives dozed in a car near Boswell, Okla.

U.S. District Attorney C. A. Summer said at Muskogee, Okla., charges of harboring a fugitive had been placed against Mrs. Nell Tingley Trexler, the convict's wife, arrested Tuesday. County Attorney Ben Carter at Durant said he may file charges of armed robbery or kidnapping against Trexler. The former charge carries a maximum penalty of death, the latter does not.

CONVICTS' CAPTIVE SLAYS DESPERADO WOUNDS ANOTHER

Gunmen Pursued Closely Two Weeks—Doze At Wheel Of Car And Prisoners Grab Guns

BROKE FROM PRISON

BOSWELL, Okla, July 22.—(UP)—J. E. Denton, a mild little oil field worker with grey hair, yesterday shot down the southwest's two most dangerous gunmen, Pete Traxler and Fred Tindol, as they held him captive on a country road near here.

Denton snatched a pistol from Tindol's lap as the outlaw dozed beside him on the rear seat of an automobile and shot three times as fast as he could pull the trigger.

Two of the bullets killed Tindol instantly. The third dropped Traxler down in the seat under the steering-wheel. Another captive in the car, Fred Trimmer, 39, a Caddo farmer, disarmed Traxler and a two weeks' hunt for the men was over.

More than 500 peace officers and possemen were at hand when Denton and Trimmer brought Traxler into Boswell. Posses had pursued the outlaws so hotly that they had been unable to sleep for forty-eight hours.

Bandit's Condition Critical

Traxler was found to be in critical condition. Denton's bullet had pierced his right lung and cut through just over the heart.

"I was afraid asleep, too," Traxler said.

The outlaw admitted his identity and that of his companion, but refused to talk further. Possemen had captured his wife, Nell, yesterday after tracing the outlaws into this region from Chickasha where Traxler boldly picked her up while officers were less than two blocks away.

Several of the possemen had exchanged shots with the outlaws several times during the past forty-eight hours.

Throughout their wild zigzag flight from the Eastham Prison Farm near Weldon, Tex., beginning on July 8, the desperadoes kidnapped hostages whenever they abandoned

Labor Department Officer Will Meet Cotton Official In Montreal

CORNWALL, Ont., July 22 (C.P.).—In an effort to pave the way for opening negotiations to end the strike of 1,700 employees of Canadian Cottons' three local plants, M. S. Campbell, chief conciliation officer of the Dominion Department of Labor, will go to Montreal to-day to confer with company officials.

Dominion Government intervention in the three-day-old dispute followed a conference at Ottawa yesterday between Lionel Chevrier, Liberal member of Parliament for Stormont, and officials of the Labor Department.

Campbell will confer with R. G. Tolmie, general manager of Canadian Cottons, in Montreal, and following the interview it was expected

CHINESE TROOPS BALK AT RETREAT

Fresh Fighting Foreseen After Wednesday's Truce Seen About To Collapse

TIENTSIN, July 22 (AP).—Japanese troops of the 37th Chinese Army Division were reported today to have precipitated the Sino-Japanese crisis to new depths by a determined refusal to evacuate their positions west of Peiping.

The Chinese were said not only to have refused to abandon the positions commanding the Marco Polo highway bridges and the railroad bridges across the Yungting River but also to be again manning their entrenchments in the village of Wanpinghsien.

A truce yesterday between local Chinese and Japanese military authorities was thought to have ended the crisis two weeks to the day after a clash between the troops at Marco Polo bridge strained Sino-Japanese relations to the breaking point.

The 37th Division began carrying out the agreement for mutual withdrawal of Chinese and Japanese troops by evacuating the walled city of Wanpinghsien, western suburb of Peiping. The truce called for them to hand over the entire area of hostilities to officers entrusted with maintenance of civil order.

Alleged failure of the Japanese to carry out their part of the agreement, however, was said to have caused the Chinese evacuation to be halted abruptly. Full of resentment at "Japanese trickery," they were reported to have started moving troops into the area again.

German and French air services have agreed to co-operate in trans-Atlantic air mail service.

This trio rated among America's fastest swimmers, are off to beard the Japanese water marvels in their home pools. They will compete in the Nippones national championships.

SPECIAL RELIEF AIMED FOR INDIANS

1,500 Cree Half-Breeds Said To Lack Medical Attention In Alberta

EDMONTON, July 22 (CP).—Special action is planned by Alberta authorities in dealing with the problem of providing relief and hospitalization for large numbers of Indian and half-breed residents throughout northern Alberta, it was learned today.

Special relief committee of the Legislature, headed by D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., Conservative leader, has had the Indian problem before it. The committee has offered full cooperation in assisting Hon. Lucien Maynard, Minister of Relief, in dealing with the question.

The minister is believed to be giving the matter special attention, although no report has been made. It is possible the relief committee will conduct a full investigation.

At Lac La Biche, Dr. H. Quesnel, town medical officer, said about 1,500 Cree half breeds and 300 Indians in the neighborhood did not have sufficient medical attention.

Barn In Thurlow Swept By Flames

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 22.—Flames leaping high in the air totally destroyed a large barn on the property of Ross and Oran Conley, in the 6th Concession of the Township of Thurlow shortly before ten o'clock on Tuesday night. While there was only one load of hay in the building practically all of the Conley farm machinery was destroyed. Horses and cattle were in pasture, so that there was no loss of livestock.

The Conley brothers, owners of the barn were absent from the property at the time of the fire. The blaze of undetermined origin rapidly swept through the building, making it impossible to salvage any of the farm implements stored in the barn.

Bennett Hints He Is Undecided On Continuing Tory Leadership

Fellow-Shipmates Claim He Appears In Better Health Than Few Weeks Ago

OPTIMISTIC OVER EUROPE

MONTREAL, July 22 (C.P.).—His political future still undisclosed, Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett landed in Canada to-day after two months in Europe and headed toward the Dominion's Capital.

On the question of whether or not he is to continue as Leader of the Conservative Party, the Opposition Chief was silent. All that newspapermen could obtain from him, as he sailed up the St. Lawrence River yesterday, was a hint he may not yet have reached a decision.

The intimation came under questioning as to whether he would give some indication of what he was to announce to his colleagues on his return to Ottawa. "Perhaps," he said, "you are asking me for something I haven't got."

And that was as far as the former Prime Minister would go, on his personal affairs. "I will talk about practically anything," he said in the interview aboard the liner Montcalm, "but I will not talk about myself nor about my health."

He spent a month at a health resort in Germany after viewing the Coronation as an official Canadian representative. On leaving London for the return trip to Canada, he was quoted as saying his health was "fair—only fair." Yesterday, he conceded that "would have been a reasonable way to put it."

Seems Vigorous.

In appearance, the 67-year-old Party Leader seemed vigorous and energetic. To Canadians who returned on the same ship, he appeared in much better health than he had a few weeks ago. He obviously looked forward to his return.

While he declined to talk of Canada's internal affairs, Mr. Bennett spoke in optimistic vein of Europe's outlook. No one could predict what might happen there, he said, but he believed there was no immediate danger of a major conflict. The people evinced no desire for war.

In Germany, he asserted, he found no sign of persecution, "religious or racial." The people there all seemed "happy and busy."

The Coronation struck him as "an amazing manifestation of national feeling." To Mr. Bennett, it was a "revealing demonstration of the Empire's loyalty to the Crown."

One disappointing note met him on his homecoming—the news of the Prairie wheat crop failure. "I had firmly believed and hoped they would have a good crop this year," he said. "It seems incredible."

BANANA SPIDER RUNS DOWN ARM

Millbrook Man Has Unpleasant Experience While Uncrating Fruit

MILLBROOK, July 22.—Uncrating a bunch of bananas on Tuesday, F. A. Kidd had an unpleasant surprise when a large black spider, of unknown variety, ran down his arm. The body of the spider, which has eight hairy legs with a spread of fully three inches, is two inches in length. It was caught, and is now on display at the store fastened on a sheet of white board.

Fortunately Mr. Kidd was wearing heavy leather gloves, as is his custom when handling a fresh crate of bananas, and so escaped any injury from the contact.

STOCKWELL, England, July 22 (C.P.). — Fifty years ago Bill Parker pedalled his bicycle to Liverpool and boarded a Canadian-bound ship. At 80 he has returned to his home town with the same bicycle strapped to his luggage.

"Of course I'm going to ride it," he said, "why, darn me, I paid £2 duty on the old bike."

MYSTERY PLANE FLYING EASTWARD ACROSS ATLANTIC

RUNNING LIGHTS LIT

NEW YORK, July 22 (AP) — Authorities of Canada and United States stood by today for further word of a mysterious airplane reported flying eastward over the Atlantic, presumably Europe-bound.

A check of leading Canadian and American airports failed to disclose any definite information about such a flight reported in a radio message from the 5,000-ton British freighter Ranee

The message, picked up by the Radio Marine Corporation's station at Chatham Mass., said a plane was seen and heard flying eastward overhead 500 miles off Cape Race, Nfld., at 9:04 EDT last night.

The crew heard the roar of the motors, looked up and saw the plane's running lights, said the message. Further details of the craft were not obtained.

FAIL TO CONVICT GREENSHIRT MEN

Charges Against Social Credit Members In England Dismissed

LUTON, England, July 22—(CU).—Three members of the Social Credit Party of Great Britain and Northern Ireland were charged with wearing political uniforms at an open-air meeting here, but the magistrates dismissed the case.

There had been one previous prosecution under the Public Order Act at Leeds in January, when a man was fined about $10 for wearing a black shirt, a black tie, a black leather motor coat, and a black cap, signifying his association with the Fascists.

The Chief Constable said the Social Credit organization, which according to their notepaper, was known as the "green shirts," had been given permission to hold the meeting.

Political uniforms were not defined by the Act; that being left to the court. The criterion appeared to be whether or not a collection of persons dressed in similar articles of distinctive apparel gave a reasonable onlooker the appearance of persons dressed in uniform.

Police reported a parade headed by five men beating green drums and five people carry banners with a "K" and a reversed "K" in white on them. This was the emblem of the Social Credit Party. The men were wearing green shirts, green collars and ties, and the majority had mackintoshes or overcoats. They were all wearing armlets with the emblem of the party in white.

Counsel for accused said the men in court were wearing substantially the same clothing as on the day of the meeting and "it was perfectly obvious they were not wearing a distinctive dress of the same pattern, color and appearance." One defendant said he was accustomed to wearing green and his green sports shirt was bought long before the passing of the Act.

All the fanfare of "go-be'weens," ransom demands and elusive suspects attend the "kidnapping" from a Los Angeles, Calif., pet store, of a Pekingese "Poochey La La" (Above). The dog is said to be worth a fortune, in some obscure way, in the settlement of a large estate. The dog-nappers are said to have made demands for $1,000 ransom for their victim's return.

BOYS TO EXPLORE ISOLATED COAST

Party Of English Students Will Visit Newfoundland In August

LONDON, July 22—(CP)—Seventy-seven English public schoolboys, thrilled by the prospect of adventure, eagerly await July 30, the date set for their departure for Newfoundland on an expedition of exploration.

It will be the largest exploring party organized in England and is twice the size of the expedition which visited Newfoundland two years ago on a similar mission.

The party, under the leadership of Surgeon-Commander Murray Levick, will concentrate its explorations in the little-known land on the west coast of Newfoundland. Three theodolites and other scientific instruments have been made available to the expedition by the War Office. Admiralty and the Royal Geographical Society to aid in surveys and mapping of a section of the country.

Two wireless transmitting and eight receiving sets will be taken by the party. A naval telegraphist has been assigned to the expedition and arrangements have been made with the Admiralty for reception of experimental messages in London. Seven assistant leaders and two medical officers will be on Commander Levick's staff.

Wellington supplies the largest contingent with seven boys. Eton and Rugby are next with six each, while Harrow and Radley are sending four each. Eight boys from council schools in Kent, Devonshire, Essex, Gloucestershire, Nottingham, Surrey and Sussex, will also be taken along.

CAMERA QUEEN DUB WITH GUN

ADVENTUROUS CAREER

WINNIPEG, July 22 (CP) — Though a hopeless shot with a gun and face with conditions that would daunt the hardiest duck hunter vivacious Lorene Squire, official photographer for the American Wild Life Institute, thinks nothing of spending three weeks in a soggy marsh waiting for one good camera "shot" of a wild duck.

Tanned to a deep bronze by a months' outing near North Battleford, Sask. where she obtained many bird life photos, Miss Squire recently went through Winnipeg on her way to northwestern Manitoba marsh areas.

"It has always been my ambition to come to Canada to see the ducks in their nesting grounds. Now I have, and have some good pictures of baby ducks swimming about on the water," Miss Squire said.

Her career as a photographer started ten years ago in Kansas when she went duck hunting with her father and mother. "I was pretty terrible with a gun, so I began shooting with a camera." The result has been a series of outstanding pictures of wild life on the wing.

"It's hard work," said the young Kansan. "About only five out of a hundred pictures are successful. I spend days in the darkroom getting the effect I want." She uses a two miniature reflex with 15 centimetre telephoto lenses.

The young girl, a graduate of Kansas University, came to Canada as the result of communications with the officers of the Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Game and Fish Associations. She intends to spend about a month in Manitoba before travelling eastward again to the Fort Chipewayan area.

Hepburn Sends Man For Prairie Cattle

EDMONTON, July 22 (CP)—Acting as agent for Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, S. G. Carlyle, former Alberta livestock commissioner who was superannuated May 7, was enroute yesterday to swift Current, Moose Jaw and Regina districts to purchase cattle for the Premier's St. Thomas, Ont., farm.

Carlyle left on the buying trip at the request of Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture who formerly held a similar post in Alberta. Three carloads of dairy cattle and two carloads of beef cattle will be purchased.

BRITISH INFANTRY IN CHANGING OVER

Famous Units Go Machine Gun, Others Turn Rifle Battalion

LONDON, July 22—(CP)—Army orders provide for the conversion of all regular battalions of infantry of the line into rifle battalions or machine gun battalions.

Famous infantry to become machine gunners under this order include The Royal Scots, Royal Northumberland Fusiliers, Royal Fusiliers, Devonshire Regiment, West Yorkshire Regiment, Welsh Fusiliers, Gloucestershire Regiment, Royal Scots Fusiliers, Cheshire Regiment, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, East Surrey Regiment, Middlesex Regiment, Manchester Regiment and Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Remaining regular battalions of regiments of the line are being converted to rifle battalions; battalions of regiments of foot guards also become rifle units.

As a result of this reorganization there is to be a regrouping. The infantry of the first, second and third divisions will consist each of two divisional machine gun battalions and three infantry brigades, each of three rifle battalions.

Divisional machine gun battalions will be attached to infantry brigades for administration in peace and the earlier periods of training.

"EL CAPESINO"

One of the most interesting figures of the Spanish government forces defending Madrid is "El Capesino", whose rise to military heights is storybookish. A year ago Capesino was a peasant with no knowledge of affairs military. Today he is a full-fledged general.

12-Pound Sturgeon Leaps Into Boat

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 22. (CP) —Prize fish story of the season on Niagara River came yesterday from two Buffalo fishermen, William L. Kirst and Albert Wild. They exhibited a 12-pound short-nose rock Sturgeon, caught off Fort Erie beach to prove their tale.

They were chugging for Yellow Pike and had taken four, when their copper line and homemade tackle snared in their outboard propeller. The only way they could clear it was to take in appartus. Bending to that task, they glimpsed an arc a big fish makes when it leaps out of the water and the next thing they knew it had completed its leap by falling into their boat.

START ON BRIDGE.

BARRIE, Ont, July 22—(CP)—Actual work on the Canadian end of the St. Clair River bridge to link Point Edward and Port Huron, Mich., was started to-day when employees of the Russell Construction Company, Toronto, began excavating for the first of the substructure piers. Additional machinery is on the way and work will be in full swing soon.

Preliminary work is proceeding simultaneously on the Michigan side of the river.

SEALED TO PROVE ALCOHOL IS FOOD

Retirement Of Swedish Professor Recalls Famous Experiment

NEW YORK, July 22—(CP). — After rising from a janitor's job at $25 a month to become a teacher of chemistry at Cornell University Medical College here, Emil Osterberg leaves for Sweden to spend his declining years in his native village.

Coming to the United States as a young man, Osterberg tried his hand as a gardener, laborer in a granite quarry, maker of searchlights and blacksmith's apprentice before chance brought him in touch with chemistry in which he attained eminence.

The Swedish janitor broke into headlines through his part in experiments with the Atwater-Rosa Respiration Calorimeter in which he was required to spend nine days in a sealed apparatus, certain foods and three ounces of whisky and brandy daily being fed to him.

The experiments brought encouragement to the "wets" and confusion to the "drys" for they were said to prove alcohol in reasonable quantities was a food. But to Osterberg they brought a 200 per cent. raise in pay and appointment as an expert assistant at the laboratory.

Proper Thing To Do

The suggestion that the Ontario Department of Labor should be called into the strike scene at Peterborough is right and proper. The strikers have asked that such be done and that is the logical move to make in order that negotiations should not be allowed to come to a dead end and remain there.

A good deal of the discussion which has taken place has been in a sort of wide field which did not close in and come to grips with the actual situation here. The financial set-up of the company and the changes through which it has passed is interesting information no doubt, but it is well to remember that the employees of the mill were not responsible for any of the arrangements so made.

The real point at which discussion must focus is the paying of what a responsible and representative group of negotiators would call a fair and living wage. If that can be done then there is not a great deal more to settle. If it cannot be done then this inability should be clearly established, and then we would know that tariff protection for the industry does not mean wage protection for the employees.

There is machinery in existence for intervention and negotiation in all labor disputes and the appeal of the strikers to have it touched into action is quite the proper move to make.

Looks Like A Record

Mrs. Anna Pond of Waterford, Ont., is 97 years of age. She reads a good deal, and prefers newspapers because they come fresh each day. Mrs. Pond has no time for worrying and cannot be convinced that it ever did any good anyway. If the weather is favorable this lady of 97 goes to church on Sunday and she also likes to attend Sunday school. What's more she walks. Both ways

All of which is interesting but not so remarkable as other facts regarding her family. Mrs. Pond is the mother of 11 children and they are all living, and she herself is the eldest of a family of four and her two sisters and brother are also living, their ages being 86, 82 and 86.

We cannot recall having read or heard of another case like that. A woman of 97 with 11 children living, and with all her own generation still here.

Thirteen In One Car

Near Saltcoats, Sask., a car struck loose gravel on a curve and skidded. Then the steering wheel broke and it rolled over. There was nothing unusual in that as similar things have happened in many places.

But there were 13 packed in that car and they were nearly all children, the youngest being six. There were a few broken legs and broken wrists, but no injuries which will result in death, and not one was classed as seriously injured.

Just another example of the manner in which figures in automobile accidents have opportunity to multiply. How they stacked thirteen in a car we do not know; they may even have crowded the driver.

The driver who would start out with thirteen in his car was taking a risk which a sensible person would not have tolerated.

Picked His Own Career

Radio is pretty much a world of its own today, for entertainment and for commercial purpose, and the man who started it, Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, is dead. He was 63 years old and had a weak heart.

The world is always skeptical when people say they can do something which has not been done before. It laughed mildly when Morse announced he had perfected a set of dots and dashes to send messages my means of wire instead of delivering them by person. Then when Bell said he had found how to transmit the human voice over wire a complacent world was moved to smile; just another man with an impossible idea. It was the same when Marconi at the age of 22 announced in Italy he had found out how to make sound travel without the aid of wires, and to have it recorded at a receiving station. No one took him seriously, so he went to England, made a demonstration and was granted a patent for wireless telegraphy in 1896. What has taken place since is pretty much a matter of modern time history. If you were disposed to spend the money required you could take the telephone in your house and today call the home of the late Marquis Marconi in Italy to express regrets at his having passed.

He made a great contribution to the world did Marconi because he did the kind of work he wanted to. If his father hed been successful in carrying out his early plans the son would have studied music and might have become a composer. It is possible he might have written something but it would probably have been mediocre because Marconi did not want to write music. He wanted to tinker with things, to investigate and work out by himself certain ideas which seemed to press for his attention. Had Marconi become a musician the world might yet be waiting for its radio.

Let The Other Driver Know

There have been pictures published in a good many papers showing how drivers of cars should put out their arms to indicate what sort of a turn they intend to make, and here is a good reason for trying to make people understand that it is a courteous and a safe thing to try and let the driver behind know in advance what the car ahead is going to do.

There is a good deal of slack driving going on right in our own city, and if there is one fault more glaring than others it is the way drivers pull out after being parked at the curb without giving any indication of their intention to move.

One can see that almost any hour of the day. Apparently without looking, the drivers just start ahead and pull out into the line of traffic in the belief or hope that the car coming along behind can look after itself. It requires only a moment and a little bit of that fine thing they refer to as courtesy to make sure that a car is not close and then to make doubly sure by putting out a hand to indicate that a start is going to be made. And it pays to drive like that.

Rather A Mean Rumor

Strange things are said and a good many of them are not true. The report was spread at Washington that the United States government had spent $4,000,000 by using cruisers and planes from the navy to conduct a search for Amelia Earhart. And there was going to be some sort of an investigation started because the expenditure had been so great. At his most recent press conference President Roosevelt settled the matter by announcing there would be no investigation because there had been no extra outlay.

Even those who are inclined to optimism admit that Amelia Earhart and her navigator F. J. Noonan are dead. It would startle the world if that were not the case and this old world is hard to startle. Amelia Earhart who was married in 1931 to George Putnam, son of the well-known publishing family, was 37 years of age. Nine years ago she flew as a passenger from New York to Ireland. She was then teaching school in Massachusetts, and before that had served as a V. A. D. nurse in Toronto during the war.

Those who knew of her work and method as an aviatrix admired the manner in which she mastered everything connected with air travel. It is said she never took anything for granted. But on her last long trip of 2,800 miles she missed Howland Island, which is but a dot in the great expanse of the Pacific. And now they conclude she must be dead.

The Ladies Make Reply

Early in July the Examiner made reference to the experience of a young theological student, Carman Hazlewood, of Kirkton, Ont., who had spent two weeks on a summer mission field at Gladmar, Sask. Then he left. In giving his reasons he told in a way which was somewhat of a lament of conditions he had encountered; he had to live in a tar-paper shack; there was no water in the place; the people in the district were discouraged and did not want to hear the Gospel.

In the Regina Leader-Post a member of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church at Gladmar writes to tell something of what might well be termed the other side of the question. The writer says that Mr. Hazlewood stayed at Gladmar for only three days. We read that in Gladmar there are 53 people, two elevators, three oil companies, two garages, one hardware store, post office, cafe and confectionery store, two general stores, community hall, lumber yard, station and section house. There is an active tennis club and a live board of trade. The Lutheran Church has a Ladies' Aid and the United Church has a missionary society of 14 members meeting regularly each month. And without knowing anything of Gladmar, one might conclude there is much activity for the 53 people living there.

Then we learn there is a town well with a windmill attached and it has never been pumped dry. There is also water hauled to town from a well half for $1, and not 16 pails for that unit of currency as stated by Mr. Hazelwood. The ladies of the United Church declare there always has been water there although Mr. Hazelwood says there has been none for eight years It may be that the outsider has to stick around for a few days in order to become thoroughly familiar with local history.

Mr. Hazlewood, we find, was wrong in expecting some person was going to keep him. For three or four years the ministers who comes for the summer has "batched it." But again the ladies have seen to it that his creature comforts were provided for. There is a bed and mattress and an all wool comforter and that comforter, we are assured, was brand new this spring. There is also printed in the Regina paper a complete list of all the things which are in the place prepared for the minister, including rugs on the floor, and the list reads like one which might have been prepared for an auction sale. The publicity agent for the Mission Circle says the district is about 30 miles by 12, but Mr. Hazlewood only made a start by paying one pastoral call.

Of course the people are on relief, with few exceptions, but the folk of Gladmar, we learn, are not ready to quit. They are going to "see it through" as they put it themselves, and the ladies of the United Church do not fancy the idea of having their town or village or hamlet of 53 persons and their Mission Society painted black. Likewise they are going to see that their town pump with windmill attachment and their tennis club and board of trade receive just due in the way of favorable mention. And they want it understood the minister's quarters were well furnished and the sheets were clean and the wool comforter was brand new this year. And it is probably a just and fair conclusion that the Mission Society of the Gladmar United Church knows a bit more about Gladmar than Mr. Hazlewood. He should have stuck around a bit and got acquainted.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Toronto ball club is conducting a school for young ball players and up to the present time not one of the pupils has played hookey.

A St. Thomas youth wrecked his car while trying to get a glimpse of Ned Sparks and the story fails to say whether the screen comedian laughed or not.

Welland brothers have left on a 10,000 mile motor cycle trip, hoping to travel to Vancouver and back. Let us hope they meet nothing but careful drivers.

PREPAREDNESS

(By A. B. K.)

¶ Some friends of mine are going away, they'll land out now most any day, and they won't stay so long; I see them binding things with rope, and as I ought to so I hope, they'll come back brown and strong.

¶ It's nigh three weeks since they began, since then they've lived on beans and ham, there is no time to cook; their chief concern now seems to be, at least that's how it seems to me, is how they're going to look.

¶ They've washed and scrubbed the duds they own, I've been there when they'd hump and groan, and tempers too were fired; they'd worked long past the close of day, preparing for their going away, and they were very tired.

¶ Their clothes seem plenty good enough, but they've been piling in new stuff, I know the husband frowns; his wife and daughter take a trip, then hand to him the shopping slip, he grumbles and he frowns.

¶ New dresses for the morning wear, in which to sniff the lake front air, a change for afternoon; another for the evening meal, another with a strong appeal, when they survey the moon.

¶ I fear at times they'll yet be stuck, unless they're going to take a truck, for they drive in a coup; I think I'd rather stay to home, and have to get my meals alone—and just sit on the stoop.

NOTHING new in the sit-down strike, but it's different when the boss gets caught up with the idea. Employees of Fry Products of Detroit voted to stand by their union and quit work. Walter Fry, president of the company which makes slip covers for auto seats, told them he's quit business. Next day they were back and said they'd go to work. So the boss went out again looking for orders and decided to stay in business. It was in February the employees staged a sit-down strike in the plant and Fry did the same thing in his office.

It contained money, her permit to drive and the papers she got at the border and which she would need when she was going home. Drove back and got her purse and is pleased with Canadian honesty.

Figures show that New York is the healthiest city in United States, the death rate there being 10.5 per 1,000 of population as compared with 10.7 for the entire nation. Compared with other cities it has fewer murders, suicides and fatal auto accidents on a basis of population.

Fourteen Unknown Each Day.

IN New York on an average 14 unfriended, unclaimed persons die each day. Some of them are apparently wealthy, many penniless, but in almost every case there are some trinkets carried in the pockets which are no doubt reminders of happier and better days.

More than 10,000 motor cars are abandoned on the streets of New York city each year.

Recently two chess teams in England conducted a game by telephone and the cost was $50. This is seemingly high but the phone bill was less than the members would have spent on transportation to play the game in person.

Something About Hotels.

EDITORS of Hotel Management, a business paper, picked the Hotel McCurdy, Evansville, Ind., as typical American, and investigated. Found it takes four gallons of water to flush a toilet; there was 2 1-2 ounces of ham in one of the sandwiches; three-fourths of the people who arrive have made no reservation. Bellhops earn $3.50 in salary and supply their own uniforms which they must press each week, but they rather $25 to $30 a week in tips. NEW York police arrested Walter Lourence last week and believe they have cleared up a racket that cost the electric light company at least a million a year. Laurence admitted he had been making $6,000 a month by his earnings from apartment owners and restaurants where his services were demanded.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

ON TWO POINTS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: There have been two items in your paper recently with which I ask leave to take exception.

The first is your editoral on Saturday last commenting on an article in The American Magazine entitled: "Why I Don't Go to Church." I happened to have read the article in question, and your editorial sent me back to read it again. I am still unable to discern any attempt on the part of the author to "pick the church to pieces." It is an article written by a man who, to me, appears to be sincere in his effort to discover why so many people, himself included, do not attend church. That church attendance is not all that it should be is a well-known fact. Whether the fault rests with the church or with the people I do not feel qualified to say. This I do believe—that people are largely the same today as they were when church attendance was more general. Modern conditions no doubt affect their habits and methods of living, but human nature does not vary to any great degree. If attractions and pleasures available today distract people to the extent that they no longer go to church, then the church must find means to combat this distraction.

This is not written in a spirit of criticism. I recognize the benefits that may be derived from attendance at church, but it is obviously the business of the church to make such attendance desirable from the public viewpoint.

The second item which irritated me was a letter concerning the local strike written by a man who signs himself a "War Vet." To me this letter seems very ridiculous. I hold no brief for "Lawyer Gordon," nor do I presume to analyse his motives, but I do believe that he is giving practical expression to the feeling of the great majority of Peterborough citizens. Evidently "War Vet" is one of those who long for the "good old days" when people were afraid of fresh air and died like flies from sheer ignorance. I wonder if he would revive also those laws which would hang a man for an offense that today would bring little more than a reprimand. Also, since when did war service have any bearing on a man's eligibility to lead or become a "head man?" Probably most of those who are on strike were not even out of school during the war, if, indeed, they were born at all.

I agree that many farmers have had difficult times, and farm help does not receive the pay it should. This should be remedied if at all possible. But I fail to see how the farmer can hope to benefit if the urban worker is paid so little that he cannot buy the farmer's produce. The farmer's period of greatest prosperity, it will be remembered, was when the laborer could, and did, pay good stiff prices for his butter and eggs.

REASON.

Peterborough, July 21.

ABOUT THE STRIKE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The letter appearing in your issue of yesterday, signed "From A War Vet," raises, first of all, the question: Does such a letter deserve a reply, and, secondly, from whom should this reply come.

To deal in full with the categorical substance of this letter would tend to make one just a little dizzy, and when one comes to consider the contents—well.

The mention of the threatened railroad strike last May brings up a laudable point if the D. W. & W. Ltd., had not been so viciously opposed to the building of a legitimate international trade union in their mills this strike would not have been necessary. The reason why there was no strike in railroads this Spring was because the employers met and dealt with the representatives of the organized employees. In the case of the textile workers at present on strike, they were never permitted this right of collective bargaining and, when their grievances had accumulated to such a degree that conditions became intolerable their only recourse was to strike.

The laws of 1878—1890 are of little interest to humanity today except, perhaps, as relics of a barbarism that prevailed in those times. Since then, democracy (that citadel supposedly defended by the lives and blood of millions of working men war vets) has developed and will continue to do so in spite of a trend of thought so vividly brought out in the letter "From A War Vet."

It is not a prerequisite of ability, as far as leadership in this strike is concerned, that a man should have served in any war. However, in the leadership are men who have served their King and Country in the last war. The others were either not old enough for service, or were not even born in time for service.

It is, indeed, fortunate for this community that the letter in question was not written by one representing the opinion of all war vets and farmers, and it is a happy trend of events when we note that in this district farmers and their sons are realizing that it is not only industrial workers who are beginning to fight against low wages and long hours.

ANOTHER WAR VET.

Calls Dance Questionable

(From the Chatham News.)

AN unusual dance will be held in Orangeville. The receipts will be used in paying the fines of eleven men who were found guilty of breaking the law. A few days ago these men "tarred" a Toronto commercial traveler because the latter tried to "steal" the wife of an Orangeville resident. They would have applied feathers to the tar, had the victim not made the plea that he was not in good health.

Apparently the action of these eleven men meets with the sympathy of their friends and neighbors, hence the dance to raise money to pay the fines.

However there is a distinct difference between sympathy and approval. No possible excuse can be found for people taking the law in their own hands in this country. We have sufficient legal means for meting out punishment to offenders, and those who act on their own initiative in settling their disputes outside the law, will receive nothing but condemnation from right thinking people. In the southern States mobs sometimes usurp the law, and deal out their own punishment; but any move to introduce such administration of justice in this country should be frowned upon definitely and decisively.

We cannot even approve of a public dance to raise money to pay the fines imposed upon these eleven men who overstepped their privileges. If a few of their friends wished to get together and assist them, it would be their own business, but this public appeal to the masses, to thus subscribe to lawlessness, is something which is apt to have a most undesirable effect upon the public mind. It more or less elevates these eleven men as heroes, and is even apt to cause people to hold in contempt the law which punished them. They are not heroes in any sense of the term, and the law which was enforced against them is a just law, which should be respected and obeyed.

It would seem as if the Attorney-General might be justified in stepping in to compel the friends of these eleven men to provide some other means for lightening the financial burden upon the convicted parties.

The Peril of Loose Gravel

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

THE tragic death of a former St. Thomas man who was burned to death before the eyes of his wife and daughter when their car overturned in loose gravel or sand near Lindsay, is a reminder that the byways are sources of a different kind of peril from the highways. City motorists like to turn into the township roads now and again to meander along and enjoy the scenery; others have to reach their summer destination on the back roads. They are away from the busy lanes of traffic, but they encounter risks that are not met with on the paved arterial thoroughfares.

Probably the worst of these is loose gravel. We are not familiar with the methods of road maintenance on "dirt" roads, but from experience it seems to us that a common method is to dump loads of material on the road, spread over the ground a bit with shovels and leave it to the cars to continue the spreading process with their wheels. Sometimes power graders are used, but not every township goes to the expense of buying these machines. At any rate, few drivers have escaped the experience of suddenly coming on loose gravel several inches deep, causing their wheels to twist, probably jerking their hands from the steering wheel, and they are fortunate indeed if they manage to keep control until the car regains equilibrium, or if they merely slither into the ditch and remain upright. Loose gravel is often not visible until the driver is almost into it. This writer speaks with feeling, for only a few days ago he was jolted out of his complacent thoughts when his auto hit a badly repaired hole with the material seven or eight inches higher than the road, and for a matter of fifty feet or so his mind worked high pressure wondering whether he was going to land in the right ditch or the left, hit a telephone pole or go through a fence. By sheer luck he straightened out, but his heart was throbbing harder than the engine.

So many lives have been lost by loose gravel and send that the wonder is there has been no legislation or departmental recommendation requiring that some binding mixture be used with a heating down process to preserve a smoother and more certain surface to meet the conditions of modern traffic. In many places the gravel conditions are little short of criminal neglect.

SAVE MONEY TOO.

(Kitchener Record)

MOTORISTS who burn up the road so to speak, pay dearly for trying to get to their destination in a hurry. Experts have discovered that at moderate rates of speed one is able to double tire mileage, cut the oil bill in two and get more miles to the gallon. Here are their figures.

1—Oil consumption at 55 miles an hour is seven times greater than at 30 miles an hour.

4—There is greater wear and tear on the various parts of the car when running at high speed, particularly on piston rigs, wrist pins, connecting rods and main bearings, transmission and rear axle bearings.

Since most of us are always willing to accept advice that tends toward economy, the slogan—Reduce your speed and save money—is one that should offer a strong appeal.

At moderate rates of speed the car is under better control of the driver and fewer emergencies develop into serious accidents. Hence by keeping your speeds down you save both lives and money.

CAN'T BUY A CAR.

(Windsor Star)

SOME amazing news has come out of Flint in recent months, but there has been none more startling than a despatch printed in the Star yesterday.

For the past two weeks, this report said, it has been impossible to buy an automobile in Flint, where most cars are manufactured than in any other city in the world except Detroit.

Reason?

C.I.O. organizers called their members in the auto sales rooms and repair shops off their jobs and stationed pickets in front of the leading dealers' establishments.

Result, a close-up, the dealers declaring they could not meet the blanket terms laid down by the Lewis crowd.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

(New York Times)

SOVIET children from their model classrooms, and perhaps even from their model creches, are writing tender-hearted childlike letters to the newspapers about the latest executions. They rejoice in the death of the "Fascist reptiles." A little girl writes, "May the names of the degenerates be scoured." A little boy says it is good that traitors are discovered and shot. Three little girls and a boy say, "Let the enemies tremble; they will be utterly destroyed." poor little Soviet Peterkins! They knew it was a famous victory. They have been told so, and have been told to hate. So in the German schools the children study Julius Streicher's primer on the Jews, and in Italy they are taught to hate England. And that is how beautiful new worlds are built.

Mickey said: "Boy, lamp de cow, Ain't she a honey! Ah! I see you, kin she take it on de lam?"

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat futures we re jumpy in a dull trading session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Light buying sent prices over the previous close several times, but the market weakened to close 3⅛ to 4⅛ cents lower, July at $1.42¼, October $1.34⅝ to ⅞, and December $1.31⅛.

Strength at Liverpool and scattered buying from Southern and export interests failed to impart any steady price movement and in late trading wheat was down more than three cents. Sales of Canadian wheat for shipment overseas were at a minimum, brokers reported.

Prices were fractionally higher in the opening minutes, partially due to a bullish private crop report estimating 12,000,000 acres in Saskatchewan and Eastern Alberta probably would be a failure. However, traders continued in a hesitant mood with volume of trade in the session the smallest of any day in recent weeks.

Yesterday's Quotations.

POCKET-IN-ONE

Wandering Golfer Stops Pellet But Lands It on Fairway

Teague's drive off the 14th tee split the fairway but neither he nor other members of the foursome could find the ball.

About this time George Swafford, looking for a ball he had sliced onto the 14th fairway, felt a jar in his pocket and found Teague's ball had landed there.

He solved the question of how Teague play his second shot by dropping the pellet to the fairway.

Strong Opponents For Mayor In New York Race

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia

Senator Royal S. Copeland

Grover A. Whalen

he said. He reminded that the money is seriously needed for relief operations.

"If we don't get busy and win this strike, we will not only lose our own strike, but the cause of all other unorganized workers in Ontario, he continued. "Remember you have in your hands the welfare of not alone yourself and your family, but 650 other families."

He warned the strikers they must be ready for efforts of the company to persuade strikers to abandon the strike body and return to work. A wholesale move of that nature might be made by the company at any time, but could be defeated if the strikers are on their guard, he said.

Receipts through the mail by a number of strikers of propaganda circulars from the "Socialist Labor Party of Canada," Post Office Box 123, Toronto, Ontario, was given attention by Welch as he displayed before the gathering one of the circulars with an article headlined "The Industrial Union—the Revolutionary Weapon."

"There were received through the mail with no address other than a post office box number given," he declared. "I am going to do the same as others did with their circulars. If this organization wishes to assist us in any way, it can approach us through our regular channels." He thereupon crunched the paper into a ball and threw it away to the accompaniment of cheers. Written in crayon on the bottom of the circular was an offer to supply a speaker to address Peterborough strikers on behalf of the Socialist Labor Party.

May Exchange Pickets

The possibility that an exchange of several pickets between the strike front here and the scenes of the strike at Canadian Cottons Limited in Cornwall may be arranged was suggested by Welch. The exchange would help demonstrate the solidarity of the workers on the two fronts in their demands for better wages and conditions, he said.

The organization of a delegation to interview Premier Hepburn was hinted in the report of the strike committee to the meeting. According to present plans an effort would be made to have such a delegation include prominent local citizens outside the strike body, it was said.

MILLBROOK

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and family spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. McConnell of Toronto, at their summer cottage, Pine Tree Point, Rice Lake.

Rev. A. L. Risco returned last week from his holidays, spent at Auburn Theological Seminary Summer School, New York State, and occupied his own pulpit on Sunday. A brief report of the school was given in the talk to the boys and girls at morning worship on Sunday, the fact being mentioned that there were ten Canadians among those taking the summer course, and on Dominion Day before sitting down to breakfast, these ten sang "God Save the King." Noticing that the Americans were standing out of courtesy, "Blest be the tie" was sung, the others joining in. A reporter who was nearby had a note in his paper that day stating that the Canadian students sang their National Anthem and the Americans joined in the chorus. By what twist of the imagination the press representative made out that "Blest be the tie that binds" makes up a chorus for "God Save the King" was not evident.

An incident that cast a gloom over the school was the sudden death of the instructor in Religious Education, a professor from Princeton University, at the early age of forty-five years.

12 Firemen Overcome Perfume Shop Blaze

Quebec, July 22 (CP).

AMMONIA and chemical fumes from a small fire in a perfumery shop here today overcame 12 firemen, first to enter the establishment. They had to be revived by pulmotor treatment.

Thought to have broken out from an explosion in the basement of the two-storey St. Valier street building in the lower town, the fire caused little damage.

Most seriously affected of the firemen was Captain Phileas Patry, who lapsed into unconsciousness three times. The resuscitation crews also had difficulty in reviving Deputy Chief W. Lachance.

adian buyers in Chicago, the Star said.

Prices Lower In U.S.

WINNIPEG, July 22 — (CP) — Grain men and millers here said today the disparity in wheat prices between the United States and Winnipeg wheat markets probably accounted for the purchase by Canadian interest of 100,000 bushels of hard winter wheat in Kansas City for export to Montreal.

It was generally believed here the wheat would be milled in bond in Eastern Canada and exported to the United Kingdom or Europe.

The Kansas City Star reported last night such a purchase of wheat from Southwestern United States farms had been made. Soft winter wheat had been sold alap to Canadian buyers in Chicago, the Star reported.

Traders said with Winnipeg prices much higher than United States quotations, millers could at times profitably buy wheat in Kansas City or Chicago, pay the freight to Montreal and the customs duty, mill it in bond and then export the flour. July wheat in Chicago closed yesterday at $1.22 and at Winnipeg the July future was $1.45⅝.

A drawback is allowed on the customs duty when the flour is exported, Miller said.

It was reported a Toronto milling company had made the purchases reported from Kansas City. Traders here said it was the first time such a transaction had been made.

Commit Hatfield On False Pretences

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP)—Captain Freeman Hatfield yesterday was committed by Magistrate Glenn Strike to stand trial at "the next Court of Competent Jurisdiction" on a charge of obtaining money from the Government of Canada by false pretences.

Hatfield was brought here from Manchester, N.H., May 20 after a long and unsuccessful fight against extradition. He was accused by the Crown of having received more than $71,000 from the Government on the claim his ship, the Gypsum Queen, was torpedoed by a German submarine in 1915. The Crown contended the Gypsum Queen was sunk by a storm and not by a torpedo and that he was therefore not entitled to the reparation payment.

DROUGHT MAY CUT WHEAT CROP

was not maintained. The year 1933 saw another sharp drop to 263,000,000. And since then the decline has been steady. Last year production totalled only 212,000,000 bushels.

Variations had occurred in the general drought picture from year to year, said Mr. Gardiner.

"The dry area last year embraced Calgary and a portion of South-west Alberta," he declared. "This year Calgary is 'out' and that section around Lethbridge will have a fair crop. But, while there has been some constriction in Alberta, there has been an expansion in Saskatchewan. Regina and Saskatoon were 'out' last year; but they are embraced in the drought belt this year. The dry area has reached up north as far as Battleford."

In Saskatchewan, the hardest-hit province, the drought district is comprised within a triangle which runs approximately from the neighborhood of Moosomin, near the Manitoba border, north-west between Humboldt and Saskatoon to Battleford, then sharply south by west into Alberta.

Some Recovery Noted.

All the land within this triangle is not uniformly affected. In extensive areas some recovery had been noted early this month, when drenching rains advanced crops that had already germinated, Mr. Gardiner said. Elsewhere the precipitation had induced late germination with a prospect of a feed growth.

In those southern sections, however, the story has not altered from year to year. The picture of endless miles of billowing grain on Canada's Prairies less than a decade ago has radically changed. Saskatchewan, which in the banner year of 1928 had a wheat output of 321,215,000 bushels, produced last year only 117,000,000. The crop is in such a state in 1937 that estimates figure on little more than 75,000,000 bushels. At the most, not more than 100,000,000.

Alberta Better Off

The story for Alberta is less distressing. High hopes are entertained for a crop which may not go far below one half the 1928 yield of 171,000,000 bushels. But in the east-central regions of the province, from the vicinity of Gleichen to the Saskatchewan border and south to the Cypress Hills, conditions are no better than in the neighboring province.

Compared with the other two provinces, Manitoba's condition this year is good. But here, too, normal production may not be reached.

Would Let Nurses Practice In Training

LONDON, July 21—(CP-Cable)—A plea that undergraduate nurses be given opportunities to practise while training was urged yesterday by Miss Mary S. Mathewson of McGill University at the International Nurses' Congress.

A nurse had a right to expect an opportunity to practise under sympathetic supervision during her undergraduate period, Miss Mathewson said, rather than as a frightened and inefficient private nurse after graduating.

"If a hospital does not afford such opportunities, some other way must be found or nursing will be unable to meet its obligations," she said.

CF INTEREST TO WOMEN

White Tresses Are Beautiful

That Is Of Course When They Are Well Kept

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

THERE'S NO doubt but that the majority of women to-day consider gray or white hair anything but an asset. Most women have the idea that the appearance of that first silver thread amongst the gold means the end of youth and romance. Yet at many periods in history such hair has been thought very beautiful.

It's not really the color of gray hair that women of to-day dislike. It's the fact that in their minds, gray hair is definitely associated with age. Olivia de Havilland, screen star, who wore a white wig in a recent cinematic portrayal, claims that grey hair really isn't aging, however. Indeed, to many faces, gray hair proves infinitely kinder than dark hair; softer and more becoming. Certainly it is much more youthful than hair dyed a harsh black or a flaming Titian. For unnatural hair shades tend to harden an aging face and emphasize any lines or shadows that have appeared.

Gray hair can really be kept in as beautiful, healthy and luxuriant a state as any other shade of hair, if it is properly treated. If the hair is infested with drandruff, the proper steps should be taken to correct this condition. If it is dry and brittle, or thin, it should be given rectifying hot oil treatments. If it is very oily, or falls out in large amounts, salt water shampoos should benefit.

Bring Out Hair's Loveliness

If your hair is entirely gray, try to bring out the full loveliness of your silvery locks. The chief unattractive feature of gray hair, in my opinion, is the fact that it so easily tends to become streaked or to acquire a yellowish tinge. And to really be beautiful, gray hair should be a halo of shining silver or snowy whiteness.

There are a number of factors that tend to discolor gray hair and make it yellowish. Improper permanent waving is one. The use of too strong shampoos is another. And over-hot curling irons and too intense heat also tend to discolor gray hair. These things should all be guarded against.

Shampoos should be mild and bland. Permanent waving should be done only by an expert in a reliable shop. Hot curling irons should be avoided, and hot air currents should not be used to dry such hair.

When gray hair has become streaked or tinged with yellow, however, bluing rinses are excellent for correcting the condition. It is best first to give the hair a hot oil treatment, and then a thorough shampoo. Then a rather deep solution of hair bluing should be made and used as the last rinse.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

You cannot "get even" with anyone who does you an injury except by getting on his level; that is what evenness means. No possible ill from without can be equal to the harm you can inflict on yourself by sinning against your own higher character and self-respect. "Geting even" with wrong, injustice, and selfishness, is too costly an indulgence to be allowed."—O. S. Marsden.

Dear Friends:

Just this week I heard a person say: "I will get even with him" and I thought to myself what a lot of trouble they were letting themselves in for, because however could they do it without doing something like they had resented so much being done to them?

And so many of the things we resent being done to us are so because we let them be like that. Something is said or left unsaid to hurt our feelings (and I'll warrant our "feelings" are more often spoken about as being hurt than of being pleased.)

We so rarely talk about the feelings that are pleased, but oh how we can harp on them when they are hurt. We look at it from the angry point and wonder why anyone would dare to say such things to us, while maybe all the time we left ourselves open for criticism. But this that has been said has lowered our opinion of ourselves, so we think "I won't let them get away with this. I'll get even with them" and as one woman added "if it is the last thing I do."

Well, candidly I wouldn't like to think the last thing I did was to hurt another, even although they had hurt me intentionally. And a lot of our hurts are not done intentionally at all, but we took it that way.

Sometimes it is a good plan to stop and think if we deserved what was said, and if we didn't, why let it go by. If we did, let us be square enough to take our medicine, and in that way we pull their punch by mending our ways so that we do not offend in that way again.

But if we let it corrode our minds we do not better ourselves, and if the person has been ignorant enough to try and hurt us, we simply put ourselves on their level instead of keeping ourselves above it.

Even in families where the love tie should be strongest, you hear it said about "getting even" and it all seems so silly when you examine it. What would become of us all if we were to do nothing else but try to get even for all the slights fancied or real we meet up with in our lives?

A boss is tired and weary so he speaks sharply when we bother him or her with something we should know how to handle ourselves. Then resentment stirs within us, and we think we will get even by shirking our work, and it likely lands us in the street.

The whole thing is we want consideration, but will not give it. A mother has a hard day so she speaks impatiently to her child, old or young, and immediately we think the others are favored more than we, so we try to get even by withholding some small service thereby hurting both them and us.

Getting even is a sign of inferiority, for it makes one think they are not what they thought they were. And what does it all amount to? It makes us make mountains out of molehills. Supposing a ball player does not like what is being said while he or she is playing and decides to get even by not doing their best?

The only thing that happens is they lose the game and what good is that. Let a lot you hear go in the one ear and out the other. None of us are so good we cannot bear to be criticized, so that we are spurred on to do better and sometimes is exactly what we need. More later.

Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

One package dates, cut fine; one teaspoon soda, one cup boiling water, one cup dark brown sugar, one tablespoon (generous) shortening, one teaspoon vanilla, two cups flour. Pour boiling water with soda over dates and shortening. When cool add other ingredients in order and beat well.

Chocolate Cake.

One teaspoon vanilla, four squares chocolate; one and one-half cups sugar, one and three-fourths cups milk, one-half cup shortening, two eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon baking soda, three teaspoons baking powder, two cups cake flour. The best results are obtained when the ingredients are mixed in the following way: Put the four squares of chocolate and one-half cup of the sugar with three-fourths cup of the milk in a saucepan and cook until it is smooth and creamy. Let that mixture cool. Now cream one-half cup of shortening with one cup of sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs beaten until light. Sift the cake flour with salt, baking soda and baking powder. Add to mixture alternately with the left-over cup of milk, beating well between each addition. Now add the chocolate mixture and beat again. Flavor with vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two layers at 350 degrees.

We Noticed

. . . that ladies of the Royal family seem very fond of blue. We quote from descriptions given within a few days of each other: "The Queen wore a gown of pale blue, a wide hat of the same shade and a fur dyed to match"; and "The Princesses arrived first, wearing pale blue, and were taken to seats in the balcony." "The Duchess of Gloucester wore a dress of electric blue and a hat of the same shade; and "The Duchess of Kent wore a delicate shade of grey-blue."

. . . that long zipper fasteners are being worn on princess frocks—white zippers with black dresses, gold with green, and brown with beige.

Cape Dress in Red and White

(By Central Press)

IF WHEN you were a little girl your mother made you wear a certain color you didn't like, made you wear it and wear it because she thought it your best shade, you can salve your disappointed soul this season with all the colors of the rainbow.

And you can MAKE almost any color becoming by choosing your makeup carefully. Of course you will discover—or you have discovered, rather, if you have been grown up for some time—that there really are colors that are not becoming to you. But these are very few, and you can revel in all the others, for this is a season of color.

Betty Grable, film actress, illustrates our point by wearing her favorite colors—red and white—in a crepe cape frock. The skirt, cape, collar and covered buttons are red checked with white, while the top is white checked with red. The belt is bright red leather. Remember when the brunet was the only woman supposed to wear red? And how sick the dark-haired, dark-eyed little girls used to get of red?

Blondes wore blue, of course, and how they hated it. Now the dark-haired lassie wears blue and the blonde dresses in red—and both look lovely.

Simplified frocks for garden parties and the races are popular in Paris this season. There are few, if any, ground-floor dresses, and few prints, except for suits. Skirts are slim and cut on the bias without any pleats. Pastel colors predominate, with soft blues, misty lavenders, pale rose and light green the outstanding ones.

Don't forget that the formal frock skirt that is short in front, long back, is the very latest thing.

and went to sleep. The house is shared with another family which rents the upper portion. Mrs. Demman was resting in the front room.

A man's pipe found at the foot of Mrs. Demman's bed, led to the belief that there may have been a quarrel or struggle in the bedroom before the near-fatal attack.

A trail of blood led from the veranda through the house into the cellar. The bloodstained hammer and hatchet were found and taken to headquarters. Demman, when discovered in the bathroom, was almost asphyxiated. Ten minutes longer in the gas-filled room would have been fatal, police said.

PAL SHOT, WOUNDED AS PAIR SURPRISED

license plates on an automobile on Riverside Drive and was fired upon as he tried to apprehend them. On his death-bed he swore a man identified as Szymonski shot him down, then drilled bullets into him as he lay on the ground.

Rubber Shoe The Clue

An imprint of a rubber sole found at the scene of the shooting led to the capture. The tracks of the rubber shoes were found near Creighton Mine this week, heading in a westerly direction and the following day about 10 miles on.

Inspector Knight posted men along the right-of-way near Nairn, about 40 miles west of Sudbury, while others covered the bridge over the Spanish River on the highway. Captured today, Shoke, was wearing the rubber-soled shoes.

On guard in the rock cut, Sergeant Arthur Page of the Provincial Police and Constables Stan Wilson of Sudbury and Jack Brown of Blind River saw two men creep out of the woods beside the track and start west. They were talking in Polish and one of the officers challenged.

Shoots As He Runs.

Szymonski ran toward the rock cut, shooting as he came. The officers returned fire and the gunman fell. Shoke pulled a revolver and fired nine shots before he went down.

None of the officers was hit as they terminated the nine-day manhunt. They carried Shoke to an automobile and hurried him to Espanola, while Szymanski's body was brought to Sudbury.

Coroner Dr. E. P. Laflame went to the scene with Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins today. It was Wilkins who took a bedside statement from Davidson Monday night, then laid it before court here Tuesday as murder charges against the fugitive duo were laid.

Davidson and district residents pointed to photographs of Szymonski and Shoke as those of the men sought. The two were seen together before and after the shooting. Possessors of long criminal records, they were known by police of the province in the north country.

Murder warrants were issued immediately after Davidson's death and spurred the most intensive manhunt Northern Ontario has ever known. Provincial and city officers, bushmen and special constables poured through the bushlands and scoured communities in search of the middle - aged, bespectacled Szymonski and his young companion.

The city of Sudbury posted a $250 reward for information leading to the apprehension of the killer and his alleged accomplice. The Provincial Government increased the price to $1,000.

Szymonski and Shoke were possessors of many aliases and had been sentenced to prison under several of them. When or where they came together after careers of crimes that included use of firearms was not known.

Szymonski had been sentenced to 10-year penitentiary terms three times. A native of Poland, he was sentenced to 10 years for robbery with violence in 1910 but escaped the same year, to remain at Liberty until 1914 when Constable William Clark of Copper Cliff, now North Bay police chief, captured him single-handed.

Szymonski was identified as the gunman who fired at a railway bridge guard at Smiths Falls and on his return to penitentiary was sentenced to another 10 years for escape and causing grievous bodily harm. Convicted of armed robbery in 1930 at Campbell's Bay, Que., he went to penitentiary until this spring.

At the time of his death Szymonski was wanted by Toronto police as Victor Grey on a charge alleging he stabbed a countryman.

800 JOBS IN WEEK

Ontario Employment Agencies Place Men On Farms.

TORONTO, July 22 (CP).—More than 800 men were placed on Ontario farms last week through the Ontario employment agencies and farm representatives, it was announced at Queens Park today.

Meanwhile the 1,700 strikers will learn to-day the company's answer to their demands for higher wages, better working conditions, and recognition of the Cornwall local of the United Textile Workers' Union of America.

Reply in Pay Envelopes.

The company promised the strikers they would receive its reply in their pay envelopes. The workers' demands were embodied in a letter sent to the company by Arthur Laverty, president of the local union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate.

Strikers planned to hold a monster "pay parade" soon after they receive cheques.

Speaking of the Labor Department intervention, Laverty said:

"Fine progress has been made and I am very pleased that Mr. Campbell is intervening. I know Mr. Campbell to be a fair-minded man and a man who can be relied upon to act in the best interests of both parties."

Percy Laurin, member of the strikers' committee, also interviewed the conciliation officer in Ottawa and told him the workers were willing to co-operate to the limit.

doned an automobile and seized a new one.

Escaped In Swamp.

They came to Denton's home Tuesday night after being forced to flee afoot when they entered a dead-end country road. Mrs. Traxler was left in the car, but the gunmen escaped through the swamps.

They forced Denton to leave his bed and accompany them in his automobile while attempting to wheel around on another dead-end road.

Traxler led the way to Trimmer's home and took the farmer and his automobile on a new flight. Fleeing eastward, the outlaws and their two captives finally stopped near Boswell for a brief rest and gave Denton his chance.

At both the Denton and Trimmer homes, the captives' families had been distraught, although the outlaws had assured them their hostages would not be harmed.

"Lousy" Shot, Wife Says.

Mrs. Denton was surprised to learn of her husband's feat.

"He hadn't fired a gun for three years," she said. "And then it was only a shotgun he used to hunt rabbits. I always joked him about being a lousy shot, too."

Traxler and Tindol were among a group of nine incorrigibles who fought off guards with smuggled guns and broke from the Texas prison farm. One convict was killed and four others were captured within an hour. Still at large are Charles Chapman, former Alabama road contractor turned bank robber, and Walter Belton of Fort Worth.

Would Isolate Jews Special Rail Cars

BERLIN, July 22—(CP-Havas)—Isolation of Jews in special compartments of sleeping cars on trains passing through Germany was suggested by Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the Gestapo, Chancellor Hitler's political police.

Urging the German railway administration to show more "consideration" for Aryans, the police publication said that in the United States "white people will not ride on the same compartment with blacks."

"One cannot dream," Das Schwarze Korps said, "of asking an Aryan, much less a storm trooper in uniform, to sleep in the same compartment with a Jew. Therefore sleeping car conductors should be given tacit authorization to crowd Jews into special compartments."

FARMERS KEEN

mediate growth, but in the end the crop took more of the natural minerals from the ground than was put in."

Mr. Bryden spoke of the usual practice of manuring fields, summer fallow and cultivation, stressing particularly the importance of good cultivation. Some times a farmer may treat his land with lime, and as a matter of demonstrable fact lime was not needed.

"And when all is said and done in the way of testing and treatment no one can tell you exactly what should be done to get the best crop out of a particular field," Mr. Bryden said.

Plants are like animals. They required balanced diets, and that diet for field crops must come from the soil. If there is mineral deficiency crops are bound to reveal it, and this lack of mineral content is also likely to be reflected in the condition of livestock which would not be getting sufficient nourishment because the soil producing their feed has become depleted of essential mineral contents.

Mr. Bryden said that soil analysis is now being carried on in the counties of Durham and Northumberland. Mr. Duffus had made an application to the government for a similar service in Peterborough county, and it would no doubt be given in Peterborough's turn.

NEW ROAD SYSTEM ENVISIONED IN U.S.

Will Be Needed To Accommodate 37,000,000 Motor Vehicles By 1960

DETROIT, July 22 (AP).—Charles F. Kettering, research engineer, told the American Society of Civil Engineers a new highway system must be provided in the United States to accommodate 37,000,000 motor vehicles by 1960.

The number of automobiles on the highways will increase 60 per cent within the next 23 years, he said, while "an increase in motor vehicle registration on our present highway system would almost prohibit much of our usual driving.

"Such a plan would require a primary system of high speed highways crossing the country in all directions. It is estimated that 50,000 to 60,000 miles of such super-highways would be sufficient. Leading from them would be a secondary system of good highways serving small cities and towns. The third system would consist of service highways serving rural areas."

SUCCESSFUL DAY MARKS CLOSING DURHAM WORK

Four Associations Of Girls' Supper Clubs Represented In Events

KEEN COMPETITION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 22.—"This is Achievement Day, when we have been learning; from now on it will be competition." So announced Miss Greta Pollard, Home Economics Coach, and head of eight counties in girls' work, as she brought to a close a successful day's activities for the Girls' Supper Clubs for Durham County.

Represented at the gathering, which began its sessions at 9.30 a.m., in the Town Hall, Millbrook, and continued until after 4 p.m., were four of the Durham girls' associations: Newtonville, "Improvers' Club"; Morrish, "Coronation Home Making Club"; Orono, "Kay's Kitchen Club"; and Millbrook, "Girls' Supper Club." The leaders of the four, in the order already mentioned, were: Mrs. W. Fall; Mrs. H. Harcourt; Miss Kathleen Stark; and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong. Mrs. Mann, of Peterborough, acted as secretary for the day.

The morning session opened with registration and setting up of club exhibits, which included Record Books, artistically designed as to cover and illustrations, and containing items of interest in connection with club meetings, and with the individual girl's home life and activities; and essays of not more than 1,000 words on "Salads for Health." Both of these had been previously judged at the office of A. E. Summers, Department of Agriculture, Bowmanville, the marks counting in the total for Achievement Day.

Other articles on display were garment covers, nicely made and very useful in protecting dresses while hanging in the clothes' closet; hat stands and covers; and posters, showing "Supper Menus for the Four Seasons of the Year", with colored illustrations appropriate to the food, and the time of year the meal was planned for.

The major part of the morning was given up to judging the following: Four lots of tea biscuits; four supper menus, with relation to the rest of the day's meals; and planning menus, a breakfast and dinner menu for each season being given to the girls, their part being to complete each with a suitable supper menu. In the afternoon interesting demonstrations brought information in practical form, the Morrish team, Marjorie and Dorothy Dickinson, and Miriam Peters, showing the value of "The Well Equipped Clothes Closet", in dialogue form with particular reference to its value in keeping tidy a girl's own room.

Table Setting.

Orono team, Myrtle Tamblyn, Kathleen Stark, and Olive Brown, followed, with a demonstration on "Table Setting for a Farm Supper", the menu, the service, and the proper manner of laying the table, being well portrayed. The food served was a fluffy omelette, potato balls (one way to temptingly use up left-overs), salad, tea and milk, and for dessert, strawberry shortcake, and as each part of the demonstration went on, in order, dialogue kept the onlookers informed of the well-planned progress.

Newtonville chose "The Well-Equipped Clothes' Closet", and created much interest by bringing on the stage such a closet made from orange crates, with compartments for hats, emergency box (containing tape, elastic, and extra pair of shoe laces, etc.), shoe rack, and upper shelf for hat box and sweater or dress box, and 'space saver' hooks holding several dresses, coats, etc., on each one. Proper hangers for dresses and coats were also shown, boxes divided to hold stockings, socks, and belts; and a bedside table, also from an orange crate, with heavy cotton pasted over the cracks, (as was also done in making the closet), the whole being painted, with a border, and then shellaced; a curtain of unbleached cotton, dyed to match the room's furnishings, made an effective closing for the closet.

This team was given highest place in the judging on the project demonstrated, the girls taking part being: Bernice Milligan, Beatrice Thompson, and Hilda Rowland. In each case the dialogue used was made up by the girls themselves, and the time allowed, fifteen minutes.

Miss Pollard led in a helpful discussion of the judging done during the day, and certificates won by the girls who had completed two projects were presented by Miss Verna Gardiner, of Mount Pleasant, the winners being: Marian Belch; Wilma Armstrong; Margaret Smith, of Millbrook; Gloria Richardson, Orono; Dorothy Smith, and Kathleen Smith, Millbrook.

Supper Club Competition

In the Supper Club competition, senior section, the winners were: 1, Marian Belch, Millbrook; 2, Kathleen Stark, Orono; 3, Myrtle Tamblyn, Orono; 4, Jean Belch, Millbrook.

As having the highest marks for the day, Marian Belch was presented with a copy of "The Canadian Cook Book." The other prizes, as well as those in the junior section, were one year's subscription to the Chatelaine, or the Canadian Home Journal.

The first three girls in the above class had won the right to represent Durham at the Toronto Exhibition, on September 8, but as Kathleen Stark had already had this honor she was not eligible, and Myrtle Tamblyn will take her place.

In the Junior Supper Club section those having highest standing were: 1, Beatrice Fells; 2, Wilma Armstrong, both of Millbrook. In the Clothes' Closet project the listing was: 1, Hilda Rowland, Newtonville; Bernice Milligan, Clarke and Marjorie Dickinson, Morrish. Juniors: L. Marian Peters; 2 Dorothy Dickinson; 3 Ruth Hawthorne.

The project chosen for next year was "The Milky Way," when the many uses and advantages of milk in the diet will be studied and demonstrated, and if a second is used it will be "Cottons may be Smart." The leaders' training school will be sometime in October, the date and place to be announced later. The leader urged the attendance of the girls at the Peterborough Exhibition, taking part on Junior Day, August 18, stating that any of those who had participated in Achievement Day were eligible, and outlining the many advantages in connection with same, the only fee being fifty cents which would admit to grounds, to banquet, and to grandstand at night. This will be an inter-county competition, and at Lindsay on September 17 of an inter-club nature.

During the meeting it was charged some former employees of the Coulter Manufacturing Company, whose plant was recently destroyed by fire had been refused relief by Oshawa civic officials. C. H. Millard union president, said the charges would be investigated.

BASEBALL CLUB THUMBS ITS WAY WHEN BUS QUITS

Peterborough Players Have Exciting Time On Kingston Trip

MAKE LATE ARRIVAL

Hitch-hiking by members of the Peterborough Baseball Club is getting to be an accomplishment, and the whole team had plenty of practice yesterday in the art of thumbing it. The occasion was their trip to Kingston—where the Petes lost, but that is another story—and they were late in arriving for the game and didn't get back to Peterborough till four o'clock this morning. Some of the club had to hitch-hike part of the way to Napanee in their preyious game away from home.

The club yesterday travelled in an Apsley-Peterborough bus. The driver and trouble with the gas-line a few miles past Napanee on the way down. Manager Fred Collins, Secretary Jim Dorris and the players—the party number 18—had to string out on the highway (this was at 5.30) and thumb rides to Kingston. Many cars breezed by but eventually they were all loaded in. They arrived too late for a warmup before the game, starting in cold. But that wasn't the worst of their trouble.

After the game, the Petes' party loosed in vain for their bus. After scouring Kingston, they eventually hired another bus to go as far as Napanee. They were giving up the search in that town when their bus arrived—the driver having hunted for them all the way from Belleville to Kingston and then back to Napanee! A disgruntled crew piled in and rolled home in the wee sma' hours.

MOTOR CYCLE CARD FULL OF THRILLS

Program For Civic Holiday Promises To Provide Plenty Of Excitement

Motorcycling, which has gained in popularity here in recent years, is to come into its own on Civic Holiday, with a thrilling program of races to be run off at Exhibition Grounds under joint auspices of the local Lions Club and Kawartha Motorcycle Club.

The fact that the races are to be competed for under A.C.U. rules and that winners will be recognized by that Union, practically ensures there will be a large entry list of crack riders from all parts of the province and beyond its boundaries.

Interested inquiries have been received by Clifford Brien, secretary of the Kawartha Motorcycle Club, from Brien Sparks of Walkerville, who is a member of the Windsor Club and A.C.U. representative for that district; from K. R. Matthews of Kitchener, who promises that the Maple Leaf Riders Club "will come down to these races in a bunch"; and from Romeo Masse, Jr., of Montreal, who encloses a fee of one dollar and expresses a wish to enter in the "experts' class."

Arnold Deyell, chairman of the special committee of the Lions Club, said A.C.U. officials had looked over the race track at Exhibition Grounds here, and had declared it to be the best in Ontario for the running of motorcycle race events.

Mr. Deyell and other members of the Lions Club are anticipating good public support for the motorcycle races, because from the proceeds they have decided to donate the sum of $600 towards providing instruments for the recently organized boys' band to be known as "Peterborough Lions Club Boys' Band."

TORONTO, July 22 — (C.P.) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn will make a tour of inspection of Northern Ontario during the last two weeks of August. Announcing his intention to visit the north the premier said there was nothing political in the trip.

HARVESTING WEATHER

Dry weather this week has been a big help to farmers in getting along with their harvesting. Nearly all the hay has been stored in the barns, and a great deal of the fall wheat has already disappeared from the fields. The crop is said to be well matured and is in good condition for cutting.

UNUSUALLY QUIET.

Members of the City Police Department are hoping that the unusual calm which pervaded the station to-day, does not presage a storm of crime. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., arrived to open court this morning, only to find there was not one case on the docket from the city or county, while overnight police report there were no accidents or arrests.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

The Examiner told on Wednesday evening of a truck skidding off the freshly oiled road at Burleigh Falls into the waters of Perry's Creek. The machine was owned by Dave Moore of Coe Hill, and he and his driver and Mrs. George Trotter who was also riding in the truck had a narrow escape. When the vehicle left the road Moore managed to jump off and seizing Mrs. Trotter swam with her to shore while the driver also succeeded in swimming to safety.

ON BOYS' CAMP STAFF.

Bob Davidson of the Maple Leaf hockey team is spending his summer at Camp Wospak on Mississauga Lake, on the boundary between Harvey and Cavendish townships, on the camp staff directed by Bert Green of Toronto. Some thirty boys are guests, and others are expected next month. Mississauga is one of the largest lakes in the northern part of Peterborough county, with an excellent bathing beach. It is east of the road extending north from Buckhorn and Rockcroft, and around 20 miles north of this city.

SATISFIED RESORT OWNERS.

Bewdley, in common with other lake resorts throughout the district, is alive with tourists at the present time. Mrs. Tom Dawson, who runs the "Jean Ruth Log Cabin" fronting on Rice Lake, declared that while the tourist trade was good last year, it is even better this year. Practically all the cabins and cottages in Bewdley have been rented since the first of July, she said. Mrs. Dawson added that pickerel fishing at Rice Lake is exceptionally good, while there are some bass being caught.

RESCUED AT INVERLEA. .. .. ..

Exhausted by swimming in the middle of the river off Inverlea Beach on Tuesday evening, Gerard Peel, Bonacord Street, floated to the first pier and was hanging on trying to rest when he was rescued by Bill Gracie who jumped off the traffic level railing just as the caretaker, George Cooper, in his punt, reached the boy. It was a narrow escape for him as his weakened condition was not generally noticed. The beach has been crowded every afternoon and evening this week. A visitor from Detroit requested the caretaker to keep an eye on his two boys while they played for a while in the water.

FEW BLUEBERRIES IN THIS DISTRICT

Only Fruit On Sale Comes From Sudbury Area And Price Is High

Local fruit dealers are not very cheerful about the prospects for obtaining a very heavy supply of blueberries this summer. Today there are only a few berries in town and they are selling at two pint boxes for a quarter, which is rather a high price at this season. These berries come from the Sudbury district and, according to the dealers, that section will have to be depended upon for this year's supply.

"There are very few berries in our own section," one fruit man told The Examiner. "I was talking to a man the other day who told me that he had spent three days around the best berry sections of our own county and got only a quart or so. It looks to me as if the prices are going to remain high."

All of which is not exactly good news for the admirers of the succulent berry that makes one of the best pie fillers known to man.

HOW TO LEARN TO SWIM.

CLIP OUT AND SAVE.

LESSON THIRTEEN

The Elbow Carry

From a position to the rear of the subject, grasp from underneath both of his upper arms just above the elbows. Throw your head well back and proceed to tow using the breast stroke kick, keeping the subject's head well above water. Keep your elbows straight while towing so that you will be able to float high in the water and get your breath freely.

Double Chest Carry

This is a good method to use in rescuing a struggling subject. Approaching from the rear pass your arms underneath his armpits placing your hands on his chest. Hold the subject securely to you and tow rapidly at first in order to attain a horizontal position. Another carry very similar to the Double Chest Carry is the Full Nelson. Pass your arms through his armpits bringing the hands up behind his neck and interlocking your fingers.

Tired Swimmer Carry

If the subject is perfectly calm and collected, swim to the subject, approaching from the front. Instruct him to lie on his back, then place his hands on your shoulders and spread his feet wide apart. You are then free to swim breast stroke pushing the subject ahead of you. You will give the subject a great deal of confidence and allay his fright by talking to him as much as possible. Do not use this method if the subject is struggling or unconscious.

Fireman's Carry In Shallow Water

Start with the subject on his back in the water while you stand facing him. Put your left arm under his neck, your right arm under the crotch, then stoop and duck under the subject and roll him over on his side toward you. Then rise to an upright position with the subject across your shoulders and against your neck. The subject's leg and arm may be held by your right arm and hand respectively. This will allow you free use of the left arm to keep your balance or climb out of a pool.

PLAN SHELVED FOR PARTITION

the Speaker asked all those favoring the amendment, offered by Winston Churchill, to rise. The number was so large no count was taken.

Some Labor members contended partition of the Holy Land would give Italy a chance to step in there.

Not Balfour's Plan

The debate brought disclosure by Ormsby-Gore that Lord Balfour was not the author of the "Balfour Declaration" of 1917 which promised Jews a national home in Palestine.

The colonial secretary said Balfour submitted a draft of the declaration to the wartime cabinet in which he was foreign secretary, but that it was rejected.

Lord Milner then wrote a different draft which was approved. It became known as the "Balfour Declaration" because the Foreign Secretary announced it. Milner died in 1925, Balfour in 1930.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, proposed Great Britain hand over to the United States its mandate over Palestine.

STRIKE LEADERS BUSY ABOUT RELIEF

Renewed Drive Is Planned To Increase the Flow Of Contributions

Quiet again prevailed on the Peterborough strike front today as strike leaders awaited the arrival of Louis Fine, the Ontario Department of Labor's chief conciliator. The mediator failed to arrive at noon as scheduled but strikers were hopeful of meeting him before the general strike meeting to be held in the East City Community Hall at 3 o'clock.

Leaders concentrated their efforts during the day on the problem of strike relief. A renewed drive to increase the flow of relief contributions in the way of groceries and cash from the general community was planned at a morning committee meeting.

The committee was encouraged by the receipt of a cheque for $250 from the United Automobile Workers of Oshawa local as promised by Oshawa speakers at the strike rally Monday evening this week. It was reported unofficially that Oshawa union men are planning to make individual contributions of 25 cents a week for a total of $1,000 a week aid to the Peterborough strike cause.

Of the $250 from Oshawa, $100 was immediately turned over to the relief work at the direction of Nora Adams, Oshawa union organizer, and $150 was set aside for use in the near future. It was reported to the strike committee that the proceeds from a further collection at Oshawa will be forwarded immediately.

The strike committee reported to the press it has received assurance from the Typographical Union that financial support will be extended from that source.

Sanction of the strike committee will be extended a newly-formed citizens' strike aid committee understood to have been organized under the supervision of Homer Borland, prominent George Street United Church youth worker, according to a committee decision of this morning. The citizens' committee was reported willing to sponsor the lag day to be held in the interest of strike relief Saturday.

Various views, both optimistic and pessimistic, concerning the part which the Department of Labor mediator may play in strike negotiations, were expressed today by individual strike leaders. If Louis Fine can effect a re-opening of conversations with the company heads on the matter of a signed agreement for increased rates and wages, his assistance will be worth while, Organizer Alex Welch commented. It was pointed out by committee members that the mediator likely interviewed company heads before his departure for Peterborough and will be in a position to effect an interchange of views.

Organizer Welch will lead the small delegation from this city to the textile union leaders' conference in Ottawa after the week-end, it was announced. The Peterborough representatives will stop in Cornwall on the way to Ottawa and meet with Cornwall organizer Arthur Laverty.

CAUSE OF DEATH OF LOCAL YOUTH BAFFLES DOCTORS

Harold Edward Druce 15, Dies And Autopsy Fails To Show Why

VERY UNUSUAL CASE

Medical men have been presented with an unusual and mystifying problem with the death of Harold Edward Druce, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Druce, 8 Victoria avenue, which occurred this morning after an illness of six weeks' duration.

Following an autopsy he performed at a local undertaking parlor, the physician in charge of the case admitted he had been unable to learn the cause of death. "It is an unusual case. The autopsy did not reveal the cause of death, though I suspect it was probably some peculiar blood condition," the doctor commented.

Blood cultures have been sent to the provincial health laboratory and to the Clinic here, and within the next few days, the doctor said, he hoped to learn definitely the nature of the malady from which the boy died.

A student at Queen Alexandra School, Harold Druce had spent his entire lifetime in this city. Besides his parents, he leaves three sisters and two brothers.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, with the Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of George Street United Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

COTTONS REFUSE INCREASE IN PAY

Tell Cornwall Strikers They Have No Objection To Union Affiliation

MONTREAL, July 22.—(CP)—Replies to union demands were sent today by Canadian Cottons, Limited in pay envelopes of 1,700 striking employees of the company's three plants at Cornwall, Ont.

The replies, signed by General Manager R. O. Tolmie, outlined main demands made in behalf of the workers by United Textile Workers' Union, which called the strike, and said "a further general increase in wages at this time in the face of competition from low-wage countries as well as from domestic mills, would be definitely injurious from the standpoint of workers themselves as well as from that of the company."

(The union, in a letter from its head, Arthur Laverty, to W. V. Boyd, manager of Canadian Cottons, had asked a general 20 per cent wage increase be granted.)

Dealing with requests of the union that it be recognized as sole bargaining agency with the company, Mr. Tolmie said the company was "not in any way opposed to the association of any of its employees with a labor union."

OFFICER'S SON DROWNS

Lad 8, Falls In Lake While Father With Governor.

OTTAWA, July 22 (CP)—Laurie Kemp, eight-year-old son of Major V. A. M. Kemp, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here, was drowned last night in Lake Magog, about 250 miles east of Ottawa, according to word received today.

Major Kemp is with the Governor-General in Western Canada.

Mrs. Kemp motored to Lake Magog yesterday with the lad and Daphne, his young sister. They were taken by boat to the summer cottage of a friend. Shortly after, it was noticed Laurie was missing and his body was found in 15 feet of water.

FAIR PAYS OUT NEAT $125,000 IN 23 YEARS

Vast Sum Has Been Distributed In Prizes Secretary Says

DISTRICT BENEFITS

Largest Part Has Gone To Farmers In Immediate Section

Prize money distributed by the Peterborough Exhibition during the last twenty-three years has amounted approximately $125,000, F. J. A. Hall, secretary, told The Examiner today.

During the last three years the average has been around $8,000 to $9,000, and for the previous twenty years it was about $5,000 annually.

"It doesn't take long to mount up to a large sum," Mr. Hall remarked, "and if any one ever wonders where the money goes from year to year these estimates provide the answer. Prize money has been paid to the last dollar, and the largest part of it has gone to farmers and other exhibitors from this district, including the city. Add to the total the amount paid in wages, and the distribution for the period mentioned will amount to a substantially larger figure.

The directors of the Exhibition have contributed their time and thought and more or less worry during those years, and on top of that have assumed personal liability for the outstanding deficit at the bank.

A surplus of revenue this year would be a great encouragement to the directors who have to depend on the loyal support of the public for the progress the Exhibition is able to make from year to year."

OVER 50 SAMPLES HAVE BEEN LISTED

Farmers Bring In Soil From Different Sections Of County

When R. J. Bryden of the field experimental staff of the Ontario Agricultural College left this afternoon for Prince Edward County he had listed more than fifty samples of soil from Peterborough farms. Some of them were in paper bags and numbered to designate the fields from which the specimens were taken. Other samples were in quart sealers, and other containers were used down to the nickel-sized match boxes.

A preliminary examination showed that most of the soil submitted to Mr. Bryden was low in phosphorus, high in calcium, with potassium apparently grading from medium to low. Nearly twenty of the samples were brought in this morning, and the area from which they were taken extended from Bailieboro to Norwood and north beyond Warsaw.

ASSAILANT SOUGHT IN 'DROWNING' CASE

Victim Of Attack In Sudbury Area Has Two Sisters At Lindsay

SUDBURY, Ont., July 22 (C.P.)—Alphonse Landiault of Stinson last night identified a body found floating in Lake Ramsay on Tuesday as that of Robert Spinks, 28, who had lived with him the past two years. Spinks, missing since July 15, is believed by police to have met with foul play.

The body bore marks of violence and both eyes were discolored.

Last night Inspector A. H. Knight of the Sudbury detachment of Provincial Police declared: "We are checking every detail since the body has been identified, and we will find those who are guilty of the man's death before investigations are finished."

In May Spinks worked with a bridge gang, but was laid off. He was waiting to start work on another bridge at the time of his disappearance, it was learned.

Born in Eaudlaire, near Mattawa, the young man was the son of Mrs. W. Spinks and lived in Eaudlaire until he moved to Stinson two years ago. Surviving besides his mother are three sisters, Mrs. Nelson Beatty and Miss Myrtle Spinks, both of Lindsay, Ont., and Mrs. L. M. Davison of Dryden Township, and three brothers, John and Wesley of Eaudlaire, and Reed of New York.

Impossible To Make Winner Out Of Weak St. Louis Club So Rogers Hornsby Is 'Goat'

Browns' Owners Need To Follow Example Of Quinn And McKechnie At Boston

PAIR REAP REWARD

Bees Wallop Cards In Twin 5-1 And 2-1—Cubs Stretch League Lead

NEW YORK, July 22 (CP).—The Wolves are different in St. Louis.

Anywhere else, when they start to howl, the chances are they'd get some ball players. But when they open up on the Browns, they wind up with the manager's scalp—and don't ask why.

If anyone could have done a better job with the Brownies than old Rajah Hornsby, he hasn't made his appearance in big-time ball up to now. Certainly no one can do any better with the material at hand. With a pitching staff that was virtually non-existent, the Rajah was lucky to finish in the same league with the rest of the American loop jarrupers. That he finished out of the cellar last year was a miracle.

But the new Brownies' bosses, who took over the club before the season opened, have used little if any cash for pitching talent. Instead of giving Hornsby some elbowers who might have a 50-50 chance of finishing what they started, the powers that be fired Hornsby. Figure that one out.

Take Example From Bees.

They might have taken a tip from the Boston Bees; Bob Quinn moved in there two years ago and found a club dying on its feet. But instead of pouring it on Bill McKechnie, he has backed Bill up, until now he has brought together a pitching staff that is the pride of the National League, if not the entire big time.

Lou Fette and Jim Turner, a couple of 30-year-old "rookies," are the latest with whom Quinn and McKechnie have come up to baffle batting hopefuls on opposition. Fette and Johnny Lanning, a second-year man, had a cinch yesterday with the Cardinals and walloped them in both ends of a doubleheader, 5-1 and 2-1.

A homer by Ray Mueller with the bases loaded in the 11th inning won the first game for Fette. Then Lanning, matched against Dizzy Dean, tossed a two-hitter at the Gas House gang for the nightcap decision.

Cubs Stretch Lead.

Chicago Cubs, meantime, stretched their National League lead to two full games over the crippled Giants by whipping the Phillies in a twin bill. The most astonishing part about it was that Bill Lee and Larry French allowed only 14 hits and one run in the Phils pint-sized ball orchard to win 4-1 and 6-0.

A five-run rally in the fifth gave Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 decision over the Giants. George Jeffcoat turned in a four-hitter to blank the Pirates for a 6-0 Brooklyn win.

Fail To Yankees 6-3.

Although Sunny Jim Bottomley was the new manager for the Browns, it was the same old ball club. So the Yankees trimmed them, as usual, 6-3.

Jimmy Foxx smashed out two homers for the second straight day to lead the Red Sox in a 10-3 walloping of Detroit Tigers. Washington's Senators ended a 12-game "winless" run by topping the White Sox 7-3. Cleveland Indians just managed to nose out the Athletics in both ends of a twin bill, 9-8 and 8-7.

Westclox Beaten By Omemee 8 To 7

OMEMEE, July 22—Omemee turned the tables on the fast-stepping Westclox gang here last night by taking them for 8-7 in a close struggle. Currie muffing a fly in the ninth frame with two on spelled the downfall of the Clockmakers. For the Omemee gang, Pogue topped the hitters with single, double and a homer. Parsons was second with single and homer, Rehill had two doubles. O'Leary lead the Westclox with single and homer while Playford clicked for one single.

Keene Cops 9 To 8 Victory From Cogs

Keene took a 9-8 win over Cogs here last night to take top place in the second half of the Southend Softball League. They cashed in on Todd's wildness early to score eight runs right at the start. Cogs kept plugging away at McCarthy's offerings to finally chase him in favor of Woods. The losers tied it up in the ninth to force it into overtime but Keene won out in the 10th.

After a shaky start, Todd hurled nice ball to fan two but walking six and giving nine hits. McCarthy allowed seven hits as he struck out four and issued two free bases. Five double-plays helped the Keene moundsmen. Woods allowed four hits and three walks. Renwick shone in the field for Keene and Art Heal looked good for Cogs. Fleming and Kitchen had triples for the losers. Woods, Orde and Whalen banged out extra-base blows for Keene. The teams:

Anti-Jap Commanders Sent To Defend China

Gen. Feng Yu Hsiang

Marshal Chang Hsuen Liang

Again indicative of the unity which has been achieved in China in the face of threatened invasion by Japan, Gen. Feng Yu Hsiang, so-called Christian general, who has been in retirement since he led an abortive revolution against the Nanking regime of Gen. Chiang Kai Shek, has now been appointed to command the Nationalist troops in northern China now facing Nipponese detachments. Also going north is Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang, kidnapper of Shek, in the amazing coup of last year. Feng has been an outspoken proponent of stern resistance of Japan throughout all his career and Shek's appointment of him as northern commander emphasizes the resistance Nanking is ready to put up against the Japanese threat. Map shows the current zone of crisis. At Tangku (No. 2), Japanese troops have seized the port and wharves to permit landing of new troops.

CANUCK SHARES HURDLE HONORS IN TRACK MEET

Larry O'Connor, Toronto West-End Y.M.C.A., Tops Canadians In Close Events

BROWN AMONG STARS

TORONTO, July 22 — (C.P.) — A fleet-footed Englishman from Oxford University and a slim Canadian timber-topper to-day shared glory reflected from one of the finest track meets Toronto fans have seen in years.

Arthur Godfrey Brown, captain of the Oxford-Cambridge track forces unconquered in their north American tour, and Larry O'Connor, Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. hurdler, were jointly acclaimed.

Brown carried his team to victory in last night's meet in a Dick Merriwell finish, clinching the seventh first place against West End's six. Shaken up in a fall in the 440, Brown came from behind as last man in the relay final event of the program, to snatch victory from defeat by a six-yard margin.

Sets New Records

Less sensational, but no less impressive, O'Connor's performance included the setting of two new Canadian records and establishing himself beyond doubt as among the world's foremost hurdlers. He sped into the tape eight yards ahead of F. V. Scopes and J. P. Knight of Oxford-Cambridge in the short hurdles and in the longer race was 12 yards in front of Briton D.A.D.L. Nichols at the finish.

His time in the 120-yard high hurdles 14.4, was the fastest made by a Canadian, including the celebrated Earl Thomson of Winnipeg and Dartmouth who won the Olympic event in 1924. O'Connor, an Olympic point-winner, shaved one-tenth of a second from the existing mark in the 220-yard low hurdles with a mark of 24.2.

Brown Falls

Brown suffered his tumble in the 440 as he was about to challenge West End's Bill Fritz. He fell as he rounded the turn at the end of the stretch and Fritz, one of the world's best quarter-milers, had an easy victory. Meaford, Ont., was represented in the victory column by its famed twins, Harold and Wallace Brown, who placed in that order in the running broad jump.

Alan Pennington, class of the Oxford-Cambridge sprint stars, was a doubles winner along with O'Connor, striding home ahead of Jack Brown in both the century and furlong dashes. Toronto's Brown extended the slender Englishman, however. In the short dash Brown missed victory by the narrowest of margins.

The two-mile run was another feature with Milton Wallace of Toronto breaking the recognized Canadian record. His two minutes 22.8 seconds, was a shade slower, however, than the mark set up Tuesday night by C. A. J. Emery of Oxford-Cambridge at the Hamilton meet.

BASINGSTOKE, England—(CP).—Auburn-haired Pat Holmes, touring Aussie girl cricketer, scored 200 runs in less than four hours against the West of England and then retired. She hit 25 fours.

Inventor Dead

Famed as the inventor and developer of wireless, Guglielmo Marconi, (Above), 63-year-old Italian, died of heart attack at his home in Rome. Suffering from rapidly increasing heart attacks since the spring, the aged inventor took to his bed in the early afternoon and died during the night. His illness caused him to cancel an appointment with Benito Mussoline who later visited the home and prayed for 15 minutes. It is expected the body will lie in state at the Royal Academy until the funeral.

Defeated by Gene Tunney in September of the same year in the famous "long count" fight at Chicago, Dempsey announced his retirement. But he tried a comeback in 1931 that ended when he was defeated by Kingfish Levinsky.

RESTLESS TRIO SAIL THE SEAS

Yawl Loafs Through South Seas, Crew Makes Expense By Writing

ON TWO-YEAR JOURNEY

VANCOUVER, July 22 (CP)—The 32-foot yawl Te Rapunga rested beside a wharf here today at the end of a two-year journey from Auckland, New Zealand.

With her crew of three the Marconi-rigged craft reached Victoria July 1, and later crossed the Gulf of Georgia to this mainland port. Sunbrowned from seven years of sailing, German-born George Dibbern was at the helm; with him were two New Zealanders, Roy Murdoch and Eileen Morris.

The Te Rapunga sailed from Kiel, Germany, in 1930 when her owner found "he could not settle down after the war." Since that day she has logged 85,000 miles, her course leading her through the Panama Canal to San Francisco, then across the South Pacific to the Antipodes.

Accompanied by Murdoch and Miss Morris, Dibbern sailed from New Zealand two years ago, touched at various south sea points, loafed a year in the Hawaiian Islands, and reached Victoria 31 days out of Honolulu.

Carefree smiles creased the three bronzed faces as they explained the problem of finances with "we do a bit of writing and lecturing occasionally." Murdoch is a correspondent for two New Zealand papers, and Miss Morris, who until she signed on the Te Rapunga as "brass boy" two years ago, was a stenographer, also writes.

Fastest time logged on their journey was between Papeete and Honolulu, when the sturdy little craft covered 202 miles in 24 hours. But her crew prefer a more leisurely pace, for at the end of that day it was found her speed had opened a seam.

The trio did not disclose how long they intended to remain in British Columbia, or what their next destination would be.

Japan is intensifying its control of profiteering and speculation.

Farmer Surrenders After Brother Shot

QUEBEC, July 22 (CP)—Napoleon Cote died from a bullet wound yesterday at St. Jean Carysostome, Levis county village opposite Quebec on the south side of the St. Lawrence River and his brother France surrendered to provincial police here. He is being held for questioning.

First information said the shooting occurred when Napoleon went to round up some cattle which had wandered into his brother's fields. Accompanied by his wife, whom he had told to wait by the roadside, Napoleon had walked to his brother's property.

Mrs. Cote said her husband had just entered the field when she heard the sound of a shot. Running to the scene she found her husband shot.

VALERA ASSURES WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Singles Out For Special Mention Work That Mothers Do In Homes

DUBLIN, July 22—(CP)—Acceptance of President de Valera's proposed new constitution by the close plebiscite vote of 686,042 to 528,296 at the general election July 1, recalls that the president in the course of his campaign emphasized there was nothing in the constitution attacking women's rights.

It was predicted women would play a vital part in the election as it was maintained by Mr. de Valera's opponents the constitution endangered the rights of female workers, threatened the economic rights of women, and failed to give them unequivocal equality of status as compared with men.

Mr. de Valera said in reply: "I can give you my word that there is nothing in the constitution which is an attack on women's rights. We are singling out for special mention—and I don't care who objects—the work that mothers do in the home and I don't think any other women need be jealous.

"Having singled them out we say that their work is so important that we ought to see that they should not be obliged—that is not to say that women should not go if they want to so—but they shall never be forced to leave the home to try to earn their bread when ordinarily, at any rate, the breadwinner should be the father."

The final results of the general election gave 69 seats to the president's Fianna Fail party and the same number to the opposition groups.

PICTURES PRESENT LIBERTY'S WINTER

Masonry, Civilization Challenged By Communism, Fascism, Naziism Grand Lodge Told

OTTAWA, July 22 (CP)—Abuses of civilization should be corrected by orderly processes, not by the institution of autocracies, Grand Master A. J. Anderson, Toronto, of the Grand Lodge A.F. and A.M. of Canada in the Province of Ontario said yesterday in addressing the meeting of the Grand Lodge here.

"Dictatorship or any system that has as its tendency or its purpose the restriction of the individual is not the means of correction," he said.

"Activities subversive of freedom and democracy, such as Communism, Fascism Nazism, do not accord with our ideas of liberty and security. A large part of the world is now ruled by dictators under one form or another of autocracy.

"On every side, even in democratic countries, it looks as if Masonry and civilization itself are being challenged by these issues and are facing a crisis.

"The present seems to be the winter-time of liberty. Restriction of the individual and concentration of authority and power autocratically in the state are taking place.

"We only need look at what has taken place in Russia, Germany and Italy and what is taking place in Spain. Masonry, which is my immediate concern in this address, has been prohibited or banned as Masonry in all these counties where freedom or liberty as you and I know and enjoy it is being denied to the individual citizen."

Traces Recent History

Mr. Anderson traced the history of the past few years in Germany, Italy and Russia. He said the development of autocracy had been coincident with the suppression of Masonry.

"The Spanish Government is hostile to Masonry, he said, and "the church, owing allegiance to the Vatican is also very antagonistic." The so-called fight for liberty in Spain meant nothing as far as freemasonry was concerned.

"If the Loyalists win," he added, "Freemasonry, already strangled, will be banned as in Russia, and if the insurgents win it will be abolished as in Italy and Germany."

Mr. Anderson, was, however, hopeful of the future.

"Dictators and autocracy have toppled and failed in the past," he stated. "Communism, Fascism, and Nazism are fevers and will pass away. Liberty and faith in God will bloom again and those new subversive thoughts and activities shall be forgotten."

DARING SWIM SAVES YACHT

Courageous Plunge Into Sea Brings Aid To Helpless Boat

ON PACIFIC COAST

VANCOUVER, July 22—(CP). — Adventures comes to Commander Barney Johnson as easily as other people run into debts. According to fellow-yachtsmen, "he just seems to pick 'em out of the sea any time he gets bored."

Diving into heaving seas when his "Westward Ho" dragged her anchor in Bellingham, Wash., harbor and threatened to pile up on the shore after the kicker propeller fouled on a cable, the doughty sailor swam ashore to get assistance from a tug.

Puzzled immigration officials passed the unorthodox entry into port of the blood-stained and weed-festooned mariner and helped him locate a tug to tow the yacht to a safe berth. His wounds were superficial scratches.

SPARK IS BLAMED HINDENBURG CASE

U.S. Bureau Of Air Commerce Thinks Free Hydrogen Was Ignited

WASHINGTON, July 22 (A.P.). — The Bureau of Air Commerce said yesterday that fire, caused by an electrostatic spark which ignited a mixture of free hydrogen and air, "probably" caused the destruction of the dirigible Hindenburg at Lakehurst last May 6. Thirty-six persons were killed in the disaster.

"The cause of the accident was the ignition of a mixture of free hydrogen and air," the Bureau's report said. "Based upon the evidence a leak at, or in the vicinity of cells four and five caused a combustible mixture of hydrogen and air to form in the upper stern part of the ship in considerable quantity; the first appearance of an open flame was on the top of the ship and a relatively short distance forward of the upper vertical fin. The theory that a brush discharge ignited such mixture appears most probable."

The report declared that suspicions of sabotage were unsupported by any evidence.

MONTREAL CREW GIVES UP STRIKE

C.I.O. Members Go Back To Work Without Pay Boost After 23 Days Out

MONTREAL, July 22 (CP).—C.I.O. strikers at W. R. Cuthbert and Company's manufacturing plant voted yesterday to end their 23-day walkout and return to work without gaining their demanded wage increases.

About 75 plant employees, members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, had stayed on strike until yesterday. A few had returned to work earlier at the Plumbing Supplies manufacturing factory, which normally employs about 95 men.

Lucien Dufour, president of the A.A.I.S.T.W.'s Montreal local, said the strike had been undertaken against the desires of the union's headquarters and its ending was not a defeat for the Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate.

Charms Of Princess Been Set To Music

LONDON, July 22—(CP Cable).—Charms of Princess Margaret Rose have been set to music in a suite for strings and harp composed by Dennis Stoll, son of Sir Oswald Stoll, motion picture theatre owner.

"I have been working at the composition for months," said Stoll, "and when it was finished I wrote asking for the privilege of dedicating it to the younger Princess.

"Although there is a rule against such dedications, the Queen gave permission and consented to accept a bound copy for her."

The suite is in four movements: "To Her Hands in Prayer," "To Her Feet in Dance," "To Her Heart in Beauty," and "To Her Infinite Variety."

Farmer Asks $775 Claiming Engine Sparks Fired Wheat.

LONDON, Ont., July 22 (CP).—A fire which swept eight acres of wheat in Lobo Township a year ago was the basis of a suit filed yesterday in Supreme Court offices against the Canadian National Railway.

Lee Middaugh, formerly of Lobo and now of London, claims the fire on his farm was started by sparks from a C.N.R. locomotive. He said not only was $400 of wheat lost, but fences suffered also. He sets out alleged damages of $775.

CRAZED MEXICAN SLAYS TWO MEN

Goes Mad After Being Fired For Drunkenness—Finally Shot To Death

LITCHFIELD PARK, Ariz., July 22 (U.P.). — A mad Mexican cotton picker, incensed because he had been fired for drunkenness, went berserk in a cotton camp near here yesterday, shot and killed a camp foreman and a deputy sheriff, and then was killed by another foreman.

While 200 terror-stricken workers huddled in crude shacks and watched the killings, Jose Maria Castellano, 35, Mexican cotton picker, shot and killed his foreman, J. R. Murdock, 51, then murdered Deputy Sheriff E. J. Roberts, 52, when the latter rushed to the scene to arrest him.

Ed.C. Meyers, 60, foreman of a nearby camp, raced to the death camp in his car when he heard the shots. Stopping about 150 feet from the crazed killer, he levelled a high-powered deer rifle and shot Castellano just above the heart. Castellano died about 30 minutes later.

"Toll Reaches Three Tillsonburg Crash

TILLSONBURG, Ont., July 22. — (CP).—Toll of an automobile crash was raised to three with the death of Tony Wossi in Hospital here early today. Mr. and Mrs. Demeter Szentese were also injured fatally in the collision and their four-year-old daughter was badly hurt.

Little hope was held for Wossi after his admission to hospital and his death followed a short time after Mr. and Mrs. Szentese died. Preliminary inquiry into the triple-tragedy opened today.

Police arrested Jack Graham of Otterville as the driver of the other machine, charging him with manslaughter. Dust rising from the gravel road was believed a factor in the crash, obscuring the vision of both drivers.

More homes are being built in Britain than in several years.

CONGO EPICURE HAS HIS RITES

Likes Dark Meat And Goes In For As Many As Forty Wives

VALUES HIS GOATS

NEW YORK, July 22 (CP)—News that cannibalism is being practised in the Belgian Congo with increasing enthusiasm and that blacks are preferred over whites for the cook-pot because the latter are "tough" was brought to the United States by Henry Moser.

Moser, representative of the Congo Inland Mission of Chicago, cited the fate of a Belgian official who was cut up into approximately 1,000 pieces. "It's a sort of rite," he continued. "The pieces were distributed to the tribe. They believe that the spirit of the person eaten enters into those who eat him."

The missionary said the main barrier to Christianity in the Congo is the marital situation. The native idea is that a man should have as many wives as possible, perhaps 40 and more. When a missionary tries to convert a native and make ensure one wife for the rest of his days, some of them, Moser said, "think Christianity a little narrow minded."

Wives are quite inexpensive there, Moser declared. Four dollars worth of merchandise will buy a first-class wife. When a native tires of some of his wives, he sells or trades them in something the same manner as he would dispose of a used car.

"Or," said Moser, "maybe he will give one or two of them to a friend."

Goat-stealing is considered a major crime in the Congo because this animal is one of the principal mediums of exchange, Moser said. The missionary recalled that a goat-thief was convicted and beheaded recently. The thief's head was put on one prong of a tree and the goat's on the other.

This was "just as a warning. But the owner of the goat did not like the idea, as he didn't think it was showing the proper respect to the goat. It was too late to do anything about it, though.

"As for the rest of the goat—and the rest of the thief," Moser related, "the villagers ate them both."

Napanee's 12-11 Victory Over Oshawa Helps Kingston Cause

SEE-SAW STRUGGLE

Errors Costly For Locals Who Lose Lead In The Late Stages

KINGSTON, July 22 (Special to Examiner).—In a wild and woolly game of ball on the wide open spaces of the Fair Grounds Kingston Ponies regained the leadership of the C.O.B.L. Wednesday evening with a 9-6 win over Peterboro while Napanee knocked off the pace-setting Oshawa champions by a 12-11 count. The Kingston victory put them back on top but the advance was only achieved after a see-saw struggle that saw an assortment of all kinds of ball, good, bad and indifferent.

Kingston jumped to a four run lead in the first half of the opening inning, had it wiped out by some solid Peterborough hitting but came back in the seventh to regain the lead and make sure of victory with two more in the 8th. Both starting pitchers were hammered from the hill. Tony Paczkowski relieving Yammy Jamieson on the Kingston mound in the 5th inning to take complete command and hold the Petes to five scattered hits, striking out five and not allowing a run.

Threw Away The Game

Peterborough practically threw away the ball game in the first frame, played good ball to make amends in the next 5 innings, only to relapse into a lethargy and the Ponies were quick to take advantage. It was the second time at the Fair Grounds that Kingston stole a win from Peterborough in the closing innings with the game as good as won.

Kingston counted four runs in the 1st inning on two hits, three errors and a sacrifice. Arniel the second man up hit to right field, Elliott sacrificed him to second and then the errors started. McQuaide reached first on Long's mistake while Arniel scored, Stan Scrutton got a free trip and Whatley blundered and Ted Scrutton got on when Calladine muffed while Compeau completed the four run rampage with a three bagger that sent in two runs.

Petes reduced the deficit in the second inning when Whatley got a hit and Long lashed out a two run homer. Three hits and a walk gave the visitors three more runs and the lead in the third inning, Kearns started the parade with a free trip, Burton doubled and sent him home, Calladine singled to score Burton while Whatley hit to send Calladine around with a counter.

Continue Run March

Peterborough added another in the fourth when Long got a triple and Hollingsworth sent him home with a single. The Petes continued as if they meant to run up their score to double figures in the fifth when Whatley and Clark got hits with two out but Paczkowski replaced Jamieson and retired the third batter with a strikeout. Paczkowski took complete command of the Peterborough batters from then on and although he allowed five hits he was seldom in danger until two got on in the ninth but he forced the long hitting Long to pop up to the catcher to end the game.

Ponies Stage Comeback

Kingston came to life in the lucky seventh, Paczkowski starting the parade that won his own game when he soaked a walk out of Whitehill, Buck followed with a double sending him home while Arniel tripled to score Buck and Elliott's hit accounted for another run which gave the Ponies the lead. Elliott's blow came off Calladine who moved over from third base and Whitehill went out of the game. Kingdon coming in to fill the vacancy. Calladine was clipped for two more runs in the eighth, Paczkowski walking again to start the inning while Long's error on Buck's puts allowed both to score.

Errors Costly

Bad baseball cost Peterborough the win, six errors being charged against them and most of them proved costly. The Petes outhit Kingston 14-10 and also showed flashes of smart ball with two neat double killings but when Paczkowski started pitching the losers seemed to look up while the Ponies took a new lease on life.

Whatley, lanky Petes' infielder got four hits in five attempts and on his fifth and final trip to the plate would have tied the score with another blow, Paczkowski checked him, also made prizes off three hits for Kingston but the best of all was Paczkowski who not only got credit for the win, but also got two runs without being credited with a time at bat.

U.S. Ryder Cup Team Down On England's Sportsmanship, Links And Weather

LONDON INDIGNANT

NEW YORK, July 22—(CP)—The United States Ryder Cup golf team, just returned from their conquest of the British team and futile challenge for the British open title, were on record yesterday as decidedly down on England's sportsmanship, links and weather.

Ralph Guldahl, the American open champion, was the most outspoken about things in the "tight little isle" when the team returned yesterday.

"As far as I'm concerned I wouldn't swap a Texas cactus plant for the whole of England," the burly Norwegian beefed. "I think all we Ryder Cup players reached our peak too soon for the British open. Carnoustie, scene of the open, wasn't fair. They had traps in the centre of the fairway 230 yards out that would catch a perfect shot. We had to shoot to the right or left."

His thoroughly riled Ralph said he didn't care for the British sportsmanship he witnessed in the Ryder Cup matches.

Several other members of the team claimed galleryites at those matches attempted to kick shots of the Britons closer to the pin while, conversely, trying to make the Americans' lie more difficult.

LONDON INDIGNANT

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—British golfers burned with indignation yesterday after reading reports the United States Ryder Cup players had accused galleryites of unsportsmanlike behavior at Carnoustie and Southport.

Henry Cotton, who whipped the Americans for the British open title, said he was "astounded."

"It's disgusting," said Alf Padgham.

Hottest of all was Alf Perry over Ed Dudley's allegation that a spectator kicked Alf's ball closer to a hole.

"It's a definite lie," he exploded. "That ball hit a ridge back of the green and bounced back."

A. J. Lacey, who was beaten by Henry Picard in the Ryder Cup singles, cracked hard at Ralph Guldahl, American open champion who was the bitterest of the American golfers over what he called "poor British sportsmanship."

"Perhaps it would be a good thing if he doesn't come back," Lacey remarked. "I thought he was a rather difficult fellow especially when things were going against him."

New Rovers Team Will Meet Auburns

Belleville's Flying Rovers play the Auburns in a loop fixture here tomorrow (Friday) night at nine o'clock in the George St. lacrosse arena, under the lights. The revamped Rovers will be making their first appearance of the season in Peterborough having collected a squad from Belleville and R.C.A.F. players.

The visitors are battling hard to gain a second-place berth and hope to upset the classy locals, who have not suffered a defeat yet this season. If Belleville is at full strength, it will be a keen contest—but otherwise Auburns should hang up another victory handily. The tilt ought to draw another fine crowd of fans as the lacrosse are dishing up plenty of action in games here this summer.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

FLYING ROVERS of Belleville—what, by the way, is a flying rover?—have a lacrosse fixture with the Auburns here tomorrow eve under the arcs. The boys from Greater Belleville have been hotfooting it after Oshawa in the race for second place so far this season and, if they bring a full lineup, will make things more than warm for the Woollens. But if they fetch along a skimpy squad it'll be another romp for the locals. At anyrate, it will be worth seeing as the lacrossers always dish up gobs of action and any Belleville-Peterborough duel is a dandy. Offhand we can think of nothing—unless maybe it is sitting on Myrna Loy's lap for a spell—that gives us a bigger kick than seeing a local sports' outfit walloping any crew from the Quinte metropolis.

* * * * * *

DON'T need the drums of publicity to pound up interest in the exhibition match between Orillia Terriers and our Auburns next Tuesday p.m. here. Folks are beginning alrady to chatter about it, some feeling it will be a song and dance for the Mann Cup holders and others figuring the locals might just about hold their own. Personally, we expect the thrice-Dominion senior champs will hand Auburns their first defeat of the season, and quite handily, too. You don't win a Canadian senior Championship three straight years—and be leading the loop again this season—without having what it takes. And the great Terrier machine shows no sign of rust this summer.

* * * * * *

BUT we expect the Auburns will give 'em a real battle. The boys are working hard and will shoot the works against Orillia. Auburns are good this year—as nice an intermediate team, we feel, as there is in Ontario. And they won't want to take a bad licking in front of all their home-town supporters. No, they'll make it a fight from start to finish, and they will surprise the cocky Orillia outfit with their class. But they aren't making any predictions as to grabbing the bulky side of the score. It will be a memorable melee, and will draw fans from all over Central Ontario.

LEFTY BISHOP, who was refused a transfer this Spring from Napanee to Welland by the O.B.A.A., was given permission the other day to pitch in a benefit ball game in Welland. He promised to pitch a no-hit game but something must had slipped. Bishop's team dropped a 5-3 decision and the ex-Napanee tourist was touched for 16 blows. A St. Kitts' team beat him. However, Lefty got two hits himself and handled six chances okay. There will be less heard of Bishop from now on.

DOPE on the Petes' 9-6 loss in Kingston yesterday is bordered in black elsewhere tonight. Yeah, ye old Kingston jinx at work again! The locals spot 'em an early lead and then begin to bingle to assume an edge but see it kicked away late in the fray. As Manager Collins says: "If ball games only lasted seven innings, we'd be on top of the heap now." Whitehill got off to a bad start, pitched nice ball then till the seventh, but had to give way to Calladine. The boys knocked Jamieson off the slab but Tony Packowhiskey blanked 'em from the fifth on. A flock of Petes' errors proved costly, despite some nice hitting by the losers—which included four in five for Whatley, a homer and triple for Long, and two each for Calladine and Burton. The Petes pilfered four sacks and had two double-plays. Yeah, a weird performance all around. Heaven alone knows what is liable to take place when the Ponies play here Saturday—we haven't the haziest!

* * * * * *

IT was something worse than weird in Napanee yesler afternoon when the Gibbards—who are cousins to us, as we are related to the Ponies—saw a 9-2 lead dissipated to Oshawa in the eighth but came on to win a 12-11 headache. Ogden and Biddle saw service for the GM-men while Blazetich relieved Pointer on the Gerow mound. The loss knocks Oshawa off the top rung and puts the Ponies up there. Meantime, the Naps are two and a half games behind the locals. With Kingston here Saturday and Napanee in Oshawa, the old race is liable to become more scrambled than ever this weekend. It can't be more scrambled than our brains this a.m. after digesting the two box scores of yesterday's atrocities.

OVER at Riverside last p.m., Bowmanville were eliminated from the Junior Lakeshore Ball Loop race when they forfeited their game to the Rotarians in the third inning. They brought a sketchy lineup along and, when one player was injured, didn't have nine left to field a full squad. So they had to forfeit the affair, but borrowed a local player and went ahead with an exhibition tussle—Rotarians winning easily. The Ralph crew had a big lead when 'twas forfeited and would have sailed through merrily, in any event. Gee Clark got off to a wobbly start but was pitching nice ball after that and his buddies were going good, too. Bowmanville used three twirlers. We quit scoring the setto when the last half of the third frame was settled at two outs, instead of three. Since they didn't seem to want an official scorer, we banged the book and called it a night. A draggy contest most of the way.

* * * * * *

TWO men's softball scraps were staged last e'en, one here and one away. Motorists copped a 7-3 smirk over the barren Barons at Central, with Butcher hurling five-hit ball and getting okay support. Miller pitched a pretty fair brand of ball for the Barons. Omemee entertained Westclox but in rather inhospitable manner as they took an 8-7 nod over the Clockmakers, getting the money marker in the final frame. Stevenson and Nalsh twirled neat ball most of the route. This men's loop is developing into a dandy tangle with four teams battling bitterly for the playoff berths and the schedule due to wind up a week from Friday. Young Petes play Westclox here tonight while Motorists and Westclox tangle at Central tomorrow.

PICKING 'em off the grapevine: Cobourg and C.G.E. gals play at the Bowl tonight, while tomorrow sees Keene meet C.G.E. here as Westclox go to Omemee....It'll be Cobourg and Rotarians in junior ball playoffs....Oshawa lacrossers are at Norwood this Friday eve....Westclox men softballers have signed H. Dormer, Bill Calladine and Chuck Kearns....Applications for a change of residence will be considered at an O.A.S.A. meeting Saturday in Hamilton....Petes outhit Kingston 14-10 last night but what good is that?....Preston ball team has folded due to lack of fan support....Cobourg took an 8-7 intermediate ball win from Oshawa yesterday....Keene beat Cogs 8-6 last night to take first place in the Southend Softball Loop....Toronto baseball training school will open this week, not enough good prospects attending to warrant another week of it....Petes' batting averages to date will be run tomorrow....That's enough—in fact it's too doggone much.

Millbrook Defeats Peterboro Team 9-3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 22.—In an exhibition game of softball played here Tuesday night between a team from the Young Peoples' Union of George Street church, Peterborough and one from the local Y.P.U., the visitors took a beating to the tune of 9-3.

Nine innings were played and in spite of the uneven score interest in the game never flagged, and even when the homesters broke the tie of two each, established in the second innings, by adding one in the fourth and three more in the fifth, there was no certainty that they would hold the edge on their opponents throughout the remainder of the play. Dawson was umpire at the plate, and T. Wells on base.

ROTARY JUNIORS DEFEAT VISITORS IN FORFEIT GAME

RUBBERTOWN OUSTED

Junior Lakeshore Baseball League standing:

Rotarians	6	6	0
Bowmanville	7	1	6

Last night's final scheduled Junior Lakeshore League baseball game here was forfeited by Bowmanville to the Rotarians in the third inning when the visiting team was unable to field a full team. They had nine players to start the contest but Woodward was injured sliding into second in the second frame. The third-sacker started the third inning but had to limp off the diamond, and Bowmanville had no player to replace him. The forfeited game thereby went to Rotary by a 9-0 score, and eliminated the Rubbertown outfit from any chance of a playoff berth.

Loans A Player.

Manager Herb Ralph of the locals loaned Bowmanville a player, Don Crowe, and the game was continued as an exhibition or practice contest, Rotary running up the score. They had a 7-2 lead at the time of the forfeit and looked like easy winners. Gee Clark was unsteady on the home mound the first frame and was nicked for two runs, one being unearned, but he was settling away nicely from then on. Rotary scored four in their first on two walks and hits by Vitarelli, Edmunds, Gerard and Thornton. They added two next time on a walk, wild pitch, miscue, single by Vitarelli and triple by Giardino.

9th Frame Double Wins For Napanee

NAPANEE, July 22 (CP)—A ninth-inning double by Catcher Kitch Jeffers that drove in two mates with the tying and winning runs ended a Central Ontario senior baseball game last night as Napanee Gibbards outscored Oshawa Motors 12 to 11.

Canada's Hope In Tennis

The man whom Canada can look to as one of her main hopes for the singles tennis championship of the Dominion in the national matches starting in Toronto, July 26, is handsome Bobby Murray, of Montreal, shown here, who has already annexed both the Ontario and Quebec provincial crowns this year. Murray is rated the cream of the younger crop by tennis experts and gives Canada a strong hand in the task of holding the championship at home.

Carter was knocked from the Rubbertown rubber in the first and E. Hooper, who replaced him, gave way later to Witheridge. The teams:

TORONTO TAKES TWIN BILL FROM SLIPPING BEARS

ROYALS ADD TO POST

TORONTO, July 22—(CP)—Are Newark Bears slipping? The rest of the International League players have their fingers crossed and hope it's so.

The Bears have dropped their last four out of five games and the other clubs hope it becomes a habit.

The league race has become a farce, with the Bears leading the second place Montreal Royals by 17½ games, and if it wasn't for the play-offs, where the first four teams qualify for a shot at some extra dough, the seven other clubs might just as well pack up and call it quits.

Toronto Leafs, fighting to stay in the first division, gained some sweet revenge last night, when they took a double-header from the Bears, 3-2 and 2-1.

Almost Get Donald

The Leafs almost became the first club to hand Atley Donald, Bruins' sensational freshman hurler, his first defeat. But luck was with the lean right-hander. Donald, who has won 14 games, was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning of the first game with Leafs leading 2-0. The Bears tied it up, and Joe Beggs, who relieved him, was touched for the winning run and charged with defeat.

Royals increased their margin over third-place Syracuse to four games when they defeated the Chiefs, 5-3.

Buffalo's Bisons remained within hailing distance of the first division, snapping out of a batting slump to defeat Jersey City Giants, 9-4. Rochester Red Wings were also in a slugging mood and smashed out 12 hits to trounce Baltimore Orioles 12-1.

Golf Notes

C.L.G.U. day saw another big field of golfers compete yesterday at the Peterborough Club course for the two spoons for best net 18 holes. Two players tied, Miss L. Lyle and Mrs. C. G. Graham, with 79 nets. The other contest, approaching and putting, resulted in four players being tied, Mrs. L. Scott, Mrs. F. J. Hall, Mrs. Belleghem and Miss L. Lyle, with totals of three apiece. All ties will be decided at next Tuesday's C.L.G.U. play.

TOP + TOSSERS In the Majors

MONTE WEAVER

As a professor of mathematics at the University of Virginia 10 years ago, Monte Morton Weaver showed students how to solve many difficult problems. Monte quit teaching mathematics, however, and right now is helping solve Washington's problem of much-needed pitching strength in the American League race.

Born in Hilton, N.C., 30 years ago, "the professor" went to a local grammar school and then to high school at Jefferson. He attended Emory and Henry college and the University of Virginia, where he graduated with high honors. He is a Bachelor of Science and Master of Science. While pitching semi-pro baseball in 1928 he was given a chance with Durham. He accepted and made good, winning 12 and losing 7. Monte was a pro player before he went to the University of Virginia and could not take part in athletics there.

Between teaching geometry and baseball, Monte selected the latter. After two seasons with Baltimore, the Nats grabbed him and in his first season he won 22 games. In recent years he has slowed down. He was sent to the minors, Albany—in 1934. The Nats recalled him in 1935.

BARONS LOSE TO MOTORISTS

Drop Another Men's Softball Decision By 7-3 Score To Auto Outfit

SENIOR CITY LEAGUE

Once again the Barons took a drubbing, this time at the hands of the Motorists, by the score of 7 to 3. With Butcher pitching for the Motorists and having one of his good nights, he struck out 7, giving five hits and walking 3. At the same time his team-mates gave him good support in the field, with Gainey featuring at short-stop. Miller pitching on the Barons' mound, had some difficulty subduing the Motorists' hard hitters, his support in the field also being shaky in spots, causing runs to cross the plate. Miller struck out 1, was hit for 9 and walked 7. Speed Currie in left made two good catches, with Whaley running far to nab a hard one in right.

For the winners, McQuade, Walsh, Weir and Butcher hit two each, one of Butcher's being a triple and Walsh having a double. Crary hit their other one. For the Barons, Captain Ridley and Castle led with two each, Watson getting a single.

The teams:

Motorists—Crary cf, 3b, McQuade cf, Walsh c, Gainey ss, Board 2b, Smith 1b, Weir lf, White rf, c, Butcher p, Gratton 3b, Montgomery rf.

ROGERS HORNSBY DEFINITELY OUT WITH THE BROWNS

Jim Bottomley Named To Replace Rajah For Rest Of The Season

COLORFUL CAREER

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—(AP)—Donald L. Barnes, president of St. Louis Browns, yesterday announced that Manager Rogers Hornsby had been relieved of his duties effective Wednesday.

The president of the American League Baseball club said Hornsby's contract, which ran through the 1938 season, was so written it could be "broken at the discretion of the club."

Hornsby could not be immediately reached for comment.

The former National League second-baseman, who led the circuit in hitting for seven consecutive seasons, became manager of the Browns in 1933, succeeding Wade Killifer. He has had only mediocre success with the team.

Set Record In 1924.

Called the "great right-hander hitter of modern times," Hornsby as a player set a modern major league batting mark of .4235 in 1924, was twice voted the National League's most valuable player and set a National League record for home runs in 1922 with 42.

Hornsby first broke into organized baseball with Dallas in the Texas League in 1914. That year he was sold to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League for the reported sum of $500.

Eleven years later, after he had established a permanent place in baseball history with his individual accomplishments, Hornsby was appointed manager of the Cardinals. The next year, 1926, he brought St. Louis its first championship.

Traded to Boston.

The baseball world was startled after that season when the "Rajah" was traded to New York Giants for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring. A season later, he was traded to Boston and became the team's manager.

Still another shift in 1928 took him to the Chicago Cubs, who were reported to have paid $200,000 and five players for his services. Hornsby played in his second world series with the Cubs in 1929.

He was manager of the Cubs in 1931 and in 1932, before being released. He played part of the 1933 season with his old ball club, the Cardinals, before becoming manager of the Browns.

PACKERS BEAT ELECTRICS 4-2 TO TIE LEAGUE

Replay Soccer Match Results In Clever Victory For Meatslingers

DEFENCE OUTSTANDING

Canada Packers gained the decision over the Canadian General last night in a local soccer league fixture at King Edward Park before a good attendance of spectators. Two break-away goals in the first period by the Packers gave them confidence to hold on to their lead throughout, although the losers confined the play mostly to the winners' area. In the second half C.G.E. played too much football, while the Packers believed in the long swinging style of play to take advantage of the breaks that took place to make good use of them. This win puts the Packers up into the top along with the Deloro aggregation. George Blowers handled a fast game with accuracy in every decision.

Two Break-away Goals.

The choice of goals went against the Canada Packers who started on the defensive in the early stages, to hold the fast-moving C.G.E. forward line that tested the Packers' goalie with all kinds of shots. Newt Downer robbed the Electrics' left wing of a great opening. Jones trapped the ball quickly to send his right wing to the other end. Cribbes evaded the opposition to centre the ball into the goal. The C.G.E. goalie ran out to clear, but he was outguessed when Buchan headed over his head into a vacant goal. Raid after raid ensued with C.G.E. having the better of the arguments, but failed to penetrate the solid defence of Todd and Asa Downer with Curtis in goal. For the next twenty minutes they dominated the play to find Mitchell smashing a terrific drive against the crossbar, also Ross dribbling right upon the goalie to be stopped by the custodian. Eventually the C.G.E. were caught napping when they kept up the steady pressure. Todd punted clear up the wing and the outside right banged the sphere into the goal. Chamberlain was all set to clear, but it deceived him just as the flight of the ball took a peculiar turn and landed inside the top corner. Throughout all this period, the Canadian General forced the issue, but lacked the finish whenever inside the goal area. Two minutes before the interval they were rewarded a goal by the referee who considered that the custodian had pulled the ball back over the line. Canada Packers 2, Canadian General 1.

Two Smart Teams.

On resuming, the Packers carried the play into the C.G.E. territory. Earl relieved the attack to send Burgess away along the wing. He beat three men in a row, rapped a drive for the corner which Curtis diverted around the corner for a fruitless flag kick. After ten minutes of play, an individual effort by George Downer resulted in him putting the ball in between Chamberlain's outstretched arms. Again the losers had the play all in the winners' half to get a succession of corner kicks that went begging until a beautiful one taken by Burgess permitted Alexander Mitchell to head in the smartest goal of the game. At this point the players introduced the long passing game to enliven the attack which found the Packers' backs being the stronghold of the Packers' success. Todd and Asa Downer along with Jones were the mainstay of the intercepting tactics to prevent the C.G.E. from registering, although Ross deserved to tally when he rattled the crossbar. On the next visit, Mitchell baffled the opposition to send a low grounder whizzing past the upright. Back came Burgess with the ball; he was blocked, but beat his man, then rattled a hot drive for the corner. Curtis threw himself at the ball just in time for Todd to sky-high the ball out of danger. Packers broke away to score, but was adjudged offside. Near the finish, George Downer gathered up the ball on a miskick to register the final count. Canada Packers 4, Canadian General 2.

Canadian General — J. Chamberlain, goal; W. McKenzie and K. Mitchell, backs; H. Stewart, F. Earl and T. McPhate, halves; G. Goodhue, A. Ross, Ben McMaster, A. Mitchell, and A. Burgess, forwards; subs., S. Murduff and D. Whatman.

Canada Packers— W. Curtis, goal; A. Todd and A. Downer, backs; N. Downer, E. Jones, and Art Downer, halves; W. Cribbes, G. Downer, J. Buchan, E. Adkinson, and T. Foster, forwards; subs., W. Harris and W. Shea.

Referee—George Blowers.

Linesmen—J. Isle and J. McMaster.

ART JACKSON STARS.

LINDSAY, July 22.—When the Daily Warder softball team defeated the Bobcaygeon team here last night by 23 to 12, a feature of the game was the playing of Art Jackson of Maple Leaf hockey fame. Art cavorted around the initial sack and played the bag like a veteran. Dwidson also was expected, but sprained his ankle while racticing in Bobcaygeon.

MORRICE WINS AGAIN

WIMEREUX, France—(CP)—K. A. S. Morrice, former Oxford golf champion, has retained his title as champion of Northern France. In the final he defeated Stuart Schefel of United States at the 19th hole.

TORONTO TAKES TWIN BILL FROM SLIPPING BEARS

ROYALS ADD TO POST

TORONTO, July 22—(CP).—Are Newark Bears slipping? The rest of the International League players have their fingers crossed and hope it's so.

The Bears have dropped their last four out of five games and the other clubs hope it becomes a habit.

The league race has become a farce, with the Bears leading the second place Montreal Royals by 17½ games, and if it wasn't for the play-offs, where the first four teams qualify for a shot at some extra dough, the seven other clubs might just as well pack up and call it quits.

Toronto Leafs, fighting to stay in the first division, gained some sweet revenge last night, when they took a double-header from the Bears, 3-2 and 2-1.

Almost Get Donald

The Leafs almost became the first club to hand Atley Donald, Bruins' sensational freshman hurler, his first defeat. But luck was with the lean right-hander. Donald, who has won 14 games, was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning of the first game with Leafs leading 2-0. The Bears tied it up, and Joe Beggs, who relieved him, was touched for the winning run and charged with defeat.

Royals increased their margin over third-place Syracuse to four games when they defeated the Chiefs, 5-3.

Buffalo's Bisons remained within hailing distance of the first division, snapping out of a batting slump to defeat Jersey City Giants, 9-4. Rochester Red Wings were also in a slugging mood and smashed out 12 hits to trounce Baltimore Orioles 12-1.

Golf Notes

C.L.G.U. day saw another big field of golfers compete yesterday at the Peterborough Club course for the two spoons for best net 18 holes. Two players tied, Miss L. Lyle and Mrs. C. G. Graham, with 79 nets. The other contest, approaching and putting, resulted in four players being tied, Mrs. L. Scott, Mrs. F. J. Hall, Mrs. Bellegham and Miss L. Lyle, with totals of three apiece. All ties will be decided at next Tuesday's C.L.G.U. play.

MONTE WEAVER

As a professor of mathematics at the University of Virginia 10 years ago, Monte Morton Weaver showed students how to solve many difficult problems. Monte quit teaching mathematics, however, and right now is helping solve Washington's problem of much-needed pitching strength in the American League race.

Born in Hilton, N.C., 30 years ago, "the professor" went to a local grammar school and then to high school at Jefferson. He attended Emory and Henry college and the University of Virginia, where he graduated with high honors. He is a Bachelor of Science and Master of Science. While pitching semi-pro baseball in 1928 he was given a chance with Durham. He accepted and made good, winning 12 and losing 7. Monte was a pro player before he went to the University of Virginia and could not take part in athletics there.

Between teaching geometry and baseball, Monte selected the latter. After two seasons with Baltimore, the Nats grabbed him and in his first season he won 22 games. In recent years he has slowed down. He was sent to the minors, Albany—in 1934. The Nats recalled him in 1935.

Last year Monte won six and lost four, pitching mostly relief roles.

Monte is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. He bats left-handed. He was a star in basketball and track in high school.

BARONS LOSE TO MOTORISTS

Drop Another Men's Softball Decision By 7-3 Score To Auto Outfit

SENIOR CITY LEAGUE

Once again the Barons took a drubbing, this time at the hands of the Motorists, by the score of 7 to 3. With Butcher pitching for the Motorists and having one of his good nights, he struck out 7, giving five hits and walking 3. At the same time his team-mates gave him good support in the field, with Gainey featuring at short-stop. Miller pitching on the Barons' mound, had some difficulty subduing the Motorists' hard hitters, his support in the field also being shaky in spots, causing runs to cross the plate. Miller struck out 1, was hit for 9 and walked 7. Speed Currie in left made two good catches, with Whaley running far to nab a hard one in right.

For the winners, McQuade, Walsh, Weir and Butcher hit two each, one of Butcher's being a triple and Walsh having a double. Crary hit their other one. For the Barons, Captain Ridley and Castle led with two each, Watson getting a single.

The teams:

Motorists—Crary cf, 3b, McQuade cf, Walsh c, Gainey ss, Board 2b, Smith 1b, Weir lf, White rf, c, Butcher p, Gration 3b, Montgomery rf.

ROGERS HORNSBY DEFINITELY OUT WITH THE BROWNS

Jim Bottomley Named To Replace Rajah For Rest Of The Season

COLORFUL CAREER

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—(AP)—Donald L. Barnes, president of St. Louis Browns, yesterday announced that Manager Rogers Hornsby had been relieved of his duties effective Wednesday.

The president of the American League Baseball club said Hornsby's contract, which ran through the 1938 season, was so written it could be "broken at the discretion of the club."

Hornsby could not be immediately reached for comment.

The former National League second-baseman, who led the circuit in hitting for seven consecutive seasons, became manager of the Browns in 1933, succeeding Wade Killifer. He has had only mediocre success with the team.

Set Record In 1924.

Called the "great right-hander hitter of modern times," Hornsby as a player set a modern major league batting mark of .4235 in 1924, was twice voted the National League's most valuable player and set a National League record for home runs in 1922 with 42.

Hornsby first broke into organized baseball with Dallas in the Texas League in 1914. That year he was sold to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League for the reported sum of $500.

Eleven years later, after he had established a permanent place in baseball history with his individual accomplishments, Hornsby was appointed manager of the Cardinals. The next year, 1926, he brought St. Louis its first championship.

Traded to Boston.

The baseball world was startled after that season when the "Rajah" was traded to New York Giants for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring. A season later, he was traded to Boston and became the team's manager.

Still another shift in 1928 took him to the Chicago Cubs, who were reported to have paid $200,000 and five players for his services. Hornsby played in his second world series with the Cubs in 1929.

He was manager of the Cubs in 1931 and in 1932, before being released. He played part of the 1933 season with his old ball club, the Cardinals, before becoming manager of the Browns.

PLUCKY VETERAN JOCKEY

NOTTINGHAM—(CP) — "Brownie" Carslake may be 50 years old but he can still take it. The well-known jockey was unseated and badly bruised, but announced he would be riding the next day. "You can't afford to lay off at this game," he said.

PACKERS BEAT ELECTRICS 4-2 TO TIE LEAGUE

Replay Soccer Match Results In Clever Victory For Meatslingers

DEFENCE OUTSTANDING

Canada Packers gained the decision over the Canadian General last night in a local soccer league fixture at King Edward Park before a good attendance of spectators. Two break-away goals in the first period by the Packers gave them confidence to hold on to their lead throughout, although the losers confined the play mostly to the winners' area. In the second half C.G.E. played too much football, while the Packers believed in the long swinging style of play to take advantage of the breaks that took place to make good use of them. This win puts the Packers up into the top along with the Deloro aggregation. George Blowers handled a fast game with accuracy in every decision.

Two Break-away Goals.

The choice of goals went against the Canada Packers who started on the defensive in the early stages, to hold the fast-moving C.G.E. forward line that tested the Packers' goalie with all kinds of shots. Newt Downer robbed the Electrics' left wing of a great opening. Jones trapped the ball quickly to send his right wing to the other end. Cribbes evaded the opposition to centre the ball into the goal. The C.G.E. goalie ran out to clear, but he was outguessed when Buchan headed over his head into a vacant goal. Raid after raid ensued with C.G.E. having the better of the arguments, but failed to penetrate the solid defence of Todd and Asa Downer with Curtis in goal. For the next twenty minutes they dominated the play to find Mitchell smashing a terrific drive against the crossbar, also Ross dribbling right upon the goalie to be stopped by the custodian. Eventually the C.G.E. were caught napping when they kept up the steady pressure. Todd punted clear up the wing and the outside right banged the sphere into the goal. Chamberlain was all set to clear, but it deceived him just as the flight of the ball took a peculiar turn and landed inside the top corner. Throughout all this period, the Canadian General forced the issue, but lacked the finish whenever inside the goal area. Two minutes before the interval they were rewarded a goal by the referee who considered that the custodian had pulled the ball back over the line. Canada Packers 2, Canadian General 1.

Two Smart Teams.

On resuming, the Packers carried the play into the C.G.E. territory. Earl relieved the attack to send Burgess away along the wing. He beat three men in a row, rapped a drive for the corner which Curtis diverted around the corner for a fruitless flag kick. After ten minutes of play, an individual effort by George Downer resulted in him putting the ball in between Chamberlain's outstretched arms. Again the losers had the play all in the winners' half to get a succession of corner kicks that went begging until a beautiful one taken by Burgess permitted Alexander Mitchell to head in the smartest goal of the game. At this point the players introduced the long passing game to enliven the attack which found the Packers' backs being the stronghold of the game along with Jones were the mainstay of the intercepting tactics to prevent the C.G.E. from registering, although Ross deserved to tally when he rattled the crossbar. On the next visit, Mitchell baffled the opposition to send a low grounder whizzing past the upright. Back came Burgess with the ball; he was blocked, but beat his man, then rattled a hot drive for the corner. Curtis threw himself at the ball just in time for Todd to sky-high the ball out of danger. Packers broke away to score, but was adjudged offside. Near the finish, George Downer gathered up the ball on a mis-kick to register the final count. Canada Packers 4, Canadian General 2.

Canadian General — J. Chamberlain, goal; W. McKenzie and K. Mitchell, backs; H. Stewart, F. Earl and T. McPhaile, halves; G. Goodhue, A. Ross, Ben McMaster, A. Mitchell, and A. Burgess, forwards; subs., S. Murduff and D. Whatman.

Canada Packers— W. Curtis, goal; A. Todd and A. Downer, backs; N. Downer, E. Jones, and Art Downer, halves; W. Cribbes, G. Downer, J. Buchan, E. Adkinson, and T. Foster, forwards; subs., W. Harris and W. Shea.

Referee—George Blowers.

Linesmen—J. Isle and J. McMaster.

ART JACKSON STARS.

LINDSAY, July 22—When the Daily Warder softball team defeated the Bobcaygeon team here last night by 23 to 12, a feature of the game was the playing of Art Jackson of Maple Leaf hockey fame. Art cavorted around the initial sack and played the bag like a veteran. Davidson also was expected, but sprained his ankle whilep ractising in Bobcaygeon.

MORRICE WINS AGAIN

WIMEREUX, France—(CP).—K. A. S. Morrice, former Oxford golf champion, has retained his title as champion of Northern France. In the final he defeated Stuart Scheftel of United States at the 19th hole.

MANY SPELLINGS SOUND AS SWEET

Uncle Sam's Clerks Juggle With Scores Of Styles For Some Names

WASHINGTON, July 22—(CP)—The United States Social Security Board, which has to keep track of 27,000,000 names, came out with a filing system that can put the nation's best spellers to shame. The board, setting up the wage records of the people who registered for old-age benefits, ran afoul of a flock of family names that sound alike but are spelled differently.

Baer, for instance, has 36 variations; Snyder, has 29; Bailey, 22; Burke, 22; Lehman, 18; and Kelly, 14.

Wrestling with the Baers the harassed Federal workers discovered these varieties: Baar, Baare, Baer, Baear, Balar, Baler, Bair, Baire, Bayre, Bairr, Bare, Baehr, Bahr, Baehre, Bahar, Baehoar, Bahor, Bayer, Bayeur, Bear, Beer, Beere, Beier, Beare, Bealr, Beaire, Beir, Beirr, Bere, Beahr, Beaher, Behar, Beyar and Beyer.

Statisticians then figured out a super-phonetic system which assembles at one point in a huge master file all names that sound similar, but are spelled differently. As a double check, the government then worked out a numerical file, which keeps the pension-plan participants together by numbers.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 22 (C.P.)—Making the most of the clear weather, Essex County wheat growers have started threshing their 1937 crop. NEAR END OF HUNT TO SELECT BABE TO BECOME LAMA

ARGUE OVER CANDIDATES

PEIPING, China, July 22.—In this strange, tradition-bound country on the "roof of the world," word is expected almost any day now that the new Dalai lama, temporal and religious ruler of Tibet, has been selected.

Since the death of the last supreme ruler of Tibet in December of 1933, the search has gone forward for the infant supposed to possess the reborn spirit of the former Dalai lama. According to Tibetan religion, a Dalai lama never dies, but is reincarnated in new form when his spirit leaves the old body.

Naturally, the difficulty lies in recognizing the infant whose body the Dalai lama has chosen for his next earthly shell. Tradition and the strange beliefs of the land maintain that some miraculous sign will identify the infant. All this is open to varying interpretations by the different priests and oracles, however, and their failure to agree on one of the several "candidates" which have been brought forth has postponed selection of a new Dalai lama for some three years now.

Argue Over Candidates

This delay and bickering may be due, in part, to the immense prestige and power which accrues to the one who "discovers" the new Dalai lama. Various factions have been at odds over the matter; the regent whose power as ruler would end with selection of the new sovereign is hardly eager to see that happen, and the Chinese government is understood to look with apprehension on anything which would stir up Tibet as a threat to their southern provinces.

The child who is apparently slated for the highest honor in this strange land is a boy from the province of Am-do, who is reputed to have the qualifications required by the Tibetan religion.

If selected, he will be taken in charge by the high priests and trained for his future responsibilities. His education will be dictated by age-old customs which are reflected in the peaceful and stoic manner of the priests and their huge monasteries.

Lhasa Monastery Famous

Most famous of these is the one at Lhasa, where the Dalai lama lives. Another which has a fascinating history is the huge temple of Samye, 40 miles to the south of Lhasa, founded nearly 1,200 years ago.

The country of Tibet is one-third as large as the United States, but it has less than half as many people as New York City. Highest nation in the world, it is regarded as one of the most secluded.

Because of the altitude, the climate is generally cold, and the people wear heavy sheepskin coats and long felt boots. Farming is practised in the lower valleys, but many of the inhabitants are nomadic shepherds, following after their herds of sheep, goats, and bushy-tailed Tibetan yaks.

Although the people of Tibet are deeply religious and often pray for several hours at a time, polyandry flourishes in many sections. A girl may marry two or three brothers, thus avoiding subdivision of family property.

It is upon the firm religious faith that the power of the Dalai lama rests. Having the mandate of life and death over his subjects, he is one of the most thoroughgoing dictators in the world. To date there have been 13 Dalai lamas. There are those who believe that the gradual admission of scientific progress into Tibet will spell doom to the autocratic lama class.

VANDALS SMASH FARM FURNITURE

Break Windows, Dishes, Cutlery, Throw Stove Outside In Lindsay Area

LINDSAY, July 22—(CP)—Damage of $200 was caused by vandals in a house on the farm of J. C. Thurston, 12 miles east of Lindsay, between Friday morning and Saturday afternoon. According to Mr. Thurston, marauders entered the house, broke every window in the building, threw a cook stove out the front door, broke all the dishes, threw away cutlery and smashed the furniture.

"The place looks as if a cyclone had struck it," said Mr. Thurston, in reporting the matter to the police at Lindsay. He does not reside in the house but uses it when the farm is being worked.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Mr. Thurston. "They did damage that $200 won't cover, and I don't know why they would do such a thing. I have chased kids away from the orchard in past years, but no kids could be responsible for all this mess."

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By
VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 39

The involuntary cry of delight over the beautiful ring turned into a sigh of disappointment as Marcia forced herself to face Gary.

"My dear, things haven't changed with me." She told him briefly yet sympathetically that she could not accept his love. "I—you shouldn't feel that way about me."

"Marcia, there are some things a man can't help. In my heart I'm certain that there is real happiness waiting for us if I can only make you see it. Look, I had this stone set especially for your hand. It was my mother's, you know." Eagerly, he held it up again in the light, and Marcia realized how much he expected of her that moment.

"I can't take it, Gary. Not honestly," she pleaded with him. "I seem to be drained of all emotion these days. Like the big dipper up there, I don't seem to be capable of holding anything — it all slips through the holes." Graphically, she indicated the widely placed stars that formed the heavenly dipper.

"You haven't tried," the man said deliberately. "It can't still be anyone else that's keeping you from me, for I'm sure you haven't even seen another man lately."

He struck a telling blow for Marcia had not seen Sandy for weeks. Being away from her home so frequently these evenings, she had missed his few discreet calls, and Sandy no longer intruded into her professional hours.

"No," she admitted, then, "but there is someone else holding me back just as surely as if he were standing between us. Maybe I haven't seen him lately, but he is just as important to me as he ever was. He wouldn't have a half-time wife, and most certainly you wouldn't want a half-hearted wife. So that's how it stands, Gary."

The man was tossing the luminous ring from hand to hand while she was talking. "I'm going to make one last try for it, Marcia," he said frankly. "If I didn't feel that this other love was burned out by now, I wouldn't dare. But I'm going to ask you to reserve your decision for one month. Then if you still feel the same way, I'll give up."

"But, if these weeks haven't changed me, what can you expect within one more month?"

"There's a limit to all things; I just think you need make up your mind that I'm not such a bad fellow after all. If not—well we won't think about that," he concluded, and almost reverently he tucked the ring back in his pocket. "For just one more month," he said, with deep significance vibrating in his voice.

Marcia could not understand his persistence, even his confidence, in the face of her very definite refusal. She realized that if at the end of the month her answer was still the same, their close companionship would have to cease. Surely even the restrained Gary would admit that.

"So be it," she shrugged. "If you think you know my heart better than I do, we'll give it just one more month to come alive. Here's hoping!"

Hand in hand they walked down the beach, and Marcia turned the conversation to the subject of the book she was to illustrate. Even while she did it she felt guilty, for this was the prime reason she had urged Lona to include Gary in the week-end party.

As her companion outlined the poignant love story of the lonely man who had sacrificed his reputation, almost his honor, to protect the girl he loved, Marcia felt her sympathy aroused. Gary emphasized his sincerity, his ideals, his lank tallness—and with each characteristic that he enumerated, Marcia saw Sandy coming to life before her. Strange that he should fit so exactly into the heroic shoes of this Manders. Dreamily, almost without realizing it, she sketched the hero in her mind's eye. And almost in every detail he was—Sandy.

They talked eagerly of the problem before them, Gary trying to give her his idea for a frontispiece and marginal illustrations. "Of course, most novels of today don't have illustrations; bad ones destroy the illusion, and even the best of them don't always jibe with the reader's conception. But I want to do something entirely different in this book. Atmospheric. I guess you'd call it, yet I want this man definitely pictured. The other people and the background may be elusive; but he must have character. He must be convincing. Do you think you can do it, Marcia? It's a lot harder than these frivolous magazine articles you've been doing. It will take patience."

Marcia was eager to assure him she could do justice to the task, and begrudged the hours until Monday when she could study the manuscript. Silently, then, they turned back toward the house. And as they heard the increasing noise of the house party, he looked at her seriously.

"This is the last I'll see of the rest you, Marcia, until a month from tonight. Will you kiss me just once," he asked, then caught her to him eagerly when she assented. "My dear, if you do refuse me then, I don't know how I can stand it. I want you so desperately!"

He left her there, in the shadows of the porch, and went on upstairs. Marcia sat down limply. Quickly she forgot her pity in the exciting plans for the new book, and was lost to her surroundings until she heard Lona's voice almost at her elbow.

"Walt! Stop that!" she heard her say, and shrank back into the darkness. She dared not emerge now, after the suggestive tone of those words. Evidently they had been there for some time before she, engrossed in her own thoughts, had heard them.

"Lona," you are the darndest woman," came Walt's assured tones. "You hold a man at arm's length, then give him the glad eye, then you literally slap his face. I can't understand you."

"No?" she said suddenly, and her voice had changed timbre. In no uncertain terms she continued, "Then maybe you can understand this. I think you're undoubtedly the biggest dolt this town can boast. And that's saying something. Maybe there was a time when I would have thrilled to hear you give your romantic spiel, but I'm not so hard up for a laugh now. I'd like to bet a plugged nickel that you're soft-soaping me to get money for one of your crazy deals, or to do some advertising through your phoney agency."

She paused for breath, and Walt put in a resentful question. "Then why did you lead me on tonight?"

"Because I just wanted to see what you had to say. Wanted to know if I'd been missing anything. Well, I haven't. Now I wish you'd get out of my house and get out quickly. Go back to your little pet goat, Abe. Maybe he'll eat out of your hand for a few dollars, but I won't. Now get!"

Walt scuttled around the corner so fast he nearly bumped into Marcia, then stopped short. "If this is more of your work—" he threatened. But with a backward glance at the approaching Lona, he left hastily. Marcia was laughing heartily when Lona reached her, and the two women clung to each other almost hysterically.

"Well, I guess that fixed the fancy Walt for a while," Lona smiled broadly. "Pretty neatly done, eh Marcy?"

"Yes, but why? Why take all that trouble?"

"It's as I told him. Always did have a sneaking hankering for that scoundrel; I wanted to be sure I wasn't missing anything before I told him what I thought of him. Did you hear me?"

Marcia gave credit for thoroughness to Lona. When she did a thing, she did it right and lost no time in the process. Fleetingly Marcia wondered if she shouldn't try somewhat similar tactics on Sandy. It would be a pleasure to tell him what she thought of his faithlessness to her, before finally turning him over to the greedy waiting arms of Paula. She had no way of knowing that Paula had shot her little bolt, and that it had reacted to Marcia's favor, not hers.

Lona went to rejoin her party, which now included the handsome leading man of the movies, Warner Craig, and his current love—the beautiful Lorry Lee. Fancy names, fancy people, Marcia thought vaguely as she watched the crowd dancing, singing, and always drinking.

For no explainable reason, she was anxious to find the daring Joan but could discover no trace of her among all the people she saw. Wondering if she could have "gone under" so early in the evening, Marcia went to their room. The beds were empty and inviting, so instead of rejoining the party, Marcia made ready to retire. "Let Joan take care of herself," she thought, and sleepily fell into bed.

It was four or five in the morning when she heard Joan stumble into the room. When the girl heard Marcia moving about, she turned on the bed. In the eerie light of the morning, she looked wildly happy. To Marcia's polite question, she answered vehemently, "I knew it! I have found the world's most perfect man. Name of Hartley, and simply tremendous, my dear. He told me—"

Before Joan could say what Walt had told her, she had fallen into a dead sleep. But there was no more sleep for Marcia; had he told the sordid details of that Santa Anita experience and other distorted stories about her to this woman who was, of all things, a newspaper gossip columnist?

HASTINGS

Mr. J. K. Wilson of Regina arrived in the village on Monday to make a visit with his brother, Mr. Alex Wilson and sister, Mrs. Annie Fleming, and other relatives. Mr. Wilson who was born in Hastings has many friends who will be delighted to see him back in his old home.

Rev. F. W. Newell was the special speaker for the anniversary services held in South Dummer on Sunday. Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood occupied the pulpit at Trinity United Church in his absence.

The annual picnic of St. George's Sunday School and church will be held at Birdsall's Beach on Saturday afternoon. The children are requested to meet at the church at 2 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Doherty of Westwood were Sunday guests of the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson of Percy.

Friends of Patrick Fitzpatrick will regret to hear of his illness. He is confined to a home in the village where he is receiving medical attention.

Mr. Albert Brooks, ex-councillor of the village of Hastings, who is over 70 years of age and noted each year for having one of the best gardens in the village, also has a record crop of barley in a field near his home. In interview with the Examiner correspondent he produced a fine specimen of the grain obtained from one seed. The one seed of barley produced eight heads, each head containing 76 kernels, thus one seed multiplied 600 times. The specimen was just one of the many grown in the field, the height of most of the grain is 3 feet, 8 inches.

UNCLE WIGGILY FINDS BUNTY

"Boo hoo! Boo hoo!" cried Jingle.

"Hoo boo! Hoo boo" cried her twin sister, Jangle.

One cried frontward and the other cried backward, you see.

"What's the matter?" ask Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose like a stick of lollypop chewing gum.

"Bun-bun-Bunty is loa-loa-lost!" sobbed Jingle.

"Well, don't speak of her as if she were a hot cross bun," laughed Mr. Longears. "This isn't Easter, you know."

"But don't you care that Baby Bunty is lost?" asked Jangle.

"Certainly I do, said Uncle Wiggily, still laughing and twinkling his pin nose. "But being lost isn't the worst that can happen. I know it may seem very sad to be lost in the woods, and it may be serious if one isn't found. But I am going to find Bunty."

"Oh, are you?" asked Jingle.

"May we come with you?" asked Jangle.

Volunteers

"I'd like to come, also," said Buster and some of the boy rabbits who had gathered about their father when it became known in camp that the orphan rabbit was lost.

"Certainly, you may," said Mr. Longears. "It may need all of us to find Bunty. And finding her will help teach you a lesson about what to do when you are lost in the woods. Hop along!"

So Uncle Wiggily and many of his little rabbits hopped away from the camping tent to look for Baby Bunty.

The orphan rabbit thinking herself wiser, smarter and bigger than she really was had hopped off into the woods all alone to have adventures like Uncle Wiggily.

First a bullfrog, then a snake and next a hawk had so frightened Bunty that she ran through the forest without noting where she was going and so became lost.

She remembered, however, what Uncle Wiggily had told her to do when anything like this happened.

"I must stay in one place and not wander around and get more and more lost all the while," thought Buty. "I'll stay in one place and then Unkle Wig can come and get me. I'm sure he will."

Waits

So Bunty sat down on a green, mossy log to wait for a rescue.

Meanwhile, Uncle Wiggily and the rescue party of little rabbits were on the way. Uncle Wiggily hopped ahead. He looked carefully on the ground and at the bushes and trees on the sides.

"What are you looking for Daddy?" asked Buster.

"I am looking for Bunty's trail," answered Mr. Longears. "See here is a bit of Bunty's fur on this thorn bush. That shows she came this way and was running fast, in fear, I suppose."

"How do you know Bunty was going fast?" asked Jingle.

"If Bunty had been going slow," said Mr. Longears, "she would had turned aside so her fur wouldn't be caught on the thorn. So she began hopping fast near here and I'm sure we'll soon find her."

Then Bunty, doing as Uncle Wiggily had taught her, called:

"Stay there! We're coming to the rescue," cried Buster.

Following the sound of Bunty's voice, Uncle Wiggily soon found the little lost rabbit and took her back to the tent. She promised never to go adventuring all alone again and she never did.

And if the tennis racket doesn't make so much noise as to wake up the baseball when it goes home to sleep, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Summer hill.

BOOM IN LUXURY ITEMS

More Furs, Liquors, Cameras Being Bought in U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP)—Agriculture Department economists said today a sharp increase in sales of "luxury items" the first part of this year indicated the United States public had more money to spend. They reported sales of furs, mechanical refrigerators, liquors, toilet preparations, cameras and lenses, and theatre admissions in the first five months of 1937 ranged from 10 to 75 per cent ahead of the same 1936 period.

DAWSON URGES WIDE GROUNDS FOR DIVORCES

Cruelty And Desertion Frustrates Marriage, Says Prominent Doctor

HOUSE OF LORDS ADDRESS

LONDON, July 22—(CP).—There could be nothing but praise, alike on the grounds of logic and humanity, for the granting of divorce for desertion and cruelty, declared Lord Dawson of Penn, physician to the royal family for 25 years. He was speaking in support of A. P. Herbert's marriage bill in the House of Lords.

The marriage bill would liberalize the present divorce law, making desertion, cruelty and insanity, as well as adultery, grounds for divorce. Lord Dawson's amendments, also adding habitual drunkenness and inveterate drug addiction to the legal grounds, were rejected.

Lord Dawson said desertion and cruelty both frustrated the purpose for which marriage existed, yielding to a chance temptation was normal compared with the cold calculation of desertion or cruelty going through the years, converting a home into a chamber of torture.

Speaking to his own proposed amendments the eminent physician asked that in the case of homosexuality this should be made a cause alike to men and women. It was time for equality in that matter. He also regretted the omission of inveterate alcoholism and inveterate drug-taking as grounds. Drug addiction, although more subtle, could bring destruction to families with an ease which we all wished to avoid.

For all these reasons he supported the second reading of the bill. With certain amendments, it would make the institution of marriage more firm, and would make life more honest, more just, and more in accordance with the facts of life with which they had to deal with today. It would look ahead to the stability and happiness of the country.

Changes must come, whether they were in thought or conduct, and Lord Dawson said he found it difficult to understand why the idea of marriage should be alone expected to remain static. Where the kernel of marriage had been lost, the tendency of the present age was to throw away the husk. The law, having lost its social sanctions, was increasingly disregarded. Surely, he said, the cure was to adapt the law to the prevailing mind of the community, and this is what the bill seemed to do.

In the days preceding the War, freedom and equality were coming to women, and with this an increase of sex consciousness. The war accentuated these changes and henceforth men and women had a freedom of companionship hitherto unknown. Time had been needed for the consequent adjustment and that adjustment had not even yet taken place.

Lord Dawson said he believed, at the same time, that marriages which were successful today reached a higher level of happiness than at any previous period. He urged that in spite of all existing difficulties it could not be said, speaking generally, that the institution of marriage was declining in Britain. He declared the home and the family still stood first and instanced "the sane and sympathetic care of children, never surpassed in any previous age."

Lord Dawson regretted the bill did not attempt to deal with or devise means of disentangling and remedying the causes of marriage disharmony in their early stages.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Reed's Drug Store or any druggist, a package of Hemrond and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemrond is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Defending Peiping Against Japanese Armies

Ready to hold ancient Peiping against the menace of advancing Japanese hordes, this machine-gun squad of China's northern army, is typical of the experienced forces which have been fighting intermittently with Jap. patrols for some weeks, precipitating the threatened invasion of Hopei province by a full-fledged army, under the banner of the Rising Sun. And don't forget that though most people view the Chinese forces as experts with little else than their double-edged swords, gunpowder was a commonplace thing in China before most of the world was born. And these warriors seem to know how to use it in their modern weapon.

$3,000,000 Of Spanish Conquistadores' Gold Dug Up In Panama River Cache

Panama, July 22 (AP). An investigating committee, headed by the Governor of Chiriqui Province, today confirmed the discovery of a $3,000,000 treasure in gold which had been hidden for centuries in tunnels along the Piedra Candela River.

Gaston Johannes van Steck, a French prospector, reported the discovery July 7 of two tunnels deep in the right bank of the river. In the tunnels were stored approximately 80 ingots of gold each weighing 50 pounds.

Van Steck ceded half the value of his find to the Central Government, as Panama laws require, and a commission headed by Governor Teran of Chiriqui set out from David.

The commission was reported reliably to have found a third tunnel with additional ingots that would bring the total to 120 of 50 pounds each. It was estimated at the current price of gold they would bring $3,000,000.

It was believed the find was part of the gold from "La Estrella," mine which was worked by the early Spanish conquistadores until they were destroyed by attacking Indians.

Officers Kill One, Capture Another In Gun Battle In Arkansas

MONTICELLO, Ark., July 22 (AP)—An escaped Texas convict fled through dense southeast Arkansas woodland today from a posse which killed one of his companions and captured another in a gun battle.

The slain convict was W. H. Bybee, 26. Sergt. Neil Shannon of the State Police was wounded in a shotgun exchange with Bybee yesterday before Sergt. Buck Mooney, Shannon's aide, mowed down Bybee with a machine gun fusillade and captured another escaped convict, James Rice, 30. Rice was unhurt.

The third fugitive, who ran during the gunfight, was described by state police as Harry Roberts, 34. A posse of 30 officers, led by two sheriffs, trailed him with blood-hounds.

Coronation Iceberg Still At St. John's

St. John's, Nfld., July 22 (CP). THIS city's "Coronation iceberg" still floated a short distance off the harbour mouth today, a rare spectacle of glistening white under a blazing sun that kept temperatures above the 80-degree mark almost consistently for weeks.

It was just before May 12 that a giant berg came to town, apparently for the Coronation celebrations, and jammed into the Narrows leading into the land-locked harbor, forcing an American and a British warship here at the time to move cautiously to avoid it. A relentless sun has reduced it to a quarter of its size above water now, but it is expected to exist for at least a month.

The berg has moved away from the Narrows and is grounded a short distance northward.

Racial Prejudices Seen Behind War

VANCOUVER, July 22—(CP). — An appeal to "join heart and hand together and find the cause of the broken peace" and suggestions for an international publicity organization for the dissemination of peace propaganda were before delegates to the fourth triennial conference of the Pan-Pacific Women's Association today.

Mrs. P. T. Takahashi, Detroit negress, made the appeal to cure the cause of conflicts.

War would not cease until racial prejudices and persecutions gave place to understanding, Mrs. Takahashi said. "I am appealing to you international women to let us join heart and hand together and find the cause of broken peace, which is injustice and discrimination, and kill the germ of it. Then, and only then, will we cure the pain of war and have peace all over the world."

MYSTERY ENDS, DROWNING CASE

Windsor Girl Leaves Note Apologizing For Trouble Caused Mother

WINDSOR, Ont., July 22—(CP)—Mystery surrounding the death of Antoinette Langlois, 22, Windsor, was lifted to-day when it was revealed she had written a farewell note to her family shortly before her body was found in the Detroit River at Ecorse, Michigan, on July 13. Medical examination showed death by drowning and police are convinced no foul play was involved.

Because the widowed mother of the girl was distraught at the death, a son, Eugene, withheld contents of the note at the time. He said Antoinette had frequently been rebuked because she was in the habit of keeping late hours.

That explained reference in the pencilled note to "the trouble I have caused you," Langlois said.

"I know this will hurt you very much, but it's better for one last blow than to go on indefinitely and continually hurting you," the note said in part.

LONDON IN DRIVE ON PETTY THIEVES

Five Go To Jail After Epidemic Of Gas, Food And Service Box Raids

LONDON, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—As an epidemic of petty thieving broke out in all parts of London early today, police opened a city wide drive that put five persons in jail.

Gasoline was stolen, service boxes raided and food stolen. John Conway, 30, was caught looting a refrigerator in a Beaconsfield avenue house. An hour later Magistrate Menzies sentenced him to six months in jail on a vagrancy charge.

"I wanted to get something to eat", explained the prisoner. "I knocked several times but there was no answer."

Magistrate Menzies told Conway he was fortunate he wasn't charged with breaking and entering.

Eric Chapman, and Leslie Skinner, both 16 years of age and from Windsor, were caught stealing milk off Dundas street. They pleaded guilty to the theft charge. They were remanded until Monday for sentence.

Two youths were caught stealing gasoline from a car. They were arrested as they were pouring the gasoline into another car. They were remanded until July 26 for sentence.

Nixon Says Vote Not Cabinet Topic

TORONTO, July 22. (CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial secretary, today said an election date was not discussed "in any shape or form at the cabinet meeting yesterday."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, also present at the cabinet meeting, said the question of an election was not discussed, when his attention was drawn to reports Premier Hepburn would appeal to the people in October.

"It has never been discussed at any cabinet meeting when I've been there," said Mr. Heenan.

Premier Hepburn today was enroute to his Elgin county farm near St. Thomas where he is expected late this afternoon.

Strike Negotiations To Be Resumed Monday

WELCH COMPLAINS

Charges That Fine Held Secret Meeting With Committee Chairman

Negotiations between Henry Barrett, managing director of the Dominion Woollens, and the bargaining committee of 12 representing 700 workers of the Auburn and Bonner-Worth plants will be re-opened Monday afternoon, Department of Labor Mediator Louis Fine announced last night.

The announcement climaxed a day which saw several sudden developments in a strike situation which had suffered a week of stagnation. Fine told reporters at nine o'clock he had conferred with both Barrett and the bargaining committee and that he was confident a settlement could be reached.

No Modification

Strikers have not modified their demands, Fine stated, referring to two interviews he had with the bargaining committee during the afternoon and early evening. Revealing he has discussed the situation with Barrett who arrived in this city early in the afternoon, he did not comment on a possibility of the company being prepared to yield ground.

Sent here by the Ontario Department of Labor in response to a request for mediation by the strike leaders, Fine excluded Alex Welch, C.I.O. textile organizer, from both his meetings with the bargaining committee. Welch charged at a general meeting of strikers in East City late in the afternoon that Fine had had some unrevealed purpose in excluding him and that he later had a secret conference with Mike English, strike chairman.

No Excuse

"While the company may have had some excuse for excluding me, the Government as mediator is supposed to be impartial and has no excuse," he declared. He reported the committee had wired J. L. Cohen, international labor advisor of C.I.O. fame, to come to Peterborough and lend assistance. Cohen arrived here during the evening.

Conciliation officer Fine denied to reporters that he had excluded Welch on instructions from the Department of Labor. He said that, as mediator, he was immediately concerned with obtaining an understanding of the strikers' case and that he had deemed the presence of Welch unnecessary. He said he was not concerned with the fact that Welch was a C.I.O. organizer and that the C.I.O. participation in the strike a bridge which could be crossed later. He had no objection to the presence of a lawyer with the negotiating body as such strike advisers often speed up strike settlements, he said.

No Council Action

While the strike situation was taking its new turn, the City Council which appointed a mediation board in the early days of the dispute remained on the strike sidelines. No mention of the strike was made at a special meeting of the council held last night.

Hint of serious strain within the strike organization itself was a feature of the general meeting of strikers. The meeting was assembled hurriedly by Chairman Mike English and Secretary Elmer Rickey before the strike principals had ar-

BRITAIN PROPOSES ASK 27 NATIONS VIEWS, EDEN PLAN

Government Expected To Call For Written Reply By First Of Week

CONVINCED IDEA SOUND

LONDON, July 23 (C.P.-Havas)—Well-informed sources reported today Foreign Office experts have advised the Government to ask members of the 27-nation "Hands Off Spain" Committee for written replies within three days, accepting or rejecting each point of Foreign Secretary Edens compromise proposal for ending the non-intervention deadlock.

Decision as to whether or not to send out the proposed questionnaire was expected by to-night, after the views of the French Government have been learned.

The object of this procedure would be to lead the interested Powers to make unequivocal statements on the basic problems of non-intervention, particularly whether or not foreign volunteers should be withdrawn from Spain before belligerency rights are granted to the combatants.

If the Government accepts the proposal, a list of six or seven questions will be sent to each capital, with a request a reply be made by Monday, or at the latest in the first half of next week.

The Cabinet is convinced Eden's compromise proposal should not be wrecked on the question of procedure raised by the Italians last Tuesday at the meeting of the chairman's sub-committee. It wishes decisions to be made on the fundamental questions involved.

CONVICTED of stealing groceries to feed her children who, she testified, were "starving without a scrap of food in the house," Mrs. Vera Kruschuck of Beverly municipality, near Edmonton, was remanded for sentence until Friday in Police Court. Three other Beverly residents face similar theft charges. At first Magistrate A. H. MacKie, her counsel, pleaded she had erred only because her children were starving.

GIRL DIES IN FIRE, NAB MAN ON BUS

Young Victim Found On Prisoner's Mattress After Tavern Burns

CLEVELAND, July 23 (C.P.). — James McCormack, 31, was taken off a bus from Detroit to-day by detectives who said he was wanted as a suspect in the slaying of a 16-year-old girl in a tourist tavern near Port Huron, Mich.

The girl, Mary Jane Mohan of Detroit, died of burns or a crushed skull in a fire at the inn on Wednesday night. She went there with her mother, Mrs. Blanche Mohan, and Kenneth Kahke, Detroit salesman, both of whom jumped to safety when the fire broke out.

McCormack told the detectives he awakened at the tourist house, where he was employed as a dishwasher, to smell smoke, and discovered the house was afire. He notified the girl, whose room was near his, he said, and told her to awaken her mother. He said he took $47 from an open safe, and thinking the others had safely left the building, went to Detroit.

Police said they were informed the girl's body was found in the dining-room, lying on a mattress from McCormack's room.

The body was at Michigan University Hospital to-day for an autopsy.

ENGLISH DIVORCE LAW IS WIDENED 25-YEAR STRUGGLE

Cruelty, Desertion 3 Years, And 5 Years' Insanity Are Added To Adultery

NOT FOR SCOTLAND

LONDON, July 23—(AP)—A 25-year fight to liberalize England's divorce law ended to-day with parliamentary enactment of a bill whereby cruelty, desertion for three years, insanity for five years, became grounds for divorce.

Adultery hitherto has been the only cause for divorce.

The House of Commons gave final approval to the law, sponsored by A. P. Herbert, Independent Member for Oxford University, by accepting House of Lords amendments.

Royal assent is the remaining formality for putting the law into effect.

Most important of the amendments made by the Upper House was one reducing from five to three years the period following marriage in which no petition for divorce will be considered by the courts. In cases of special hardship, however, exception will be allowed at the discretion of the Bench.

Introduced Last Year

Herbert's bill was introduced in the House of Commons late in 1936, a quarter-century after a royal commission recommended more liberal divorce regulations.

"We have shown," the commission's majority report said, "as we consider the unsatisfactory state of the law in England and its need of

STRIKERS STRIVE TO BRING ABOUT PEACE IN RANKS

TOO MUCH POLITICS?

Auburn and Bonner-Worth strikers were today reported engaged in the task of smoothing out strained feelings which have arisen within the strike organization and whipping fractious members of the executive into line in order that a united front may be presented when negotiations with Henry Barrett Dominion Woollens managing director, are re-opened Monday at noon.

No official statement concerning the reported disaffection in the strike leadership circles could be obtained. The strike bargaining committee held a three-hour meeting at the strike headquarters at 875 Water street during the morning but leaders told reporters nothing of any account had been done at the meeting as members filed out for lunch. It was announced, however, that the meeting had voted to exclude the press from all future meetings. Organizer Alex Welch said statements would be tendered the press, following each meeting.

Uncertain themselves what was going on between their strike leaders, individual strikers outside the leadership circles told reporters they believed a split among the leaders along political lines was threatening. Several officers, along with Nora Adams, paid C.I.O. automobile workers organizer from Oshawa, were said to be unsatisfied with the leadership of Welch and resentful of the fact the C.C.F. has been given little show in strike affairs.

The extent to which the trouble has centered around Nora Adams was indicated today in a report a general understanding has been reached among strikers that no outside officials or organizers such as Nora Adams are to be allowed to participate in strike meetings other than on specific invitation.

It was expected that all would be quiet in strike affairs until negotiations begin on Monday. Welch, in company with Alex Townsley, strike secretary, Max Curtis and Jack Lorne, left the city for Cornwall at at an early hour this afternoon. They will there meet with leaders of the Canadian Cottons Limited strike and proceed to Ottawa for a conference of Eastern Canada textile union leaders Saturday and Sunday. Arrival at a uniform textile union policy for Eastern Canada will be the object of the Ottawa conference.

Toronto Paper Claims There Will Be No Special Session Previous

SUDDEN DECISION

Premier's Plans Believed Being Laid At Series Weekend Conferences

TORONTO, July 23 — (C.P.). — The Globe and Mail to-day says Premier Hepburn and his Ontario Government will appeal to the people "within the next three months, it was reliably reported yesterday at Queen's Park."

"The campaign and the vote should be all over by the week ending October 9, although circumstances at present unforeseen may compel a postponement of the electors' decision until early in November," the paper adds.

There will be no special session of the Legislature before the election campaign, The Globe and Mail continues, "and consequently no redistribution of the present 90 seats, as at one time contemplated."

The Globe and Mail continues:

"Cabinet reorganization and reorganization of both the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Liquor Control Board, all of which have been mooted recently, will, it is understood, be suspended until after the election.

Long Been Rumored

"An early fall election has been rumored, off and on ever since the 1937 session, and particularly since the Cabinet shake-up over the C.I.O. issue, which cost former Attorney-General Roebuck and former Labor Welfare Minister David A. Croll their portfolios.

"Only within the past 24 hours, however, has Mr. Hepburn, it is reported, definitely decided to take the plunge. Cabinet Council of yesterday is said to have given formal approval to the plans he has in mind.

"The Prime Minister is away for the week-end and will not return to his Queen's Park office until next Tuesday. It is understood that his plans may be brought further to a head through a series of informal conferences which he may hold with prominent party men during his absence. He is still saying nothing about election, and, except to admit now and then in Fergusonian

TILBURY, Ont., July 23 (C.P.)—Net profits from Liquor Control Board sales for the second three months of 1937 have increased more than 15 per cent. over those of the same period last year, Edmond C. Odette, L.C.B. Commissioner, said to-day. Figures were not revealed.

Odette, recovering from an illness, made the announcement from his sick bed, after reading a report from Arnold Smith, Deputy Commissioner. Odette hopes to be back in his Toronto office in two weeks.

STRIKE TAG DAY WELL ORGANIZED

Everything Is Ready For Complete Effort On Streets Tomorrow

Strikers of the Auburn and Bonner-Worth mills were confident their appeal to citizens of Peterborough for funds through the sale of tags Saturday would bring success as final preparations were made today. It is expected the downtown section of the city will be thoroughly covered by the laggers through the entire day.

The tag day is being sponsored by the newly-formed citizens strike aid committee under the direction of Homer Borland. Boxes for the laggers were distributed today and many hundreds of tags apportioned among the strikers. All money obtained from the tag day is to be devoted to strike relief purposes, leaders state.

"DIFFERENT FROM U.S."

TORONTO, July 22.—(CP)— Unless requests are made for Ontario government intervention no action will be taken in the strikes at Brockville and Cornwall, Premier Hepburn said today.

"We stand ready of course, if there is any request from the municipal authorities or the employers or employees," he said. "Our labor and industry board is prepared to lend assistance in effecting a settlement. If there is any lawlessness with which the municipalities cannot cope we will send in police for the protection of either employers or strikers. But we are not settling strikes that way."

Mr. Hepburn surveying the picture of industrial relations in Ontario, said he was pleased with what he saw. "The employers of labor are amendable to reason and all reasonable requests of their employees are being met."

He was particularly pleased with the situation in Northern Ontario where he said industrial peace had been a major factor in increasing employment. Recent reports showed that in North Bay, Timmins and Sudbury there was not one employable man on the relief rolls. In Sault Ste. Marie there are only 54, in Fort William 127 and in Port Arthur 88.

"That is a far different picture from the United States where the opposite is happening and where industrial production is falling off as the result of labor troubles," he said.

TOBACCO-CHEWING DOG

Likes Beer Also, But Makes Good Mother Despite Faults

TORONTO, July 22 — (C.P.). — Vickles, just about the smartest dog that ever chewed tobacco or drank beer, according to W. J. Walker, her Toronto owner, has just had nine pups and despite her wild streak, is a good mother.

The four-year-old fox terrier isn't just an ordinary tobacco chewer—she doesn't even bother to chew it before swallowing. As for beer, the dog won't leave a good bone for a glass, but waits until the meal is over before indulging, Walker said. She's not a heavy drinker, half a glass is usually her limit.

Secret World Flight Hinted By Ottawa

Ottawa, July 22 (CP).

AVIATION officials here were reticent to-day on so-called "secret" flights round the world. While declaring "something of that kind might be brewing" they declined to indicate when or by whom.

The customary requests from foreign aviators to fly over Canadian territory were being received all the time, and as a matter of routine the requests were granted, they said. Beyond that, they had no comment on reports of mystery planes in the north Atlantic, or of new stores of high-test gasoline in Edmonton.

Senate Move Will Clear Way For Drafting Of New Bill

WASHINGTON, July 22 (A.P.).—The United States Senate Judiciary Committee voted to-day to ask the Senate to send back to it the Roosevelt Supreme Court Reform Bill with instructions to draft a substitute dealing only with the Lower Courts within 10 days.

In an hour and a half executive session attended by Vice-President Garner and administration leaders, the committee instructed Senator Logan (D., Ky.) to make the motion in the Senate to-day to recommit the pending Compromise Court Bill.

Only two Senators opposed the decision, first Senators leaving the committee room said.

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), one of th leading foes of the Bill, said the committee's action would clear the way for drafting a new Bill dealing only with procedure in the Lower Courts and eliminating all references to the size of the Supreme Court.

If the Senate agrees to the proposal, the committee will have 10 days in which to whip the new Bill into shape for presentation to the Senate.

Canadian Newsman Gave Marconi Opportunity

An early photograph of Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, as he experimented in his favorite field laboratory at Rome. Marconi, one of the foremost scientists of his time died at his home in Rome of a heart attack. He was 63 years of age. Following the announcement of his death it was revealed from Ottawa that a Sydney, Nova Scotia, newspaperman who eventually became a member of Parliament and still later a Dominion Deputy Minister, gave the inventor his first start in commercial wireless telegraphy 36 years ago. After the first successful wireless transmission from England to Newfoundland, Marconi was restrained from proceeding further by an injunction obtained by a cable company which claimed a monopoly on transatlantic telegraph messages. Marconi packed away his equipment and while en route to New York was interviewed by Alexander Johnson, Sydney newspaperman, who suggested that cable company monopolies would not be able to hinder the inventor in Nova Scotia. Subsequent discussion with the Provincial Premier brought about the establishing of an experimental station near Bridgeport, N.S.

NO MARKED CHANGE IN BOY'S CONDITION

Clare Scollard, Victim Of Motor Accident, Still In Hospital

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, July 22.—Reports from the Ross Hospital last evening concerning the condition of Clare Scollard, of Peterborough, who was badly injured in an automobile crash near Reaboro early Sunday morning, disclosed no marked change in his condition. The report that an operation had been performed on Wednesday by a Peterborough physician was without foundation. There may be a possible fracture of the skull, but satisfactory information on this possibility was not obtainable tonight. The young man suffered a serious injury to one of his eyes, and there is a possibility that the sight may be effected. The wounds received from flying glass are healing satisfactorily.

At the Door you are Courteous—

WHEN YOU "answer the door" in your home to the baker, milkman, grocer or postman, you are courteous, you transact your business pleasantly and otherwise behave in a normal courteous manner. But what happens to this courtesy, that you feel and extend to your domestic companions, when you get behind the wheel of a motor vehicle and roll along the streets and highways?

Do you still treat your fellowman courteously? Do you give him his share of the road? Do you dip or dim your brilliant headlights at night so that he can see to pass you safely? Do you sound your horn when you wish to overtake him and then do so at a safe distance? Do you give him "the breaks" in traffic or do you "scoot" into every opening yourself? Do you take extra precautions where there are children and cyclists?

If you can answer "yes" to such questions then, and only then, will you be doing your share to reduce our shocking traffic toll.

I earnestly request that you "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way.

NORTH BAY CHIEF PRAISES SLAYERS OF VIC SZYMONSKI

Brands Dead Man Most Ruthless Criminal Known To Police In Canada

TELLS EXPERIENCES

NORTH BAY, Ont., July 23 (CP). —Chief of Police William Clark of North Bay, who had two brushes with Victor Szymonski and once captured him single-handed, said police were to be commended for slaying the gunman early Thursday and ending the manhunt that started with the killing of Sergeant Fred Davidson of Sudbury.

"My experiences with Victor Szymonski prompt me to say that he was dealt with in a manner befitting his nature," said Chief Clark. He called Szymonski the "most ruthless criminal known to the police of Canada."

It was Clark, then an officer at Copper Cliff, who took Szymonski into custody four years after he escaped from Kingston Penitentiary, where he had been serving the first of three 10-year sentences.

Life Meant Nothing.

"He would shoot at the slightest provocation and the lives of others meant nothing to him," said the Chief. "I had a tussle with him at Copper Cliff, in which my life was in jeopardy until I had him behind the bars."

Clark said he was visiting a Copper Cliff establishment to look for illicit liquor. He found a group of about 15 seated about a table, one of them a "foreigner" with elbows on the table.

Asking each man his name, he got a fictitious answer from Szymonski, and contradicted the "foreigner." Producing a warrant issued from penitentiary for the man's arrest, he told Szymonski to get up and come to him with his arms raised.

Szymonski was defiant until the officer pulled a revolver.

Then the fugitive walked around calmly and a search revealed he carried a revolver, taken from one of the prison guards he had disabled in escaping in 1910.

Tried To Escape.

Szymonski refused to wear handcuffs, despite the officer's threats of shooting, and he was marched from the house with hands free. On the way to police headquarters Szymonski made an effort to overpower Clark but the ensuing tussle ended in a ditch, with Clark astride the prisoner.

With the gun-barrel against his nose, Szymonski allowed himself to be handcuffed and taken to prison.

Clark's second experience with the Polish-born gunman was in August, 1928, when he was brought here to answer a charge of robbing the North Bay branch of the Royal Bank. This time Szymonski was carefully guarded until he was sent away for a three-year term.

His "discovery" was held certain to strengthen the position of his adherents, generally regarded as responsible for the pro-British policy of Tibet.

W.A. PURCHASES NEW SILVERWARE

Roseneath United Church Association Adds To Collection —Routine Business

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, July 23. — Mrs. Charlton Grigg was hostess on Wednesday afternoon when the regular meeting of the E.W.A. of the United Church was held in her home. The attendance numbered 18 and the president, Mrs. A. Nill, presided. During the business period the silver committee, Mrs. C. Sandercock and Miss Mary Braithwaite, reported the purchase of one dozen each of silver tablespoons and dessertspoons in matching pattern to the society's silver. Mrs. E. Braithwaite and Mrs. E. Blodgett reported that the steps and platform leading up to the alcove in the church were built, and after discussion it was decided to paint them. Mrs. Ella Brown, Mrs. M. Davey, and the president volunteered to do the painting, and Mrs. Andrew Brown donated part of the paint.

Mrs. Andrew Brown, reporting for the parsonage committee, said she with Mrs. M. Davey and Mrs. E. Sandercock, the other members on the committee, had met and decided on materials for covering the pulpit chairs, and sent for samples of the materials. After much discussion regarding ways of raising funds, the matter was left over until the August meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Nill, with Mrs. Andrew Brown and Miss Irene Brown acting as program committee.

Mrs. C. Sandercock presided over a short program: Miss Mary Braithwaite read "Do You Just Belong?" Mrs. Stewart Thackersy played a piano solo, "Consolation"; Miss C. Payne read "Thats Living"; Mrs. E. Braithwaite read "A Motorist's Prayer"; Mrs. A. Nill sang a solo; Mrs. W. Robins read "Keep On Keeping On," and an amusing contest, conducted by Mrs. M. Davey, dropping clothes pins in an open jar, was won by Mrs. C. Sandercock.

Following the benediction, the hostess served refreshments.

HASTINGS PASTOR IS GUEST SPEAKER

Rev. Mr. Newell Has Charge Of South Dummer Anniversary Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COTTESLOE, July 23. — Anniversary services were held on Sunday at the South Dummer appointment with Rev. Mr. Newell of Hastings in charge of both services. In the morning his text was from Isaiah —"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

The speaker said with God all things are possible, and what the people need to-day is a realization that they need God more than anything else. It is only through Him the world can be saved from destruction.

Evening Service

In the evening his text was from Joanna: "What mean these stones?" And his topic was "What the Church Stands For." It should be the greatest brotherhood and as all Christian churches worship the same Christ and use the same Bible there should be but one church, and if love and obedience to God had their proper place in our lives, there would be no empty pews in any of our churches to-day.

The choir was assisted by Mrs. R. Ferguson, Misses Reta Ferguson, Margaret Marks, Ruth Packenham, and John Hamblin and Learl Humphries.

The South Dummer Church was one of the first Methodist Churches in the township, and from it have gone out some good and great men. Young people to-day should think of what these country churches meant to the people before the time of motor cars, and it is a great loss to any community when one is closed. The thankoffering was very generous.

Competition Games

Twenty friends were present at the shower and presented the guest of honor with many attractive and useful gifts. An enjoyable social evening was spent with refreshments served from a table prettily decorated with summer flowers.

Glass Bottles Costly

It has been commonly acknowledged that glass bottles, shortly after their invention, were "worth their weight in gold". But a recent magazine item indicates that these transparent containers were valued much more highly than the yellow metal in old Egypt, where a price of $3,500,000 was set and paid on one glass bottle!

Originally made only by master craftsmen and used in packaging of rare attars and cosmetics, glassware required 40 centuries of study and refinement to reach its present superiority and inexpensiveness. The common foodstuff bottles on our shelves today are more perfect by far than the crude bottles of long ago—and yet cost little.

Eat More Salt

PRESTON, Ont., July 23—Eat more salt and keep your shirt dry is the summer suggestion of Dr. Edwin Hagmeier, medical director of the Hagmeier clinic here, to people who suffer during the hot, sweltering days of July and August. Many people avoid salt on hot days he points out, because they are afraid it will make them thirsty. Salt, in moderate amounts, has the opposite effect says Dr. Hagmeier. His hot weather hints were brief.

"Don't eat too much. Take frequent, small drinks of water. Eat more salt" he stated.

The reporter looked startled at the last suggestion.

"Salt prevents evaporation of moisture from the body" he explained. "When body fluids become too concentrated, physical imbalance is upset. Moisture does more good inside your body than soaking your shirt."

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"To benefit others, you must be reasonably happy: there must be animation through kindness, useful activity, good-cheer and health, —health of mind and health of body. Elbert Hubbard.

Dear Friends:

How much happiness do you spread around? Go downtown any day and listen to the scraps of conversation you hear, and most of it you will find consists of one person telling another their woes, or their sickness, what someone did to them or left undone.

And no one can say it spreads happiness to talk like that. How few ever of how much benefits they have, or what they are thankful for, oh no, they must stress the unhappy things in life, and when it is all boiled down they are not half as unhappy as they make out.

It's a grand thing to ask a person, "Hows things going with you" and hear them say grand, or very good, or I can't complain." But when they pull a long face and start to recount all the small things which have annoyed them, their headaches, their stomach-aches or dyspepsia, we get nothing from them but something we could very well do without. Moreover, when we listen to them, we have a tendency to let them know they are not the only ones whom fate shoots his arrows at, and we start telling our troubles, and the whole thing turns into a gloom party.

We surely need, as I said before, a parking place for our troubles, so that when we meet one another we talk only of the nice things that come to us. For awhile now, I have tried telling the funny things that come along, and try to leave my friends laughing, so they retain a pleasant memory of me.

But making out we had bigger and better sicknesses than the other fellow a more serious operation, a worse dental job, isn't it silly when you stop to think of it? The only way these things are so important is because they happened to us and not the other fellow.

Sunburn, can be very laughable when the other one is suffering from it, but if WE get it, it's an awful painful thing. A bad fall can look very humourous when the other fellow tumbles, but if it is US, boy oh boy, did we hurt our back or leg or arm?

Let someone cheat us and how we rave about it, but let the other get cheated and we have a faint contempt for them being such a sap as to let someone pull a fast one on them. You know it is a good plan to stop every once in a while and have a good laugh at yourself, so that when you meet your friends you will have something funny to tell them.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone," is not only a cynical remark denoting lack of sympathy, but a very good maxim. There is enough tears shed in the world once without trying to have them shed twice, and that is what we are trying to do when we dwell too much on our unhappinesses.

You know yourself even in the deepest sorrow there is something to be thankful about, such as the kindness of our friends, or strangers coming to help, or a hundred and one things and all we need to do is switch our thoughts every so often.

Robert Broning says this:

"How soor a smile of God can change the world!

How we are made for happiness—how work

Grows play, adversity a winning fight."

So let us think happiness, talk it, live it, so that it will radiate through out the world. Hoping I have been the means of giving many of you some of it. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

IT COST HIM $15.

STRATFORD, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Leonard Mitchell, Detroit, failed to notice two motorcyclists he passed on the highway east of here were wearing uniforms but a half hour later he knew it when he got a ticket for speed at 70 miles an hour. Mitchell's bail of $15 was accepted for his appearance in court today and when he did not appear it was taken at a $10 fine and $5 costs.

Asleep At The Wheel

A traffic officer patrolling the road between London, Ont., and Lambeth, saw by the wheelmarks of a truck that the vehicle had been doing some fancy work. The truck ran 175 feet along the shoulder of the road, struck a traffic sign, crossed the road, grazed a telephone pole, jumped a ditch, cleared a culvert and ended up in a small creek. Damage was not serious and the driver was not injured. Neither was any one else.

But the case came to court on the ground of reckless driving, and the plea entered by the driver was that he had gone to sleep at the wheel. The interesting part of the report is that the magistrate said such a plea could not be seriously considered. And that is right enough.

If the driver had been on duty so long he could not remain awake then the man who was employing him and keeping him at the wheel for so many hours should have been in court.

If the driver is of the variety which becomes drowsy after driving for a few hours then he should quit driving a truck.

We have long had a belief that a number of traffic accidents are due to drivers becoming drowsy at the wheel. Some people are affected that way and they should not drive cars.

Starting at 10 Years

"We can drive a car backward and we can drive forward like heck." That saying came in on the wire and it is credited to one of three lads in Toronto who are accused of stealing cars. And the age of the spokeman is ten years. His two companions were also of the same age.

From the way in which the statement was made the lad of ten evidently thought he was saying something rather smart. Possibly didn't know that older people are behind bars today for stealing cars. And the number is large.

Truth is there is something serious about it. Something unnatural. Also something dangerous and baffling.

What would you do with a lad of ten, or with three lads of ten, who had gone in for stealing motor cars? Would you look upon it as a boyish prank which would pass, or as the first taste of something in the way of adventure which would certainly lead to something more serious?

A boy of ten may not be far advanced mentally, but we are certain if one of those Toronto boys found a bicycle belonging to him had been stolen he would quickly see the injustice of the theft.

It's Hard To Believe

A despatch from Port Dalhousie tells of something which at first glance is hard to believe. The Spadina Conservative Association of Toronto took a boat ride to that place and held a picnic and there was not a political address.

And there were 1,500 Tories gathered together in one place. Old ones and young ones; big Tories and little Tories, and they ate their victuals, ran their races and did not listen to a solitary Tory address.

At first glance it is difficult to know whether to regard that as common sense or indication of considerable weakening in the ranks of the Spadina Tories. Time was when on a fine summer day, regardless of the heat, speakers held forth at political picnics. Grits and Tories did the same. The denouncers were always in evidence; the men who "viewed with alarm" this, that and everything else perspired freely as they expounded and denounced. The older members of the tribe had their faith renewed and the younger element were given an injection of political science along with their lemonade and salmon sandwiches.

But a political picnic with 1,500 good Toronto Tories and never a speech is something we will have to think over before coming to a definite conclusion.

What The Jurors Thought

An inquest following a fatal accident on the highway can do nothing at all to set right what has taken place, but at times it can get a fairly accurate picture of just what did take place and offer suggestions regarding what might be done to prevent recurrence. That is, if people are ready to receive suggestions.

There was an inquest at Seaforth, in Huron County, and the details of the case were: John Storey was driving a wagon along the highway at 9.15 (standard time) in the evening. There was no light attached to his wagon. A car driven by Mrs. Grace Watson of Goderich at between 45 and 50 miles an hour struck the wagon and the driver (John Storey) was thrown on his head in the ditch, receiving injuries from which he died.

The inquest was not a perfunctory affair; it lasted for four hours and then the jury took another 55 minutes to think the matter over. The conclusions were chiefly that the deceased farmer should never have gone on the road at night with a wagon without having a light attached to the rear or side of it, and that for night driving the legal limit of 50 miles an hour was too high. That was the opinion of twelve people who are just average citizens with the average degree of common sense upon which to work. And there will be general agreement that their recommendations have a good deal of sense and value in them.

A doctor with a country practice told the Examiner not long ago that he often came upon rigs on the road at night with no lights attached. He said the average wagon or buggy gets grey-colored with the dust and makes it extremely difficult to see. The doctor said that in night driving when there was no auto traffic coming in the opposite direction he generally drove over on the left side of the road, and he believes by so doing he has missed several people riding bicycles and rigs without any lights. "When one gets off the paved roads at night he is sure to encounter dust and that makes wheels and unlighted vehicles very difficult to see." That was the doctor's opinion.

There ought to be a difference between the speed maintained in daylight and that used after dark. It would be difficult enough for the law to be made sufficiently flexible to cover that point, but the law of common sense will indicate it should be done. The driver at night cannot see beyond the range of the headlights ,and if they are turned down as they should be to accommodate passing traffic, the range of vision is shortened. Some may laugh at the idea but we do not hesitate to state there ought to be at least a difference of ten miles per hour between the speed of day travel and that at night.

How We Lost A Subscriber

It does look as though we had gone and lost a subscriber. And that of course is bad. But it came about this way: A gentleman came to the office with a picture which he wanted printed. As a rule this paper welcomes good and interesting pictures, but this was not in that class. It was the result of a fishing party. Fish were on a board between two trees, and they were also fastened on the tree trunks, and there were more held by two people on a line. Our visitor thought that would be a great boost for his particular district and would cause a good many people to come and see what they could do about it. We couldn't see it that way and that is how the difference of opinion started.

The picture represented what seemed to us like a slaughter of fish. There had been more taken than the party could eat, and although the folk may have kept within the legal limit there was wastage there and a display which lacked that fine feeling of sportmanship. Nor were we anxious to create the belief that the lakes in this district could produce similar results for any or all who cared to go and try it. People with a good deal of experience know it does not work out that way.

When one does a little travelling through the Kawartha Lakes district during the summer season and has occasion to see the extent to which fishing is being followed, and notes the success which attends the efforts of most of the fishermen, the conviction comes that the total number of fish in our lakes must be enormous, and the danger of them being classed as "fished-out" waters is remote.

When one catches a great fish this paper is ready to print the picture; at times we will even go and take the picture, but we have no interest in what might be called "slaughter" pictures, where it is plain that for several days in succession more fish have been taken that need to be taken. It seems like going back to the days when people used to fish and keep on fishing and then at the close of the day they would pick out the best ones and leave the rest to rot. So that's how we came to lose a subscriber. If we would not publish that picture then the gentleman would no longer be numbered among those who were in the reader family. So we'll have to ask the circulation department to look around and find some other chap to take the place of the one that got away yesterday.

Soil Testing

This business of soil testing is spreading, and it should. It is not a fad, nor a passing notion, nor is it something which calls for a great expenditure. If one wants a parallel it is like going to the doctor when not feeling well and finding out what is the trouble. If the farmer's land is not producing results which should be reasonably expected with proper cultivation and fertilizing, then there is something wrong with the land, and the chemist can name the ingredient which is missing or if present is not there in sufficient quantity.

One farmer not far from the city found he was having trouble turning cream into butter. It took over two hours to perform the operation, and he was worried. He said there appeared to be something lacking in the pasture this year. The trouble probably was there was a lack in the land on which the pasture was growing.

It is reported that land in this district lacks phosphorous, and if that is definitely established then the owner of the land knows how to deal intelligently with the situation. In recent years it has been the experience of a good many farmers that their standing grain flattens faster than it used to before wind and rain, and when it goes down it seems to stay there longer. Some of it never rises again. It may be the taking off of trees gives the wind greater scope, but it is more likely there is something lacking in the land and the grain stalk is not as strong as it should be or as it used to be. Soil analysis will tell the story of any or every field.

He Starts In State

This time of year a number of people get away from home for a few days or a few weeks or so. The picture of a little lad of two years walking with his mother has been going the rounds of several papers. The child is William Astor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor, and the heading on the picture says "Youthful Heir Makes Newport Debut."

And Newport is a mighty exclusive sort of place. We do not know how many of the folk in this district could make a go of it there, but we estimate with safety the number would be small. Perhaps at the zero mark.

But it is all open to this little man of two years, and it will not be long before he becomes used to Newport and its ways. He will not have to battle with the mob when he wants to get close to the water because the mob does not belong there.

Nor will he have to worry as he grows older about whether he can have a few days or a week or so off in the summer season. No doubt he will have work to do but the problem of "getting off" and finding some place where he can afford to go will not bear heavily upon him. The simple fact that he is referred to now as "youthful heir" means that a good many things which have to do with the problem of existence have already been solved for him. He will have a great deal—but he will also miss a great deal.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Canadian money will still continue to say good-bye but from now on it will have to do it in two languages, English and French.

Exports to the United States have increased by 38 per cent. during the first six months of the year. The gain is not all in whiskey either.

Germany is using human hair to make carpets and felt roofing, but that is an item that should cause little worry for a lot of us.

Chief Big Wind of the Rama Reserve will be 98, next month. The Ojibways of that section have been going with the Wind for many decades.

The report that blue berries are scarce is bad news. There is no fruit that does so well in a pie or looks so well when spread over a childish countenance.

Mr. Bennett refuses to discuss his political future, but most Canadians are hoping his decision will be to remain in public life.

Hamilton's relief list is the lowest in seven years and that sounds most encouraging until you start comparing it with the charity expenditures of the pre-depression era.

At one time the East used to send thousands of men to the prairies to help with the harvest. Today the West is sending thousands of cattle east to be fed.

A correspondent to a Toronto paper asks "How shall we define prosperity?" which calls to mind Sir Wilfred Laurier's saying that when people are prosperous they can feel it in their pockets.

The comments of American golfers on the sportsmanship of the British people and the replies of British players will make folk wonder once more as to whether international contests are worth while.

DRESS

¶ Now Archie always looks well dressed, as though he'd just been sponged and pressed, and always he's the same; his clothing seems to fit him right, and never does he look a fright, it decorates his frame.

¶ If Archie happened in a wreck, and found tires hanging on his neck, and weights upon his feet; if they heaved Archie out of there, he'd move with such a graceful air, and he'd be looking neat.

¶ If you dumped Archie in a lake, or in an oven so he'd bake, and rescued him in time; you'd find he moved with grace and ease, he'd brush his shoulders and his knees, and he'd be looking fine.

¶ Now Dunc's clothes cost three times as much, and yet he lacks the Archie touch, he bulges here and there; his shoulders seem to play such pranks, and he's not even in his shanks, nor do his feet hit square.

¶ If Dunc got pitched from out his car, and got a little scratch and jar, and no great damage done; he'd look as though he had no friends, he'd take a lot of clamps and mends, then he'd look like a bust.

¶ But Archie is the dapper type, who seems to know just what is right, girls watch him come and go; nor does he look shopworn nor rough, I think he's learned a lot of stuff—that Dunc will never know.

MUCH has been said about President Roosevelt seeking a third term, but no one knows much about it. If anything at all. Friends close to the President say he allows the talk to go on as the idea of him being good for another four years makes him stronger when dealing with Congress and the world in general.

Operation Was Too Much.

IN Gotham Hospital, New York, Jack LaPadura, relief roll carpenter, was brought in a stage of jaundice where he was turning green. He had been sick for some weeks but did nothing about it. Bile, meant to digest fats in the intestines, had backed up, invaded his blood stream, and dyed him a light Easter-egg green. He suffered from black jaundice and that is a rare malady. Blood tests told the story and blood transfusions from a suitable donor were given. Then there was an operation and a cancerous growth was found. He should have recovered but his heart was too weak. He died the following morning.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

NAMES THE DATE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I suppose you are somewhat interested to know more about what happened to Amelia Earhart and her partner in their "just-for-fun" flight around the world.

Having a little knowledge of the deeper sciences of the universe and knowing when she said good-bye to her husband she would never see him alive again, through telepathic broadcasting I was in constant touch with her from beginning to end. On July 2 she was forced to land 80 miles south of Howland Island; her fuel was gone. Landing on the water and sinking gradually she was unable to do much broadcasting. They managed to keep afloat for five days and were in distress. At 2 o'clock A.M. on July 7 the two of them and their plane sank beneath the waters of the Pacific. There is only a thin veil between the sub-conscious and the "All Wise." Some day that veil will be taken away and then we shall know as we are known.

A. W. ALTHOUSE.

Havelock, July 21.

NAME AND ADDRESS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Please allow me available space in your paper, until I answer one who signs himself, "War Veteran."

Well War Veteran, your letter, was about the most ignorant thing I have ever had the misfortune of reading. I presume you will wonder why I am interested. It doesn't concern me, perhaps not, but I would like the employees of both the Auburn and Bonner Worth, and also the general public to know that individually I as another War Vet, am in sympathy with the strikers, and I might add that since the strike started I have discussed the matter with a number of War Vets and former Buddies, and also a number of farmers, and I never came across one who was not in sympathy with the strikers, so you see, yours seems to be an isolated case. You seem to be in a class by yourself. Now in regards the twelve and fourteen dollars per week, if you think that's an appropriate wage in the city, why don't you quit farming and move to town.

Alas my dear Veteran, what kind of mental gymnastics are you having, when you wish war onto your fellow man, you who have seen the real horrors of war my dear sir, it's simply incomprehensible. Would it interest you to know that right among these strikers, I'll take a chance on saying there are men who will compare notes with you any time, in regards to war service.

In regards to your twelve hours a day on the farm, permit me to say I was raised on a farm until the time I ran away and enlisted I also worked on farms since the war, and if you average twelve hours per day all the year round, you do considerable working after dark. I am forced to admit there are that kind of farmers, and my dear sir if you persist in sending those kind of letters to the daily press, I feel sure that the farmers will find more difficulty in procuring help, there they are having even now, and if you feel that it's easy life working in a factory, let me tell you, I have worked in factories throughout the United States and Canada, and I never worked on a farm as hard as I have worked in some factories.

In regards to the strike of the eighteenth century, after all they are ancient history. This is the year 1937 and before closing let me say, I cannot ever recall an occasion, when Mr. Gordon has not been in sympathy with the working people.

So now my dear War Veteran to any sane-thinking people, your opinion will not be taken for much; it's really immaterial what you think. I presume you have a twelve-month job on your farm, with no lay-offs, and I don't suppose you have to buy everything that goes on your table. You might even be fortunate enough to be drawing a pension.

Please understand I do not work at either the Bonner Worth or Auburn, and my name is Michael Toomey. Whats yours?

And my address is 477 Rubidge St., Peterborough.

RE LIQUOR BROADCAST

Editor Examiner:

Sir: On April 26, 1937, a deputation organized by The Canadian Temperance Federation appeared before the Commissioner of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Major Gladstone Murray, at Ottawa.

The personnel of the delegation was drawn from Montreal, Ottawa, rural Eastern Ontario and Toronto. Communications were also forwarded from other parts of the Dominion. The deputation urged that liquor advertising and sponsoring of programmes, sport news, etc. by liquor interests be banned from the air. The deputation supported this request by the following among other arguments:

1. That inasmuch as alcohol is now recognized by scientists the world over as a narcotic drug, the advertising of alcoholic beverages is against public policy and practice which seeks to reduce the use of narcotics to the limit;

2. That inasmuch as in certain provinces the law forbids the advertising of liquor by radio, radio broadcasts originating elsewhere inside these provinces and contravene the law of these provinces;

3. That radio affords such intimate access to the home, where it gains the ear of all classes, and especially of women, youths and children, that this intrusion of liquor advertising by the radio is an offence and a distinct social danger;

4. That the development of radio reached its present status during the period when on this continent the sale of liquors was under severe restriction. The return of legalized sale finds at hand an instrument of propaganda unprecedented in all history. To afford to a trade, which experience has taught can be tolerated only under severest restrictions the use of such an instrument for the moulding of public opinion is against public well-being and the national interest.

In replying, the Commissioner explained that it was the policy of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to exclude such advertising from its own stations, and as the Corporation extends its ownership this policy would be developed. There are, however, he stated, some 70 stations under private control; some of these, especially in British Columbia and in Quebec, accepted liquor advertisements. He undertook to convey to the Board at its meeting in Regina a faithful report of the submission to the deputation.

At the Regina meeting a resolution was introduced proposing he withdrawal of permission for sponsoring of broadcast programmes by liquor interests to be applied to all stations in the Dominion. Final action on this motion was deferred to a later meeting of the Board which is now set down for August 5th at Quebec.

We understand that opposing forces, representing liquor producers, advertisers and radio people, have become active and are bringing influence to bear, and will probably make representations to the Board at its Quebec meeting. A despatch in the press emanating from Montreal intimates that an effort is now being made "to throw the facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation open to a campaign of liquor advertising."

We deem it if the greatest importance that representation from all parts of Canada be made to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Ottawa, supporting the resolution now before the Board and opposing any privileges for liquor advertising or sponsoring of programmes or news on the air. Letters from individuals, resolutions from societies, church courts and congregations, and influence through public men and public bodies, will all be of advantage.

We regret that at this season it is difficult to make the public mind vocal because of holiday conditions, but the situation demands that this be done to the fullest possible extent.

Canadian Temperance Federation,

A Bit of Nonsense

Well Pastured

The farmer-milkman was much annoyed with a temporary resident in the village who complained of the price he was charging for milk.

"I am entitled to charge the same price as in the city," he assured her.

"But that's nonsense," she insisted. "The milk I get in the city is pasturized."

"Pasteurized! Pasteurized!" he retorted. "I'd like to know anybody's cows that are more pasteurized than mine. Come down to my place any hour of the day or night and you'll see my cows pasteurizing in the fields."

NEW HAZARDS

(Oshawa Times)

COLLISIONS between deer and cars along the main highways at night, is a sample of the many new problems which have recently developed. During the summer and fall of 1929, along one 25 mile stretch of highway in the upper peninsula, the department had record of 69 such collisions which resulted in the death of deer, and, of course, in much damage to cars and danger to travellers.

It was thought the deer were attracted to the roadway by the salt used to prevent dust. Officers thereupon put out one thousand pounds of block salt at points well back from the road, hoping that the deer would use this and stay away from the danger zone. As only eight deer were killed the following year, it is evident the protective measures proved effective.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

(Oshawa Times)

FIFTEEN persons were killed last week-end in motor accidents in Ontario. No doubt more lives were lost in heavy traffic and its toll of accidents yesterday. What can be done to reduce this fearful destruction of life on the highways of the province?

All sorts of warnings are given the motorist of the danger of level crossings, of passing another car when going up a hill or rounding a bend, of speeding on slippery pavements. Yet it is a fact that most accidents occur on the level highway under good driving conditions. This can only mean that downright carelessness and lack of driving sense account for most of the lives taken.

(St. Catharines Standard)

BEAMSVILLE residents who saw wild ducks in V formation heading South should not jump at conclusions. A change of wind will cause fish to find different feeding grounds and a change in weather will cause ducks to migrate to new grounds. One of the prettiest of sights recently seen by the writer off Beau-soleil Island, where the Y. M. boys camp, was the ganging up of well over a hundred wild ducklings, not able to fly, and scooting over the water at outboard motor speed. And they travelled in V formation over the water, but were not headed South, only out of man's presence.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 23—(CP)—Export of Canadian wheat in the neighborhood of 500,000 bushels partially rescued weakened wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day following wide breaks in Chicago corn prices during late trading. At the close, values were 2¼ to 1⅝ cents higher, July at $1.44⅝, October, $1.36⅝ to ⅞, and December $1.33¼ to ¼.

In a drab session prices generally moved at levels around two cents above Thursday's close. One severe jolt caused by Chicago corn declines of nearly six cents brought unexpected liquidation to send wheat more than a cent below yesterdays final quotations.

The break was short-lived. Good buying attributed to export interests lifted prices again. Most of the buying was credited to export sources in the whole session that found other grain operations thin.

Yesterday's Quotations.

ALD. M. SLOAN FOR CIVIC JOB

completion of the La Salle business administration course, and also the International Correspondence Schools' course in building construction and costs.

Recommendation of his appointment by the committee was moved by Mayor Macdonald, seconded by Alderman Dutton, and the vote was unanimous. Only one member of the council was absent, Alderman Gordon, who is on his vacation.

"Alderman Sloan's experience in the council should be worth a great deal to him," Alderman Wilson remarked.

His long training and actual service as a builder, in partnership with his father, one of the city's elderly and successful contractors, his knowledge of property values, both land and buildings, his character and personality, and his interest in public affairs, were all mentioned by members of the committee in selecting Alderman Sloan for the post in his absence from the committee room, and after the number of applicants to be considered had been reduced to two.

Policy of Council.

The council several years ago adopted a policy of appointing understudies for the civic officials who had grown old in their duties to the municipalities. First in the tax collector's office, then in the city clerk's and city treasurer's offices, younger men were placed in positions of prospective successors to these officials, and it was also decided some months ago to appoint an assistant in W. J. Henry's office.

Succession has already taken place in some of the offices. A. S. Couper as tax collector has followed the late W. J. Green; M. E. Shaver has succeeded Frank Adams as city treasurer; E. A. Outram is assistant to City Clerk S. R. Armstrong; and now M. R. Sloan moves into the assessment department under the direction of Mr. Henry. This general policy was begun during Roland Denne's administration as mayor when it was recognized that the council should prepare for the future by training younger men to take the place of the officials whose terms were regarded as gradually nearing their natural close.

Mr. Sloan is a married man, and property owner, and has grown up since his birth and boyhood in Peterborough. Members of the committee said that for the present Mr. Sloan would be in the position of learning practical details of city assessment, eventually to become assessor whenever Mr. Henry retires, his salary and appointment, however, being more or less for a probationary period.

Vacancy In Council

The withdrawal of Mr. Sloan from the city council leaves a vacancy which will likely be filled within the next month or two. He was elected last January for two years. The custom of the council has been to appoint the aldermanic candidate who in the immediately previous elections received the highest vote of those who were defeated. Ex-Alderman Fred J. Tuggey stood in that position of priority in the January balloting, and if the council adheres to its practice he will likely be named to complete the present year as a member of the council.

Indians Find Oil But Little Value

CALGARY, July 23 (C.P.). — Two families of Stony Indians are back on their reservation after an oil prospecting trip to Waterton Lakes near here, penniless, but convinced that the 50-year-old legend that led them to hunt for the "black gold" had some foundation.

Told to one of the squaws by her mother half a decade ago, the story related that "blue-black grease oozed from the rocks" and led the redmen to visions of oil wealth."

Although jars of crude oil they collected were worthless, the grey-haired leader climbed out of one of the two ancient autos used on the trip and mused that it at least "make good grease for wagon, good for sick people and good for sick horse too."

ARID APIARIES

REGINA (CP)—Drought and lack of feed has even affected the bees. Lack of sweet clover and mustard in the vicinity has led several Regina bee keepers to ship their winged wards north to better "grazing grounds."

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF OF TORONTO STAR

ings but his anti-German editorials during the Great War were famous and when he chose to put his name to his work it usually was when he reminisced. The tone of his editorials quietened as he grew older.

The man who became "Joe" Clark to newspapermen came to Toronto after giving up his weekly at Pickering and joined a west York Township paper known as the Tribune. There he put his own articles in type without writing "copy."

"They were the best things that ever appeared in that little newspaper," said A. B. Rice, who employed him.

W. F. MacLean, M.P., took an interest in the young writer's work and he joined Mr. MacLean's Toronto World, a morning daily. A year later he went to Saturday Night. There he wrote Front Page, the editorial department still continued by Saturday Night. But he liked the Star and joined it in a few years, to remain there since.

Everybody Liked Him

In the Mail and Empire last year, shortly before that paper was merged with the Globe as the Globe and Mail, J. V. McAree wrote of Mr. Clark:

"He has been one of the chief reasons for the remarkable success of that newspaper (The Star). He has given it not only direction but character. He has made few enemies for the paper, and has not in the world, we think, a personal enemy. Everybody likes him, for he is about the boonest companion we know. His editorial style has been at once the envy and the despair of the younger men in his profession."

In November, 1891, Mr. Clark married Sara Louise Greig of Pickering, who died three years ago. His brother died at Pickering in 1935. He is survived by his sons, Gregory Clark, Joseph, W. G. Clark and Arthur Hugh Clark, and a daughter, Mrs. T. G. Drew-Brook.

LOUIS FINE FLATLY REFUSES TO DEAL WITH C.I.O. ENVOY

rived. Reporters who made their way toward the press table were ordered to leave.

Reporters Back

On the arrival of Alex Townsley, chairman of the negotiating committee, and Alex Welch a few minutes later, reporters were invited back and a general argument concerning admission of the press was precipitated. A motion for exclusion was made by English on the grounds that "some things may go on here which we do not wish to be in the press." He did not think reporters should be allowed to remain, "except when our superiors deem it advisable." He did not state who the "superiors" were. The previous day Nora Adams, paid C.I.O. organizer for the U.A.W.A. and at present attempting to form other unions in Peterborough, had failed in an attempt at a similar move to exclude the press.

Other Dissention

English's motion was seconded by Hickey and a vote on the matter had ended in a 31-31 tie when Welch arrived. English refused to re-open discussion on Welch's arrival but a second vote found English turned down by his strikers, 47-35, and the press was allowed to remain.

Other indications of dissention in the strike organization were evident in complaints heard by reporters from strike leaders that Nora Adams, paid C.I.O. automobile union organizer from Oshawa, participating too freely in the strike meetings. Move for a rule banning speeches by outside persons in the strike meetings is being considered, it is known.

Swelled Heads

"There is no place on this committee for people with swelled heads," Welch declared in an angry speech to the meeting. "I don't know what has gone on before I came but we have to guard against swelled heads in our own ranks. When people get swelled heads they become blind to facts."

Welch said Ontario organized labor is swinging solidly behind the Peterborough strikers. Eight Toronto locals of international unions decided Wednesday night to offer financial aid, he said.

"We can depend on this support," he declared. "When they tell us they will help us, it is an accomplished fact."

The U.A.W.A. at Oshawa has promised support to the end of the strike, he reported.

Cornwall Strike

Welch declared the Cornwall strike of Canadian Cotton Workers will have a distinct bearing on the Peterborough strike and that the strike here will have a bearing on the Cornwall strike. He praised Arthur Laverty, textile union organizer in charge of the Cornwall strike, as a leader who won his place through many difficulties.

"Right now things are moving faster than many of us are aware," Welch warned. "The opposition—I won't use the term enemy—is working fast. Right now they are going from door to door. If they get even 50 men into one of those mills you'll be surprised what effect it will have on you."

Present to assist in the strike organization yesterday was H. S. Langer, general organizer of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, and C. A. Millard of the U.A.W.A. Oshawa local.

NIGHT CONSTABLE DISCOVERED DYING

mortem examination last night which indicated Reinhart died from a brain hemorrhage as there was blood in the spinal column.

A cut over the constable's left eye required three stitches and three teeth were missing. How he received these injuries puzzled police who were trying to determine whether he was the victim of foul play or had suffered them in a fall. He recently had complained of feeling unwell and first belief was he may have suffered a fainting spell.

Dr. Thomas A. Sinclair, coroner, ordered an inquest and a jury viewed the body before adjourning to a date to be set for the formal inquiry. Drs. J. E. Robinson and J. O'Toole performed the autopsy.

An entry in Reinhart's police diary, it was learned, showed he had stopped a motorist for driving at an alleged speed of 75 miles an hour on the main street. He had asked this man to produce a permit, but he failed to do so.

Police sought to link this incident with the finding of the night constable in front of a restaurant on West Durham street at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning. Wallace Riley, Brant township youth, notified police of Reinhart's condition.

Reinhart, a war veteran, was 49 and is survived by his wife and two daughters, Dorothy and Irene.

RICH ROCK MINE MAKING PROGRESS

Jack Beatty Holds Junior Fishing Honors With 4.8-Pound Bass

Although information remains meagre as to progress being made at Rich Rock Mines it would appear that results are being obtained, as the local hardware merchants, Messrs. Trudeau and Hunt, shipped to Rich Rock Mine at Flinton this week three tousand feet of pipe to be used in construction work. Work is still proceeding at Rich Rock although the results of the ore tests have not been divulged to the general public.

At a meeting of the Tweed High School Board, Miss M. Hammett was appointed as part time teacher for the coming term at a salary of $600 per annum. Miss Hammett will be engaged during the morning periods only, Miss Kathleen Jordan, B.A., of Toronto, who was appointed to succeed Miss Elizabeth Stuart, B.A., visited Tweed and met members of the Board, and Mr. T. E. Moffat, principal of the school. Commercial subjects will likely be taught at the school this year.

By the next evening seventy-five dozen ears at this price had been disposed of to the passing travellers.

ALLAN F. COTTON
(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 23.—Stricken suddenly with meningitis, Allan Frederick Cotton, formerly of Guelph, died at Timmins, Ont., on Monday, July 19th.

The passing of Mr. Cotton came as a great shock to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cotton, who reside at Guelph, as they had only recently received word from their son that he was in the best of health and employed by a mining firm up north. He was born in the village of Sulphide, Ontario, and went to live in Guelph with his parents ten years ago.

Before leaving for Timmins in April of this year, he had been a valued employee of the Bond Hardware Company, and was also well known at the Ontario Agricultural College, where he had taken a course at the Trent Institute.

Surviving are his parents, three sisters, Mildred, Vancouver, B.C., Ines and Ruth at home; two brothers, Arthur, Walkerville, and Harold at home. He was only twenty-four years of age and held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

ARCHIE RUPERT.

The communities of Havelock, Cordova and Rawdon were shocked to hear of the tragic death of Archie Rupert, who was instantly killed at Hargreave Mine, Kirkland Lake, on July 13, by falling rock. He was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Rupert, Havelock. A little over two years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Maibelle Bateman of Rawdon, and about three months ago they took up residence at Kirkland Lake. His whole life was in mining, the greater part of it spent around Havelock and Cordova.

The deceased was born at Cordova 23 years ago. He was an ideal husband and a loving friend to both young and old, and his sudden passing of one so young in life is deeply mourned by a host of relatives and friends.

The remains arrived in Havelock on Thursday, noon. The funeral was held from his grandmother's residence on Friday at 2 p.m. to the United Church. Rev. Kemp spoke a comforting message, taking as his text the 12th chapter of St. John, last part of 27th verse. Interment in Maple Grove Cemetery, Havelock. The sympathy of the communities goes out to the grief-stricken wife, father and mother, brothers Bert and Charlie, and sister Retta, and his aged grandmother, Mrs. Rupert.

Pallbearers were friends of the deceased from Havelock and Cordova.

Relatives from a distance were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Rupert and sons, Mrs. Ethel Tuber, Mrs. Veigha Cude, Batavia, New York; Mr. John Bateman, Iroquois; Mr. and Mrs. A. Pitts and sons, Mr. and Mrs. F. Pitts and sons, Mr. J. Pitts, Mrs. E. Wilkinson, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. P. Y. Kelly and son, Montreal; Mr. Don Rupert, Perth; Miss Pearl Rosting, Perth; Mrs. Geo. McGinnis, Kirkland Lake.

PARKING LONGER THAN THREE HOURS HAS BEEN BANNED

This Regulation Passed By City Council Applies To All Streets

MANY CHANGES MADE

In its amendment of the traffic by-law Thursday night, the Council omitted a proposed clause limiting to one half-hour parking on McDonnel, Murray and Brock Streets, between Water and Aylmer Streets.

It was deleted from the legal committee's report presented by Alderman Cotton, and was referred back to the committee for further consideration. The clause obviously would have restricted the parking of automobiles near George Street United Church and Murray Street Baptist Church especially during Sunday services, and it would also have prevented parking along Brock Street, for longer than thirty minutes, by people attending hockey games in winter and dancing at the Summer Gardens.

Alderman Glover argued that in proposing virtually to exclude automobiles from Brock Street the Council should first endeavor to provide a substitute place. It was suggested that possibly a parking space might be obtained in the lot at the southwest corner of Aylmer and Brock Streets.

As an amendment to the clause in the committee's report, Ald. Glover moved, seconded by Alderman Hamilton, that parking on the three streets be limited to one side until some other satisfactory arrangement could be devised. Later when the by-law was under consideration the clause was referred back to the committee, and was struck out of the by-law for the present.

Some of the amendments to the by-law that are now in effect prohibit the loading or unloading of any vehicle on a street except with the vehicle parallel to and within six inches of the curb, unless a permit from the Chief Constable. That restriction is aimed particularly at the loading of motor trucks on streets and thereby interfering with traffic. No left-hand turn will be allowed at the intersection of George and Charlotte Streets between the hours of 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Saturdays.

Another new regulation declares that no vehicle shall be allowed to be parked on any street longer than three hours; and all parking is forbidden within eight feet of fire hydrants.

It is also an offence against the traffic act to leave a car parked on any street longer than three hours. And this clause applies to all vehicles.

Parking is no longer to be allowed on either side of George Street between Prince and Lansdowne Streets.

Water Street is designated a through streets from Park Hill Road to Langton Street, and also George Streets from Park Hill Road to the southern limit of Argyle Street.

Hunt For His Watch Brings Man's Arrest

DETROIT, July 23 — (C.P.) A quest for his watch, lost in a portion of Canada most easily reached through the United States, was blamed to-day by Jacob Klapowich, Windsor, for his detention for illegal entry into the United States.

Klapowich told immigration authorities he lost the timepiece while swimming off Peche Island, a Canadian islet in Lake St. Clair. He said rather than walk all the way to a boat livery on the Canadian side, he went to Detroit and took a bus to a point opposit the island. There he rented a boat and rowed across to where he lost the watch.

When, unable to find it, he rowed back to the American side, he was arrested.

On George Street this morning side by side were noticed two cars. One marked Miami, Florida. the other California. A peculiarity about the Florida car it had no front marker, just a plate with Miami on it.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Thomas Madill, mail carrier, had a narrow escape at Cavanville station Thursday when he was almost hit by a C.P.R. train. Madill averted death or serious injury by turning his car into the ditch at the last moment, knocking over several fence posts but getting off without injury.

MASONIC APPOINTMENTS

The Masonic Grand Lodge communication at Ottawa has resulted in several elections and appointments of local interest. The new grand master W. J. Dunlop has appointed E. E. Lord of Peterborough grand sword bearer and M. W. Breckenridge, Grand Steward while Harvey W. Roche of Havelock was elected deputy grand master of Peterborough district.

BEN WILSON AGGRIEVED.

Ben Wilson, Toronto evangelist, formerly of Peterborough, complained to the Toronto Board of Control, Wednesday, that the premises of his mission for released prisoners has been closed by the Civic Buildings Commissioner because it did not meet the fireproof regulation. Mr. Wilson said there are 40,000 released prisoners in Ontario. The Board asked for a report.

CITY SELLS TWO LOTS

Several vacant lots which fell into the city's hands for unpaid taxes were reported sold to homebuilders by Alderman McIntyre at Thursday night's meeting of the council. Mrs. Ida O'Shea paid $100 for a lot on Mark street south of Hunter, and Andrew Jackson $50 for another vacant property at the north end of Aylmer street. Houses will be built on both lots, and the properties thereby become productive of taxes.

COSTLY WATER SERVICE

Cost of a Water connection to W. C. Harvey's house at 4 Lansdowne street was estimated at $3,000 by the Utilities Commission in a statement to the city council. The distance is 900 feet, and the outlay by the city would exceed considerably the value of the Harvey property, member of the council have said. They have remarked that if the city were compelled to provide a water connection it would be substantially cheaper to buy Mr. Harvey's house.

PURGE OF DOGDOM

In the sinister terms of the Soviet reports of mass executions of Russians, eight dogs were "liquidated" at the city's yard on Townsend street Thursday afternoon. It was a purge of Peterborough's dogdom, rubbing out a group that was homeless and unwanted. The pistolling of these animals by a police constable was witnessed by fourteen small boys. Alderman Glover commented to the council Thursday night, suggesting this practice should be immediately revised. It was stated that the Humane Society has a new lethal pen ready for use.

A THING OF BEAUTY

The moon may have danced again on Monan's Rill last night, but on Chemong Lake it floated dreamily through a light silvery mist within the dark and dim outlines of the Smith and Ennismore shores. Not a ripple stirred the respondent surface of the lake, and no sound broke the dewy quiet of the July night at two bells except the hushed stirring of the water along the floating bridge. On such a night, the wiser citizenry slept and missed the silent beauty of a summer's warm night.

CAR PRICES TO ADVANCE

Reliable information points to an increase of at least ten per cent in the price of cars when the 1938 models are announced this fall. Virtually everything which enters the production of the modern car has advanced in price during the year—labor, steel, cotton, glass, copper and rubber. Raw rubber is one commodity which went both up and down. It jumped from 15 to 30 cents a pound and then receded to 20 cents. In spite of the strikes which hampered production, there have been more cars made and sold in the first six months in Canada than in the same period in 1936. If this increase is maintained the added cost per unit may not be as great as now anticipated, but some general revision upward is considered inevitable.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON APPLICATION FROM MRS. ROGERS

Wanted License To Operate Bake Shop Here But Regulations Forbid

COUNCIL SYMPATHETIC

Hot and humid as it was in the new committee room at the city hall Thursday night, members of the council were inclined to debate the shades of meaning of the phrase "transient trader" in regard to an application from Mrs. C. E. Rogers, Bolivar street, for a license to operate a bakeshop.

Alderman Juby said there must be quite a number of people in the city who had practically turned their homes into bakeshops, and Alderman Hamilton added "If I were her I'd take a try at it."

"You don't want that to be quoted," Major Macdonald observed.

"They can quote me if they like," Alderman Hamilton replied, and the sentiment of the council was on the side of Mrs. Rogers against the narrow effects of the municipality's own "Transient Traders' Bylaw."

Alderman Dutton contended that the emphasis in that title was on the word "transient," and as everybody knew today a transient was someone who was here today and gone tomorrow.

City Solicitor Corkery said the word "transient" was of course adjectives, and was of secondary force. Councils of other years had decided to pass regulations to prevent people going into business for possibly a year or so, and then abruptly going out without paying any taxes.

The bylaw was evidently intended to protect the city treasury, and at the same time to discourage the competition of fly-by-nighters with business men who were paying their various taxes year in and year out. Mr. Corkery said it was not sufficient that the applicant had been a resident of Peterborough thirty years.

"The $250 transient traders' license is not a penalty because the money is credited to the taxes of the licensee," Mr. Corkery said.

Out of the discussion came only Alderman Hamilton's vicarious insurgence "If I were her I'd take a try at it."

AWAITING REPORTS IN DRUCE DEATH

Cause Of Boy's Demise Still Mystery To Medical Men

"I have not all the reports in yet," stated the doctor in charge of the Druce case intimating that he had no further comment to make at present with reference to the death early Thursday morning of Harold Edward Druce, 15, of 8 Victoria avenue.

After performing an autopsy at a local undertaking parlor yesterday morning the physician admitted he had been unable to learn the underlying cause of death. "It is an unusual case. The autopsy did not reveal the cause though I suspect it was probably some peculiar blood condition," he is quoted.

The death certificate signed by Herbert N. Young, M.D., as coroner and on file at the city hall gives the immediate cause of death as being septicaemia, but adds "causal organism not yet found."

The certificate indicates further that mastoiditis was one of the conditions giving rise to the immediate cause, while it reveals further conditions were haemmorriage from different mucuous surfaces.

HOW TO LEARN TO SWIM.

CLIP OUT AND SAVE.

LESSON FOURTEEN
(Locating A Body)

The spot where a body goes down in a still pond is often indicated by bubbles and disturbances on the surface of the water.

When a body goes down in a river, or any body of water in which there is a current, throw in a piece of wood or some material that will float and observe the speed and direction which the current carries the object. Then run down stream to a spot beyond where you judge the body to be, dive in and swim up against the current, keeping watch for the body coming down to meet you.

Take caution not to swim at full speed to the rescue of a drowning person where it is not absolutely necessary to do so as this tires the rescuer and places him at a disadvantage should the subject seize him.

If the drowning person shows signs of being very troublesome, swim around and let him tire himself. By doing so you put yourself in a better position to effect his rescue.

Use a boat if you possibly can, as it is much faster and safer in the long run.

Above all use your good common sense, and keep cool.

Tomorrow's lesson will have to do with a most important part of the life saving course, a part which everyone should know regardless of their swimming ability. There are a great number of persons capable of rescuing subjects and towing them to shore but there are comparatively few who know what to do with unconscious subjects when they do get them to shore. If the subject has stopped breathing it is necessary to commence artificial respiration at once. There are several different methods but the best one to use is the Schaefer Method of Resuscitation because it is the most natural imitation of regular breathing.

Drowning is not the only accident for which this method is useful. If they have stopped breathing victims of electric shock, gas poisoning, carbon monoxide gas and suffocation of all kinds may be brought back to normal breathing by this simple procedure. The frequency of drowning, electric shock and gas poisoning is such that in almost any place at any time, an opportunity to save a life may appear. By reading the instructions in tomorrow's paper carefully you will be prepared.

AMATEUR CONTEST DRAWS BIG CROWD

Bill Collins Is Awarded First Prize After Interesting Competition

"Amateur Night" at Brock Street Summer Gardens last night drew a crowd estimated to number 2000 people in addition to a large field of contestants. Competition was very keen and in some instances popularity with the crowd over-balanced the ability of some contestants. The crowd was the judge and awards were based on the amount of applause received by individual performers. First, second and third places were awarded as follows with the list of contestants added: Bill Collins, Bob Healey, Jean Miller, Shirley and Ken Simmons, Shirley Fitzsimmons, Dorothy Lee, Sylvia Duigman, Ervin Parnell, Kay O'Brien, Ernest Davis, Angeline DeCarlo, Hilda Noble, Jean DeCarlo, George Sullivan, Toots Dobson. Bob Healy received a great ovation as he sang "On the Road to Mandalay", but in the finals he was deserted by the crowd in favor of Bill Collins. "If the entrants were judged solely on their merits a different list of winners might have been picked, but it would have been difficult to find competent judges who could separate one of the clever entertainers from the other", Andy Rutter, manager commented.

WELLINGTON, N.Z.—(CP)—New Zealand had a favorable trade balance of nearly $75,000,000 for the five months ending May 30, exports increasing $30,000,000 over the same period of 1936.

TORONTO SCOUTS CAMPING ON TRENT

Troop Has Been Visiting Same Grounds For Last Few Years

HASTINGS, July 23.—A party of Boy Scouts of the 35th and 37th Troops of Toronto are encamped on the Trent about a mile west of the village. A troop of Cubs preceded them on the same grounds a couple of weeks ago, and this week-end the Rovers of the 35th are expected to join the party.

This same troop have camped here every summer for the past five years. They have a permanent cook house built and are now in the process of building a shelter for some of the younger members of the troop and also to take care of unexpected visitors, which is in line with their slogan, "Be Prepared."

H. C. Petty of Toronto is the camp chief, with Fred Lyonde, Scout-Master; Grant Davidson and Kennet Standing are Assistant Scout-Masters. Mr. Petty claims that Frank Standing is the most popular man in the camp in spite of the fact that he is the cook. There are 22 members in the party including a cook staff of three. Every morning the Scouts arise at 6.30 for patrol duty, and a schedule arranged the day before carries them through the days activities. Every Scout is a proficient swimmer. They receive instructions on various subjects every day and sports and games are played in the evening.

A Day in Camp

An Examiner reporter was in the Scout village on Wednesday afternoon, and Mr. Petty in his genial manner explained the various activities of a day in a Scout camp.

A day in the camp life of this troop is full of excitement and activity. The day begins with early rising and preparation for inspection, followed by breakfast. Map reading, wood-craft, country hiking and exercises usually occupy the mornings and afternoons, and a good swim is in order before supper. The Scouts line up for parade after supper followed by a game of baseball. After the sun has gone down, a camp fire is built and all sit around till bed time, which is ten o'clock.

Auburns Entertain Rovers This Evening

A Central Ontario Lacrosse Association scheduled game is listed for here tonight when Belleville Flying Rovers play the Auburns at nine o'clock under the lights, at the George St. arena. It will be the first appearance of the revamped Rovers in Peterborough this season, and another good crowd of rooters is expected out for this scrap. Belleville teams always battle hard to cop a victory here but they will be up against a powerful squad in the locals. Auburns are after their ninth straight win while Belleville is fighting to oust Oshawa from second place in the loop standing.

Manager Randle and Coach Chute have been drilling the Auburns hard this week in preparation for this game Friday and the exhibition tilt with Orillia next Tuesday. They will trot out a fun squad and if the Rovers are below their best strength the homesters should romp through to a neat win. If Belleville is at full strength it may turn out to be a tidy fight all the way. In any event, both teams will dish up a flock of action in this clash and fans can bank on plenty of excitement during the melee.

NEW YORK, July 23—(AP).—Along with Rogers Hornsby, the Browns fired Coach Charlie O'Leary and the clubhouse boy. . . . Why the clubhouse boy? . . . Boardway was wondering to-day if the hosses have caught up with the Rajah again . . . Anyway, his passing leaves more than one big league manager squirming on the anxious bench . . .

This corner's nomination for the champion long-distance golfer goes to Ralph Anderson Kennedy of New York. In 27 years of golfing, he has played 1,615 courses all over the world. . . The guy has been in the rough in 41 American States, in eight Provinces of Canada and in seven other countries. . . . He's still going strong and hopes to hit every country in the world before he's through. . . . He looks forward to dropping dead on a golf course. . . His only tip to golfers is, "Don't play golf with your wife."

Rip Collins, who has been doing plenty of talking since he left the Cards, says the vaudeville antics of the Gas House gang are more of a liability than an asset. . . . For 11 straight years, starting in 1900, the team that was leading on July 4, won the National League pennant. . . But it's happened only twice in the last eight years—the Cardinals in 1931 and the Giants in 1933. . . . The middle name of Jimmy Ducher of the Dodgers is "Quinter" . . . In Latin that means "Five-Timer" . . . Just to prove it, Jimmy won his chance in the National League by taking five batting prizes in the Piedmont League. . . . His .369 led the loop and he was first in the number of base hits, two baggers, homers and total bases.

Soccer Notes

Canada Packers players are requested to be at the plant not later than 2.45 on Saturday afternoon so that cars can leave immediately for Deloro in the return league fixture. In the previous games the Smelters defeated the local boys 5-1 and at Peterborough 3-2. The Packers are in second place for the league championship. George Blowers is the official referee.

There is no game in the city on Saturday afternoon, but a league game has been scheduled for this (Friday) evening on King Edward Park between the Canadian General and C.C.F. W. Jones is the official referee. Kick-off at 6.30 prompt.

Last night, Canada Packers' soccer team met the Canada Packers' softball team in a seven-innings battle, and the softballers just managed to squeeze a 7-6 win over the soccer boys. Eric Jones had 5 errors and a home run to his credit.

Next Tuesday night Deloro meets the C.C.F. in the return game of the Injured Players' Cup. Last week they drew 1-1 after a ninety-minute battle. The Politicians are the holders of the trophy.

Walter Dinesen, popular captain of the C.C.F. will be out of the game for a few weeks through a strained ligament received while playing against the Smelters.

The players are making good use of the showers in the new pavilion on King Edward Park. The other evening twenty-two players received a wash, rub-down, and trainer's attention before leaving for home after the gruelling battle on the field. It is unfortunate there is no regulation tap on the shower so that the flow of water could be regulated.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE is a lacrosse match tonight at nine, under the lights, at the George St. arena between Belleville Flying Rovers and our Auburns. It is a scheduled struggle and ought to supply plenty of action again for local lovers of the gutted-stick sport. While we expect the Auburns to add to their victory string this p.m., the Rovers may fetch along some new gees from here or there and bail the old dope bucket a kick that will be heard all over the Central Ontario group. You never know what the Quinte crew will pull, and it is very hard to keep up with the names of the gents playing for teams from that town. It is a case of: We know your place but we can't face you! Anyway, fans can bank on the usual lacrosse thrills and spills, and we expect a goodly turnout of customers again.

CLUB officers are buzzing around these days making up a fine program booklet, with pictures and everything, of the Auburns for their exhibition tilt here Tuesday 'gainst Orillia Terriers. And they are advertising the game all over this part of the Province, so a record crowd will likely pack the arena. They can seat some 1200 or so fans and sell S.R.O. space for as many more. It'll be a real milestone in Peterborough's lacrosse history—seeing the Dominion champs in action here.

KINGSTON PONIES play the Petes at Riverside tomorrow afternoon and the ball fans no doubt will go for this one in a big way. They love those bitter Kingston-Peterborough ball battles. Our squad haven't been able to crack that Ponies' jinx yet this season, though coming close just about every time. With Kitchen due to pitch for the Petes, they stand a good chance at last in this fray tomorrow. Dunno who will twirl for Joe Daley's dudes. Even if we can't lick that crew, every game is a rip-snortin' number with plenty of runs and arguments sprinkled throughout. And surely to Aunt Matilda's 1913 hope chest the Collins' crew will come through with just one measly win over Kingston before the grid season! It may be tomorrow, and not before time, what? But it'll be a good game, regardless.

HIGHLY disgusted after their disastrous trip to Pontytown on Wednesday-and-Thursday, the locals are angrier than six scorned women! They have had enough hitch-hiking—your scribe refuses to mention it in any but a profane manner!—to last them till the bat boy is sprouting gray whiskers. The manager is worn right down to 211 pounds and some of the players weigh no more than their batting averages. Someone will have to pay for all this, and we hope it is the Ponies. The only bright ray in it all is the way Gunner Whitehill is returning to form. He pitched fine ball most of the game—considering he started it cold—and will be plenty potent on the mound before playoff time. We need him like gals need mirrors.

BATTING averages for the Petes to date—two-thirds of the schedule is now over—are in tonight. No doubt some of the boys who are hitting about the size of their hats will decline to speak to us again for a time, but we had to run 'em. Les Burton is tops now with .348 while Starr has .347, Calladine is hitting .344 and Clark is in the charmed circle with a .305 mark. Nice clubbing. Whatley and Long are climbing and Mowry, as a pinch hitter, is okay. The rest aren't so hot, but some of them may improve. The team is hitting at a .252 clip which is healthy enough. In fact the outfit is hitting fair and about tops in the loop defensively but lately the pitching isn't so good. If we got steady hurling now, the club would still be a real factor in the C.O.B.L. race.

SAYS the Kingston scribe of Wednesday's game: "The game was exciting to about 1,000 fans (or less than 400 paid) but there was a lot of bad baseball, many errors of omission and commission on both sides. Each side indulged in heavy hitting and a total of 27 assists were recorded, 17 to the Petes. The game was late in starting with Peterborough delayed, which is getting to be a habit. When the Petes made the last trip to Napanee, they did an around-the-world cruise in a crippled car which kept the officials away though the players arrived by the thumb route in time to play. Perhaps Peterborough should encourage a big motor concern to locate in the town and provide transportation like the Oshawa champions get. One cannot travel far on lift locks."

* * * * * *

BIDDLE was bingled even harder than Ogden when Napanee beat the champs on Wednesday, while Pointer pitched fine ball till the seventh. Foley is still out of the Oshawa lineup, and Bennett got four hits for 'em as Hurst collected three, and Mathews and Biddle two each—the latter having a homer. Card got three for Napanee, with Jeffers, Gerow, Bennett, Ford and Pointer poling out two each. There is some talk of a protest by Oshawa on a ground rule. Jeffers doubled in the eighth and took third on a wild pitch. The ball rolled to the stand and Jeffers kept running. The ball was recovered and Jeffers was called out at the plate by Umpire Fair. Napanee argued Jeffers was entitled only to third on the play, but Oshawa said that when the ball didn't hit the stand, he could have as many bases as he could make. The umps conferred and sent Jeffers to third eventually.

IN softball last night, Cobourg gals took a firm grip on top place with a 6-3 win over C.G.E. in a tidy tilt at the Bowl. It was a real setback for C.G.E. in their scramble for a playoff berth as the second half winds up in one week. At Central, Young Petes played fine ball to beat Westclox by a 7-3 score and the Y.P. boys deserve a lot of credit for the way they have improved. Chuck Dorrington manages this squad. The Clockmakers—even with two senior ball players aboard—didn't go so well, and they'll have to hustle as this schedule also ends next Friday. Westclox and Motorists meet tonight at Central; while Keene and C.G.E. gals play here as Westclox lasses journey to Omemee.

But before reaching Dublin he was hailed by a civic guard, who asked for a lift. The burly guard sat down on the cushions concealing the china.

By the time he got out the china was reduced to fragments.

Kingston Ponies play the Petes here Saturday afternoon at three in Riverside Park. The top-place Ponies have not lost a game to Peterborough so far this season, and they will be out to keep their position on the first rung of the loop ladder. The Petes are battling to stay in the running for a playoff berth and will give all they have in an attempt to crack the Kingston jinx.

Russ Kitchen, the Petes' only winning pitcher most of this season, will probably twirl for the locals and may continue his winning streak and knock off the Daley dudes. It is uncertain who will take the slab for the visitors, Paczkowski, Williams or Jamieson, but the former is most likely. Fans can look for plenty of excitement in a Ponies-Petes' ball game.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

TONIGHT (Friday) will be our men's weekly tournament. So far this season the men have not been supporting these tournaments like they should, fourteen rinks is the average turnout per night. That is not enough, when you consider we have forty-four schedule rinks. It is up to the boys to support these contests if they want the games committee to continue them. Tonight we will have a different line of prizes and the draw will be made at 7.30 p.m.

WE UNDERSTAND from Ken Sloane chairman of the ladies' section that as soon as the ladies catch up with their postponed games, the club doubles will be started. It is not our intention to use this column to 'ride' any individual or committee or to set any particular person up high on a false pedestal, we are just going to point out a few facts re the 'skins-vices' leads-a-conda' competitions. At the beginning of the season at a public meeting held in our club room a complete outline of the season's activities was given by the chairman of the games committee. This column drew the attention of the bowlers to these respective competitions two weeks ago and pointed where they could find the information, the schedule book. It was announced from the club house and yet not withstanding all this publicity given these two competitions over fifty per cent of our games last night were carried out with 'subs' and we want to know if it is the lack of interest on the part of some of our bowlers that makes the work so hard for the few who are doing the best they can. The club went to a great expense and the committee spent a lot of their time in preparing an elaborate schedule book and are now beginning to wonder whether it was worth while. We claim that some of the bowlers are not playing the game with the club, playing fair with the rink to which they are attached to, and are certainly not giving the games committee the support to which they are entitled.

Canada Rests Hopes On Coast Players To Win Canadian Tennis Championship

TORONTO, July 23 (CP). — To three Vancouver stars the Dominion turned today in hopes some of the laurels of the Canadian lawn tennis championships here next week would be won by Canadians. Last year at Vancouver the tourney was predominated by California players.

None of the Californians will come to Toronto to defend the title but in their stead will be a group of high-ranking central and eastern United States players. And a new and even more potent threat will be carried by the British women's Wightman Cup team, playing in a Canadian tournament for the first time.

Jean Milne and Doug Cameron, No. 1 stars in their divisions of Canadian tennis, and young William Pedlar, captor of the Ontario junior men's singles at Ottawa this month, are the Vancouver trio being counted on. In them and in Bobby Murray of Montreal and Ross Wilson of Toronto lie Canada's best chances.

The United States contingent in men's singles play stars, Davy Jones, who shone at Wimbledon many times when attending Cambridge University as a Rhodes scholar, and Walter Senior, 12th ranking player in his country. Senior has scored several wins over more highly rated players this season.

HEAVY HITTING STOPS YANKEES FOR BROWNS WIN

TIGERS BURY SOX 17-4

NEW YORK, July 23.—St. Louis Browns went on a batting spree and sunk the American League leading New York Yankees, 13 to 4. It snapped St. Louis' four-game losing streak and New York's six-game winning streak.

Jack Knott, lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth, and Bonetti pitched for the Browns and were solved for 13 hits but distributed them effectively enough to leave the same number of Yankees stranded on the basepaths. Joe DiMaggio, who had hit safely in his last 22 straight games, walked once yesterday, but failed to connect safely in five official trips to the plate.

Tigers Bury Sox, 17-4

The Detroit Tigers blasted out 19 hits, including four home runs, to bury Boston's Red Sox, 17 to 4. Hitting his 22nd four-bagger of the year, Hank Greenberg paced the attack by driving in five runs. York, Laabs and Gehringer also homered for Detroit. Jimmy Foxx hit his fifth round-tripper in three days for Boston.

Big Time Homers

Hal Trosky's 22nd and 23rd homers sent the Cleveland Indians to a 5 to 1 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics. Whitlow Wyatt, making his first start of the season for the Tribe, turned the A's back with four hits—one a homer by Moses. Averill also clouted for the circuit for Cleveland.

GOLF—FACTS NOT THEORIES

by Alex Morrison

COTTON IS REGARDED AS BEST PLAYER IN BRITISH ISLES

Number 50

No doubt Henry Cotton inspires British players to outdo themselves. The ruling about homebreds living at home being the only players eligible for teams has kept him from taking part in Ryder Cup matches until recently. He is living in England now and has shown so favorably in competitions since his return from Belgium that he has won the reputation of being the best player in the British Isles.

Cotton has so impressed the Britons that many of them are copying his technique. In a way this is quite a boost for the Morrison system because all of Cotton's articles on technique and photos of his swing show that he is trying to live up to most, if not all, of my teachings. Action pictures show that he is indeed a great stylist and a worthy leader of golf on the other side. In my opinion he is the best they've turned out since Harry Vardon. Incidentally he recently won the British open championship over there.

LEAFS TRIUMPH IN TENTH 6 TO 5

Giants Tie Score In 8th When Mulligan And Meola Force In Runs

TORONTO, July 23. — Aided by four enemy errors, Toronto Maple Leafs handed Jersey City Giants a 6 to 5 defeat in the four-game series opener at Maple Leaf Stadium last night in ten innings. Adam Comorosky scored the winning run in the tenth when he was safe on Bluege's fumble. Ross sacrificed him to second after Smith had been purposely passed; Charley Wilson's throw on Hogan's grounder was wild and Comorosky romped home with the winning run.

Mike Meola, who relieved, was the winning pitcher.

100 Canadian-Born Golfers Entered In Amateur Classic

RESTS ON PROVINCES

OTTAWA, July 23.—(CP)—When Canada's amateur golf classic is put into the hands of the shotmakers next week there will be enough dark horses in the field to satisfy every section of the country.

Probably 100 Canadian - born marksmen will start Tuesday's parade at the Ottawa Hunt club. Add in the United States contingent and a few late entries, and the field may reach 120 or 130.

Pressure of numbers alone will have little effect on Freddie Haas, the New Orleans youngster who took the title home with him last year. Many a dark horse will be an also ran after Tuesday's first 18 holes, and it's difficult to figure the 21-year-old southerner outclassed in the early stages.

It looked today as if Canada's best chances of recapturing the title for the Dominion will rest in the capable hands of the tried amateurs to whom major tournament play is nothing new.

Rests With Provinces.

On this basis a Canadian winner may come from the 28 players named to the seven provincial teams that will compete Monday for the Willingdon Cup. Medal play for 36 holes will decide this competition. All provinces are represented except Nova Scotia. Two provinces, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, joined forces to enter a single team.

In this array of selected stars from all parts of the country are former champions, provincial title-holders and wearers of lesser crowns.

In point of achievement C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., heads the list. Somerville has held the Canadian amateur title five times and the United States amateur once. He last won the Dominion crown in 1935 at Ancaster, Ont., defeating Gordon Taylor, Jr., Toronto, in the final. Taylor is again on the Ontario team.

Freddie Haas, the defending champion is the third American to wear the Canadian crown. Eddie Held of New York won the title in 1929 at Jasper, Alta. Albert (Scotty) Campbell of Seattle, captured the title in 1932 at Vancouver and successfully defended it in 1934 at Montreal.

SETS LINDSAY RECORD.

LINDSAY, July 22. — Val Smith set a new course record for 18 holes at the Lindsay Golf and Country Club while playing with Stanley Longhurst and his father, C. T. Smith. Scoring five birdies, the young golfer came in with a 69 for the round. Members of his threesome stated that two of his putts were in the cup and bounced out.

CADDIE'S RUGBY TACTICS

SOUTHPORT, England—(CP). — "Hold that man," shouted detectives as someone in the crowd at the Ryder Cup golf matches darted away at the eighth hole. Walter Hagen's caddie made a flying tackle and the man was arrested.

NEW YORKERS CUT INTO CUBS' LEAD WITH 6-5 VICTORY

Boston Bees Blank Cardinals For Sweep Of St. Louis Series

BRUINS LOSE TO PHILS

NEW YORK, July 23. — The Boston Bees scored their fourth straight victory over the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday when Danny MacFadyen hurled a six-hit 2-0 shutout.

It gave the Bees a clean sweep of the series, and lifted them to within three games of the first division. Boston scored the first run in the first and the second off Si Johnson, who gave up ten hits in the eighth.

Cubs Fall to Phils 7-4.

The Chicago Cubs' National League lead was trimmed to a game when they dropped a 7-4 decision to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Wilson men scored all of their runs in the eighth when Clyde Shoun blew up.

The runner-up Giants defeated the Cincinati Reds 6-5, when Wally Berger cracked a home run in the ninth to break a tied game. Ray Davis, who followed Grissom and Moody to the mound, and pitched the last three innings for Cincinnati, was charged with the loss.

Red Lucas held the Brooklyn Dodgers to four safeties and batted in three runs to lead the Pittsburg Pirates to a 10-1 triumph. The Buccaneers smacked three Dodger flingers for fourteen hits with Henshaw who started and allowed nine hits in less than six innings, the loser. Todd homered for Pittsburg; Bucher for Brooklyn.

Cobourg took a firm grip on first place in the second half of the girls' schedule at the Bowl last night with a 6-3 win over C.G.E. The loss was a serious setback to the Electrics in their race for a playoff berth. A crowd of fans saw a fine fixture with first-rate pitching on both sides and fair fielding. Cobourg hung onto an early lead despite a game battle by the locals.

Marilyn McCarthy allowed but six hits as she fanned five and walked two for C. G. E., her support being fair most of the way. On the other slab R. Slater gave but six hits while striking out six and issuing a single walk, also getting neat backing. Mary McCarthy of C. G. E. had a double and single, while M. Perrin led Cobourg with two singles. A. DeCarlo, G. Mann, J. Young and W. Hoskin all went good in the field. The teams:

Young Petes surprised Westclox at Central last night with a 7-3 victory to climb within half a game of top place and push the Alarm Boys back into a third-place tie with Motorists. With Fleming flinging fine ball and getting good fielding support, the Y.P. outfit banged out 17 safe blows off Parsons to earn the verdict handily. They got most of their runs in the late innings.

Fleming kept eight hits fairly well scattered as he fanned two and walked one. Parsons struck out four, walked none but was tingled for clusters of hits from the first on. His backing was good, too. Fleming and Conroy got three hits each for the winners, while Creighton hit a homer and double. W. Calladine for Westclox got a triple and single, and Kearns and Ellis each hit safely twice. The teams:

reform. We have endeavored to recommend reforms which, in our opinion, ought to be the foundation of a reasonable law suitable to real human needs."

A minority report by the then Archbishop of York, now the Archbishop of Canterbury, held the Christian conception of a lifelong monogamous union was not to be further imperilled.

The new law will be effective in England and Wales only. Scotland has its own divorce law, which permits absolute divorce for adultery and for four years of desertion. There is no probationary period between the nisi and absolute decrees in Scotland.

The Commons passed by a show of hands the bill as amended by the Lords. Only four of the 20-odd changes made in the Upper House were considered material to the measure and these were found to be acceptable in the Commons.

Main Backers Family Men

Chief supporters of the measure in the lower house were nearly all family men, with long years of married life behind them and blessed with happy families. They said they were thinking of those upon whom the present law weighed heavily.

In the House of Lords the Archbishop of Canterbury and most of the Bishops took a middle-of-the-road course. They said they could not vote for a measure facilitating divorce—to which the Church of England was unalterably opposed in principle. On the other hand they felt they could not vote against a measure which promised to correct many of the abuses of the present law. Therefore they would abstain from voting.

In this connection it was reported today that a number of bishops of the Church of England were considering introducing a measure to make civil marriage obligatory—as in France.

Sees It Offending Many.

This course was urged by the Times, which in an editorial said:

"As a law it (the Marriage Bill) will offend a large number of people. For this, as for all the other points of friction between Church and State over marriage, one remedy alone can ultimately be effective.

"There should be a civil ceremony of marriage for all alike. Those who desire them should afterwards seek the blessings of the Church to which they belong.

"That would save the religious ceremony from its too frequent degradation, it would leave the Church free to maintain its own discipline, it would make the Church's benediction to those who really benefit.

"Sooner or later this solution will come, and the sooner the better for Church and State alike."

For generations the Church has been opposed to divorce, and as a rule the Nonconformist churches have sided with the Established Church. Some of the Anglican clergy have not only declined to marry guilty divorced persons, but have refused to make exceptions in favor of innocent parties in divorce cases.

Prior to 1857 a special Act of Parliament was required for each marriage dissolved. In that year Parliament passed an Act empowering the courts to act and naming adultery the ground for such action. This law, with minor amendments, has stood for the past 80 years.

New Nullity Grounds

New grounds are introduced for nullity, as distinguished from divorce. Divorce is dissolution of an existing marriage. Nullity is annulment of a marriage, which is then deemed never to have existed.

Under the bill the grounds for nullity are:

1.—Wilful refusal to consummate;

2.—Unsoundness of mind at the time of marriage. (Unsoundness after marriage may be ground for divorce);

3.—Respondent suffering from venereal disease in communicable form;

4.—That the respondent was at the time of marriage pregnant by some person other than the petitioner.

A decree of nullity will not, however, be granted if the petition knew of the existence of any of these matters at the time of marriage.

The bill removes from law what has come to be known as a form of legal blackmail. Under the present law a decree nisi is not made absolute at the end of the requisite six months' period unless the petitioner applies that it be done. In some cases the petitioner has refused to have the decree made absolute, leaving the respondent neither married nor able to marry again.

An amendment made in the House of Lords, to which the Commons agreed, gives the respondent the right to apply for a decree nisi to be be made absolute.

No clergyman of the Churches of England or Wales will be compelled to solemnize the marriage of any person "whose former marriage has been dissolved on any grounds and whose former husband or wife is still living."

In Force Next Year

The act comes into effect Jan. 1, 1938.

A. P. Herbert, author and humorist and independent member of parliament for Oxford University, had a fairly easy task when he moved acceptance of the Lords' amendments in the Commons today. To Herbert goes chief credit for the bill. For long, with speech and pen, he has fought the laws of England on divorce.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

CHAPTER 40.

Marcia could hardly wait until morning, so anxious was she to determine what Walt Hartley had told Joan. She didn't see what he would gain by repeating the untruths to the girl, except more revenge against Marcia who had angered and humiliated him so many times. Surely he already had caused her enough grief, Marcia thought; he should be satisfied.

Although the rest of the household had roused by 10 o'clock, Joan still slept heavily and Marcia was forced to wait, curbing her impatience. She didn't want to leave her alone to spread whatever gossip she might have gleaned to shock the other guests and embarrass her hostess, so Marcia stood guard. She pleaded a headache when Garry sent up word they were going for a swim, and she was curled up in the window seat when the other girl finally awoke.

"G'morning," she said, working her mouth wryly. "Lord,what did I drink last night, tar? My mouth feels like a state highway." Without another word she popped out of bed and Marcia heard her vigorously brushing her teeth in the bathroom.

"Sure is a deluxe affair, isn't it," she said genially when she returned from the bathroom. Then solicitously she said, "Say, I hope I didn't annoy you when I came in last night. As I remember I wasn't in any mood to be quiet. Met the most gorgeous man. Or did I tell you?"

Joan wandered about the room, picking up discarded clothes as she spoke. When Marcia told her she'd just mentioned his name, she launched into another eulogy. "That's his name all right. Walt. He told me I was the darnedest fighter he'd ever met, which is some compliment coming from a man like Walt."

Still no mention of her, and Marcia breathed more freely as she asked, "When did you get that friendly? I thought he left right after dinner."

"So he did. By request," she admitted impishly. "I told you he was a bad one, and he is. And that's the kind I like. I met him just as he was leaving and went for a ride with him. We hit Santa Barbara, had a bit to drink, and came home," she chuckled.

"You'd better watch your step with a man like that," Marcia felt called upon to warn her. Her blood chilled in her veins when the other girl remarked, "Well, you ought to know."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Oh, Walt told me a lot of poppycock about what a bad girl you were. He was making it up as fast as he went along; about your stealing money, and stealing an advertising account and—say, you didn't try to steal his heart did you? Because that's one little item I'm after myself. Probably all full of bullet holes, but I'm after it just the same. He suits me."

No wonder men thought women were crazy, Marcia thought as she pondered on the strange case of Joan Stannard. After her frank discussion of Walt's disclosures she felt confident Joan either discounted them entirely, or was too good a sport to broadcast them further. Relieved on her own account, she worried about the impetuous young writer who admittedly "liked them tough." Well, she was due for a tough time if she kept on Walt's trail!

The rest of the day passed uneventfully, with the active guests tired after the previous day's exertions, and the others frankly "not able to move a finger" after the night's orgy. Marcia shrugged, then took a book and sat under a parasol beside the pounding sea. The waves cracked rhythmically on the burning sands, and she thought longingly of the days at La Cresta. If only she could get those thoughts out of her head. Resolutely she tried to tell herself, "Sandy is gone, he doesn't want you. That is all past. You must think of tomorrow."

But no matter how hard she tried to force herself to see present realities, she felt deep in her heart that "Tomorrow's for love—my love and Sandy's. Surely it can't all end like this." She watched the churning waters of the ocean and again the thought occured to her that their love was like that: at cross currents as far as eye could see, but strangely welded together according to some strange rule of nature. They belonged together.

At 4 o'clock Marcia and Gary decided to start, deciding not to wait for the barbecue later that night, and Lona in one of her most elaborate dresses of corn yellow mousseline, waved them a long farewell from the driveway of her house. Pastel colors, Marcia thought, as she saw the pink stucco house, the yellow gown, the turquoise sea and the cloudflecked sky. Nothing of reality about the house or the dozens like it that faced the sea so gaily; nothing strong and sturdy and vital like that red sunset she had seen from the rugged rilltop at La Cresta. She closed her eyes in retrospect.

"Tired?" Gary asked sympathetically.

"A little."

"And you came down here for a rest."

"The week-end seemed to fall a bit short of both our anticipations, didn't it, Gary?" she said wistfully as she realized his tremendous disappointment of the night before. He only shook his head in answer, for he doggedly refused to be discouraged until he had given Marcia every opportunity under the sun to reach a favorable decision.

"I wish you would take a week off before you start this new work," he said suddenly, just as they were reaching Santa Monica. "I think you need the rest for one thing, and I think you might get some inspiration if you could get off by yourself a while."

"You've been quiet for so long I thought something was taking form in your head," she chided. "I suppose you've picked out the very place for me to go?"

"Yes. I want you to go down to that place where your grandmother lives, what is it?"

"La Cresta? Ah, no—I couldn't," she said, shrinking back against the seat. The flood of memories that place held for her could not bring any happy inspiration to her now, she reasoned. "Think of another place, and maybe I'll take you up."

"I don't know why that wouldn't be the best place in the world, with your grandmother to take care of you," he began, but seeing the rebellious look in her face, he compromised. "Why don't you go to Santa Cruz? I have a cousin who has a cabin in the mountains there, and I'm sure she would be glad to have you for a visit."

"As—a prospective member of the family, or just a casual friend?" she asked suspiciously, unwilling to get any further involved or obligated to Gary.

She welcomed the opportunity to get away from town primarily because it released her from the close contact with him that her work required. With his eager, hopeful face before her all the time, she could not concentrate on her work. Maybe getting away would relieve the strain—or maybe distance would lend enchantment. Wondering if he had that same thought, she looked at him carefully. But his face revealed no trace of what he was thinking and she decided gratefully to take the vacation and see if things wouldn't work themselves out to a logical conclusion.

"I'll go," she said briefly, and he acknowledged the wisdom of her judgement.

"Good. I'll write Marie and you can leave as soon as I've had time to go over the manuscript with you; I'll wager you can get a lot of it done up in those quiet, friendly old mountains."

"Seems a long way to go just for a little rest," Marcia said mischievously. "Sure there aren't any desirable varieties of inspiration right here in Santa Monica?"

She was laughing at his seriousness, and good naturedly he admitted the point. "No, you'd be running home to Uncle Gary every few minutes, and I want you to get completely away. Santa Cruz is the place all right, and I'll be glad to get rid of you!"

By the following Wednesday Marcia was ready for her unexpected vacation. Gary's cousin had sent an enthusiastic welcome by wire, and as she boarded the train she looked forward to the trip. New vistas always enchanted her, and the picturesque mountains of Santa Cruz held magical appeal. Her only misgiving was a fleeting one—"If Sandy should want to see me for anything, he'd never find me in this hideaway."

And suddenly another thought occurred to her: perhaps Gary had planned this deliberately, leaving no stone unturned to win her if it were humanly possible. His desperate seriousness puzzled her, and she dreaded to think of the outcome when she should find it necessary to finally dash all his hopes at the end of the prescribed month.

INTEREST IN ART FOUND GROWING

Canadians Realizing Fine Arts Essential Factor In Daily Life

OTTAWA, July 23 (CP)—A definite increase in the growth of art interest throughout the Dominion was reported in the annual report of trustees of the national art gallery released Wednesday night.

"General growth of art interest throughout the country has not only been maintained but has very definitely increased," the report said, "showing that Canadians are progressively realizing that an understanding of the fine arts and all that they include is an essential factor in the art of daily living."

Work being done in the Vancouver art gallery received special mention in the report as did the active program being carried on by the Winnipeg gallery.

Departments of fine arts have been established in the University of Saskatchewan, University of Toronto, McMaster University, Hamilton and Acadia Universities. "It would be difficult to overestimate the immediate and future value of these steps," the report said.

Regarding a national art gallery building, the report said "expansion of activities indicated in the beginning of this report demonstrated that the commencement of an adequate home for the national gallery cannot be safely delayed."

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SUMMER HILL

"Isn't it dreadful, Mrs. Longears?" asked Nurse Jane.

"It certainly is, terrible!" agreed the rabbit lady.

"What is what?" asked Uncle Wiggily hopping into the camp tent one day. "What is dreadful and terrible?"

"It's the heat," said his wife. "I don't want to speak of it for I think the more you talk about the heat the more you feel it."

"I think the same," said Nurse Jane, "and I never would have mentioned it."

"Nor I," agreed Mrs. Longears. "Only Wiggy wanted to know so I told him. But, now that it has been mentioned, it is very hot, isn't it, Wiggy dear?"

"It's generally hot in July here where we live," said Mr. Longears. "It may be cooler in lovely Canada and I'm sure it is hotter down in the beautiful Southland. But we should make the best of what we have. Let's not think or talk about the heat and we shall be much cooler."

Hopeless.

"Oh, I'll never be cool again!" said Mrs. Longears.

"Nor I," squeaked Nurse Jane.

"Perhaps you will if you come with me," said Mr. Longears, twinkling his pink nose.

"Where are you going?" asked his wife. "If it is to look for an adventure please excuse me. They are too heating."

"I'm not going adventuring," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose to keep it cooler. "I'm going to slide down hill."

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" begged Nurse Jane. "Please don't tease us by talking about sliding down hill on such a hot day. Sliding down hill makes me think of Winter and ice and snow and sleds."

"Well, thinking like that ought to make you cool," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "And I think you will both be much cooler if you will come to my Summer hill and slide down it."

"Wiggy, are you teasing us" asked his wife.

"No, I am not," said Mr. Longears.

"Oh, how I should love a slide down hill," said Nurse Jane. "But I never heard of a Summer hill. I know you must be teasing, for snow on a hill now would all melt."

Off They Go.

"Just come and see," invited Mr. Longears. "I do not promise you will find any snow on my Summer hill, but you may slide down it. Come along, Janie, you and Mrs. Longears."

Uncle Wiggily led the way to the woods. It was a little cooler in them than around the big, white camping tent and Mrs. Longears and the muskrat lady housekeeper felt somewhat better.

"I still cannot believe you have a Summer hill, Wiggy, that we may slide down," said his wife.

"We are almost there," he said, laughing.

Soon he came to a stop on a hill on which grew many pine trees. The ground beneath the trees was covered with layers of brown pine needles, as the leaves of pine trees are called.

"This is my Summer hill," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oops!" all of a sudden shouted Nurse Jane. Her feet slid from beneath her on the slippery pine needles and down she slid. So did Mrs. Longears. Uncle Wiggily knew how to slide on his pine needle hill standing up and he taught his wife and Nurse Jane.

Soon all of them were sliding down the Summer hill and they were much cooler in the breeze they made as they slid. And when the sun went down it was very cool in the woods. So they were happy.

And if the ice cream soda doesn't turn a somersault out of the glass when the spoon is looking the other way I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's back scratcher.

U.S. AIRCRAFT HAS MANY USES

Blimps And Gyros Included In Fleet Guarding Land And Sea From Aloft

MAPPING FARMS

WASHINGTON, July 23 (C.P.)—Chasing bugs. Bearing hurricane warnings to fishermen. Sprinkling poison dust. Searching for illicit distilleries. Mapping farms.

These are a few of the many uses to which aircraft are being put by the United States government. Scores of government agencies are using blimps, autogyros, land and sea planes for routine activity.

The U.S. coastguard makes frequent use of its 46 lanes. They zoom up and down the Atlantic coast, dropping storm warnings on floating blocks to fishing boats at sea or announcing them through loud speakers to isolated coast settlements.

The coastguard directs from the air search for lost craft and bodies of the drowned. It rescues amateur yachtsmen and distressed fishermen, spots illicit distilleries for the alcohol tax unit, gives the Agriculture Department weather information, flies with food and medicine to ice-locked islands, takes physicians to those ill at sea and brings sick persons to land.

HATCHING DELAY CONSERVES FISH

Held In Hatcheries Until Fish Large Enough To Withstand Enemies

WINNIPEG, July 23.—(CP)—A cooling system delaying by one month the hatching of fish eggs and keeping fish in hatcheries until the fingerling stage is reached is expected to save millions of fish in Manitoba.

An experiment just completed at Dauphin River Fish Hatchery has proved successful and is likely to be adopted as a permanent policy by the department of Natural Resources.

Last fall 5,000,000 whitefish eggs gathered from spawning grounds were kept in the hatchery all winter. A cooling system installed in the tanks retarded egg-hatching one month. Instead of hatching toward the end of April, as usual, they hatched at the end of May.

Next step was to keep fish in the hatchery until they reached fingerling size instead of releasing them in waters of lakes as fish fry soon after hatching, which is the usual custom.

The result is that the fish go into the lake when feeding and weather conditions are at their best and they are big enough to withstand attacks of their natural enemies.

Mortality of whitefish fry placed in lakes in past years was estimated by A. O. Cunningham, director of game and fisheries as high as 97 or 98 per cent. He looks to the new method to increase enormously the whitefish population.

Hamilton Relief Lowest, 7 Years

HAMILTON, Ont., July 23 (CP)—Only 2,011 families are dependent upon the city and relief figures have dropped to the lowest point in seven years and the lowest which can be expected until the summer of 1938, A. P. Kappele, welfare commissioner, said today.

"Three weeks ago the relief lists were dropping 300 a week, two weeks ago they dropped 200 a week and last week they only fell 100," Mr. Kappele said. "This shows us that the end of the decline is here and we may now expect the gradual increase which August always brings."

WIDER DIVORCE LAW TO START RUSH IN COURT

22,000 Applications on Cruelty And Desertion Last Year Now Be Eligible

NEED MORE JUDGES

Question Arises As To Increased Chances Of Separation For Poor Persons

LONDON, July 24.—(AP)—Hundreds or even thousands of husbands and wives, hitherto barred from divorce, are expected to flock to the courts early next year to cancel their marital vows after the old statute dies.

A divorce reform bill fathered by A. P. Herbert, the humorist-parliamentarian, and enacted by the House of Commons yesterday, is expected to become operative in January. Royal assent to the legislation will be given in a brief ceremony in the House of Lords next week.

The bill was hailed by the press generally today as "the biggest change in social laws of our time."

In addition to adultery, the only ground for livorce under the present law, the Herbert Bill establishes these other causes: Desertion without cause for at least three three years, cruelty, and incurable insanity for five years.

Heavy List Last Year.

There were more than 22,000 applications for legal separation orders on grounds of cruelty and desertion last year and it was estimated most of these would now be eligible for divorce. It was considered almost certain additional judges would be required to meet the increase in litigation.

There were still other problems in connection withthe change.

"The question now seems to be how far the divorce court will administer the bill so as to make divorce reasonably accessible to poor persons," said Alfred Fellows, vice chairman of the divorce law reform union.

"The bill is a satisfactory step forward although it is only three-quarters of what we desired."

The position of the King's proctor under the new regime was the subject of speculation. This officer, under the old law, when armed with sufficient evidence of collusion, could obstruct the granting of final divorce decrees.

GIRL DENIED BAIL IN MURDER CASE

Louisiana Lass To Appeal To Supreme Court On Self-Defence Plea

COUSHATTA, La., July 24 (AP).—Comely, 17-year-old Jessie Pepper looked today to the State Supreme Court for freedom pending Grand Jury action on charges she killed her girlhood chum in an argument stirred by neighborhood gossip.

District Judge James W. Jones Jr., refused at a preliminary hearing yesterday to admit the girl to bail and her counsel indicated he would appeal to save Jessie what he pictured as "long, hot, lonesome days in a dark jail no better than a dungeon."

The state charges the 164-pound blonde, awkwardly holding a pistol in both hands, sent two bullets into the body of May Elvin Alle, 17 in the climax of a pasture dispute between the girls and their mothers on July 5.

In refusing bail, Judge Jones denied the defense plea of self defence.

On the stand Miss Pepper told of being "slapped around" by May Elvin and her mother three days prior to the shooting. The two accused her of spreading "gossip" that May Elvin had left Coushatta to give birth of a child, she said, and then thrashed her when she denied this.

She testified that on the day of the shooting Mrs. Pepper had gone with a gun to the cow pasture and there had met and quarreled with the dead girl's mother. The defendant related she ran to scene as the mothers struggled for the gun and snatched the weapon and that she fired later as May Elvin ran at her with a stick.

Duke Damages Car In Salzburg Traffic

Salzburg, Austria, July 24 (AP).—THE Duke and Duchess of Windsor and her aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman of Washington, D.C., arrived last night at the Mayer-Meinhof Hunting Lodge in Fuschl, near Salzburg, after a minor traffic accident.

Their automobile collided with a trolley car as they drove through a crowded Salzburg street. The fenders were damaged slightly but no one was hurt.

VIOLENCE FLARES IN TRUCK STRIKE BUFFALO REGION

Tie-up Threatens Food Shortage On Frontier—Merchants Appeal To Governor

AFFECTS 1,000,000 PEOPLE

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 24 (AP).—A meat truck was overturned and partly burned today in the first violence of Buffalo's four-day food-handlers' strike.

Robert Sanford, driver for Swift & Company, told police 10 men halted his truck, told him to get out, and dumped the vehicle over on its side. Gasoline which spilled from the tank became ignited but the blaze was extinguished before serious damage resulted.

Swift and Company is not involved in the strike of 2,000 wholesale grocery truck drivers and meat packers, which menace the basic food supply of 1,000,000 people, but Business Agent Samuel Licata of the Teamers' Union charged the company's trucks had been used to make deliveries for wholesale houses shut down by the truckers' walkout.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 24—(UP).—Cities along the Niagara frontier, including Buffalo with its 600,000 people, faced an acute food shortage to-day as wholesale merchants appealed to Governor Herbert H. Lehman to intervene in strikes which have cut off the major sources of butter, eggs, canned goods and meat supplies.

Food merchants, whose business has been paralyzed three days by the walkout of 1,000 produce truck drivers and warehouse workers, asked the Governor to take a hand in "the food emergency that now confronts Buffalo and the entire Niagara frontier," charging efforts to deliver staple foodstuffs to retail dealers had been prevented through "violence and threats of intimidation."

Both chain and independent grocery stores began reporting bare shelves as the two warring factions in the labor movement—the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization—joined forces to cut off the supply of staple foods and meats.

Canned Goods Ran Short

Some stores reported they were sold out of butter; others had exhausted their supply of eggs; while still others were running short of canned goods. Butcher shops reported a shortage of fresh pork.

Both the strike of the truck drivers and warehouse workers—affiliated with the A.F. of L.—and the walkout of 1,000 packing company employees—members of a C.I.O. union—threatened to spread as mediation efforts failed.

Three of the city's four major packing companies were forced to suspend deliveries. Produce handlers at the Niagara Frontier Food Terminal, where many of the 44 strike-bound warehouses are housed; chain-store truck drivers and clerks and employees of the 4th big packing company were awaiting strike calls.

Even the movement of farm products to the city heretofore unaffected, was curtailed to-day as strikers sent "flying squads" out on the highways to persuade drivers of trucks loaded with foodstuffs to turn back.

Niagara Falls, the Tonawandas, Olean, Dunkirk and other cities along the Niagara frontier began to feel the food shortage. Merchants in those places made arrangements to secure staple foods and meats from other large Eastern cities when their usual supplies from Buffalo warehouses failed to arrive.

TORONTO VISIT OF REV. JARDINE IS POSTPONED

Groups Sponsoring Appearance Resent Attack On Archbishop Canterbury

CHEQUES RETURNED

Tour Heads Explain Vicar Lost His Head, Said Things He Was Sorry For

TORONTO, July 24.—The visit to Toronto of Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, the English clergyman who married the Duke of Windsor, has been postponed because of the personal attack he made on the Archbishop of Canterbury at Baltimore on Thursday.

The two local groups which were sponsoring his appearance here stated last night that they would dissociate themselves from the Anglican cleric if it was his intention to speak in a similar vein in this city. They strongly condemned his personal remarks about the Archbishop.

Ready to Try Tent.

In New York last night, sponsors of Mr. Jardine's tour told the United Press that the Anglican clergyman would lecture in Toronto even if forced to speak in a tent. They claimed that three Toronto theatres had cancelled Mr. Jardine's engagements in protest at his remarks in Baltimore.

"Two of the cheques we sent up there engaging a theatre have been returned," they said. "Next time we'll lay down the cash, and if they back out on that we'll sue."

The Eaton Auditorium, where the address was to have been given next Thursday, announced yesterday that they would not permit the clergyman to lecture on their premises.

Not Wanted.

Paul B. Johnston, auditorium manager, said: "When we saw the article in the paper this morning about what Mr. Jardine said in Baltimore, we thought it was not the kind of thing we wanted. We had no definite arrangement with his sponsors so we didn't cancel the engagement — rather, we just let the thing fall through."

In his speech at Baltimore, Mr. Jardine called the Archbishop of Canterbury an "ecclesiastical cad" who, with "a grandmotherly person named Baldwin," had driven the Duke of Windsor from his throne by means of a "political-religious conspiracy."

Said More Than Intended.

A telephone call from New York to Toronto last evening explained that Mr. Jardine was aroused to such a pitch by the attitude of certain of the clerics of Baltimore that he lost his temper and said a lot of things he was sorry for afterward.

"He wasn't speaking from notes and he forgot that his remarks would be published," Hugh Ernst, sponsor of the clergyman's tour in the United States and Canada, said over the phone to Rev. A. T. B. Haines, rector of the Church of Christ the King, the Liberal-Catholic church which was one of the two groups responsible for the proposed visit of the clergyman to Toronto.

STRIKERS DENY THAT DISSENSION EXISTS IN RANKS

Strike Body Prepared To Function As Unit They Claim

TAG DAY EFFORT

Strikers today hastened to announce that any dissension which arose in the strike leadership circles during the past several days has now been ironed out and that the strike body is again prepared to function as an undivided unit. Reports were current yesterday that a political line of cleavage in the strike organization threatened and that a section of the strike organization was agitating for ousting of C. I. O. textile organizer Alex Welch.

A statement tendered the press this morning by Strike Publicity Chairman Willis read as follows:

"The Central Strike Committee wish to correct the impression given in yesterday's local paper regarding dissension in the ranks of the strike executive along political lines. We wish to state that such is far from the case. There has been a slight difference of opinion but never at any time has there been a threat to the solidarity of our strike executive.

"The solid spirit of co-operation existing between the members of our executive has never been more evident than at the present time. The strike committee would like to make the fact known that Miss Nora Adams, U.A.W.A. girl organizer of the C.I.O. has at no time been excluded from our committee meetings. We have on the contrary made her very welcome for the reason she has been able to render very valuable assistance along lines with which we have had no previous experience."

Today's Tag Day.

The tag day effort was the only strike activity under way today, Organizer Welch having left the city for the textile union conference in Ottawa. A strike committee meeting had been scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning but did not materialize. The only week-end activity scheduled was an open meeting at Nicholls Oval at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon. It was expected representatives of the Oshawa automobile union would join local strike leaders on the platform at the meeting.

Strikers anticipated a substantial return from their tag day as they reported a generous response by citizens during the morning hours today. Whether or not the wearing of a strike tag could be taken to indicate sympathy with the strike cause, the majority of downtown pedestrians were displaying tags on their lapels before the arrival of the noon hour.

The tags were inscribed: "U. T. W. A. 2581. I Helped the Textile Strikers' Family Relief Fund." It was noted that several local manufacturing heads were among those who sported the tags.

It was learned today Henry Barrett, Dominion Woollens managing director, returned to Toronto after a short visit here Thursday. He is to come to this city Monday for the re-opening of strike negotiations at the Bonner-Worth offices early Monday afternoon.

No Polite Motorist Found In Kingston

Kingston, July 24 (CP).—SEARCH for a "polite" motor car driver in Kingston today did not result in any compliments for Kingston, three judges being unable to select one for the $5 weekly award offered by a service club.

Most of the cars were driven with care, but the drivers did not show other cars or pedestrians any exceptional courtesy, which would have won the cash, the judges reported.

JULY SNOWBALL FOR LOCAL POSTIE

Sounds Somewhat Like Fairy Tale But It Actually Happened

What do you think the odds would be against the chances of one of His Majesty's letter carriers being the victim of a snowball attack on one of these humid July afternoons with the thermometer hovering around the 90 mark? About a million to one at least, you'd probably answer. And yet the thing actually happened. A carrier from the Peterborough office covering an East City route actually found himself on the hottest day of this hot week a target for a barrage of snowballs directed at him by a couple of small boys. Of course, there is an explanation. It lies in the fact that the frost was scraped off the pipes in a cold storage plant and thrown outside and before it could melt the youngsters seized the opportunity to use the stuff to do some dog day snowballing.

BUNNY AUSTIN TOO GOOD FOR PARKER

British Ace Defeats American Youngster In Three Straight Sets

WIMBLEDON, July 24 (C.P.).—H. W. (Bunny) Austin sent England away to a flying start in her defence of the Davis Cup against the United States to-day, defeating 21-year-old Frank Parker in straight sets.

Scores were: 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

The British stylist, one of the world's greatest players when the Davis Cup chips are down, won almost as he pleased from the Milwaukee youngster, named to the American team as a replacement for Bryan Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta, Ga.

The result of the match had been forecast in advance for Parker does not rate in the same tennis class with the 29-year-old Austin.

WOMAN PERISHES TRAPPED BY FIRE IN QUEBEC HOME

Husband Sleeping On Balcony Is Prevented By Flames From Making Rescue

LAMP UPSETS

LEVIS, Que., July 24 (CP).—Trapped by flames which spread quickly through a small frame dwelling here early today, Mrs. Arthur Fonsaine, 47, was burned to death in a fire thought to have started from an overheated oil lamp.

Mrs. Fonsaine was alone in the little wooden, two-storey house. Her husband, because of the temperature, was sleeping on the balcony. Aroused by the crackling of the flames, he was unable to attempt a rescue because the fire had gained too much headway.

Levis is on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, directly opposite Quebec.

Nudists Plan Rally California In Fall

Bronzed young Hobart Glassey announced today he expected at least 200 delegates and visitors at his nudist conclave at the Sun Tanners' resort at Soquel, Calif., September 11-13.

At the convention will be discussed problems of individual groups, standards of membership, finance public relations and other matters affecting nudism. There also will be inter-club games.

Glassey, a Syracuse university psychology graduate, is president and founder of fraternity Elysia, which has a nudist resort in a secluded canyon 20 miles from here. He said 11 active nudist groups in California, two in Washington and one each in Oregon and Colorado are expected to send delegates.

Bodies Set Afire Farmhouse Floor Husband Arrested

Grim Law Strategy Produces Confession

Kansas City, Mo., July 24 (UP).—POLICE Sergeant Prime McDonough propped on his desk a picture of the bullet-riddled bodies of two youths stamped in the front seat of an automobile. Then started questioning 21-year-old Carlo Saia about a car theft. Saia denied he had stolen a car. Finally Saia pointed to the picture, which the officer had been studying as he talked. "Who were they, asked Saia. "Couple of car thieves who tried to get away," replied the officer evenly. "Okay," said Saia, "I stole the car, all right. I'll plead guilty."

Mother Only Returned Two Weeks From Housemaid's Job In Toronto

INQUEST CALLED

Prisoner Calls Police And Doctor From Nearby Neighbors

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., July 24 (CP) — Ephraim Lesuk, 32-year-old Ukranian farmer, was charged today with the slaying of his wife and two-day-old baby. Lesuk was not taken from his cell when the charge was laid before J. A. Marshall, Justice of the Peace.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., July 24—(CP).—Ephriam Lesuk, 32-year-old foreign-born farmer, was being held for questioning to-day as police opened an investigation into the slaying of his wife and two-day-old baby. The bodies of the mother and child were found in their Mulmer Township farmhouse yesterday.

Police said Mrs. Lesuk's skull was fractured. Her body and that of the baby had been partially burned after being sprinkled with feathers and some inflammable liquid. They were still smouldering on the floor when officers, called from here, arrived at the farmhouse, 30 miles northeast of Orangeville.

Lesuk was found at the home of a neighbor, William Ireland, and brought to the county jail here. No charge was laid at the time, police stating he was being held for questioning. Ireland told them Lesuk came to his farm shortly after noon and asked him to call police and a doctor to the farm. The dual tragedy was discovered when they arrived.

Police learned Mrs. Lesuk had worked until recently as a housemaid in a Spadina Road, Toronto, home. She had returned to the farm two weeks ago. The baby was born Wednesday. Cursory examination failed to show visible signs of violence on the child's body.

An inquest into the tragedy was ordered by Dr. C. I. Scott, coroner, while investigation was being carried on by Provincial Constable H. P. Hammer. First intimation police had of the slaying was when the telephone call arrived from the Ireland home. It came during a session of Magistrate's Court and sent officers hustling to the farm.

BLINDED DRIVER HITS THREE GIRLS ONE DIES LATER

Two Others Tossed In Ditch As They Walk Edge Of Road

IN SIMCOE DISTRICT

SIMCOE, Ont., July 24 (C.P.).—Verna Burk, 20-year-old Charlotteville, Ont., girl, died early to-day in Norfolk General Hospital here of injuries suffered when struck by a motor car while walking along the road near Walsh Station last night.

The girl was accompanied by Lily Stackhouse and Iva Casselton when a car in charge of Robert McCall, St. Williams, struck them. Miss Stackhouse was injured about the head and hips. Miss Casselton, although tossed into the ditch, was not injured.

McCall told police he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car and did not see the girls. Chief Coroner E. W. Zumstein of Delhi is in charge of the investigation.

TORONTO FAMILY HURT IN SMASH

Car Of Robert Fennell, K.C., Crashes Into Pole Near Lindsay

LINDSAY July 24 (Special)—Robert Fennell, K.C., and family, of Toronto, were injured in a car accident near here yesterday when their automobile got out of control and crashed into a telephone pole on No. 7 Highway. A blow-out was believed responsible for the accident.

Mrs. Fennell, driver of the car, suffered a fractured jaw, while Nancy, a daughter, received a broken shoulder blade, and Scott, a son, suffered facial and other injuries. Mr. Fennell, two other children and the chauffeur escaped with minor abrasions and shock.

The accident occurred while the Fennell family were driving from Toronto to their summer home at Windsweep Farm, on Sturgeon Lake. Mr. Fennell is the owner of considerable farm property near Bobcaygeon, where he runs a dairy farm and trains horses.

BOLOGNA, Italy, July 24 (C.P.).—Seven-year-old Elettra Marconi became one of the world's wealthiest children to-day by virtue of her father's will naming her sole residuary legatee to his estate conservatively estimated at $25,000,000.

Marconi's widow will enjoy the usufruct of one-fourth of the estate until their daughter becomes of age. The three children by his first wife, Denis, Julio, and Cloia, receive the minimum amounts stipulated by Italian law.

White Winter Wheat Project Scores Sensational Success

Initial Six Bushels Have Since 1934 Developed Into Rich Yield

LOCAL FARMERS WIN

Cyclic and romantic interest seems to be associated with the progress of the group of Peterborough farmers who are now harvesting their third crop from six bushels of certified elite white winter wheat that were bought from Ottawa and sown here in the fall of 1934.

Twenty registered growers will have perhaps five or six thousand bushels of registered seed alone from this season's threshing, and the surplus of winter wheat grown from certified seed is estimated at approximately 30,000 bushels. Complete figures will probably be compiled later by the association of which Howard Quinn of Douro is president, and there may be also something to report about the success of the Peterborough farmers in the quantity of their winter wheat that may be purchased by the Quaker Oats Company.

An Inviting Market

Most of the white winter wheat required by the company in the manufacture of Mafeta has been purchased from growers in western Ontario, especially in the counties of Elgin, Kent and Essex. The fact that a potential buyer for large quantities of grain was located at the very door of local farmers was one of the factors inspiring A. D. Runions to direct the attention of farmers to the effort which began on a comparatively small scale three seasons ago. It is recognized that the Quaker Oats Company may have some sentimental attachment for the community in which their big Peterborough plant is located, but after all their purchase of wheat is a business matter in which quality and price are dominant considerations. And it is against the competition from the grain growers in western counties that Peterborough farmers are now engaged in seeking an increasing share of this available local market. For the present, results can only be conjectured, and the final tally for the year's work will be of wide interest throughout the county if they can be obtained.

Boy Evangelist 7, To Have Holiday After 1,000 Sermon Tour In 4 Years

Peoria, Ill, July 24 (AP).—A SEVEN-Year old boy evangelist, an ordained minister, took time off from his preaching duties today to roll in sand and play with an electric train—his favorite diversions.

Tomorrow the boy, Charles Jaynes, Jr., of Riverside, Calif., will deliver a sermon at Bloomington, Ill., and then will join his parents at his California home for a rest.

The Rev. B. G. Drake, at whose Trinity Tabernacle the boy was admitted to the ministry Thursday night, described the young evangelist as the "youngest ordained minister in the world."

The child usually stands on a chair when he delivers his sermons. Miss Neva Duff, the boy's tutor, said, and claps his hands and pounds his fists on a table to emphasize his points. He wears a knee length black suit, trimmed with a white collar and cuffs. His black hair is bobbed.

Miss Duff said he had been preaching since he was three years old. The tutor said the youngster had conducted services in 17 states and 130 cities and had given more than 1,000 sermons. He speaks five foreign languages—Spanish, German, Japanese, Indian and a Congo-Belgian African dialect.

OTTAWA, July 24 (CP).—Dr. Marcel Pochon, director of the Ontario Radium Refinery at Port Hope, announced yesterday annual output at the refinery would be increased from one and a half ounces to four and one half (136 grams).

Dr. Pochon made the announcement following consultations with officials at the National Research Council here to which new equipment the refinery had purchased was sent for testing purposes.

The new equipment, Dr. Pochon said, would make it possible to supply some of the radium needs in the United States as well as in the British Empire which up to now has absorbed almost all the Canadian output.

MILLBROOK

ANNUAL OUTINGS GREATLY ENJOYED BY TWO SCHOOLS

One Millbrook S. S. Crowd Goes To Cobourg, Another Selecting Orono

BOTH HAVE FINE TIME

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, July 24.—Over two hundred of the pupils and friends of St. Andrew's Sunday School motored to Victoria Park, Cobourg, on Thursday afternoon for the annual picnic outing, the fine weather, its extreme heat tempered by the cooling lake breeze, together with the many attractions of this popular resort, adding to the success and enjoyment of the occasion.

As usual, the bathing facilities were a major source of pleasure particularly for the younger element, the primary children giving the swings, sand piles, and slides a liberal patronage. The sports' program was run off under the direction of Mr. B. B. Dawson, the winners including:

Girls 8-9, Jessie Murney, Jean Foottit; boys 8-9, Roy Dawson, Joey Lunn; girls 10-11, Betty Lunn, Marguerite Murney; girls 11-13, Phyllis Lunn, Linda Murney; boys 10-11, Kenneth Foottit; boys 12-14, Donald McKnight, Jackie Kidd; girls 14-16, Bea McDowell, P. Lunn; three-legged race, boys, David Hatherly and Jack Lacheur, Jack Kidd and George Sisco; three-legged race, girls, P. Lunn and B. McDowell, Joyce Kennedy and Lillian Fickling; boys' shoe-kicking contest, David Hatherly, Jack Lacheur, Teddy Stinson; girls' shoe-kicking contest, B. McDowell, Lillian Foottit, Phyllis Lunn; wheelbarrow race, Jack Lacheur and D. Hatherly, George Sisco and Jackie Kidd.

Long tables were set for the picnic supper, the teachers and officers and other helpers looking after the service of the hungry guests, and afterward many stayed for the concert by the Kilties' Band, the daylight saving time allowing return at a reasonable hour. Two trucks were hired to convey the boys to the picnic grounds, and private cars were offered in abundance to take the grown-ups where means of transportation were lacking.

Other Sunday schools picnicking at Cobourg on Thursday included Elizabethville, Canton, and Garden Hill, their pastor, Rev. Gordon Porter, accompanying them; also his sister, Miss Helen Porter, of Lakefield.

St. Thomas' S.S. Outing

St. Thomas' Sunday School, with many parents and friends, journeyed by car and truck to the Memorial Park, Orono, on Thursday afternoon for its annual picnic outing, the fine weather, the well-organized planning, and the many attractions of the gathering-place chosen, contributing largely to the outstanding success which marked the occasion.

The extreme heat made the swimming-pool a particularly popular diversion, and the sports program, run off under the joint supervision of the superintendent, Mr. R. Stone, and E. H. Barnes, was participated in with lively interest. The winners:

Ball games and other sports followed the tea hour, when hungry guests did full justice to the abundant meal provided, the teachers and officers attending to the service, and many took advantage of the opportunity to visit the grounds of the adjoining Government Forestry Station, where flowers just now are almost at the height of their summer loveliness.

Thursday's outing was, by general consent, voted the most successful yet held by St. Thomas' Sunday School, the only other picnickers on the grounds being from the similar organization at Yelverton.

Plants have a nervous system which is affected by strong emotions, just as that of humans, declares a famous scientist of India.

MICE MIXED UP

Family Gets Excited As Pets for House Party Go to Wrong Address

MILWAUKEE, July 24 (A.P.).—When a stranger delivered a package containing a mouse to the Christ Glencke residence here members of the family were considerably surprised.

Their emotions changed to alarm by the time other strangers had brought five more mice. Then came one Edmund Vogel, hurried and harried.

"Have you my mice?" he asked. "Somebody got our addresses mixed."

Vogel explained he had advertised for the mice, for use as the principal actors in a "mouse game" at a Socialists' Party picnic.

C.I.O. UNION HEAD KEY OF DEADLOCK CORNWALL STRIKE

Workers Demand Laverty On Committee—Firm Ignores Him

BOTH WAIT BREAK

CORNWALL, Ont., July 24 (C.P.).—Efforts to open negotiations to end the strike of 1,700 employees of the three local mills of Canadian Cottons appeared deadlocked to-day and the next move in the four-day-old walkout was not indicated.

Company officials and strikers appeared deadlocked on one point in opening negotiations — that of whether Arthur Laverty, president of the Cornwall Local of the United Textile Workers' Union of America, a C.I.O. affiliate, would take part in the negotiations.

The company has asserted it will not deal with a committee of strikers if Laverty is a member of the body and strikers refused to agree to any negotiations without him.

Meanwhile, Mayor Aaron Horovitz of Cornwall, acting as an intermediary between the strikers and the company, said last night the proposed Monday conference between the two disputant parties was off unless something developed over the week-end.

ALASKA SHAKES FOR NINE HOURS

Worst 'Quake In History However Fails To Tie Up Business

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 24 (A.P.)—Alaskans displayed jaunty indifference today to the greatest earthquake disturbance ever recorded in the territory.

For nine hours yesterday many shocks, four of them severe, occurred over the interior from Fairbanks, 300 miles south, to Anchorage.

Utility companies, banks and business houses carried on business as usual. Only the liquor store failed to operate. The earth shocks toppled bottles off shelves and broke them.

Telephone lines broken during the first shocks were hastily repaired. Total damage was estimated at a maximum of $5,000, mostly to the liquor stock.

An unconfirmed report said several houses were demolished and one person injured when a giant earth slide swept across 2,000 feet of the Richardson highway.

Hold 4 Lumbermen On Serious Charge

TRURO, N.S., July 24—(CP).—Four North River lumbermen were to be arraigned to-day before Magistrate Harold Putnam on charges of rape in connection with an attack on two young sisters near here last Sunday night.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police meanwhile, sought a fifth, Raymond Upham, charged with indecent assault. The four held in jail here since their arrests last night are: William MacRae 20, Isaac MacGuarrie 18, Harold Upham 20, and Lloyd Sullivan 18, all employees of a lumber mill at North River.

The two girls, one 15 and the other not yet 16 years of age, were allegedly attacked in a field near their home.

NAMES HIS COUSIN

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP).—President Roosevelt nominated James L. Houghteling of Chicago today to succeed the late Colonel Daniel W. MacCormock as commissioner of immigration.

Houghteling, former newspaper executive, is a cousin by marriage of the President. A native of Chicago, he married Laura Delano of Washington in 1917.

Formidable U.S. Opponent For Enemy Aircraft

To meet the threat of heavily armed bombing aeroplanes which nations of the world are building, the United States government has announced a new multi-seater fighter of the pusher type of aeroplane. The machine shown above, equipped with six guns and carrying light bombs, has the propellers behind the wings, giving guns an unobstructed view of enemy machines. It is technhnically called the XFM-1, and was designed by a Buffalo, N.Y., aircraft corporation.

EARLY THRESHINGS SHOWING UP RUST

Damage Not Serious However In Wheat Across The Province

TORONTO, July 24 (CP).—Early threshings of wheat in Ontario indicate considerable rust damage in the counties of Elgin and Frontenac, but a more promising outlook in Oxford and Essex. Top price of $1.26 was paid at Chatham and Sarnia for new wheat.

South of Ingersoll, where the first fall wheat was being threshed, the crop was believed to be "very promising," with an estimated yield of from thirty to thirty-five bushels per acre. While there were indications of rust, no serious damage had resulted, it appeared.

In Essex County first threshings showed an estimated yield of 34 to 40 bushels per acre, and according to reports received so far the grain will be of good quality, with but slight damage from rust and other blights. At Sarnia the first deliveries were made to the King Milling Company from a farmer in Sarnia Township. Price paid was $1.25 per bushel. Old wheat dropped two cents a bushel, to $1.28, when the price for the new grain was announced.

Serious damage, resulting in shrunken grain, was shown in the first threshing at St. Thomas and Kingston. Grant Mitchell, Reeve of Bayham Township, said last night that the early threshings in that section of Elgin have not been satisfactory, and throughout Elgin the yield will average probably twenty to twenty-five bushels an acre. One of the best yields was on the farm of Arthur Robson, Union, whose fourteen acres produced 576 bushels of first quality grain, but this was considered exceptional in the district.

Price in Elgin dropped to $1.10, but farmers reported selling in Dutton at $1.15, while a top price of $1.25 was being offered in Chatham.

Rust has taken a firm hold on early varieties of grain in Frontenac County, and farmers feared a heavy loss. It is estimated that close to seventy-five per cent of the hay crop has been harvested, however, and it will be a fair yield.

DRIVERS KILLED AS CARS COLLIDE

Smash In Montreal Suburb Injures Three Others Seriously

ST. LAMBERT, Que., July 24 (CP).—Two persons were killed and three seriously injured in an automobile collision on Taschereau Highway near this Montreal suburb early today.

Drivers of the two automobiles, William Carter Dickson, 42, head of the Texton Chemical Company of Montreal, and Alex. Fraser Cameron, 33, Beauharnois, died when the cars crashed on a highway turn.

William Beveridge, Captain J. B. Weir and B. R. Bingham, all passengers in Cameron's automobile, returning from military training camp at St. John's, Que., were injured.

Hubert Phelan, fifth member of the party in the Cameron machine, escaped with slight hurts.

PROBE REQUESTED INTO NAZI CAMPS

Seventeen Reported Set Up In New Jersey And Other Parts Of U.S.

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP).—Representative Citron has asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to "investigate at once" the so-called "Nazi military training camps being established at Andover, N.J., and other places."

Camp Nordland at Andover has been set up by the German-American Bund.

In a letter to the bureau, Citron said his informants had complained about 17 such camps in the United States, "all of them seemingly under a single, planned organization whose probable financial backing, direction and control is not only by aliens but probably indirectly the present German government."

Senator William H. Smathers of New Jersey scouted reports an organized "Nazi army" existed in north Jersey.

Representative Dies has introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of "un-American activities" in this country. He cited principally, in support of the resolution the camp of the Nazi Bund in north Jersey.

NOT RISKING LIVES OF BRITISH SAILORS SAYS DUFF COOPER

Claims Cause Not Worth Fighting For, When Attacked On Inaction Off Spain

DRAWS PROTECTION LINE

LONDON, July 24—(CP)—Determination of Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, to avoid causing loss of life to British sailors by protecting British ships in Spanish territorial waters was on record yesterday.

Attacked in the House of Commons last night by Captain Wedgwood Benn, Labor, for the Admiralty's "shameful" lack of protection for evacuating refugees from Santander, The First Lord replied:

"So long as I am at the Admiralty, I hope that not another British sailor will fall in a cause which is not worth fighting for."

During the heated exchange, the Labor members asked the First Lord whether he had ever been to the stockyards in Chicago as he summed up Spanish insurgent depradations on British ships engaged in evacuation work off northern Spain while British warships watched.

If he had been, Captain Benn said he would have seen "men whose dreadful task was to see that none of the terrified creatures escaped from the shambles."

Hard Line To Draw

Duff Cooper, objecting to the slaughter simile, retorted he never had visited the stockyards but if he had "I would not consider myself justified in interferring. It is very difficult to draw a line between humanitarianism and military assistance. It is very easy on the other hand to make a fine-sounding speech about suffering that is being felt."

Tracing the admiralty's policy, Duff Cooper said Britain had undertaken to protect British ships outside the three-mile limit and added many British ships chartered by the Basques had entered the same category as British volunteers fighting in the trenches in Spain.

Ships thus chartered, he said, really were exempt from protection but the admiralty had undertaken to protect them outside the limit.

Close Competition In Picnic Sports

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24.—St. John's United Church held their annual Sunday School Picnic at Cedardale on Lake Ontario on Wednesday afternoon. One of the largest crowds in years climbed into the trucks and private automobiles to be transported to the picnic ground where games, contests and swimming were enjoyed. Considerable amusement was afforded when several of the entries in the fat men's race resorted to pillows and other subterfuge to accentuate their obesity. Prizes were given for peanut race, children's and adults' running races and walking races. Toward the middle of the afternoon lunch was served by the ladies and this was followed by baseball match. Among those assisting at the picnic were Messrs. Roy Oliver, G. A. Ironside, S. Covert, E. A. Bell, Rev. Harold B. Neale, A. D. Bennett and W. F. Scott.

The ladies assisting were Mrs. H. B. Neale, Mrs. W. F. Scott, Mrs. A. E. Wragg and Miss Doris Mason.

Thief Asks, Gets 2 Years in Prison Hopes Depression Will Be Over Then

Quebec, July 24.—(CP)

ADRIEN ST. HILAIRE, 28, at his own suggestion is going "en haut," the French equivalent of "up the river."

St. Hilaire pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of theft and told the judge he was "tired of being sentenced to eight or 15 days in jail."

"I would like you to give me a more severe sentence so I could get 'en haut'."

"What did you say?" asked the judge.

"En haut—to the penitentiary. I think the best place for an unemployed man right now is in the penitentiary. If I stay there for two years I believe the depression will be over and I will be able to find myself a job. What do you think, Judge?"

St. Hilaire was sentenced to two years in penitentiary for stealing a watch and kodak.

THE TENDERNESS AND PATIENCE OF THE LORD JESUS.

.. The bruised reed shall He not break and the smoking flax shall He not quench.—St. Matthew 12, 20.

A meaningless phrase to-day. That which is bruised, that which is inefficient is only fit for the scrap heap. This is the slogan of our age. Men bruised by the war are cast aside. Men whose vitality has been burnt out in the fiery rush of modern high speed business and factory life are heartlessly discharged. There is no patience, no tenderness for such. It was even so in the age of the prophet Isaiah, who said that the striking characteristic of the Messiah, the Christ, would be His tenderness and patience for the bruised and unfit.

He came in the fulness of time and men marvelled that He was a friend of publicans and sinners; the companion of reeds bruised through the hardships of life; of smoking lamps, men and women whose flame of life was low and ill-smelling because their oil of energy had been used up in the horrible struggle for a mere existence.

The Lord Jesus is God, Who took our nature upon Him and became man that He might undergo all the experiences of men and therefore be able to comfort, strengthen and sympathize. He draws near to throw light upon the mysteries of sin, sorrow and death.

Sin. We are all bruised reeds twisted by our rown desires and passions. We have gone out of the way to follow that which we think is of value. Later we have found there is no satisfaction. Jesus Christ has faced the stress of temptation and has overcome. He is able to give us strength to resist and stand. He will straighten the bruised reed, the man who has been bruised and defiled by his sins. He is tender-hearted towards him, full of patience and hope. His looks with compassion upon the bruised reed and will straighten if the man will help and desires to stand upright.

In a voice full of love He says: "Son, daughter, thy sins be forgiven thee; take up thy bed and walk." Obey in the new found confidence and discover that He speaks the power word. Perhaps there is no truth so inspiring as to say to one's self when the wave of temptation sweeps down: "I know I am a conqueror in Christ's power. I know I can stand." Fill your mind and imagination with the thought of conquest and victory and, lo, the desire to sin passes away.

BORROW. The smoking flax lamp also signifies the light that is dark and dimmed through tears of sorrow and heart break. He, the Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief, whose bodily frame was wrung with anguish, draws near to say: "Cast your burden upon Me, for I care for you." In the Garden He offered His pain, sorrow and anguish to God the Father Who gave Him strength to drink the cup. Consciously, deliberately offer your sorrow to God; dedicate it to Him Who knows the heart break and loneliness. Slowly the light becomes clearer and the flame of hope and courage grows brighter because the Lord Jesus, the God-Man, blows upon you with His breath and you are quickened in the inner man. Lo, the Comforter is with you.

DEATH. We are born to die. The day of our death must come sooner or later. It is the great mystery. Here also God draws near in Christ Jesus and says: "I am He that liveth and was dead, and, behold, I am alive for evermore." God the Christ passed through the great mystery and understands. As a great teacher reverently said: "On the other shore we shall have more of God."

The Lord Jesus in His glorified humanity will be with you as you enter into that dread valley and you will hear His words, His voice full of tenderness: "Lo, I am with you all the days. Fear not." Through death you will enter into the nearer Presence of God and His holy angels and all the Company of Heaven.

"Thanks be unto God for His Unspeakable Gift."

God Prepares A People

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 25 is Exodus 11:4-2:36, especially 12:21-28, the Golden Text being Deuteronomy 7:6, "The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a people for his own possession."

GOD HAD a great mission for his people Israel to perform for him and for all the world as his chosen channel through which to bring into the world a Redeemer whose salvation was to bless all the nations of the world. This required long years of preparation along various lines.

Prepared by Suffering

The nation's preparation included the discipline of suffering. As Joseph's hardships in Egypt doubtless made of him a stronger and better man than he could have made of himself under the pampering care of his father, so his nation must be tried in the furnace of persecution during the four centuries of their bondage in Egypt. During these years of trial God no more forgot his ancient people Israel than he has forgotten or overlooked their wrongs to-day. Always "behind the dim unknown, standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above His own." During all those years "God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob, and God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them."

Prepared by Sacrifice

In the fullness of time, under the leadership of his servant Moses God revealed his plan for the nations redemption. His hand fell heavily in judgment upon Pharoah and the Egyptian people in ten terrific plagues before Pharaoh yielded to the insistent demand of Moses and Aaron. "Let my people go. The last and most terrible of these plagues brought death to the firstborn of man and beast in every Egyptian household "from the firstborn of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the firstborn of the maid-servent behind the mill." But from this plague of death Israel was saved by the sacrifice of a lamb for every household, whose blood was sprinkled upon the doors of their houses. At the sight of this blood, evidencing the faith and obedience of their households, the angel of death "passed over" their houses and scared their firstborn. So the lamb they sacrificed was known as the "passover" lamb. This sacrificial substitute became a type and foreshadowing of Christ, the Lamb of God, through the shedding of whose blood we are saved from sin and death.

Prepared by Separation

In Israel's hasty departure from Egypt there was not time for the usual process of preparing bread for their last meal there and for their journey. So the bread was hastily baked without leaven or yeast. Consequently, in the years that followed, no leaven was permitted in their households during this feast. This custom became a symbol of the nation's separation from things that would defile the people morally or spiritually. They were to be "a holy nation," living unto God and by this separateness being prepared for their divine mission.

Prepared by Sacrament

Israel was not to be allowed to forget its redemption from bondage. This memory was kept fresh through the centuries by the solemn repetition of the drama of redemption in the sacramental observance of the passover supper whose significance they were to teach their children, saying, "It is the sacrifice of Jehovah's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses."

A National Message

By the Late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

This most beautiful form of words breaks upon the ear with the rolling harmony of a mighty organ. One seems to see the place of the throne of the Lord and the overspreading glory of the Almighty. One seems to apprehend the most mystical spirituality in the passage, and the beauty of it comes home to the soul. But that it has any practical bearing upon the everyday things of life one fails to appreciate.

For instance, that there is a hiding-place from the pestilence that walketh in darkness, and the arrow that flieth at noonday, we are hardly prepared to admit.

We would not rob the passage of a vestige of its beauty, neither would we for a moment dim its essential spirituality. At the same time we should like to analyse it and see if there are not here marvellous things which affect, not only our spiritual life, the life of our soul, but also our individual and national life in the most wonderful manner. The Psalm is the Covenant God made with Israel set to music. It is the Oratorio of the Divine Law.

Where is the secret place of the Most High?

It is most certainly the place where the Lord hides His especial treasure.

What is the especial treasure of the Most High?

The answer is in Exodus XIX, 3-6. "And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain saying, Thus shalt thou say to the House of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel: Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bear you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself. Now therefore, if ye will obey My voice indeed and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people; for all the earth is Mine; and ye shall be unto Me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which ye shall speak unto the children of Israel."

Thus we see that the especial treasure of the Lord is the House of Jacob, the Children of Israel, the Kingdom nation, the priestly nation. These names are sufficient to identify thoroughly God's especial treasure.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Probably there is no part of the Ancient Wisdom more misunderstood than the command: "Kill out ambition," for the corollary "Work as those work who have ambition" is largely ignored. We see the same thing in the Christian teachings for few remember that "faith without works is dead. Yet the meaning is plain, to do whatever one has to do, not primarily for the sake of the reward, but for the sake of the work. The creative artist best exemplifies this, for if he were to work thinking only of the selling value, his work would suffer in quality. To the extent he loses himself in his creation so is his genius better expressed. The same thing holds true in all the various avenues of the spirit working through man, self and thoughts of self always mar and distort the expression of God. The artist is always dissatisfied with the result of his labors, because of the imperfection of his medium, and the impossibility of perfectly expressing his conception in material terms. His ideal is forever beyond his capabilities. The same thing holds true in all adventures of the Spirit. The Spirit is forever seeking to express more perfectly through man. Man, being what he is, has a share of the creative power of God. When we speak of man we obviously do not mean the egocentric slave of illusion, the outer man, but we mean the man celestial, the image and likeness of the Heavenly Father. To such, all things are possible, and to us likewise but only to the degree that the celestial man can function through the flesh and blood instrument of the body. For the outer man is of self, while the inner man is of God.

It is a mistake to think that religionists are the only instruments of the Spirit of God, for He is no respecter of religions, creeds or sects as such. He that does, or sincerely tries to do the will of the Father is of the brotherhood of the Christ, no matter what belief he holds. For every one of us has a definite objects or mission in life and the sooner we discover what it is and seek to fulfill it, the sooner will happiness be ours. No man can really feel contented within himself, no matter what material success he may have until he has found and entered the channel in which he may best fulfill the needs of the psyche. Nearly all the problems of today, both individual and general are due to psychic maladjustment, which reflects itself generally in social unrest and upheaval, and individually in bodily and mental ills. It is a poor doctor who would treat symptoms only and not seek to remedy the cause of the sickness and the same holds true in social and spiritual sickness. The Golden Rule is good common sense but how rarely it is applied?

The world today need vigorous spiritual leadership, not in the fulminations against Communism and all other "isms"; not in winning men into various forms of belief, all these are but outer things; but a leadership in a determined effort to bring the ethics of Jesus and Buddha into the fabric of our lives; to base society upon the rock of brotherly love; not as it is now based on the treacherous sands of self and self-interest.

WINNIPEG (C.P.) — Although but three years old, Allan Randall, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Allan's latest movie appearance was as youthful Victor McLaglen in Wee Willie Kinkie.

Cabinet Ministers To Survey Western "Dust Bowl"

In an effort to thoroughly gauge the immensity of the problem and make plans to cope with it, Hon. James Gardiner (Left) and Hon. Norman Rogers (Right), federal ministers of agriculture and labor respectively, will shortly begin a two weeks tour of the southern Saskatchewan and Alberta "dust-bowls," the sector of Canada's western plains that once was the world's greatest wheat-producing belt. Years of drought and soil drifting without any tangible harvest and another parched season in which no crop is visible and even feed for stock a bare possibility, have left much of the area arid waste, with scenes such as that shown above, the once-busy grain binder buried under the same sand drifts which pile against the deserted barns, a common sight. In the oval is a close-up of the western tragedy—weak, stunted plants striving to live and grow in the waterless desert of dust. The cabinet ministers may prolong their visit should they find necessity warrants.

The Human Side Of The News

BY EDWIN C. HILL

A descendant of Jules Verne, a magistrate, has been told by the French Ministry of Justice not to fight a duel with a lawyer who had taken offence at certain remarks. Therefore Paris is to be spared at least one of these so-called affairs of honor, which wind up generally in a scratch and an embrace of reconciliation.

It may be true, as the most active of duelling referees, Jean Joseph Renaud, says, that many deaths result from pistols and swords at daybreak. But the public doesn't hear of them, and it can be taken for granted that the public would hear about them if the number were considerable. Even in the days o fNapoleon III., when some wag insisted that the authorities take action to relieve the congestion caused by duellists in the woods around Paris, the engagements were anything save mortal combats.

Julien Duvivier, a motion picture director, recently called the turn on the false heroics when he replied as follows to a challenge from a writer:

"The custom is stupid which compels individuals to caress each other's sides with the point of a sword. If I must take in hand a blade of steel, I regret in this case being unable to film the scene because it would not be lacking in buffoonery."

Hungarians Serious Duellists.

If it had been Hungary instead of France, M. Duvivier would have had to go through with the match or face ostracism, for the Hungarians still take their duelling seriously. It will be recalled that Budapest was the habitat of the fire-eating and roly-poly Franz Sargos who, a few months ago, threatened to take on the whole city, man by man, because of some gossip about his marriage and his wife's money.

The German government, having lifted the ban which the republic had placed upon duelling in the students' corps, has now extended to all Nazis the right to demand and to give satisfaction for insults and affronts. Heretofore it was the privilege only of the upper classes, officers and students. Among the students the scars received in their bouts are badges of honor.

The weapon used is called a Schlaeger, a sword with a blunt point and sharp edges. The body is protected, all but the cheeks, and in the contest it is not a matter of being victorious by escaping a slashed face. To the one with the deepest cut belongs the spoils. There must be no retreating, no flinching, no attempt to escape a blow. Not to stand up and suffer the wounds is supposed to be cowardice, and three such failures means expulsion from the corps. A particularly ugly scar is often more important to a student's success than high marks in his studies.

Queen Victoria Ended Duelling.

Duelling to the death is a survival of the laws of trial by combat which originated in the Teutonic tribes and which remained a part of the code of England until as late as 1817. In that year a man charged with the murder of a woman demanded a trial by combat with his accuser, the brother of the girl, rather than one by a jury of his peers. The court found that he was within his rights, and he went free when his challenge was declined. It remained for Queen Victoria to put an end to duels in England. Not only did she have officers of the army and navy cashiered for taking part in them, but she also refused to receive at court all persons who had participated in duels.

Two hundred years before Victoria, a French king, Louis XIII., in 1626, decided that his country was being depopulated through swordplay, and he decreed that he who fought a duel would forfeit his head. One of his nobles, the Count de Boutteville, did not take the king seriously and made a test case out of the law by running through another fellow at high noon in the main square of the city of Paris. Off came his head, and the other gallants decided it was better to put aside their rapiers.

Later the great Napoleon, as Emperor of France, was confirmed in his opposition to these affairs of honor. He said that a good duellist was a bad soldier, and his reply to the challenge from the King of Sweden was to offer to send a fencing master to give a lesson to His Majesty.

Scripture—Exodus 11:4-13:36

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buschor

To bring Pharaoh to a willingness to let God's people go, God sent 10 terrible plagues upon the Egyptians. The last of these was the death of the first born in every family, including Pharaoh's.

The Israelites were saved by the sacrifice of a lamb whose blood was sprinkled on their door posts. At the sight of this blood the angel of death passed over and spared their first born.

The slain lamb was eaten by each family on the night of their departure. They ate hurriedly, eager to set out on their journey which was to end their long period of slavery.

Having eaten the supper they departed from Egypt laden with gifts from their former masters. They kept alive the memory by observing this supper.

Stealing or Starving?

There was on old story in a new setting in Edmonton court. Mrs. Vera Krawchuck of Beverley, a municipality near Edmonton, was charged with the theft of groceries. On her behalf it was made clear she had taken the goods to feed her children. There was not a scrap of food in the house; there was no money, and apparently there was no way in which to get any.

There may be details of this case about which we know nothing at all, but from the meagre report it does seem to suggest the pertinent question: SHould this mother have allowed her children to starve or should she have stolen to keep them alive?

Had the children actually died of starvation there would have been a great deal said regarding the case, and no doubt many people would have had a spell of becoming indignant. We have nothing to do with making a decision in a case of this kind, but it is hard to see why the women should be punished. It may be that she and her children have already undergone their full share of it.

The Passing of J. T. Clark

Joseph T. Clark, editor of the Toronto Star, has gone. That is what the wire said, and it is difficult to say much in a general way. The urge comes to make it more personal. There are a number of older newspaper editors throughout the country who will feel like saying "The Star, has lost a great editor but I have lost a great friend."

That name J. T. Clark was on the door of his office, but it was "Joe" Clark who was inside, Joe with his collection of old photographs upon the wall, Joe with his pad of paper and a short lead pencil for the typewriter was not to his liking.

We referred to Mr. Clark as a great editor. And he was. Nor is the reason far to find. He had in full measure two qualities which make for greatness in any field, and they were simplicity and sincerity. If there were two sides to a question Joe would instinctively turn to see what could be done for the folk who seemed to possess the least strength and the smaller measure of equipment.

Like a good many others of the old school Mr. Clark entered the world of printing offices and editorial desks by way of the village printing office. But it was not long before he ceased setting up things which other people had written and started writing things for other people to set. We do not know how many people there are who follow their daily vocation because they would rather do it than anything else. Often enough we have heard men say they were going to do something else when they were through with work. But Joe Clark was not that way. There was nothing he would rather have been doing than having a desk and some paper before him, and thereon he would explain and argue, denounce and praise in a method which was of his own making. And it was a good method.

Mr. Clark had been in newspaper offices for a long time as years go. He took a long time in the making, but it takes a long time to make an editor and a gentleman like Joseph T. Clark.

Never Late in 30 Years

Sergeant John Smith of the Sherman Avenue police station in Hamilton has been on the force for 30 years and never once in that time has he been late in reporting for duty.

Probably there are other people with records of that length, or even covering a longer period of years, but it is a trifle hard to understand how a man can so time his movements for 30 years that he would always arrive on time. Pretty much everything around the house would have to be regulated by his coming and going. His hours for meals would be dictated by clock-like precision. He would have to shove back his chair and reach for his cap at about the same moment each day, and probably the neighbors up and down the street could set their kitchen clocks by his movements.

One may admire a record of that sort and yet hesitate to engage in competition for similar honors. It would require a greater degree of precision and determination than most of us possess.

Learning to Swim

Mr. and Mrs. M. Seitz of Buffalo and some friends were in the water at Pleasant Beach, about ten miles from Port Colborne. They had one of those large water balls with which they were playing. When the ball was thrown to Mrs. Seitz she missed it and started out toward deeper water to recover it. Reports say she stepped into a hole and disappeared. Her husband immediately went to her assistance and he also stepped into the same deep place. Neither of them reappeared and it was some time after before the bodies were recovered.

During the summer season there must be thousands of people in the water who cannot swim, and many of them are in water with which they are not familiar. They do not know a thing about the depth which is a short distance from where they may be playing and having a general good time.

The Examiner has been printing a series of articles within recent weeks on how to learn to swim; they were prepared by a young man at the local Y. M. C. A. who is an expert in such matters, and he assures us swimming is not at all difficult. Had either husband or wife in that Port Colborne disaster been able to swim it would have meant only a few strokes to go out in safety to recover their water ball. The fact that there was a deep hole there would have made no difference at all.

About Sir John Hawkins

A story from Kitchener says lower school pupils at the Collegiate had a little trouble in their history papers with John Bunyan and the Magna Charta and also with Sir John Hawkins. A good many adults have also experienced a little difficulty the same way. Especially with the Magna Charta. They never seem to have decided whether the barons of that particular day were providing for the rights of the people or were looking after their own interests.

The story says that one pupil wrote about Sir John Hawkins, saying he sold negro ships to Spanish-America, thus causing a war." The Examiner was a little curious to know how the average adult would stand up under a question about Sir John Hawkins. We asked five men at noon today if they knew of him or about him, and they were just five average people such as one meets in stores and offices. Not one of them was familiar with Sir John, but three of them were rather interested in knowing what he had been up to, as they hadn't noticed anything about him in the papers. The explanation of that is that Sir John Hawkins lived and moved in the period between 1532-95, and the Kitchener youth who identified him with the slave trade was correct enough; he was also a contemporary of Sir Francis Drake, and in his quieter days was an M. P. for Plymouth. We can laugh and chuckle about some of the things which students write on their examination papers, but the blunt truth is the country has thousands of adults who seem to be getting on well enough and they could not answer half the questions the pupils do.

P. S. —We looked in the Encyclopedia to find out what Sir John Hawkins did which was worthy of mention.

Eating On The Train

The general superintendent of Sleeping and Dining Car Services of the Canadian National Railways explains how dining car service is being made attractive to children. There are special menus for them; high chairs and bibs will be provided if needed. So it would seem they are going after them young. The plan is to encourage the children to feel at home in the dining car.

Perhaps people today accept that as being just another step in the general advancement of things but judged by the standards of the Tenth Concession of a good many years ago it is like packing up the household goods and moving off to a new, a wonderful and an unexplored world.

Getting a ride on a train was something like adventure in the raw then. It was spoken of days in advance; it was a reward for hard work and general good behavior. It was an event for which preparation had to be made and in which anticipation could find scope for fullest development. A ride on the train of two hours was something to talk about on return.

There were no dining cars, though. Not on the train which ran through the village and which most people took. In the late evening there was a through train which did not stop and there was a diner on that but it was difficult to get a good look as the thing went by.

Dining in the coach with the red-plush seats was different to eating at home. As soon as the train started people seemed to feel the need for nourishment, and most of the eating was done from a pasteboard box. There were sandwiches and cookies with caraway seeds on them and we generally stopped at the store on the way to the station to get bananas. There were no thermos bottles then, but there was water in a tank at the rear of the car, and it was considered quite a trick to go there and press the little handle to fill the tin cup which had G. T. R. stamped on it.

Possibly they do things differently in the dining cars of today, but then banana skins or anything that was not needed was just tossed out the window and the empty box was placed in the little railed-off affair above the seats along with the rest of the family belongings. There was no dish washing needed as the only dish used was the tin cup with G.T.R. stamped on it. There was always something nice about eating on a train and we suppose it is that old notion the dining car people are trying to exploit in this advanced age.

Loose Gravel Not New

Within recent days there have been reports of at least two car accidents in which loose gravel on the road was mentioned. And since then there has been comment made in several papers about the loose gravel. It is pointed out that it is dangerous and that is probably so especially if there is much of it and the driver hits it hard enough. And by hitting it hard we mean at high speed.

Apart from our paved roads we do not see how there will ever be a condition where there is not some loose gravel on the road. If the gravel were not used the road would become filled with pot-holes. Traffic on any road has the effect of throwing the gravel to the side, and that is why graders and scrapers are used to bring it back and place it near the centre.

Until we find some newer or better way of keeping our dirt roads in shape we will have to keep on using gravel, and gravel is a loose thing at any time. We never saw it in any other condition.

Drivers of cars know all about this. They know there is gravel on our non-paved roads. They probably have driven through a great deal of it, and they know the effect it has on a car when driving at even a fairly high rate of speed.

Where a road has been freshly or heavily gravelled a warning to that effect should always be posted. But loose gravel is on these roads all the time and it is a known hazard. There is actually not the degree of surprise in it which a reading of some of these accident stories might indicate.

Victim of the Machine

August Groebler, 80 years of age, headsman of Prussia, is out of a job. He is just another victim of the mechanical age. For many years he has gone about the country as the executioner where the law called for capital punishment. His father did the same thing before him and so did his grandfather.

Now it is all changed and a mechanical guillotine takes the place of the man with the axe. Groebler had two apprentices working with him. They attended all the executions and apparently it was by observation they were supposed to reach a degree of efficiency where they could step in when the man of four score years could do no more.

Being the headsman of Prussia was somewhat of a side-line for Grosbler, as he has a good laundry business in Magdeburg. Being an executioner is a vocation which has always called for considerable dress and fixing. Groebler and his two assistants always appeared in evening dress top hats and white gloves. The great axe with which the work was done was carried in a velvet case.

It is recorded that friends have come to pay their respects to Groebler and express regret that his honorable vocation has been taken from him. The aged gentleman is not depressed as he was always in doubt as to whether either of his apprentices would develop the technique required to do a workmanlike job. To those requiring his services it will make little difference, and Herr Groebler will now have more time to attend to his laundry business.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Cars are to cost more next year but that will probably not prevent people from cracking them up.

A wind storm has done $100,000 damage in the Last Mountain district. Saskatchewan gets lots of weather but it all seems to be bad.

A Toronto story tells of a deaf boy who was injured while roller-skating on the road. The street is no place for roller skating even on the part of those who are able to hear well.

The Ontario Provincial Firemen's Association is planning many contests for the annual convention this year and we hasten to suggest that a special competition be held to see which chief can shout "Turn off the water" the loudest.

Probably Premier Hepburn figures early in October as a suitable election date because he knows Earl Rowe is likely to be driving race horses at the fall fairs about that time.

The next election in Ontario, what with the C.I.O. and the C.C.F. and the L.O.L. and a few other combinations, will probably be remembered as the alphabet election

HOT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When it is ninety in the shade, and when new records are being made, I suffer quite a lot; 'tis then I try to train my brain, and set it on some cooler train, where it won't be so hot.

¶ I try to think of winter time, when I had packing on my spine, and wool around my knees; when I tied ear muffs on my head, and when my nose was blue and red, when ice was in the breeze.

¶ And there's so much that's printed too, of what the heated days will do, to those who are exposed; I read of some big boiler shop, where men at work just had to stop, and so the place was closed.

¶ And so I look for better ways to guide me through these heated days, so I can work and thrive; I want to be a healthy guy, to greet the change in by-and-by, when it will turn to cool.

¶ And so I sought a learned friend, who's packed with knowledge of no end, his method is profound; for he digs deep to get his words, and all his adjectives and verbs, possess a booming sound.

¶ I saw him coming down the street, in ways sedate he worked his feet, yes, he was deep in thought; I stopped him but he mopped his head, and this is all the wise man said—gee whiz, but ain't it hot!

HOW many kernels can grow from one seed? Not likely there have been many records kept, but here at least is something on which to start:

Bilton Derbyshire, a farmer living two miles west of Wheatley on No. 5 highway, believes he has found something worthy of note in the form of wheat. From one seed grew clump of 121 stalks of bald wheat, each having a head averaging 20 seeds. Mr. Derbyshire estimates there were about 2,500 kernels from one seed.

THE LABOR SITUATION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The question could be asked why the need of strikes? In this day of enlightenment and higher idealism, the word strike should be removed from our vocabulary of language. Capital and labor are two outstanding expressions, and are indespensable to each other, and each should be clothed with sacred dignity.

Why not humanize the whole situation? Are we not all human beings, and have our individual places in this world, and our individual earning power which should be recognized? why then this spirit of hostility when there should be co-operation. There is unquestionable value in co-operation and learning to work together in one common interest.

Canadian labor has been free from the tendency to resort to violence, and British traditions of lawfulness are an immense asset, and if the labor men think that they are not always faring very well and right or wrong his position should be discussed with reasonable consideration. It is clear that in strikes the employees are at a greater disadvantage, compared with their employers who can afford to remain idle longer while their men will starve if they do not work. The reasonable situation is, if labor and capital have difference of opinion let them get together and settle things amicably. Even government interference creates hostility.

THE LOCAL STRIKE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In an editorial article in your paper dealing with the strike of textile workers in this city you asked who was getting the benefit of tariff protection. You were right enough when you said the question was always placed that way around election times when we are told we must protect our workers against the low wages paid in competing countries. We have the picture worked out before our own eyes in the city now, and it does seem that the workers in the mills are not any better off because there is protection.

One of the reasons for this may be that governments do often enough change the extent of protection and the pressure to have that done is increasing because the British textile industry is pressing at all times for easier access to the Canadian markets in return for the market which is afforded our farmers in Britain.

I am not advancing that as a reason why workers in textile plants should be so poorly paid. It would be better for the workers themselves and better for the entire community were the wages brought up to a living standard. Nor can I admire the manner of the company in dealing with this situation. The people who have the final say and who can make decisions should be here working until there is a settlement. An occasional trip to the scene of the trouble is not sufficient.

HELP THE STRIKERS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A few words on the strike situation.

The employees of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited are striking for better working conditions and higher wages, to enable them to live as Canadians should be able to live. People receiving as little as they could not possibly have very much "ahead of them." Consequently there is no doubt many families and single folk too, who are feeling the pinch.

Those people are not loafers or shirkers, foreigners or agitators. The recognition of their Union is not an issue in the strike. They want work, and ask only fair treatment and a living wage for their labor. The Company has cut off all negotiations. So I think it is time the citizens of Peterborough took a hand in the matter, to do two things. First, to show the Company that the people of Peterborough are supporting the workers, and thus hasten the settlement of the strike, and second, to assist the Relief Committee of the workers in soliciting funds to adequately do their work.

The collectors sent out by the workers have met with a splendid response as they went from door to door, and no doubt the Tag Day on Saturday will meet with success. That is fine. But I doubt if the citizens of Peterborough, professional and business men and women, and labor generally, realize the amount of money necessary to keep the 500 striking workers while out. It seems to me that everyone working in the city ought to pledge themselves 25c, 50c, $1.00 or more each week until the strike is settled.

This is a most important matter to all citizens of our city. Therefore it is my belief that a Citizens' Committee should be formed at once, representative of all sections of the city, all shades of political thought, and all religious connections. There are many things such a Committee could do.

I should like to communicate with any who think likewise.

Sincerely yours,
HOMER BORLAND.

Don't Rock the Boat.

(From the Lethbridge Herald.)

ONE cannot read the news dispatches from Western Canada these days without being struck by the immense area which is subject to drought, some of it for the sixth or seventh successive year. The are a extends practically from the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border right across Saskatchewan to Taber, with some areas, of course, more favored where light crops will be harvested. The Herald was told this week on good authority that the Moose Jaw railway division of the Canadian Pacific system would not this year produce a million bushels. There have been years when it has produced more than 50,000,00 bushels.

In the face of such a catastrophe there is liable to be some warped thinking about the drought situation, just as there was warped thinking back in the years of the war when, with wheat of $2.20 a bushel, a lot of people thought Western prairie wheat land was worth $100 an acre. There are people today who can see nothing else but complete removal of the people who for many years made a good living from the southern prairie wheat lands, and slowing the land to go back to grass and ranching.

Such a proposal is silly—just as silly as to say that the drought which struck the North American continent in 1934 and again in 1936 would become permanent. It's only a couple of years ago that wells and springs and river in Great Britain were drying up. It is only a short time ago that the west coast of North American suffered such a serious drought that there wasn't enough water left in the rivers to operate the hydro-electric plants that light Seattle and other coast cities. Yet on June 30 this year as much rain fell at Portland as in the whole of June in 1935 and 1936 put together.

Taking a particular year or two in our weather history and drawing a general conclusion from the figures of temperature and precipitation is as dangerous as to gamble in Alberta oil stocks. It can't be done with any intelligence. The South Alberta country went through a more severe drought from 1917 to 1922 than it has since 1930.

What we must do is to take a long range view of the situation, try to keep the agriculture we now have a going concern, and live in the confident expectation that a cycle of wet years will follow a cycle of dry ones. It would be an impossible task for Canada to move three or four thousand farm families out of the drought area. No sooner would we have them moved than the wet years would come back.

Let's not rock the boat, but let us resolve that, when the wet cycle does return, we will be a little more careful about putting by reserves in the good years to tide over the bad ones. If we did that we would have less of foolish optimism in the big crop years and less just-as-foolish pessimism in the drought cycles.

COARSE FISH.

(Port Arthur News Chronicle)

FISHERMEN coming back from their expeditions to district lakes this season have reported, on different occasions, the presence in them of a number of "foreign" fish, mostly the coarser pike and suckers. These fish are not helpful to the trout and the bass which are the more sought after game fish, to the trout especially, the bass having more powers of self defence.

Some mystery has been expressed about the entry of these fish to lakes where they were formerly not known. A local fisherman has expressed an opinion which appears probable. It is that they have been taken in as minnows by fishermen intending to use them as bait for the trout or bass, and who, unthinkingly, have thrown them while still alive and unused as bait, into the water.

The suggestion is added that game fishermen should be careful in this connection as it would be quite possible to ruin a lake for trout fishing by stocking it with pike even inadvertantly.

PRIDE IN FARMING.

(Windsor Star)

PERHAPS more than most people the farmer takes a pride in his task. He is proud of a new-born calf, of a litter of pigs, of a fine horse, and of flourishing crops. It is for this reason that those engaged in agriculture, even in times of adversity, get some satisfaction out of their efforts. This thought was brought out by Arthur G. Street, noted British writer and farmer, in an address at Vineland Station.

"It is a great thing to hold dominion over so many acres in your country and say: 'I may at my will change the face of this land. This year I will grow hay in this field and corn in that. It is a great source of pride to do that, but a still greater source of pride to leave the land better than you found it," he stated.

TAKING THEM OFF

(Detroit Saturday Night)

THE heat has finally got us again As usual men go around dressed up with ties tight around their necks, suit coats on and mopping their perspiring brows. Why- Because like sheep we follow the old idea that it is impolite to appear in public places in negligee. To wear short sleeves and an open necked shirt might cause a panic.

Women would probably swoon at the sight of a man sitting at the table without his suit coat and a tie that does not bind but darn near chokes him to death during these warm days.

Once again we raise the cry for a leader to lead us out of the swelter and demand the men have a right to be comfortable If we can't find a leader at least we can all get together and take our clothes off.

Value of Camping

(Calgary Herald)

LIFE in the open teaches these youngsters selfreliance, it develops initiative, and adds to the joy of living—particularly when there is little interference beyond the necessary supervision—from grown-ups.

But perhaps the greatest advantage is the spirit of unselfishness which camping develops. Pleasure comes from what one does for others, not in what fellow campers do for you, and every camper is likely to learn this the first day under canvas. It is in camp that a boy or girl learns better than anywhere else perhaps the art of how to "fit in." And above all, how to make friends. There lies the answer to successful camping— the ability to get along with companions. The sooner this lesson is learned the smoother will be the pathway through life.

Youths Conquer Yukon Peak Highest Unclimbed In America

Reach Summit Of Mt. Lucania At 17,150 Feet On July 9—Mt. Steele Two Days After

EMERGENCY RATIONS

VALDEZ, Alaska, July24 — (CP). —A special flag of the National Geographical Society fluttered to-day in the breezes atop Mount Lucania in the Canadian Yukon, a symbol of man's victory over the hitherto highest unclimbed mountain in North America.

Word the peak was ascended rached here yesterday with the arrival from Burwash Landing of Bradford Washburn, Jr., of Cambridge, Mass., and Robert H. Bates of Philadelphia.

The youthful climbers, sponsored by the Harvard Institute of Geographical Exploration and the New England Museum of Natural History, reached the 17,150-foot summit of Mount Lucania on July 9, they said. On July 11 they scaled nearby Mount Steele, 16,600 feet high. The exploration started on June 18.

Before they began the fight back to civilization they were reduced to emergency rations. Washburn and Bates struggled down Wolf Creek Glacier to the Donjey River where flood waters necessitated a 40-mile detour to a ford.

When 20 miles from Kluane Lake and the nearest settlement, they met a 10-horse pack train from a hunter's lodge, and at the hunter's invitation spent two days resting before flying into Burwash Landing.

SENATORS DRAFT NEW COURT BILL

Predict Congress Anxious For Adjournment Will Pass It Speedily

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP)—Senators who fought for five months over the United States Supreme Court Reform Bill advocated by President Roosevelt joined amicably today in drafting a skeleton measure to speed up lower Federal courts.

They predicted that Congress, clamoring for adjournment, would enact it quickly. The bill will substitute for the administration proposal which the Senate discarded yesterday 70 to 20.

Thus the Legislative "battle of a century" ended.

Opposition leaders called the Senate vote a complet rejection of Roosevelt's proposal.

The new measure will not touch on that high tribunal. It will authorize increasing the number of lower court judges on the basis of need rather than age.

Direct appeal of constitutional cases to the Supreme Court will be permitted, and the Attorney-General will be empowered to intervene in cases involving the Federal Government.

The new measure will be handled as an amendment to a House of Representatives bill pending before the Judiciary Committee.

It was still possible that out of the Judiciary Committee would come some constitutional amendment for compulsory retirement of Supreme Court justices at a certain age.

CHINESE SUSPECT JAP MAJOR DRIVE

Report Nipponese Pouring Troops And Supplies Into Tientsin

PEIPING, July 24 (AP)—Fear was growing today among Chinese here that a major Japanese drive was impending against North China.

According to advices received in foreign circles from Tientsin, the Japanese army is making elaborate preparations for large-scale troop movements. Hundreds of carts, mules, horses and equipment for a protracted military campaign in the interior have arrived at Tientsin from Manchoukuo.

The Japanese army headquarters at Tientsin has placed orders for 600,000 gallons of ordinary gasoline and all available aviation gasoline in China.

Chinese sources reported the Japanese army had completed three airports in the vicinity of Tientsin and one at Kayoliying, 20 miles north of Peiping.

Troops of the Chinese 37th Division, considered by the Japanese to be inimical to them, were continuing their withdrawal from the positions they have held west of ePiping since July 7.

Withdrawal was understood to have been ordered in compliance with an agreement between local military authorities to end the tense situation by a mutual evacuation of the contested area.

A Japanese army spokesman at Tientsin declared, however, that the agreement did not "provide for the Japanese to withdraw, but instead olely for the Chinese to withraw."

U.S. To Sell Helium To Foreign Powers

Washington, July 24 (AP).

THE United States Senate Military Committee approved today a bill permitting sale of helium gas for use in foreign passenger-carrying airships.

The measure, considered at extensive hearings after the destruction of the hydrogen-inflated German dirigible Hindenburg, also provides for a government monopoly of the rare helium gas.

COPELAND'S CHOICE STARTS A BATTLE

Tammany Picks Senator For Mayor Over Democratic Nominee Whalen

NEW YORK, July 24 — (AP). — Tammany Hall's endorsement of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland for Mayor over Grover A. Whalen, nominee for Democratic organizations in the four boroughs outside Manhattan, to-day forecast one of the bitterest primary battles in New York City's political history.

A campaign with the new deal as a paramount issue was assured when supporters of ailing Chieftain James J. Doolings, backing Copeland, overrode Whalen adherents by a vote of 15 11-12 to 8 5-12.

Whalen, World's Fair head and a vigorous New Dealer, has the support of Democratic leaders in Bronx, Brooklyn, Queen's and Richmond boroughs who are friendly to Postmaster-General James A. Farley. Copeland, supported by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, has opposed many Roosevelt administration measures.

As Democratic ranks split in dissent, fiery Mayor Fiorello Laguardia's campaign for re-election gained momentum with his endorsement again by substantially the same group of fusionists who backed his successful 1932 campaign.

TENSION EASING IN NORTH CHINA

Japs Fail To Block Unloading Of German Arms Cargo

TIENTSIN, July 24.—(AP)—Tension in North China apparently eased today though the influx of Japanese war supplies continued and seasoned observers pointed to danger spots where friction might renew the dispute between Chinese and Japanese military forces.

The Chinese withdrawal of the 37th division from the Peiping area met Japan's first condition for settling the trouble that broke out July 7 during Japanese troops manoeuvres west of Peiping and touched off the crisis.

Transportation and other activities in the Hopeh-Chahar district approached normal for the first time since the tension arose.

A Japanese army officer at Tangku, Tientsin's seaport, declared however "this situation is not yet over by any means".

Two Japanese merchantmen were anchored at Tangku unloading light tanks and munitions on the crowded docks that have become a vital part of Japan's system for bringing men and war supplies into China by sea.

Japanese attempted unsuccessfully to halt the unloading of a German vessel bringing rifles, munitions and machines destined for the Chinese army.

THIRD ALL COWS HAVE MASTITIS

Veterinaries Fear Widespread Impurity Of Milk Unless Check Is Accomplished

LONDON, Ont., July 24.—(CP)—Declaring that one-third of all cows in the province are afflicted in various degrees with a disease called mastitis which turns milk into pus, experts at the Ontario Veterinary Association and Central Canada Veterinary Association convention gave special study to the elimination of this problem at their session at the Ontario Arena, Queen's Park. Widespread impurity of milk is likely to result unless the condition is checked, it was declared.

While some animals are seriously afflicted, others have it to an extent to be scarcely noticeable.

Men who put on a special clinic demonstration for the assembled veterinarians included Dr. R. Watkin, Guelph, who gave the bacteriological diagnosis; Dr. V. R. Brown of the Ontario Veterinary College whose work was a demonstration of the anatomical structure of the udder; Dr. R. A. McIntosh, Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, who performed an examination of udders for mastitis, and Dr. F. Cote, Guelph, who discussed measures of sanitation and control.

Later in the day practical demonstrations were held, this time on small animals. Operative technique and the administration of anaesthesia were studies as well as the treatment of fractures.

Other speakers included Dr. A. A. Kingscote, on "How to Detect Common Parasite Eggs"; Dr. H. R. Cotter of Stamford Centre, who gave a demonstration of stomach tube technique in the horse; Dr. George Cairns, Toronto, who spoke on "Application of Anesthetics in the Horse."

The small animal clinics was conducted by Dr. Alan Secord, Toronto; Dr. R. L. Mummery, Hamilton, and Dr. J. A. Campbell, Toronto.

Barristers at Cumberland, England, decided by a toss of a coin who should defend a prisoner who appealed for legal aid.

New German Tax Fresh Blow At Jews

BERLIN, July 24—(AP).—A new tax on German subjects exempt from military service and likely to hit Jews most heavily becomes effective on September 1.

The tax will add 50 per cent. to the present income tax for the first two years a German normally would fulfill military obligations. It applies to males born in or since 1914.

Jews are disqualified from service and so must pay the tax. Men who pay no income tax will be required to pay a minimum military tax, to be announced later.

FRANCO'S FORCES SUFFER HEAVILY

Five-Day Attack Fails To Regain Old Siege Grip On Madrid

MADRID, July 24.—(AP)—Insurgent pressure on the flanks of Gen. Jose Miaja's western front salient was reported weakened today with the government still holding its two-week old positions despite five days of counter-thrusts.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's army was said to have suffered heavy losses in the desperate effort to retain its siege grip on Madrid.

Franco's troops concentrated their drive today on the tip of the "pocket" which Miaja's militiamen, artillery and planes had opened in the insurgent rearguard positions about 15 miles west of Madrid, near Brunete.

They attacked government trenches along the banks of the Guadarrama River, three miles east of the town, but the panorama of war on the sun-baked hills and plains remained generally the same as after Miaja executed his thrust in the "battle for Madrid."

(An insurgent communique today claimed a "brilliant victory" in the Brunete sector but furnished no details of the operations. Previous insurgent advices, however said Franco's men had smashed the government lines and had entered the strategic town last night).

Some units of Franco's army were said by a government communique to have lost half their men. The insurgent chieftain was said to have poured a tremendous amount of men and troops into the Madrid fighting. Estimates of the number involved in the struggle have ranged as high as 100,000 on each side.

Seventy bodies of insurgent soldiers were found yesterday at Espolon, a position east of insurgent-held Navalagamella.

Faulty Parachute Gives Jumper Scare

TORONTO, July 24 (CP). — Jack (Terry) McGovern thought he "was a goner" when his parachute failed to open until his descent of 1,600 feet was about a third over last night. Cords on the chute became tangled with his feet when he dived from an airplane during an amusement park attraction.

"I felt myself dropping faster and faster and pulled viciously on my rip-cord," McGovern said as he described his 340th leap. "I figure I dropped more than a third of my descent without my chute. I thought I was a goner. What happened I don't know."

NORWOOD DROPS HARD STRUGGLE TO MOTOR CITY

Oshawa Forced To Limit In Defeating Villagers 14 To 12

LACROSSE LEAGUE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, July 24. — Norwood dropped a hard-fought Central Ontario Lacrosse League game, 14 to 12, to Oshawa last night (Friday) in the Norwood Arena.

Played before a large crowd it was the fastest and most thrilling game of the season, as Norwood lost an early 6 to 1 lead. Norwood's first goal came from the stick of G. Puffer two minutes from the start, while he passed to Baker just 20 seconds later for another. Edmunds put Norwood three up after six minutes before Cook took Campbell's pass four minutes later to notch Oshawa's first counter. "Joe Gould, playing his first game with Norwood, scored their fourth one at 10 minutes, while Baker took Scotts pass three minutes later to make it 5 to 1 for Norwood.

To open the second period Baker gave Norwood a 6 to 1 lead after 45 seconds. Campbell scored Oshawa's second goal three minutes later. Baron reduced Norwood's lead to three when he sank one at the four-minute mark. Smith raced the length of the rink one minute later to score another one for Norwood. Baron took Daniels' pass at the 13-minute mark to score his second goal of the period for Oshawa, while Le Roy took Fleming's pass two minutes later to reduce Norwood's lead to 7 to 5. In this period G. Puffer and Le Roy were given major penalties for fighting.

Richardson gave Norwood a three goal lead after one minute, to open the third period. Oshawa came back 30 seconds when Baron took Daniel's pass and again three minutes later when Oke took Saunders' pass. Gould scored one for Norwood 50 seconds later, and Baker added another one minute after. Baron took Campbell's pass while Scott of Norwood was serving time to reduce Norwood's lead to two, while Daniels scored on at the 10-minute mark and again three minutes later to tie it up 10 to 10.

G. Puffer gave Norwood the lead one more after two minutes of the fourth period, but Oshawa came back strong, Baron scoring his fifth goal of the game after four minutes. Saunders sinking another two minutes later and Whyte scored one while Rogers, the Norwood goalie was in the penalty box. C. Puffer cut Oshawa's lead to one after 10 minutes, but Cook made it 14 to 12 just three minutes before the game ended.

Sees Duke Windsor Great Peace Agent

BALTIMORE, July 24—(A.P.). — Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who wed the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, believes Edward is the man to "steer the nations toward the star of peace."

With this tribute to the former King, the Rev. Mr. Jardine ended a lecture here last night before an audience of 864, mostly middle-aged and elderly women.

He asserted he was the first to recognize the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore as "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Windsor" and described her as "a great woman destined to do a great work."

"Edward is the big a man for one nation, for one Empire," he said. "I believe the world needs him in the chaotic condition of things."

Nearly 60 airplanes took part in the opening of the new Singapore, Malaya, airport.

New City Parking Regulations Will Hit Great Many People Hard

IT did seem strange that Alderman Cotton would sponsor that traffic admendment which says "no vehicle be allowed to be parked on any street longer than three hours." On two or three sides of the big southend factory where he works automobiles are parked from whistle to whistle. If the line of cars is a barometer of conditions in the C.G.E. many of the employees are evidently in the money.

If cars are parked from 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. to say nothing about the parking of he night cars, how about this bylaw. There it is, a new statute, and that means a new law, without a single if, and or but.

Of course there are other factories where the same practice has cause no trouble to the public and the municipality, and the rule would apply to the travellers at hotels, and every night their cars are to be seen on Charlotte and other streets, and residents who leave their cars on the streets at times.

If tourists or travellers at the Empress or the White House, the Grand or King's leave their cars out in front of the hotels all night, naturally there should be a long line of offenders ,parade before the Langley bench next morning for flagrant infractions of the traffic bylaw.

During the discussion of the traffic amendments it transpired that they had been inspired by Chief Constable Newhall and Chief Gimblett of the fire department. A reporter asked Alderman Cotton if the three-hour closue meant exactly what it forbids. Alderman Cotton is chairman of the Legal Committee, and may be regarded as its spokesman.

He rather broadly winked his left eye confirmed the literalness of the bylaw, and said in other words that saving joker in this deal left the enforcement of the bylaw to the discretion of the police. And that meant it might be enforced in some instances, but breaches of the new law might also be ignored in other circumstances; and in other words, again, it would mean that this amendment is aimed only at some persons, while others can ignore it. So much for the idea of "at the discretion of the police" and a midsummer night's legislation.

CLERKS DEFEATED IN THIRD STRAIGHT

Clapper's Outlaws Prove Too Much And Secure 15-9 Victory

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 24.—The Clerks dropped their third game in a row last night (Friday) when they dropped a tough softball game to the Outlaws 15 to 9.

The Outlaws scored 4 in the second innings on an error, 2 singles, McCoy's double and Scriver's triple. They scored another 4 in the third on 3 hits, a walk and two errors and three more in the sixth on 4 hits and 1 error. They wound up the scoring in the ninth when the game was called because of darkness, with 4 more on Puffer's single, doubles by Phillips, Bonds and Scriver, and an error.

The Clerks scored their first run in the sixth on singles by Wilson and Jones and Stevenson's double. They added one in the seventh on Whitred's single and G. Gibson's triple and they put on a terrific seven run rally in the 8th on six singles, G. Gibson's double and two errors. This brought them to within two of the Outlaws but they lost out in the ninth when the game was called.

McKee for the Outlaws, with the exception of the eighth inning kept the Clerk's sixteen hits well scattered as he struck out 1 and walked 1.

G. Gibson, pitching for the Clerks up to the time he was relieved by Whitred, allowed ten hits, struck out three and walked 1. His successor gave up 6 hits, struck out three and walked 1 in the 5 innings he pitched. G. Gibson led the hitters with two singles, a double and a triple in four times up.

GIRL VANISHES WHILE FISHING

Suspected Kidnapped By 7 Men In Sail Boat—Planes Hunt Her

ELKTON, Md., July 24 (UP). — Army planes joined the search today for Janet Louise Wohlsen, 18-year-old daughter of a wealthy Lancaster, Pa., manufacturer, who disappeared yesterday after a reported "encounter" with half a dozen men in a mysterious "black-hulled sailing boat" on the North-east River.

Clad in a bathing suit, sweater and shoes, Miss Wohlsen left the Red Point cottage of Mrs. J. Clark Samuel of Wilmington, Del., for a fishing trip alone on the river. Her rowboat was found anchored in the river opposite Camp Chesapeake, a girls' summer camp. In it were her shoes, sweater and fishing equipment.

The "black-hulled sailing boat" containing six or seven men was reported by residents along the river as being in the vicinity a short time before the girl's rowboat was found.

The sailboat, with no one aboard, was found on the river between Elkton and Havre de Grace. Police were unable to establish its ownership immediately. Several persons said they saw the sailboat approach Miss Wohlsen's fishing boat.

State Police, local authorities and Sea Scouts searched the river in power boats. Every inlet was searched carefully for a clue to her whereabouts.

Gay Dance Dresses Have Wide Skirts

Sweet Young Things Float Buoyantly Through Dog Days in Colorful Frocks, Wear Flowers in Hair.

Left, Nan Grey wears flowers in her hair with a chiffon formal frock in design of rings; and ribbon sash; right, printed taffeta frock worn by Barbara Read.

BY LISBETH

FOR THOSE sweet young things who dance gaily through the dog days just as lightly as they do through the winter season, there are many pretty frocks.

They can be as seductive as they like in black net and lace— with very full skirts that may be banded in color or silver. Nothing is more striking and becoming, of course, but then again, color—the shades that best suit skins and eyes and hair and bring out the girls' best points—are also very effective, and very summery. And then there is white, you know—always a favorite and very lovely.

Barbara Read and Nan Grey have been chosen to illustrate this article. They are the two who made such a hit with Deanna Durbin in the picture, "Two Smart Girls," you know.

Nan is wearing a chiffon with two entwined rings for the design, and made with wide skirt, bodice slightly shirred at front, with heart-shaped decolletage and short puff sleeves as its style features. A sash in two shades of ribbon and flowers in her hair, give the finishing touch to this dress.

Pretty Fashion.

By the way, that is one of the prettiest touches of the season—the wearing of flowers in the hair. It is done even with morning and beach clothes, and especially, of course, with formal frocks, as it is eminently suited to evening. It is a good old fashion, too, and none the less charming for that.

Barbara is wearing a taffeta with huge bouquets of flowers splashed liberally over it. This dress, too, has short, puffed sleeves and a low neckline which is outlined with corded piping which also outlines a bolero effect.

The skirt is flared and is cut up slightly in front to show the petticoat underneath.

There is a new fabric which is interesting designers. It is crystal satin.

Faints into airs, and languishes with pride;
On the rich quilt sinks with becoming woe,
Wrapt in a gown, for sickness and for show."
Pope.

Dear Friends:

Do you ever notice how some people alter their appearance so that one would hardly know them, or affect virtues they do not possess or claim to be a black sheep, just so now will correct them?

Now do not think I am against the use of cosmetics. I think it is entirely necessary for women to use creams and powder and rouge. And I also think that if Cleopatra, or Helen of Troy whose face launched a thousand ships, or Mary Queen of Scots who was credited with causing men to go mad because of her beauty, if each and all of them were to come alive now, they would find they were only one of many.

For it is because of the use of cosmetics that women enhance their looks, or preserve them. But it is when they let these things be used to apparently renew their youth that women become affected and some even ridiculous.

Nature alters everyone of us with the years, and anyone who thinks that dyed hair, or excessive use of rouge and powder makes them look younger and able to compete with those younger in years, is foolish, for all it does is make them look ridiculous.

And again I must qualify this remark, for where a woman is getting older and her hair turning grey, where she must compete to a certain degree with those younger to earn a living, then she is quite justified in having her hair darkened.

But if it is necessary, get it done right. You may be saving a dollar by doing it at home, but by doing so simply draw attention to what you are trying to hide. Grey hairs are honorable, but not always effective in trying to earn a living.

And when you do it unskillfully yourself it looks streaky, or an unnatural color, and you lose what you are striving for. There are times when we must spend money to make money, and I think one of the times is when we are striving to keep our personal appearance at its best.

Not long ago I saw a woman who had used henna on her hair to keep it dark. It had gone a sort of a dirty mahogahy color, a color that never was on land or sea as far as human hair is concerned, and how very silly and ridiculous she looked.

Her hair was her own, she could do what she liked with it, but those she met had to look at it more often than she did, for no one can carry a mirror around with them all the time.

One thing I will say for men is, if their hair is turning they let it turn, (unless for some silly old fops who dye it also), or if they are losing it they let it go, and don't fuss. But men do not like to see their women letting themselves go, they expect them to keep at their best, which is a good thing too.

Nowadays we don't see so much obesity in women, nor such wrinkled skins or unruly hair, and it is a great improvement. But never let yourself become affected because you take care of your complexion for you are only doing what you should do in not being an eyesore but a pleasure to look at.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Exposure to Sun Is Healthful

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

If you are one of those who believe that our "artificial" civilization is holding you down, physically and spiritually, your time is at hand to return to nature. Summer is here and beckons you to natural, if not to primitive, surroundings. And while I agree with Dr. Yerbury Dent in his lately published "The Human Machine", that "going back to nature" is a phrase that has no meaning, that civilized town life is as natural as life in the country or in the bush, or in a nudist colony, or in the primeval sea, still there are certain natural things that we can do in the summer time better than in the winter.

One is to let our skins breathe. I most heartily endorse the modern habit of exposing most of the skin to sun and air. One sees it more at the beaches, but even in the midst of a busy city thoroughfare there are bare legs and arms and necks aplenty. It is a good and healthy thing, and I only wish the men would to a greater extent emulate the women in this hygienic fashion. Think of the horrible suits that our grandparents wore, that covered up every inch of skin, and suffocated it just as much as staying indoors in the winter. The prudes may feel that the seaside exposure today is perilous for the soul, but there is no question that it is salvation for brother body.

The reactions of the skin are far more numerous than we yet know. We are learning something about them, and the more we know the more we realize how profoundly they affect the "internal" mechanisms.

The effect of sunlight on the skin is, for one thing, to form Vitamin D which among other functions, probably conditions muscular tone. After being formed in the skin, this is stored in the liver.

Skin Injections Give Rapid Action

Many drugs and other (toxic) substances when injected by a hypodermic needle into the real skin itself, have a far more rapid action than when injected beneath the skin or into the blood stream. In many instances they have peculiar effects entirely different from those produced by their presence in the blood. A drug which when taken by mouth or injected in the bloodstream simply causes sweating, will, when injected into the skin itself cause an extensive eruption and vomiting.

Thus the play of air and sun over the skin produces changes in the small blood vessels, flooding some areas, emptying others, and this circulatory massage stimulates the heart and through it, all the internal organs. Chemical reactions in the blood occur and elimination is stimulated.

Perhaps other of our summer activities are instinctively based on a subconscious primitive knowledge of our bodily needs. "Vomiting is the most emotional activity of our body," says Dr. Dent. "Most animals feel the need of an occasional emetic. They will eat grass, rotten food, stones and earth even, to produce it. Civilized man, without knowing why, will do the most strange things for the same end. He will go on swings, merry - go - rounds, roller coasters, witching waves, a day on the briny, for the same physiological effect, and if his holiday succeeds in producing it, it will have been a more successful holiday."

Brush Tresses Systematically For Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

Any girl who wishes to possess glossy, luxuriant hair must recognize the benefits that can be derived from proper brushing. Yet oddly enough, few women today seem to realize the excellent results that systematic brushings give. Back in granny's day every lass was taught to give her hair 100 strokes of the brush daily. But nowadays the practice of brushing the hair daily has gone pretty well into the discard.

And the reason for that is, if you ask me, because so many women think that brushing will ruin their waves. Which, by the way, is a very foolish idea, for brushing really helps to bring out the full loveliness of a wave.

Personally I believe that every girl should give her hair a brisk brushing each and every day, wave or no wave, for the brush can prove one of the greatest of hair beautifiers. It removes all dirt, foreign particles and bits of dried cuticle from the hair and scalp. It stimulates the circulation in the scalp, thus bringing nourishment to the hair follicles.

In addition, it distributes the natural oil evenly over the head, helping to keep the oil glands functioning normally. And it polishes the hair, making it glossy and lustrous.

When administering brushing treatments, never brush the hair flat over the scalp. This method is incorrect and does not greatly benefit the hair. To be properly brushed, the hair should first be brushed upward and outward all along the hairline, as it is here that most dust and grime tend to accumulate.

Strands Brushed Individually

Then the hair should be separated into small strands and each strand brushed individually. And after this, the hair over the entire head should be brushed briskly with an upward and outward strike. Only a brush that is clean, with flexible, blunt-tipped bristles, should be used for this purpose.

It is a good plan, when administering brushing treatments to the hair, to keep a clean, lintless towel on hand. And after every few strokes the brush should be wiped upon the towel in order to cleanse the bristles. The brush, you know, picks up a great deal of grime and oil from the hair. And this wiping process eliminates the possibility that the dirt and oil removed from the hair by the brush will be placed in the hair again during subsequent brush strokes.

The sort of a brush that is used for brushing treatments is also an important factor, for none but the right sort should ever be employed. The bristles should not be too sharp or stiff, for if they are, they may scratch and irritate the scalp. Again, however, the bristles should not be too soft, else they will prove totally ineffective and fail to benefit the hair and scalp.

BIG CAMP MEETING ON LAKE ONTARIO WILL DRAW CROWD

Pentecostal Gathering Promises To Be Largest Seen In This District

NOTED SPEAKERS

The second Annual Pentecostal Camp Meeting convenes tomorrow July 25th. near Cobourg, and continues until August 8th inclusive. This venture which was started by Rev. Geo. A. Chambers, well-known evangelical pastor of the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church of this city, in company with district officials of the movement, is expected to attract thousands of visitors from near by districts. According to reports received an influx of American visitors are expected, which will make the camp the largest religious camp ever held in Eastern Ontario.

The camp is situated on Lake Ontario and has three-quarters of a mile of lake shore. Beautiful for situation, the grounds already boasts a number of splendidly furnished cottages, containing from three to five rooms each. A new dining hall seating over three hundred people has been erected, screened throughout, which will cater to the crowds; and a special luncheonette which offers tasty soups, sandwiches and light meals, is also a worthy addition this year. Over a hundred camps will be erected to accomodate the people, and the grounds which cover 125 acres and has many shady nooks, is an excellent parking place for cars and trailers. Abundance of water, electric light, modern conveniences, etc., makes it an up-to-date tourist camp.

Meetings are scheduled from 7 a.m. which will take the form of a Sunrise Prayer meeting; 10 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. meetings for the "Deepening of the Spiritual Life"; and at 7.45 p.m. a splendid orchestra will open the service, which according to reports received from last year's meetings have no definite closing time.

Junior Services

A junior church service will be in progress daily at 1.30 p.m. under the capable leadership of Mrs. C. B. Smith of Ottawa. Mrs. Smith has had considerable experience in children's work with outstanding success. A Sunday School will also be arranged for different ages under her supervision. The playground will be equipped with sand-boxes, swings, etc., for the benefit of the children. Mothers may leave their children in the care of an attendant who will always be present.

Special speakers include: Rev. John W. Follette of New Plate, N.Y.; Evangelist William McPherson of Sanford, Florida; Mr. Donald Gee of Scotland; Rev. H. McKee, Rochester, N.Y.; Evangelist A. Miller, Kalamazoo, Mich., in company with melody quartette; Pastor O. Moore, Picton; Rev. A. O. Ward, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada; and a host of other pastors and workers prominent in the movement.

Capable Director

Musical Director for the camp will be Evangelist A. J. Turvey who for ten years played behind the footlights of the theatrical world, but who now uses his skilled talents for the advancement of the Kingdom of God. Rev. C. Morse Ward, Editor of The Pentecostal Testimony, and well known throughout the Pentecostal Fellowship, will be the songleader.

The aim of the camp is that men and women during the holiday season may worship in a wholesome atmosphere, enjoy the fellowship of Christians from all over the Dominions; and pray for revival. This movement which started in 1906 has, in an incredibly short time, spread all over the world, and its adherents lumber over 14 millions, and increasing at the rate of thousands every week. It is thoroughly evangelical in character, and seeks to fill its God-given place in this day.

"Thousands are expected to attend the camp this year, and revival throughout Eastern Canada is the expected result," declare those in attendance.

G. ARTHUR BRETHEN

Who is in charge of receiving entries for registered cattle at the Peterborough Exhibition

ENTRIES CLOSE NEXT WEDNESDAY

C. A. Brethen Busy Lining Up Cattle For Peterborough Industrial

In recently accepting the job of receiving entries of registered cattle for the Peterborough Exhibition, G. Arthur Brethen of Norwood has again shown his desire to do his share in promoting its success.

Entries close next Wednesday, July 28, and Mr. Brethen will be at A. D. Runions' office, George street, throughout that day and probably part of Tuesday. Cattle breeders are reminded of the necessity of producing the records of the stock they intend to exhibit. This form of official identification of animals was instituted here a year ago by Harold Dorrance of Brantford, and some breeders sent in their papers too late, or for some other cause in connection with this detail of registration they were disbarred from competing.

Mr. Brethen is one of the leading directors of the Norwood Fair, and like other East Peterborough men his outlook isn't merely local and parochial. He is as keen for the success of the Peterborough "Ex" as for his own East Peterborough Agricultural Society, and in persuading the Dominion Holstein Association several years ago to make a grant of 40 cents for every dollar of prize money for Holstein cattle given by the Exhibition Mr. Brethen obtained substantial financial aid. That help was won by his own single-handed effort and his own initiative, and has already amounted to quite a sum in the total distribution of money to Holstein prize winners.

DORSET COUNTY FULL OF TOURISTS NEW MARK LIKELY

Resorts Are Filled Up And Camps Are Located Everywhere

FISHING IS GOOD

From Peterborough to Hall's Lake on the Dorset Road a former member of the Examiner's staff meandered this week through the vacation land of the Kawarthas and Haliburton, and expressed the opinion that the tourist business in those vacation lands and lakes may reach a new record.

"Everywhere I went I was told that the influx of tourists is so heavy that resorts are generally filled up," this man stated today. "I found one exception, a village hotel that has everything but the right kind of management.

It was the first time I was up the Dorset Road. I started from Lindsay and went on through Fenelon Falls and up the Burnt River to Kinmount crossed into Haliburton and continued on through Minden, Haliburton and Carnarvon to the head of Hall's Lake. One of the most flourishing places I saw was Ernie Windover's layout at Gull Lake in Haliburton. He has a lodge and cottages on two or three lakes, and apparently he is packing them in twelve miles south of Minden.

Further up in the group of lakes around Carnarvon I visited three boys' camps. One of them had seventy boys, another 60 and the third between fifty and sixty. They are splendidly organized and each of them is an imposing tented community. Fishing is good in the Haliburton country, and everyone who likes fishing is well satisfied with their results.

Fenelon Falls is having a good summer and there is a big crowd at Bobcaygeon. Motoring is as smooth as you would expect back in the northland. I did fifty miles an hour along the Dorset Road and that should be fast enough for people with nothing more on their minds than vacationing.

Dress is scanty, sun tan areas are reaching about the ultimate limit, and considerable swank is showing at some of the lodges. Mrs. Edgar at Locust Lodge, Bobcaygeon, is apparently getting the biggest patronage since she started, and so it goes, a story of pleasant summering for increased crowds of visitors."

LABOR MOVEMENT 25 YEARS BEHIND

Canadian Congress Head Claims Workers Sitting "Twiddling Thumbs"

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 24 (CP).—A. R. Mosher, president of the all-Canadian Labor congress, in an address here last night, declared that while he believed in co-operation with labor organizations of any country, he felt that each country should control and direct its own labor interests.

"In my opinion the labor movement is 25 years behind in Canada," said Mr. Mosher. "We have been sitting at home twiddling our thumbs and waiting for the United States labor unions to do something for us, and getting nowhere. No matter how good the labor organizations of the United States are, if we are content to tie up to their apron strings, and wait for them, we are wasting our own initiative, and ability to develop and use our own political strength."

Mr. Mosher criticised the American Federation of Labor and kindred United States organizations, whom he termed "Legislative logging machines devoting more time to fighting over jurisdiction," than working in the interests of the unions they represent.

Sparks from the Preacher's Anvil

God has dealt with man in cycles of time, and the church age, as others before it, will have an end. This is the day of grace and salvation; the next will be that of wrath and a ruling rod of iron. In connection with the end of this age, God's Word speaks of "last days," which are to be sign-posts. If we see these very days upon us, is it any wonder why some of us feel the age's end is near? Think of God's description of the last days. They hardly speak of world betterment. "Mockers in the last time," walking after their own ungodly lusts—brazen wickedness. "In the last days perilous times shall come." Men shall be cruelly selfish, obsessed with pleasure, proud, boastful blasphemers, lawlessly unholy unnaturally fierce, strongly set in despising the good, having a mere ceremonial form of religion, while they deny and refuse the power of God. "In the latter times" an apostate church will be the order of the day, for "some shall depart from the faith giving head to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils"—lying hypocritically without shame or conscience. In the last days will come scoffing leaders saying mockingly of the second coming of Christ "Where is the promise of His coming?" Stubbornly ignorant are these that God holds all things in order of His word, that in Noah's time because of sin that system perished, that the present order is being reserved unto fire, and a day of judgment and perdition for ungodly men, that it is God's long-suffering, His willingness, that none should perish, that holds the storm back. In the face of this mercy of God the last days are to be days of anti-Christ, when an opposing system raises its head against God. This will bring down judgments as a thief in the night upon an unprepared and unthinking, rebellious order of things. Oh, soul, it is possible to know the time, that the night is far spent, that it is high time to awake out of sleep, and cast off the works of darkness and put on the armour of light. Only the Blood of Jesus prepares the sinner to meet God. Be ready.

Achieve Unique Record

These four boy choristers all of them members of St. John's church choir under the direction of Frederic G. Mann have passed the musical examinations of the Faculty of Music, McGill University, with honors. This is a record inasmuch as it is thought to have been the first time when four boys from one choir in Canda have taken the tests and passed with honors. The boys are front row, Left to Right, Ernest J. Lee, elementary singing, 86 marks, and Leslie Groombridge, elementary singing, 82 marks. Back row, Left to Right, Leslie Sage, junior theory, 90 marks, and Robert D. Scott, junior theory, 80 marks.

SAYS PIPE ORGAN MONARCH OF ALL

King Of Instruments W. F. McMullen Tells Local Kiwanis Club

The pipe organ was described as "the king of instruments in power and majesty," by W. F. McMullen, student engineer at the C.G.E. Company's plant, who was guest speaker at Friday's luncheon meeting, treated Kiwanians to a most informative address. He was introduced by Kiwanian Bill English, one of the club's newer members and was tendered a motion of thanks by D. R. Platt, President Al. Sharpe was in the chair.

Well informed on his subject and stated to be an accomplished organist, the speaker traced the development of the pipe organ from the time it was first conceived in some primitive mind by the music of the wind in the reeds on some river bank, to the present-day complicated organs electrically and pneumatically controlled and operated.

Mr. McMullen declared the organ was an intrument of infinite variety and one of the oldest known to man. The modern organ, he said, was a composite instrument capable of reproducing the effect of every known instrument.

He said the first record of an organ was of one built in the year 1500, and it was also on record that the composer Bach was impressed by the terrific sound it made.

Another early organ, Mr. McMullen spoke of was one at Nuremburg, Germany. The bellows that supplied it with wind were so big they required 450 "beaters" to operate them, and often the tramping of the "beaters" almost drowned out the music produced by the organ.

Terrific Volume

Speaking of the terrific volume of sound which the modern organ is capable of producing, Mr. McMullen declared there was an organ at a theatre in Toronto which had such heavy pipes that the concussion from them cracked the plaster and concrete, and the pipes had to be removed.

He briefly described a new electric organ 'not as large as a piano' which has recent been placed on the market and which may be plugged into any ordinary house lighting circuit. He said the organ was equivalent to a 5-manual pipe organ but could be produced at a twentieth of the cost and bid fair to revolutionize the organ-making industry.

Miss Helen Ludbrooke was guest artist for the day and entertained with pleasing selections on her electric-guitar.

HOW TO LEARN TO SWIM.

CLIP OUT AND SAVE.

LESSON FIFTEEN

(Schaefer Method of Resuscitation)

Immediately on removing the subject from the water lay him down on a level surface with head slightly lower than his feet. Since water flows downhill what he may have swallowed will have a better chance of coming out. Stretch his arms overhead to increase the capacity of his lungs and bend one arm at the elbow to rest his head on, thereby keeping the mouth up out of the dirt. Examine the subject's mouth to make sure that it is clear of anything that would impede the progress of air such as, tobacco, gum, seaweed, false teeth, etc.

Kneel and straddle the subject's right or left leg clamping your knees on his leg just above his knee. Locate the lower or floating ribs by reaching the hands straight forward and sliding the hands down the sides of the subject. This is necessary only once. Place your hands on his back with heels of hands about two inches on either side of the backbone and fingers slightly apart and pointing along the floating ribs. Sit back on your heels and commence pressure forward and downward on his back by shifting weight onto your arms keeping the elbows straight. Apply pressure for three seconds and then with a quick, snappy release, sit back on your heels and rest for two seconds without removing the hands from his body. This allows a quick expansion of the lungs.

When you sit back on your heels, relax to insure the ability to continue for two hours or longer. The rate of pressure is about twelve times to the minute and you may keep time by repeating over to yourself, "Out goes the bad air, in comes the good," while you are applying and releasing pressure. Take your time, a slow, regular movement is desired so as to imitate natural breathing as nearly as possible.

Use as many helpers as you can get; someone can go for a doctor, another hold heat holding materials to the feet and the limbs may be rubbed toward the heart. Ammonia or other stimulants may be placed frequently at the nose and warm clothes may be thrown over the body.

It is of utmost importance that you do not give up for at least two hours as many people have been revived after a long period.

Speed is essential; if the victim is not breathing when taken from the water, start resuscitation at the earliest possible moment. Do not lose a second. Delay may mean death.

OTONABEE BARN BURNS TO GROUND IN SUDDEN FIRE

Spontaneous Combustion Is Blamed For Blaze On Farm Of Wilbert Greer

CROP PARTLY LOST

Spontaneous combustion of its old or new crop contents was believed to have caused the fire that destroyed the 60 feet by 30 feet barn on the farm of Wilbert Greer near Coodsprings in Otonabee at 10 o'clock this morning. Only the stone foundation was left an hour after the flames were first seen by Mrs. Greer and her daughter as they were going out to a field to pick peas.

Mr. Greer told The Examiner he had drawn in three loads of fall wheat, and was piling stooks on to his wagon in the field when the whole building seemed to be enveloped at once in fire and smoke. As they were starting out to the pea field, Mrs. Greer said her daughter called to her that there was "smoke coming from some place." Their attention was attracted toward the barn.

"There was some smoke and then the next thing that happened the barn seemed to be all afire as if there might have been an explosion to spread it so quickly."

Mr. Greer said everything was all right on his last trip with a load of wheat. He could offer no explanation of the cause of the fire. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

"We nearly lost the barn a year ago," he said. "On May 11 a straw stack, ten feet from the barn, caught fire. It was a calm day and that is all that saved it then, together with the help of some eighty neighbors."

Sparks blown by a west wind threatened the nearby barn on the farm of A. Fitzgerald. Small blazing brands started two little spots of flame in the roof, but they were quickly extinguished by men with ladders and water buckets. Mr. Fitzgerald telephoned to the city fire department to send out part of its apparatus. Chief Gimblett responded, but the use of chemicals was not required.

SENT BY GOD?

German Bishop So Labels Hitler in English Address

OXFORD, England, July 24 (AP).—German Methodist Bishop yesterday called Adolf Hitler a man sent by God to help Germany.

Addressing the World Conference on church, community and state, Bishop Otto Melle, of the German Methodist Church declared:

"God in His providence sent a leader who was able to banish the danger of Bolshevism in Germany and rescue a nation of 67,000,000 persons from the abyss of despair, to which it had been led through the World War, and give it new faith in its missions and its future."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 25

Sunday horoscope is a fairly promising one for matters of the church, charity and friendly and humane interests generally yet there are auguries of tempestuous, exciting and disturbing influences as well. There may be a crossing of swords with elders or superiors, or a matter of petty deception or perfidy to deal with. Refrain from strife and safeguard papers and possessions against theft or other loss.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly progressive and satisfactory year if they will refrain from quarrels and tempestuous and rash conduct. Be alert to petty deceits, intrigues and treacheries, and safeguard possessions, especially papers, against theft or loss.

A child born on this day may be energetic, practical and ambitious but may be disposed to let its energies run away with its calm judgment or good nature. It should be disciplined in restraint and amiability in infancy.

For Monday, July 26

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fairly active and fortunate day with some very definite measures taken to stabilize the affairs and possibly increase the possessions. New opportunities, probably of a surprising nature, may arise, and these may lure one to new environs, interests and contacts.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which there may be certain definite steps in placing the position and fortune on a sound basis. Sudden surprising openings may assist this, causing change in plans, contacts and environs. This may have a tendency to a passing disturbing or unhappy reaction on the private life.

A child born on this day, while being original, adventurous and independent, at the same time may be steadfast and reliable, making friends and position by its versatility and talents. Travel, romance and adventure should be to its benefit.

CHASE WRONG MAN AFTER ROBBERY OF BUCKHORN HOTEL

Till Containing $25 Is Lifted And Stranger Is Run Down In Pursuit

HE HADN'T THE MONEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 24.—Discovering that a till containing around $25 in cash had been "lifted" from the premises and that a straw-hatted stranger and a maroon car had been seen around the place Robert Fulton, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel at Buckhorn accompanied by an American visitor gave chase to the suspect, but met with an embarrassing experience.

After overtaking and stopping the car to which he had given chase, Fulton observed with some dismay that the driver, who did not object to being searched, had no straw hat and no bill in his car. The stranger said he had been making enquiries at summer resorts about accommodations, but a check-up later in this direction did not verify the story, and it gave Fulton another line of thought along which he might worry about his missing cash register.

At the time his premises were entered, Fulton was upstairs changing his clothes. Some women guests said a straw-hatted stranger had blundered into their room, and it was for this reason that the stranger, whoever he was became connected with the matter.

CONDEMN WATER AT JACKSON PARK

Well Found Contaminated And Recreation Area Is Without Drinking Water

The well at Jackson Park, situated near the caretaker's residence, and the only source of drinking water for the park, has been found to be so badly contaminated as to be unfit for use, and the health authorities have padlocked the pump. The water has been found to be Grade B. The pump has been used for many years, and the water has been noted for its sparkling appearance and its coldness.

For the present water is being brought to the park in containers for the children who attend the summer health camp operated by the Kiwanis Club there, but so far as picnic parties and other visitors are concerned there is no drinking water available. Efforts to chlorinate the well to render the water safe have not proved successful.

Dr. Honey's office in the Bank of Commerce Building will be closed until August 10.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
A small circle of usefulness is not to be despised. A light that doesn't shine beautifully around the family table at home is not fit to take a long way off to do a great service somewhere else. Those who have done well in their smaller spheres thereby become prepared for and find the invitation to larger spheres of service.

Cubs' Ancient Charlie Root Used As Sacrificial Lamb, Outlasts King Carl Hubbell

Veteran Pitches Relief Masterpiece To Score Tenth Win Of Campaign

11 TO 3 TRIUMPH

NEW YORK, July 24.—Ol' Charlie Root, most ancient pitcher on the Chicago Cubs, came in from the left field bullpen in the first inning of yesterday's game between the Cubs and Giants to serve as a sacrificial lamb to Carl Hubbell.

The Giants were ahead, 2 to 0, and looked like a cinch behind King Carl, who had run up six straight and hadn't lost a game since June 18.

But Ol' Charlie, going on thirty-nine summers and serving his 12th season in Cub livery, stayed around to outduel the master, and pitch Chicago to a smashing 11 to 3 triumph over New York before a throng of 25,559.

While Hubbell wilted before the blazing Chicago attack and had to retire in the eighth, Root stayed in there and, pitching with head and heart, put together one of the masterpieces of his relief career. The Giants made just five hits off him, two of them of the infield variety, and it took a home run by Jo-Jo Moore to score off him.

Root's pitching was a life-saver to the Cubs. He came in with the bases loaded and two out in the first frame. The Giants had routed Curt Davis and were in a mean mood behind Hubbell. Root fanned Mickey Haslin to end the first inning and then mowed down the Giants the rest of the route. He was never in danger and but for Moore's homer in the third would have shut out the Giants. It was Root's tenth triumph against four defeats, making him the leading Cub pitcher.

Cubs Increase Lead

Root's pitching and a savage 18-hit attack on Hubbell and Tom Baker, who pitched the ninth, enabled the Cubs to increase their National League lead to two full games. The Cubs can't lose the lead in the Giant series now, regardless of what happens in the final two games to-day and Sunday.

The winning punch came in the sixth. Mack laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out for a hit. Then Rip Collins, hitting right-handed against the left-handed Hubbell, worked the count to 3-2 on Carl. The next pitch was inside, and Collins stepped back and smacked it into the lower right field stands for a home run. That put the Cubs ahead 4-3 and there was no heading them after that.

They kept on shelling away at Hubbell until they finally drove him to cover. The Cubs collected seven runs and thirteen hits off the Giants' ace, and beat him for the first time this season. In the ninth, the Cubs raked Tom Baker for four runs and five hits.

Joe Marty, Cub's rookie centre fielder, who has been riding the bench since July 9 because of weak hitting, returned to duty yesterday and was the team's batting hero, getting three singles and a double in five times at bat. Galan, Demaree and Collins each made three hits, with the latter two hitting homers. It was No. 15 for Collins.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Aint they some Flit or something we kin get to chase them pesky Kingston Ponies which has been kicking our pet ball team around again this week, making 5 times in a row them hombres made us eat their dust and that too after we was ahead of them some stage or other in every battle. They aint no reason for it except them athletes of Mister Daley nas been getting all the brakes, and somehow or other we got the idea that sooner or later, maybe in the playoffs, the old John B. Law of Averages is going to bob right up there in the middle of the Kingston bench and kick that cocky bunch of bonos for a row of brick duplexes. They can't go along until the end of the piece getting the kind of luck they been enjoying against the Petes and when it does start sliding the other way, boy she'll be a avalanche.

Beating the Gibbards

Here last Sat. the boys tied into Walt Gerow's Napanee Gibbards and win a tidy argument by 3 t o2. Our Mister Kitchen pitched a right smart ball game to win his 5th of the year and in behind them the lads was playing like a big league outfit. Napanees tried hard and made it as close as some of the weather we been having but the Petes finally put over the winning marker of an interesting argument in the 7th frame.

The same kinda fielding down to Kingston on Wed. woulda given the Collins Clouters a win over the Ponies for our Mister Whitehill delivered a nice brand of heaving. Unfortunately our talent picked that occasion to turn in their sloppiest defence work of the year and they actually presented the Daley Darbs with six runs on errors, including 4 markers in the opening frame which was scored on misplays after the side should oughta to have been out. The Petes was swinging their war clubs with commendable gusto, our Mister Whatley cuffing 4 for 5 and our Mister Long wafting a home run and a triple to the further recesses of the Kingston ball park, but what they hit in with their war clubs the lads handed back with interest by their boots afield and the net result was another trimming.

Yammy Shellacked

Mister Jamieson took a terrible shellacking and retired limping from the fray but this here Tony person come in and stopped the Petes for the balance of the doings although he needed quite a jag of help from Umpire Corrigan to turn the trick. In fact if his umps hadn't called our Mister Burton out with a foot of daylight the far side of first base in his favor the boys woulda scored at least 1 markey off the relief heaver and mighta helped theirselfs to a big inning. Mister Corrigan at times is about the best man the Kingstonians trot out there, although most of the way he calls them fairly enough. The worst of it is he saves the bad ones and tosses them in just when they hurt the worst.

To make it still worse them Napanees win a crazy game from Oshawa the same day and gained a full game on our talent. Walter Gerow's men tossed away at big lead and then fought their way out in front again to grab off a win in the 9th. Incidentally they scored 12 runs in that 1 battle which is 2 more than they have been able to score in five games off the Petes this season. That shows what a cockeyed sort of race this Central League is turning out this year.

Well, old-timer, the temperature in this here office is somewhat close to 90 and I'm bailing out of here before my collar runs down into my shoes.

I'll be seeing ya when it's cooler.

Sportfully yours.

A. WISE CRACKER.

MOTORISTS WIN OVER WESTCLOX

Cop 6-5 Nod In Neat Men's Softball Game To Improve Chances In Race

Motorists took a 6-5 men's softball win from Westclox at Central last night to climb to within half a game of second place in the standing. It was the third straight defeat for Westclox since their vacation. This proved a smart softball scrap with the fielding being equal but the Barrett boys having an edge on hitting. It was a tight tilt all the way with each side having one good inning to count three runs, but the other markers being notched by hard work one at a time.

Shine and Naish hurled fair ball most of the way and had neat backing. There were few strikeouts, both heavers depending a lot on their support. Playford and Dorrington pulled fielding features with grand one-handed catches. Starr and P. Calladine got three hits each for the losers; while McQuade, Smith, White, Walsh and Dorrington all had two safeties apiece for the victors. The teams:

SCHOOLBOY ROWE OUT FOR SEASON

Sore Arm Will Keep Detroit Tigers' Mound Ace On Sidelines

DETROIT, July 24.—(AP)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, the Detroit Tigers' ailing pitcher, will hurl no more this season.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, who watched Rowe's futile efforts against Philadelphia Athletics Thursday from the press box, said last night after a conference with Acting Manager Del Baker and Coach Cy Perkins that the Schoolboy probably will leave soon for his home in Edorado, Ark.

The three Tiger leaders said they were convinced a sore arm is bothering Rowe, who yielded five hits and five runs in the one inning he pitched against the A's. He has been ineffective in his other appearance this year, and once visited a specialist.

Final decision on sending Rowe to his home until next spring's training season will be made by Walter O. Briggs, President and owner of the American League club.

Cochrane indicated also that Briggs will be called upon to determine whether the Schoolboy will be asked to undergo an operation.

Betting On Horse Races Was Cause Of His Dismissal—Rogers Hornsby

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, discharged manager of St. Louis Browns, surrendered his contract, which did not expire until the end of the 1938 season, and settled his claim against the American League club last night for a sum estimated at from $7,500 to $10,000.

In a statement Hornsby said he was dismissed because Donald L. Barnes, President of the Browns, and William O. De Witt, Vice-President, objected to his betting on horse races.

"While my contract did not forbid betting on races," Hornsby stated, "Both Mr. Barnes and Mr. De Witt have objected to my doing so, but these differences have not entered into the question of my playing ability or the policies of my management. As to those features, I have had a free hand, and we have always worked in close harmony."

The contract was reported to call for a salary of from $18,000 to $20,000 a year.

CHISOX BREAK RUFFING STREAK AT SIX IN ROW

TRIBE TRIMS RED SOX

NEW YORK, July 24.—In the American League, the second place White Sox stepped up and downed the leading Yankees, 9 to 6. Each club collected thirteen hits, but the Sox bunched theirs more effectively, using four of them in a four-run burst off Charley Ruffing in the second inning. The rally was climaxed by Mike Kreevich's triple with the bases loaded. Trailing six runs, the Yanks put on a rally in the ninth and scored three runs on an error and three hits, including a home run by Gehrig and a triple by DiMaggio. Ruffing was charged with the defeat, his first in seven starts.

6-2 Win for Red Sox.

Southpaw Archie McKain held the Cleveland Indians runless until the ninth inning today to give the Boston Red Sox a 6 to 2 triumph. The Sox pounded Willis Hudlin for nine hits and all of their runs in the first three innings. Galehouse let them down with two safeties the rest of the way.

The St. Louis Browns blanked the Washington Senators, 8 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Elon Hogsett for their second straight victory under the managership of Sunny Jim Bottomley. The Browns raked Weaver, Jacobs and Cohen for eighteen hits, including a home run and a two-bagger by Hogsett.

Tigers Split Pair.

Detroit and Philadelphia divided the Athletics blasting four Tiger pitchers for seventeen hits and a 16 to 4 triumph in the opener, then succumbing 9 to 8 in the nightcap. Philadelphia knocked Roxie Lawson from the box in the seventh inning of the second game with two runs to tie the score 7 to 7, then scored another in the eleventh, but Detroit rallied for two runs to win the game.

Most golf tips are to be classed with the advice a dentist gives when he tells you to relax in the chair. How are you going to relax when you are afraid of getting hurt? If he would tell you that you must relax, and then give you a simple means of doing so, everything would be fine.

The same situation exists in golf when the player is told to slow down his backswing. He knows that he should, but how on earth can it be done? Will power and concentration alone are not enough to bring about the desired end. Every player has learned, much to his sorrow, that he can think as much as he likes about avoiding haste in taking the club back without overcoming the fault. He must have a simple means of doing it, something more tangible than the ordinary tip. Well, here it is.

Make sure that your arms and body start away from the ball together. You can best do this by keeping both arms close to your body, especially the upper parts of the arms. A little pressure against the chest will do the trick.

PETE GOSSELIN discovered a May 29th, 1912, issue of the Examiner back of a picture the other day. The single sports page is a saffron hue but provides interesting reading. Seems the day previous that the Ottawa-Peterborough pro ball game was rained out, the locals going under the monicker of White Caps. Manager Templin was the pilot and some of his Petes' players mentioned were: Derr, Osborne, Schaeffer, Tracey, Nork, Ridgeway, Mooney, Brode, Trout, Dolan, Hartman, Tully, Jayes, Schwartz and Beard. They drew 3,300 at a twin bill here May 24th. Knotty Lee was in this pro loop, too. ANOTHER chap recently brought us in a 1932 O.B.A.A. book. Pat Kennedy of Toronto was president, with M. B. Dulmage secretary, and Joe Walsh treasurer. Jake Solomon of Peterborough was an executive member that year, and his picture was run. Ward Patterson of this city had been first vice-president two years before. The C.O.B.L. was affiliated at that time—in fact several seasons before—and the Peterborough City League, whose secretary was D. Loucks; and the Peterborough Commercial Loop, with Chas. Curtis the secretary. It is an interesting booklet.

ORILLIA TERRIERS, who play the Auburns an exhibition lacrosse match here Tuesday, aren't unbeatable—as they've dropped a few tilts this season—but they are mighty good. Probably the classiest gutted-stick machine ever assembled. Three straight years now they've cleaned up everything in senior lacrosse in the east and then knocked off the British Columbia leaders to win the Dominion title and the Mann Cup. Right now they have a good lead on top of the Ontario senior race. They have the game down to a science with their snappy passing, deadly shooting and devastating checking. Class stands out on this lineup like a wart on a deb's nose.

TO us the two most colorful Terriers are Bill McArthur and Frank (Piper) Bain. In the lacrosse world they are what Lou Gehrig, Diz Dean or Carl Hubbell are in baseball. McArthur is star goalie, a former pro and is about 46 years of age! Yessir, at an age when other men are settling back to nothing more strenuous than golf, this veteran is shining in the rugged game of lacrosse. Bain was voted the cleanest and most effective player in Ontario last year. He is a lanky defenceman, also a former pro, and a great player. Both these gents are expected to play with the Terriers against our Auburns and we sure hope they will be on hand. We trust the local officials will see that the Orillia squad is at full strength for that game, as the fans will pack the arena—but they don't want to see a skeleton team of visitors.

* * * * * *

AUBURNS romped through Belleville's Flying Rovers here last gloaming with a 21-4 victory before some 300 customers. As suspected, the Rovers failed to bring a full team—gents like Gould, Partridge and Smart being on strike with the club—and they were no match for the Auburns. The latter team didn't look too brilliant in their victory, either, though they ran up the score in the last half. Emmett Creighton, Buster Whitton and Ira Dundas were best for the winners, and Red Creighton was pretty good in goal. It was a clean contest but not overly exciting. The R.C.A.F. gang dropped out of the loop first and now they are sort of disrupting the Quinte crew. Yeah, the Fliers are great guys when they're winning—as in hockey—but they don't like to lose.

MOTORISTS took a 6-5 men's softball win over Westclox last e'en and they are now tucked safely in third place just half a game back of Young Petes ,who are but half a game behind Omemees in the top slot. The Clockmakers, fresh back from vacation, have dropped three in a row and are getting the jitters as the race approaches the finish. Last night's fray was another neat encounter and fans are getting oodles of nifty softball up Central way these evenings. Also at the gals' games. On Monday night, Young Petes play Motorists at Central while Cobourg gals and Omemees clash at the Bowl.

DEE, dem and dose: Rotary Juniors have a game in Cobourg on the 28th but it may be called off since these teams are set to mix in the junior ball loop playoffs....Other softball and lacrosse dope should be in tonight's paper somewhere....Cobourg is at Oshawa Monday and Norwood at Belleville Tuesday in gutted-slick games.... Next Wednesday in the Central Baseball League, Oshawa plays in Kingston and the Petes in Napanee....Tompkins, Deseronto pugilist with Belleville last winter, is anxious to locate in Toronto if possible for next winter....Those batting averages of the Petes were checked and double-checked with official box scores—and they are correct.... Colmer of Bowmanville, who had his leg broken while playing rugby for Oshawa 'gainst tthe Orfuns last fall, has been okay for a long time, and may play again....It's really too warm to work these staged by motorbike dare-devils here Civic Holiday at the Exhibition days, eh?

Veteran Cards Hurler Celebrates Birthday With 4-1 Victory Over Dodgers

CUBS FORGE AHEAD

NEW YORK, July 24.—The St. Louis Cardinals snapped a four-game losing streak yesterday when the veteran Jess (Pop) Haines scattered six hits to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 1.

Haines, who celebrated his 44th birthday held the Flatbushers runless until the ninth. Joe Medwick had a triple and two singles. Johnny Mize hit two doubles to drive in two runs.

The Chicago Cubs increased their National League lead to two games when they defeated the New York Giants and Carl Hubbell 11 to 3. The veteran Charley Root came to the rescue of Curt Davis after two runs had come across, and turned the Giants back the rest of the way except for Moore's home run in the third. Hubbell gave up 13 hits and seven runs in eight innings. It was Root's tenth triumph, and broke a Hubbell winning streak at six straight.

Cincinnati's Reds downed the Philadelphia Phillies 6 to 3. Wild Bill Hallahan effectively scattered ten hits. Baxter Jordan clouted a home run off Bucky Walters in the first inning, and the Reds never were headed.

Lance Isaacs Of Toronto Marlboros Dies In Team's Dressing Room

TORONTO, July 24 (C.P.)—Lance Isaacs' last goal in a lacrosse game was recorded as a victorious one today.

The 29-year-old Indian star of the Toronto Marlboros died in his team's dressing-room at Maple Leaf Gardens last night during half-time intermission in a game with Brampton Excelsiors. A heart seizure brought on by extreme heat and exertion was given as the cause of death.

He died shortly after he had scored a goal, the Marlboros' seventh, and the Excelsiors requested the game be called and chalked up as a 7-5 Toronto victory. "The Brampton boys want to let Lance's last goal in life be a victorious one," said Conny Smythe, manager of the Gardens.

Havelock Man Gets 30-Day Prison Term

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24.—Appearing before Magistrate A. O. Langley in police court here Friday, W. M. Chard, 36, of Havelock pleaded guilty to a charge consuming liquor in an illegal place and was assessed $20.00 and costs. Provincial Constable D. G. Campbell who laid the charge asked the court for leniency when Chard pleaded guilty without offering any defence. The fine with costs amounted to $30.00 so Chard took the twenty day option provided. The case of Roy Thompson, town, charged with driving without a permit was remanded a second time to afford him an opportunity to raise the money to pay the fine.

FIRST 100 WICKETS

DUDLEY, England—(CP).—When he took five wickets in a match against Worcestershire, Tom Goddard, Gloucestershire spin bowler, became the first English county cricketer to take 100 wickets this season.

WINS HIGH PRAISE

LONDON—(CP)—Dai Rees, young Welsh golfer, who downed Byron Nelson, United States star, three and one in the Ryder Cup singles, was given high praise by Gene Sarazen. "This boy is the goods," said Gene.

Experienced Eleven From Frood Mines Battling Away For Championship

HAVE ADDED STRENGTH

(By Central Press Canadian.)

SUDBURY, July 24 — Out for a major sport "double" by hanging a Dominion Football Association soccer triumph alongside the Allan Cup won by their hockey brethren, Frood Mine Tigers go into the Eastern Canada D. F. A. finals powerful contenders for Dominion titular honors. Sparked by the veterans of four seasons ago who staged such a herculean struggle against Toronto Scottish and Montreal Verduns before bowing out of the Eastern soccer picture, the 1936 edition of Frood Mine Tigers has enough new blood to make them one of the most feared elevens standing in the path of Connaught Cup honors.

Campbell

Have Four Wins.

For the fourth consecutive year a Sudbury District Football Association club carries the standard of Northern Ontario into the D.F.A. playdowns and in the opinion of the Northern critics who have witnessed former S.D.F.A. titlists in action, the current yellow and black jerseyed Froodians are the most aggressive and consistent band of booters to come out of the Northern section in quest of the highly coveted Dominion laurels. The veterans leaven the effervescence of the younger players who have joined the club in the past two seasons during its rebuilding process after the defeat by Montreal Verdun in a series which set near soccer history in the annals of the sport in Canada.

"Daddy" of the crew and initial promoter of the sport at the world's greatest nickel mine, is George "Pop" Simpson, tricky inside, field general, and general factotum on the club. George has handed over the managerial reins this year, but it is many a tough spot. He plays down the inside lanes and his trick passes around the goal mouth, especially in combination with Angus Campbell, another of the old originals, are pretty to watch.

From Many Sectors.

Other survivors of that memorable 1934 Frood Mine team who add experience to the club are Andy "Nigger" Rayne, the doughtiest, full back in the North country, "Tiger" Meadowa, the ex-London, Ont., soldier whose hobby is amateur photography but who manages to get plenty of action into his flashy work beside Rayne. On the half line is Dick Waide, the chirpy ex-Montrealer who backs up for no one and is the storm centre of many a hot defence. Beside him works another of the youngsters who made up the '34 squad, but who has now gained valuable experience and is a difficult man to pass. He is "Buster" Campbell, whose father made a name for himself two decades ago on soccer pitches in the Queen City of Toronto. Still another celebrity of four seasons ago to return to the fold this year is the colorful "Red" Eazley, whose sparkling work has done more to promote soccer with fans in Northern Ontario than any other single player. He returns to Frood after a year with Falconbridge Falcons, who last year went to D.F.A. semi-finals against Winnipeg.

Andy Rayne

Play Aggressive Game.

Listed among the outstanding newcomers are "Taffy" Davis, a great opportunist at centre-forward; Jim Winning, a former pro and ex-British Consols star; Bob Murray of Port William, who has seen several D.F.A. semi-finalist spots with the once famous Wanderers on the half line and Sammy Grassam, the youngest of the three Grassam brothers, two of whom starred on former Frood Mine clubs. Sammy is a general utility player and is mighty handy to have around in any tight spot.

MacDonald

With these, and other tried players on their roster, Frood Tigers hope to finally land the silverware, which has eluded Northern Ontario representatives in the past. The miners play an aggressive never-say-die brand of football that makes its own breaks and then cashes in on them with deadly accuracy around the nets.

OUT FOR THE SEASON

NORTHAMPTON — (CP). — Announcement that A. H. Bakewell, international batsman who was severely injured in a motor accident last year, will be unable to play this season, comes as a bad blow to Northamptonshire Cricket Club, now at the bottom of the county championship table.

Belleville Lacrossers Lose to Auburns, 21-4

Locals Swamp Rovers In Central Loop Fixture Before Slim Crowd Of Fans

ONLY FAIR GAME

Auburns swamped Belleville Flying Rovers, 21-4 here last night before 300 lacrosse fans in a C.O.L.A. fixture. It was the locals' 13th straight win—nine being loop contests—and they pushed Belleville deeper into third place. The losers failed to field their best team and proved no match at all for the league leaders.

It was only a fair display of lacrosse, the Rovers not having much system and the Auburns not looking too good despite their one-sided win. They had a 4-1 lead in the first quarter were in front 10-3 at halftime and had a 15-4 lead going into the fourth. Play was clean throughout with but one penalty drawn.

E. Creighton Stars.

Emmett Creighton, Buster Whitton and Ira Dundas looked best for the locals, the former being in on seven goals in a neat showing. Red Creighton made some good stops in goals and the others were good in spots. The visitors' goalie was weak most of the evening, Huson and Day proving the best of the Rovers. The only penalty was to Dallin in the first quarter for slashing.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Fox; defence, Huson and Kline; centre, Lalonde; wings, Day and Tompkins; rover, Drake; alternates, Logie, Clay, Robinson, Tache and Anderson.

Auburns: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Miller and Whitton; centre, Dundas; wings, G. Creighton and E. Creighton; rover, Dallin; alternates, Magee, Crowe, Pammett, Vitarelli, Sloan, Chute and Loucks.

Referee, R. Ennis.

CLYDE CASTLEMAN

By WALTER JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.

Dairy Farmer Clydell (Slick) Castleman, righthanded pitcher for Bill Terry's Giants, is one of the surprises of the 1937 season. The young Tennessean, who put in a poor season last year, is hurling good ball for the Giants, and is among the league's leading slabsters.

A Donelson, Tenn., native, Clydell was among the youngest ball players to reach the majors when the Giants bought him in 1933. The southerner was only 19.

"Slick's" first season with the Giants was in 1934, for after purchase from Nashville of the Southern Association, the Giants had sent him to Montreal for more study.

In 1935 the Tennessee lad showed plenty of stuff, winning 15 games while losing six for the Giants. That gave him a .714 average for the season which placed him high on the list of pitchers in the loop.

Clydell broke into professional baseball with Nashville when only 18. He stayed one season, participating in 25 games before being sent to Durham for half a season. Back to Nashville again, and the Giants purchased him.

The big right-hander — he stands six feet, and weighs 185 pounds, has been used much by the Giants in the bullpen and in relief roles. He pitched four innings in the world series last year.

When not on the baseball diamond, Clydell likes nothing better than to go hunting or go to a movie. He resembles Bill Terry so much many fail to tell the two apart.

POLITICIANS LOSE FIFTH ENCOUNTER BY THE ODD GOAL

Goals Aplenty Make Game Interesting—Both Custodians Brilliant

C.G.E. 5, C.C.F. 4

In the last five games played by the C.C.F., they have lost the decision by the odd goal and the same resulted last night, when they were defeated by the Canadian General 5-4 in a game that was exciting throughout the entire 90-minutes. Both custodians played a smart game. Jones, new C.G.E. goalie made an excellent debut between the sticks, while Chamberlain played out in the field.

Right from the kick-off, Whatman, C.G.E. sent an overhead shot into goal that bounced over the bar. Dyer relieved the pressure to send Castle into the Electric's goal. He passed out to Henwood who beat two men quickly and left an opening for his inside man to take that went abegging. The C.G.E. halves settled down to forcing the play by concentrating against the C.C.F. forwards as they broke fast with the ball which eventually resulted in McMaster and his front line ranging shots at Tarkington who replied with a brilliant exhibition of goaltending, in fact, Whatman had the goalie beat all the way but his parting shot went past the outside of the post. At this point, the losers fell back on the defensive thereby allowing the C.G.E. forwards to run rampant on the attack. Stewart was the only half that tried for goal and one of his efforts caused Tarkington a lot of anxiety. On the next visit, Ross caught a perfect pass quickly as he sent a rising shot into the net for the opening counter. Within the next ten minutes, Ben McMaster delivered one of his old timers that had the custodian beat as soon as he kicked the ball. Half Time—Canadian General 2, C.C.F. 0.

Dominated Play.

On resuming, the C.C.F. introduced a changed line-up that lacked harmony for a while until they got accustomed to their regular style of play. During this period McMaster dribbled his way towards goal to send a low grounder, about 10 yards out, into the corner of the net. This was followed up by Keith as he landed an oblique shot into the far corner of the rigging to make the count four goals to none. The C.C.F. suddenly added vim to the game by a renewed offensive to gain a penalty. O'Halloran took the spot kick to bring the sphere past the upright. At the other end, a similar performance was enacted by Whatman being the poor marksman on the same style of shot. The cleverest goal of the encounter was scored by Ross who headed into the rigging from a left footer by McMaster from the corner-flag. Well did they score that tally because the C.C.F. dominated the play thereafter to force the C. G.E. team to fall back on the defensive but did not prevent them from scoring goals. First Dyer accepted a nice pass from Henwood along the ground to send a drive into the far corner of the rigging. Smelt reduced the lead by another unsavable drive. Encouraged by their success, the Politicians confined the play to the Electric's territory where the smart half-back line of Stewart, Earl and Burgess battled to the limit but not sufficient to stop Dyer adding another count. On the next visit, Thorn beat three men in close dribbling, made a feint move to shoot but delivered a left footer that found the rigging in the far corner. As time wore on, the C.C.F. carried the attack but the winner relied on the meagre goal lead to give them a brace of points. Canadian General 5, C.C.F. 4.

Canadian General — W. Jones, goal; W. McKenzie and K. Mitchell, full backs; H. Stewart, F. Earle and A. Burgess, halves; H. Keith, A. Ross, B. McMaster, J. Chamberlain and T. McPhate, forwards.

C.C.F.—J. Tarkington, goal; G. McDonald and H. Adams, full backs; S. Leggatt, F. Dyer and F. Lawrence, halves; S. Henwood, A. O'Halloran and H. Castle, R. Smelt and P. Thorn, forwards. Sub—F. Mayette.

Referee—W. Jones. Linesmen—J. McMaster and W. Curtis.

Mountaineers Gain On Orillia Terriers

ORILLIA, July 24 (C.P.). —Mimico Mountaineers stand within a single game to-day of the Orillia Terriers, Mann Cup holders, by virtue of a 17-11 win over Brantford Native Sons last night. The Lakeshore team is making the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association senior series hotter than it has been in years.

Although Orillia is far from being in a slump the performance of the Terriers, Dominion titleholders for three years running, is being outshadowed by the climb of the Mountaineers. The last victory was the sixth in a row for Mimico, while the Terriers have been barely holding their own in the last half-dozen tilts.

LIQUOR TRAPS HIM

Prisoner Claims He's Wanted For 100 Robberies.

POCATELLO, Idaho, July 24 (AP). — He's wanted for 100 robberies, police said John Henry Spencer told them, but he is always gallant about it.

"I never robbed a woman—I'm too much of a gentleman for that. There may have been a woman in the audience, but I never robbed a woman," they quoted him as insisting.

Spencer attracted official attention when he insisted on paying a restaurant bill the proprietor said he did not owe. He was fined $25 for drunkenness.

MERCHANT MARINE TO GET TRAINING

Britain Prepares Not To Get Caught As In 1914 With Shipping Helpless

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 24 (CP Cable)—A new British defence plan, providing for the equipment of the merchant navy with defensive armament and thorough training of its personnel, was outlined by Captain Euan Wallace, secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, at a luncheon celebrating merchant navy week aboard the liner Warwick Castle.

Wallace, who was deputizing for Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Coordination of Defence, said:

"The admiralty has decided that it is necessary in peace-time to make officers of the merchant navy familiar with problems with which they might have to deal if this country were again faced with war."

To put the scheme into effect, he said, it has been decided to open instructional centres in London, Liverpool, Glasgow, The Tyne, Southampton, Cardiff and Hull.

"At these centres," Wallace continued, "officers who volunteer will be given a course of instruction in the general principles of trade protection, convoy work, signalling, anti-submarine measures, gun drill and fire control." He said assurances of co-operation had been received from Shipowners' and Officers' Association.

After referring to the important part played by the merchant navy in the last war, Wallace said: "Among the lessons we then learned was the necessity for earmarking material for the defensive equipment of the merchant navy, and it may be assumed that, in so far as both plans and equipment are concerned, we are much better prepared at present than in 1914."

WHEAT MARKET SKIDS FOR WEEK

Profit-Taking And Collapse Of Corn Prices At Chicago Prove Bad Factors

WINNIPEG, July 24 (CP)—Profit-taking and collapse of corn prices at Chicago combined this week to sober up a booming wheat market and send values on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange into a decline.

Twice during the week, the Winnipeg market slumped the five-cent limit permitted in one day's trading and no major recovery was made. Prices closed Friday 9⅛ to 8¼ cents down for the week with July at $1.44⅞, October $1.36⅝-¾, and December $1.22¼-⅜.

Traders kept a wary eye on the world statistical wheat position and general nervousness pervaded the market in face of varied reports from North American crop areas. Canada's visible wheat supply dwindled below 40,000,000 bushels and a private estimate said 12,000,000 acres of western Canada crop would be a total failure.

Most of the trading here was of commission house character with fair support from seaboard houses in latter sessions. Importers continued on a hand-to-mouth basis with export business in Canadian wheat placed at around 2,000,000 bushels for the week.

Within a 20-mile radius of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, 171 species of wild birds were counted in the last year.

STOCK MARKET MOVES NARROWLY

Golds Finish Where They Started, Other Mines Up 3 Points, Industrials 1 Point

TORONTO, July 24 (C.P. — Nothing happened to stocks this week to greatly cheer or depress the bulls or the bears. Selective buying and selling churned the Canadian list about within narrow limits, but there was no sustained movement in any direction and the golds finished the week just about where they started. Other mines were up about 3½ points in the Toronto Exchange index and the industrials finished about 1½ points higher.

Traders continue to think well of the outlook for Brazilian Traction as a result of the dickering between the United States and Brazil which is expected to render transfer of Brazilian funds easier, closing at $25.75 yesterday the stock was up 75 cents for the week.

Fanny Farmer was also in the spotlight as a result of an unconfirmed report San. O'Connor, who is said to hold 100,000 shares, was selling part to a Toronto group at $24.50 a share. The stock traded heavily all week and at the close yesterday was up $2.12 for the period to $25.12.

Liquor stocks were strong, with Walkers up more than $1 and the steels were quiet and weak. Steel of Canada lost $1.12 and Dominion Steel dropped 65 cents.

International Nickel stood out in the week's proceedings, netting an advance of $3.25 in heavy trading.

Less Export of Gold.

The gold ferment appears to be simmering down. Heavy conversion of francs recently into sterling and gold, sending sterling higher, has had the effect of easing the rush of metal to the United States. In the week ended July 16 Washington received about $26,000,000 in gold from abroad compared with $61,000,000 in the previous week.

The big golds registered dullness. Lakeshore lost 65 cents and Dome and Hollinger gained 25 to 50 cents each.

Gains of 10 to 35 cents were boarded for Bralorne, Buffalo-Ankerite, Little Long Lac, Powell-Rouyn, Canadian Malartic, and Teck-Hughes. On the losing side by moderate amounts appeared Wright Hargreaves, Pioneer, O'Brien, Sylvanite, Kirkland Lake, Preston and Red Lake Gold Shore.

HEPBURN LABOR POLICY SCORED

Forbid Workers To do What Their Rights Allowed, Frost Says In Timmins

TIMMINS, Ont., July 24 (CP) — Cecil Frost, Ontario Conservative organizer, told a meeting here Premier Hepburn had "forbidden labor to do what they had a perfect legal right to do" during the strike this Spring at the General Motors plant at Oshawa, Ont.

"Mr. Hepburn has set race against race, religion against religion, labor against capital and finally through his quarrel with Mr. King (Prime Minister Mackenzie King) we see Liberal against Liberal," Mr. Frost said.

There was need in the province for a new type of leader, such as Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative leader, Mr. Frost said. No one could enter Northern Ontario without recognizing the importance of that section of the province, he said. Mr. Rowe was Northern Ontario minded but Mr. Hepburn was not, he maintained.

Condition of Northern Ontario roads showed Mr. Hepburn was not Northern Ontario minded, the organizer said. During the last election Mr. Hepburn promised to use money received from the gasoline tax and license markers to build new roads but since being elected about $63,000,000 had been collected from this source and only $11,000,000 was spent on roads, he said.

U.S. Cattle Imports Slump From Canada

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP). — Representative Charles L. South of Coleman, Tex., said today cattle imports into United States during the first six months of 1937 are "far less than in the same period last year.

"The agriculture department has informed me that cattle shipped in from Canada this year have been 25 per cent less than in 1936," he said.

"Most of the imports come from Canada, a favored trade nation.

"Many cattle men from West Texas had expressed fear that such (reciprocal trade) treaties would hurt them. In view of the fact that I endorse such agreements I asked the department about Canadian exports to the United States."

Massey Opens Drive Trade In England

HULL, England, July 24 (CP-Havas)—Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, in a telephone speech from London yesterday, inaugurated the "Canada calling Hull" trade campaign here.

Some 200 guests representing the business and professional life of Hull heard Massey state the purpose of the trade campaign was to make Dominions food products better known in this part of England.

Trade between the two countries, to be satisfactory, must be reciprocal, Massey said, citing Canada's voluntary tariff reductions and recent trade agreements as evidence of the Dominion's desire for this.

POISONS HIMSELF

Pet Rattler Misses Door, Sinks Fangs In Body, and Dies

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., July 24—(AP)—Elmer Holder's pet rattlesnake could dish it out but he couldn't take it.

Angered by the slamming lid of its cage, the reptile struck, missed the lid and sank its poisonous fangs deep into its own body. Twenty minutes later it died.

Errand girls are better than errand boys, declare merchants in the Isle of Wight, who are employing girls because of a shortage of messenger boys.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 41

MARCIA sat on the observation car, watching the gleaming rails converge and disappear over the horizon as she sped to Santa Cruz. Her eyes ached with the strain of seeing, as she tried to study the swiftly changing scenes. Tall, fragrant smelling trees slunk past, a blur of the glistening sea flashed to the west, tiny towns slipped into oblivion.

She sensed rather than saw the flowers along the roadway, the contented happy life of the people who lived in this scenic wonderland. Marcia the artist was always quick to catch a picture, and just as sensitive to the underlying beauty. Of a sudden the carefree life under the wide flung skies held undeniable appeal to her, and she was glad to be rid of the city with its never ceasing demands on time and energy.

Particularly she was glad to be away from Gary, for she knew he presented a problem that would demand all her tact. While her common sense told her that marriage with this man was practical, even logical, her heart screamed a warning. Almost as if she were the engineer on the train she was riding, she could see the signs ahead: "Dangerous Crossing", and the wig-wag signal that meant to stop, look and listen.

A raucous looking man in checkered cap and sporty clothes tried to interrupt her thoughts: "Going far?" he began genially. And when this won him no answer except a brief shake of her head, he went on undisturbed: "You a school teacher? I knew a teacher once—'

Marcia had a girl's distaste of being accused of having a pedagogical look. It was grand to be a teacher, but to look like one—unthinkable!

"You knew a teacher? I can't believe it," she said flatly. "What grade?"

"Oh, about the sixth," He refused to be abashed. "You see I never went further than that. Didn't need to; I could tell them all the answers long before that. What grade do you teach?—maybe I'll bring you a red apple some day."

Marcia wanted to snub him properly, but his fatuous efforts to be entertaining were pathetic rather than rude and she had a sudden desire to humor him. Before many miles had rolled under the wheels, Marcia knew his life history, his ambitions, his hopes. She was studying his ruddy face with kindly interest, when she saw him doff the ridiculous cap and smile from ear to ear. Following his gaze, she saw workmen along the tracks, grinning broadly and waving.

"Always do that," he exclaimed with satisfaction. "Makes 'em feel good." Complacent, he settled back into the rickety chair.

"No, girlie, if you don't teach, what do you do? How come you're running around loose without a ring on the finger? That's what women's hands were made for—rings, and rockin' babies, and things. Just wish I could have won hands and heart of some fair maid. Ah, me."

Marcia realized he didn't expect any answer to his remarks; in fact, when she did venture an opinion or a question it seemed to bounce gaily off his plump shoulders. With his sympathetic smile, Marcia realized the fellow was lonely, as lonely as she. He was probably too boorish to appeal to discriminating people, yet he was not satisfied with his own kind. She, too, faced a quandary of a different kind; too stubborn to take love as she found it, unhappy with the barren life without it.

Marcia lapsed into the introspective mood that had enveloped her at the start of the journey. She realized somehow that the coming week represented the calm before the storm. Like a sleeper loathe to wake up, she determined to absorb the maximum of health and inspiration from it.

"Inspiration should be easy," she remarked to herself, no longer bothering to speak her thoughts aloud to her unhearing companion. All around her were new experiences in beauty, and she reacted immediately. When the sun was setting, she reached the little beach town of Santa Cruz, and was met by Marie Winecoop. At sight of the angular plain faced woman ambling toward her, Marcia could hardly restrain a smile. But when the woman extended her hand in heartfelt welcome, she forgot the plain face in admiration of a really fine personality.

"Come, child. We've been waiting for you," she said after introducing herself. "We're mighty glad to have company, Tiny and me," she finished, stroking the big head of the St. Bernard by her side. At once Marcia felt as if she had come home, for she recognized in Marie a real friend. "I'll bet she wouldn't even be prejudiced in favor of her own cousin," the girl thought, then grinned to herself. "Matter of fact, she probably disapproves of Gary being a sissy-britches." Which was almost Marie's term for the cultured highly esteemed cousin.

"He's the salt of the earth," she was quick to tell Marcia, as she put her in the out-moded old Ford and raced up the winding roads to her summer cottage. "He bought my home up here, and takes care of me in grand style," she said cheerily, "but he and I are different. I've often told him I should have worn the pants in our family. I like to get out and garden and build things, and generally make a spectacle of myself."

Marcia noted her quick championship of the generous Gary, but was amused at the way she half apologized for his bookish habits.

"Maybe you'll disapprove of me, too," she said to her new friend. "I'm sort of a sissy—an artist, you know."

"Well, don't let it bother you," the outspoken woman said to Marcia's delight. "Some of us have to be according to a different pattern else there would be a deadly lot of monotony in this old world. You were made to please people; I was made to work."

Ellen, too, was made to work, Marcia thought suddenly. Women, it seemed, were designed according to some preconceived pattern, and unize they were fa?(gbnofullsray less they were clever enough to realize how their lives were cut out they couldn't fit the pieces together properly. "Mine must have been cut on the bias and stretched out of shape," she thought as she considered the difficulty she was having to make her life come out right.

Aloud she said, "I guess I'll have to be satisfied if my work pleases people. I seem to be sort of a misfit as a person."

Marie sensed the undercurrent of bitterness in the girl's tone, and turned to her sympathetically. "What you need is a little fattening up. Your only trouble is that you aren't big enough."

As she spoke the car turned into an inviting driveway and Tiny jumped out of the back seat to lead them up to the house. His tail wagging in delight, he seemed proud to bring a visitor to the picturesque little house on the hillside. It looked more like a Cape Cod house than a California cabin, and Marcia admired the prim garden where Marie undoubtedly spent many happy hours.

During the days that passed so peacefully, Marcia found the crisp mornings a real incentive to work. She sketched patiently to develop roughs for the new book. The character of the hero engrossed her, and she found it surprisingly easy to arrive at a definite personality for this man Manders—with his sandy hair, serious gray eyes, and the long lean line of his determined jaw.

Afternoons she walked through the fragrant forests, sometimes accompanied by the mismated Tiny, more often alone. Marie wisely left the girl to her own devices; realizing intuitively she needed time to think. She mothered the young artist ardently, then seemed almost ashamed of such a feminine trait.

"Why don't you ask me about Gary?" Marcia asked once.

"Don't guess it's any of my business," came the noncommittal answer.

"But he's your own cousin. Didn't he tell you that he and I—?" Marcia stopped in confusion. Surely Gary hadn't kept these details to himself when he asked Marie to accept her as a house guest.

"He said he thought a sight of you," she looked Marcia directly in the eyes. "Are you wanting to tell me? Do you like him as much as he likes you?"

Marcia smiled at the weak word she used to describe Gary's passionate love. Then frankly she said "That's what I want to discover while I'm here."

"Not from me," the older woman disclaimed. "I'd never interfere. Things like that must come from the inside of you."

"You've been fine," Marcia said to the woman's embarrassment. "I was almost afraid to come, afraid you'd be forcing Gary on me. If I do come around to his way of thinking, I want it to be of my own free will and not because of any outside influence—or disappointments."

Marcias eyes clouded as she thought what these disappointments were, and wondered if she could ever live down the all possessing love she felt for Sandy. Vainly she tried to convince herself that life could not be lived in the past, and that with Sandy definitely out of her reach, she still had the future to face. In these moments the reassuring love of Gary seemed desirable, and she wondered if it would ever come to take the place of that other experience.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Hello! Hello there!" called a loud voice in the woods near Uncle Wiggily's camping tent one morning "Hello! Hello!"

"Hello! Hello!" answered Uncle Wiggily, who was getting ready to go adventuring. "Come on."

"Oh, Wiggy, you shouldn't say that," objected Mrs. Longears.

"Say what?" asked the husband rabbit.

"You shouldn't invite any one to come on visiting until you are sure who it is," replied Mrs. Longears. "Suppose it should turn out to be one of the Bad Chaps who shouted."

"No fear!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I know the voice of my fat pig gentleman friend. That's Mr. Twistytail. Hi, Twisty!" he shouted. "Come on."

Has to Stop.

"I'm coming," grunted the gentleman pig, whom Uncle Wiggily had invited to visit the camp near the Blue Lake. "But I must stop for a moment."

"What for?" asked the rabbit.

"To scratch my back," answered the pig. "I'll be with you in a moment."

Then followed some sounds like a piece of sandpaper being rubbed over a board and Mr. Twistytail was heard to grunt:

"Oh, that feels good! Oh, what a lovely scratch I'm having."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Look at him, my dear," he said to his wife.

Uncle Wiggily pointed out to his wife where Mr. Twistytail was scratching his back against a rough tree. Pig gentlemen, you know, have very itchy backs, for some reason. And any pig, whether or not he is a gentleman, loves to be back-scratched. Try it with a corncob on a pig the next time you go to the farm, and see how it works.

"Well, Twistytail, you're just in time," said Mr. Longears when his fat friend had finished scratching his back and came up to the tent. "Just in time."

"Time for what?" grunted the pig.

"To go adventuring with me," answered Mr. Longears.

Makes a Jigger.

Soon the two friends were in the cool, shady woods. When they reached the summer hill where slides could be taken on the slippery pine needles Uncle Wiggily went down standing up. But Mr. Twistytail slid down on his back.

"I get a lovely scratching that way!" he laughed. "But there are some places back in my ham section, I can't reach. Oh, how I wish I could scratch my back all over."

"I'll make a back scratcher for you," offered Uncle Wiggily.

The rabbit gentleman fastened some old, dried pine tree cones on the end of a long stick. Holding the funny jigger in one foot, Mr. Twistytail was able to scratch his back all over.

"Oh, that's grand, Wiggy!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. "Now I am happy." So he scratched his back with the pine cones on a stick. And if ever you are in a Chinese store ask to see their back scratchers. They are shaped like a hand, made of bone or ivory, on a slender stick. Really, I'm not fooling.

So the rabbit and the fat pig had a jolly time in the woods. And if the kitchen sink doesn't fill the rubber ball with water and then try to bounce it on the head of the stairs, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily scratching the Fox.

NONE EMPLOYABLE ON RELIEF LISTS

Kent, Essex, Lambton Boast Of Conditions—1,479 In Windsor

CHATHAM, Ont., July 24—(CP)—There are no employable persons on relief in any of the municipalities of Kent, Essex and Lambton, excepting Windsor and Riverside, Walter S. Weese, Inspector of the Employment Relief Branch of the Department of Public Welfare, announced Friday. The inspector's territory comprises the three counties. Employable men still on Windsor relief rolls number 1,479, while there are about forty such men on relief in Riverside. The municipalities of Tecumseh, Sandwich East, and Lasalle in Essex have no employable men receiving relief.

"There is a marked improvement in the Windsor situation," Mr. Weese said. "There are about 11,000 relief recipients in Windsor at present as compared with 26,000 last September."

The inspector said he was particularly pleased with the situation in Chatham and Kent and Sarnia and Lambton without employable men on relief for several days.

The demand for farm help, Mr. Weese said, was responsible for the improved situation throughout his territory. With the start of operations of canning factories, he said, it was possible there would be difficulty in getting sufficient tomato peelers, and it was likely help would have to be obtained from other sources.

CORNWALL FIRM TO MEET STRIKERS MONDAY PARLEY

Cottons Officials Object Only To Textile Union Organizer On Committee

WAGES MAIN POINT

MONTREAL, July 24—(CP)—Representatives of Canadian Cottons, Limited, and the company's 1,700 employees, on strike at Cornwall for union recognition, higher pay and improved working conditions will confer Monday to negotiate for a settlement.

The conference, to be held at Cornwall was announced Friday night by the city's mayor, Aaron Horovitz, who came to Montreal to discuss the walkout Tuesday and Wednesday of workers in Canadian Cottons' three Cornwall mills.

Authorized by the company to tell the striking workers of their employers' willingness to consider their demands, Mayor Horovitz announced the opening of negotiations after a private conference here with company officials and M. S. Campbell, chief conciliation officer of the Federal Department of Labor. Earlier President A. O. Dawson of Canadian Cottons had declared the firm stood ready to meet employees' representatives.

However, the company asserted objection to the presence on a negotiating committee of Arthur Laverty, Cornwall president of the United Textile Workers, and strike organizer.

The Only Drawback

That appeared to be the "only fly in the ointment," said Horovitz. "They agreed nevertheless that they had no objection to the committee consulting Mr. Laverty from time to time, once the discussions got under way."

After meeting the officials, Mayor Horovitz said he was confident an agreement would be reached soon and the question of settlement seemed to hinge now on the strike leader's reaction to his disbarment from the Cornwall conference.

He added the company still was opposed to union recognition, but Laverty had agreed that point would be discussed only as the conclusion of negotiations on the question of higher wages and improved working conditions for the textile worker.

WHITE WINTER WHEAT PROJECT

Fife, pioneer farmer of Otonabee township, and the accepted fact that it was exactly one hundred years ago, in 1837, when he received from the port of Glasgow the few handfuls of seed which was to become famous throughout the Canadian west and adjoining States south of the border as Red Fife wheat.

Peterborough farmers have never ceased growing wheat through all the years since David Fife nurtured his first stalks of red spring wheat which came to him from the Port of Dantzig by way of Glasgow, and withing ten years was selling large quantities of the seed first in his own county and subsequently in a steadily expanding district as the qualities of Red Fife gradually became known. Wheat has usually been one of the dependable cash crops, except perhaps during recurring depressions like the slump from which Ontario agriculture seems now to be more happily emerging.

Closer Study Today

However, more concerted interest is being taken in local grain growing, and that fact suggests both the cyclic and romantic aspects of this phase of the industry. David Fife was a prototype of the farmers, and many of them some of the younger farmers of the county, who are now engaged in applying more thought to their seed, and availing themselves of the advice and knowledge that is obtainable from the Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Agricultural College, which as taxpaying citizens they are helping to maintain.

The story of David Fife and his wife, and the wheat they produced is no mere local legend. Facts have been well established from the evidence of their family and other contemporaries relating how vitally important a smut-resisting wheat had become to the pioneers of this province, and also how the sample of grain reached the Fife home on the road south of Fallin's Corners at the Indian River. And by 1842 the first sales of Red Fife wheat were being made at the unheard of price of $3 a bushel.

The narrative is too long for retelling in connection with the project that was undertaken by the group of Peterborough grain growers three years ago, but surely there is a glowing romance of the great industry of Canadian agriculture in every chapter of the saga of Red Fife and the sturdy qualities which it gave to its perhaps more famous offspring in the development of Garnet, Marquis and other varieties which produced the fabulous prairie crops during the long period of the Canadian West's expansion as a land of promise.

Early Prominence

Red Fife wheat gave Peterborough county a prior claim for prominence in the history of Canadian farming a century ago, and the young men who have rallied around A. D. Runions and his winter wheat growing project have already shown that they possess the same intelligence and industry which deserve the reward of commensurate financial returns.

Their organization is making substantial headway, and every step along the road of advancement will be followed by the whole community with an interest which no doubt will reach upon themselves and their industry, providing an example whose ultimate effects can only be imagined.

EASTERN SYSTEM POWER SAVINGS $387,442 IN '37

Huge Surplus Piled Up Last Year Despite Reductions In Rates

PETERBORO' GETS $17,710

TORONTO, July 24.—(CP)—Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission officials announced total saving in the Eastern system through reduction in power charges will amount to approximately $387,442 in 1937. The commission recently announced the reduction in charges and deductions in monthly bills.

Chief Engineer R. T. Jeffery said at the end of 1936 the commission collected from Eastern Ontario municipalities $2,021,138 in monthly horsepower charges. The total cost, as calculated at the end of the year, was only 1,853,980 and it was necessary to return a surplus of $167,158 to 49 municipalities.

Mr. Jeffery said this surplus was reached despite a reduction in rates for 1936 amounting to more than $130,000. In no case, he added, was it necessary to collect additional costs from any municipality.

$3 Cut Per Horsepower

"A general reduction of $3 per horsepower in the interim rate for power to all municipalities of this system has accordingly been approved by the commission," said Mr. Jeffery.

The reduction means 46 of Eastern Ontario's 47 municipalities will be able to pass on to the consumers a rate of reduction amounting to approximately $253,096. The major benefit will be received by domestic consumers who will pay $113,066 less under the new set-up, the chief engineer added.

In 1936 the municipalities derived a total revenue of $3,506,475. Total expenses were $3,108,175. The net surplus was therefore $418,229.

Refunds for 12

"In addition to these rate reductions, the commission also recommended a refund to consumers in those municipalities that have a considerable cash balance," Mr. Jeffery said. Twelve are involved in this revision and $107,928 formerly paid in by customers in over charges will be returned to them by deductions from the bill which they would otherwise pay.

Refunds of $26,417 are being made to the municipal corporations themselves for payments on account of waterworks and street lighting. This refund will benefit the taxpayers in general, Mr. Jeffery continued.

The increase in the Eastern system business was noted by Mr. Jeffery since 1933. In 1934 revenue was $3,-084,608, with 1935 producing $3,182,-930 and 1936 revenue jumped to $3,-263,920, a record figure. The commission's capital investement in the Eastern system was $19,504,226 with reserves $7,403,232.

Those Benefitting

Municipalities benefitting under the reductions and the amounts: Alexandria, $1,637; Apple Hill, $333; Athens, $272; Belleville, $23,246; Bloomfield, $1,157; Bowmanville, $11,324; Brighton, $1,515; Brockville, $25,866; Cardinal, $1,445; Cobourg, $4,798; Colborne $1,367; Deseronto, $1,064; Finch, $516; Hastings, $969; Havelock, $2,040; Kemptville, $2,971; Kingston, $87,226; Lakefield, $1,273; Lancaster, $713; Lindsay, $9,022; Madoc, $1,136; Marmora $561; Martintown, $412; Maxville, $717; Napanee, $6,422; Norwood, $1,523; Omemee, $647; Oshawa, $34,162; Perth, $10,-723; Peterborough, $17,710; Picton, $7,840; Port Hope, $11,299; Prescott, $6,556; Richmon Hill, $672; Russell, $997; Smith's Falls, $12,566; Stirling, $1,416; Trenton, $23,169; Tweed, $1,-302; Warkworth, $1,362; Whitby $10,730; Williamsburg $3,906; Winchester, $1,994.

"Look at the difference even with the early Victorian era—men working 17 hours a day with no holidays, no old age pension, no outlook at all."

REPORTS IT OBSOLETE.

New Work Will Provide 35 Foot Channel to Sea Below 1934 Low Level.

OTTAWA, July 26 (C.P.). — A contract has been placed with General Dredging Contractors of Montreal to complete the deepening of the St. Lawrence Ship Channel at a cost of approximately $11,500,000, Transport Minister C. D. Howe announced to-day.

At the same time the Minister announced the entire Government dredging fleet and the shipyards at Sorel had been disposed of to General Dredging Contractors at a price of $1,700,000. The sale and contract provide that those now employed at Sorel shall be kept on by the new owners, at least for the remainder of the present season.

A statment issued by Mr. Howe said in part:

In January, 1934, the then Minister of Marine appointed the Interdepartmental, Montreal, and Ship Channel Water Levels Board, with instructions "to gather all necessary information and data, and after consideration and study to report its conclusions as to the cause of low water conditions in the St. Lawrence Ship Channel and the Harbor of Montreal, and what action, if any, should be taken to improve these conditions."

The majority report of the Board recommends that dredging estimated to cost a total of about $11,500,000, in addition to the work now under contract, is necessary to provide an adequate and safe channel having a depth of 35 feet below the 1934 extreme low water level.

Contract Will Finish Channel

To summarize the present position: An expenditure of $11,500,000 will complete the St. Lawrence Ship Channel. Efficiency requires that this work be carried out by contract. The department has a shipyard and a considerable dredging fleet which are now practically obsolete and which will be completely so when the ship channel work is finished. The cost of maintaining the department's shipyard and dredging fleet is now entirely out of proportion to the value of the service obtained. The

BUFFALO PICKET LINES BACK ON JOB

Day of Temporary Truce Ends Without Agreement—No Food Moves.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 26.—(AP)—Striking food handlers returned to their picket lines to-day, the temporary truce in their fight for closed shop union contracts already ended without agreement.

As Buffalo housewives sought to replenish larders depleted by week-end meals, State labor mediators sought again a permanent settlement between employers and the 2,000 striking employees, who have kept grocery deliveries tied up for six days.

The truce, during which strikers promised to drop picketing and embargo efforts and wholesalers said they would not move provisions, ended at midnight and strike leaders immediately rallied forces to resume their blockade on grocery deliveries to retail stores.

Rev. Dr. John P. Boriand, chairman of New York State's Labor Relations Board, drew representatives of 44 wholesale grocery merchants and 1,000 striking truck drivers into a new peace parley to discuss possible compromise plans.

Meanwhile, Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. leader representing 1,000 butchers, said he was ready to pursue new peace efforts with managers of three packing plants.

Labor Continues Storming Government For Naval Protection on Removal of Refugees.

"BREAKING NO TREATY"

LONDON, July 26 (C.P. Cable).—The cleavage of Spain widens in the House of Commons. Daily the gulf becomes more apparent, with Labor siding with the Valencia Government and a section of the Conservatives not less sympathetic to General Franco.

As Franco flung men against Madrid this afternoon, Labor stormed at the Government over naval protection for British ships carrying refugees from Santander. A previous statement from Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, that these ships were "volunteers as much as any of those volunteers from Italy, Germany, Great Britain and France alleged to be fighting on either side," was at issue.

A Labor member demanded to know whether evacuation of refugees was a violation of the no-intervention agreement.

POLICE SEEK GIRL MYSTERY MURDER OF RICH LANDLORD

Hand Sticking From Pile of Rocks Reveals Body in Lonely Field.

SUSPECT GANG JOB.

ST. LAURENT, Que., July 26 (CP)—A girl named "J...se d'Arc" was sought today by police hoping she might possess some clue to the slaying of Hyacinthe Cote, well-to-do Montreal landlord whose body was found near here Saturday.

A letter found on the body, concealed under a pile of rocks in a field 250 feet from a road seldom visited, prompted authorities to hunt for the girl who was known to have been an acquaintance of the 61-year-old widower.

The body was discovered by Edwin James, a Sunday berry-picker. In the field with his family looking for blueberries, James saw a human hand sticking out a pile of rocks in the ditch. He summoned police who pulled the rocks away to find the body. The hands were bound behind the back and around the neck a handkerchief was tightly knotted.

Cote's trouser pockets were turned inside out and papers were strewn over the ground. One foot was bare and the missing shoe was found several yards away, with a man's cap and tie, and a gold watch.

Police theorized more than one person was involved in the apparent strangling of Cote, because he weighed about 210 pounds and was burly of build. One person scarcely would have been able to lift his body, they said.

FALL WHEAT CROP GENERALLY GOOD

All Likely in Barns Within Week—Hay Yield Exceptionally Large.

TORONTO, July 26 (C.P.). — A fall wheat crop that is generally good in all parts of the province was reported being harvested to-day by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in its weekly crop report. The harvest will be completed within a week or two.

While rust is prevalent, agricultural representatives said the crop would be better than average. This was especially the case in Halton, Huron, Simcoe, Haldimand, Lincoln, Oxford, Northumberland, Peterborough, York and Glengarry.

Many a hay crop has yet to be taken to the barn. In every region, without exception, farmers call the hay crop exceptionally large. Haying was in full progress last week in Frontenac, but is delayed in Carleton.

Peterborough Men Among Delegates To Labor Congress

Cornwall, Toronto, Three Rivers Plants Also Represented at Session.

SPEAK FOR 8,000.

Acceptance or Refusal of Charter to Rest With Local Unions.

OTTAWA, July 26. (CP).—The 80,000 textile workers throughout Canada are to be organized by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, it was announced at the conclusion of a conference of the congress executive and workers' representatives yesterday.

Cornwall local unions of the United Textile Workers of America, now on strike from the Canadian Cottons' three plants, were among those who requested that the congress issue charters.

Representing 8,000 textile workers, delegates from Toronto, Peterborough and Cornwall in Ontario and Three Rivers in Quebec.

P. M. Draper, President of the congress, stated that after "careful consideration" the executive decided to issue charters covering all textile workers domiciled in Canada providing they complied with the constitution and by-laws of the congress.

Double Authority

Permission to take this action was received both from the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O., it was stated.

Sydney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, who is now in charge of organizing the textile workers in the United Stattis, informed the congress that organization in Canada was not contemplated at the moment, and agreed to the congress organizing Canadian textile workers, as did William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor. "The United Textile Workers of America in Canada is now disolved," asserted Mr. Draper.

Mr. Draper said that the Catholic Syndicate of Quebec, all Canadian Congress of Labor and the Canadian Federation of Labor local unions would not be included but that the congress would now make a drive to organize all textile workers in Canada.

Acceptance or refusal of a charter under the congress still remained in the power of local unions, Mr. Draper said.

King Only Onlooker At Ship Launching

Trieste, Italy, July 26 (AP).

THE 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto, first of the new Italian super-dreadnaughts, was launched yesterday in the presence of King Vittorio Emanuele and Queen Elena.

The wife of a common workman, Signora Marie Bertuzzi, chosen by Premier Mussolini's orders, was sponsor for the new ship.

As 10,000 workmen and 100,000 other onlookers cheered, she pressed the button which sent the great hull down the ways.

Signora Bertuzzi's husband has been employed in Italian shipyards nearly forty years and recently was decorated for long and loyal service.

48,000 MORE MEN URGENTLY NEEDED IN BRITISH ARMY

LESS THAN IN 1913.

LONDON, July 26—(CP)—Establishment of a central reserve of two British army divisions ready at a moment's notice to go to any threatened point in the Empire was suggested today by the Army League Committee as it launched a campaign for 47,000 recruits and 1,000 officers to build the army to "the minimum margin of safety."

A voluntary body of men prominent in public and military life, the League released its survey of the military situation with strong recommendations to "His Majesty's government and public opinion." Leopold S. Amery, former cabinet minister, is chairman.

The committee was not sponsored by the government but its charges of an unhealthy condition in the army are expected to receive close attention of the government.

"We know the horrors of war first hand—two members fought at the age of 19," the report said in stressing it was not drawn up in a militaristic spirit.

The report said shortage of recruits had been manifest for many years and the army faced an "alarming" deficiency of reserves. There were 135,748 reserves now against 210,000 in 1913. As an incentive to recruiting, it recommended higher pay and that the government give preference in employing veterans or former recruits.

"Great Britain's military preparedness is far less than before the war!" the report declared. "Her commitments are greater! We have allowed the strength of the army to fall below the minimum margin of safety."

RECOVERY HOLDING UP STRONG IN U. S.

Agriculture Department Regards 1937 Wheat Crop Best in 10 Years.

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP).—A survey of industrial, business and agricultural conditions in the United States shows the forces of recovery are still holding up strong, making for less of a summer let-down than usual.

With the largest farm income since 1929 now in prospect—an income with an even greater purchasing power than '29, because of price differences—the financial community looks forward to a continuous upward trend of the long-range prosperity chart in the fall and winter months.

Currently, the farm prospects constitute the brightest part of the outlook, and their maximum influence will be exerted in the fall and early winter.

Total cash farm income in 1929 was approximately $10,400,000,000 with a net income, after current expenses were paid, of around $6,100,000,000. The Department of Agriculture envisions the 1937 wheat crop as the most valuable in 10 years and this supports the view of economists and statisticians that farm income this year will approximate $9,000,000,000, with a net of around $6,000,000,000.

11,500,000 JOB LET TO DEEPEN ST. LAWRENCE

REPORTS IT OBSOLETE.

New Work Will Provide 35 Foot Channel to Sea Below 1934 Low Level.

OTTAWA, July 26 (C.P.). — A contract had been placed with General Dredging Contractors of Montreal to complete the deepening of the St. Lawrence Ship Channel at a cost of approximately $11,500,000, Transport Minister C. D. Howe announced to-day.

At the same time the Minister announced the entire Government dredging fleet and the shipyards at Sorel had been disposed of to General Dredging Contractors at a price of $1,700,000. The sale and contract provide that those now employed at Sorel shall be kept on by the new owners, at least for the remainder of the present season.

A statment issued by Mr. Howe said in part:

In January, 1934, the then Minister of Marine appointed the Interdepartmental, Montreal, and Ship Channel Water Levels Board, with instructions "to gather all necessary information and data, and after consideration and study to report its conclusions as to the cause of low water conditions in the St. Lawrence Ship Channel and the Harbor of Montreal, and what action, if any, should be taken to improve these conditions."

The majority report of the Board recommends that dredging estimated to cost a total of about $11,500,000, in addition to the work now under contract, is necessary to provide an adequate and safe channel having a depth of 35 feet below the 1934 extreme low water level.

Contract Will Finish Channel

To summarize the present position: An expenditure of $11,500,000 will complete the St. Lawrence Ship Channel. Efficiency requires that this work be carried out by contract. The department has a shipyard and a considerable dredging fleet which are now practically obsolete and which will be completely so when the ship channel work is finished. The cost of maintaining the department's shipyard and dredging fleet is now entirely out of proportion to the value of the service obtained. The

BUFFALO PICKET LINES BACK ON JOB

Day of Temporary Truce Ends Without Agreement—No Food Moves.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 26.—(AP)—Striking food handlers returned to their picket lines to-day, the temporary truce in their fight for closed shop union contracts already ended without agreement.

As Buffalo housewives sought to replenish larders depleted by week-end meals, State labor mediators sought again a permanent settlement between employers and the 2,000 striking employees, who have kept grocery deliveries tied up for six days.

The truce, during which strikers promised to drop picketing and embargo efforts and wholesalers said they would not move provisions, ended at midnight and strike leaders immediately rallied forces to resume their blockade on grocery deliveries to retail stores.

Rev. Dr. John P. Boriand, chairman of New York State's Labor Relations Board, drew representatives of 44 wholesale grocery merchants and 1,000 striking truck drivers into a new peace parley to discuss possible compromise plans.

Meanwhile, Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. leader representing 1,000 butchers, said he was ready to pursue new peace efforts with managers of three packing plants.

TORONTO, July 26.— (CP)—Favorites in men's singles opened the Canadian lawn tennis championships to-day on the Toronto Cricket Club courts by sweeping easily through first-round matches as threatening weather delayed bringing rain on the scene.

COVEHEAD, P.E.I.—CP)—Farmers in this district are looking forward to a bumper crop of field roots. An increase of about 20 per cent. has been reported in the acreage of turnips while the hay crop is also above the average. Frequent rains have provided the best pastures in years, farmers says. Tom Dewey No. 1 Racket Buster Cracks Down On New York Vice Puts Crimp in $2,000,000 a Year Restaurant Shakedown By Convicting 7 Leaders.

STARTED AS SINGER.

By Roger B. Greene
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—"Guilty! . . . Guilty! . . . Guilty! . . ." One hundred and eighty-two times the roar of Jury Foreman John M. Heaton rolled out the verdict on the seven men at the bar—defendants in New York's $2,500,000-a-year restaurant shakedown racket.

Slowly, their cynical smiles faded. At the end, they sobbed. They shouted hysterically. "I'm not a racketeer. I'm a respectable business man. I've got a wife and family!" They swore

Peterborough Men Among Delegates To Labor Congress

Cornwall, Toronto, Three Rivers Plants Also Represented at Session.

SPEAK FOR 80,000.

Acceptance or Refusal of Charter to Rest With Local Unions.

OTTAWA, July 26. (CP)—The 80,000 textile workers throughout Canada are to be organized by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, it was announced at the conclusion of a conference of the congress executive and workers' representatives yesterday.

Cornwall local unions of the United Textile Workers of America, now on strike from the Canadian Cottons' three plants, were among those who requested that the congress issue charters.

Representing 8,000 textile workers, delegates from Toronto, Peterborough and Cornwall in Ontario and Three Rivers in Quebec.

P. M. Draper, President of the congress, stated that after "careful consideration" the executive decided to issue charters covering all textile workers domiciled in Canada providing they complied with the constitution and by-laws of the congress.

Double Authority

Permission to take this action was received both from the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O., it was stated.

Sydney Hillman, President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, who is now in charge of organizing the textile workers in the United States, informed the congress that organization in Canada was not contemplated at the moment, and agreed to the congress organizing Canadian textile workers, as did William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor. "The United Textile Workers of America in Canada is now dissolved," asserted Mr. Draper.

Mr. Draper said that the Catholic Syndicate of Quebec, all Canadian Congress of Labor and the Canadian Federation of Labor local unions would not be included but that the congress would now make a drive to organize all textile workers in Canada.

Acceptance or refusal of a charter under the congress still remained in the power of local unions, Mr. Draper said.

King Only Onlooker At Ship Launching

Trieste, Italy, July 26 (AP).

THE 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto, first of the new Italian super-dreadnaughts, was launched yesterday in the presence of King Vittorio Emanuele and Queen Elena.

The wife of a common workman, Signora Marie Bertuzzi, chosen by Premier Mussolini's orders, was sponsor for the new ship.

As 10,000 workmen and 100,000 other onlookers cheered, she pressed the button which sent the great hull down the ways.

Signora Bertuzzi's husband has been employed in Italian shipyards nearly forty years and recently was decorated for long and loyal service.

48,000 MORE MEN URGENTLY NEEDED IN BRITISH ARMY

LESS THAN IN 1913.

LONDON, July 26—(CP)—Establishment of a central reserve of two British army divisions ready at a moment's notice to go to any threatened point in the Empire was suggested today by the Army League Committee as it launched a campaign for 47,000 recruits and 1,000 officers to build the army to "the minimum margin of safety."

A voluntary body of men prominent in public and military life, the League released its survey of the military situation with strong recommendations to "His Majesty's government and public opinion." Leopold S. Amery, former cabinet minister, is chairman.

The committee was not sponsored by the government but its charges of an unhealthy condition in the army are expected to receive close attention of the government.

"We know the horrors of war first hand—two members fought at the age of 19," the report said in stressing it was not drawn up in a militaristic spirit.

The report said shortage of recruits had been manifest for many years and the army faced an "alarming" deficiency of reserves. There were 135,748 reserves now against 210,000 in 1913. As an incentive to recruiting, it recommended higher pay and that the government give preference in employing veterans or former recruits.

"Great Britain's military preparedness is far less than before the war!" the report declared. "Her commitments are greater! We have allowed the strength of the army to fall below the minimum margin of safety."

Captain Rescues Four From River

GANANOQUE, Ont., July 26. — (CP)—Captain John Leslie rescued four persons from Tuscarora, N. Y., from drowning in the St. Lawrence river near Eel Bay, seven miles east of Gananoque yesterday. Captain Leslie, touring the islands with a party of Americans in his boat, noticed an overturned boat. He hurried to the scene and found a boat with an outboard motor had turned over in the squall and had thrown the occupants into the water. He threw out a life preserver and the four Americans were pulled to safety.

The party gave their names as Ralph Timerman, Harold Streit, Ruth Vardimer and Elizabeth Penney, all of Teresa.

RECOVERY HOLDING UP STRONG IN U.S.

Agriculture Department Regards 1937 Wheat Crop Best in 10 Years.

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP).—A survey of industrial, business and agricultural conditions in the United States shows the forces of recovery are still holding up strong, making for less of a summer let-down than usual.

With the largest farm income since 1929 now in prospect—an income with an even greater purchasing power than '29, because of price differences—the financial community looks forward to a continuous upward trend of the long-range prosperity chart in the fall and winter months.

Currently, the farm prospects constitute the brightest part of the outlook, and their maximum influence will be exerted in the fall and early winter.

Total cash farm income in 1929 was approximately $10,400,000,000 with a net income, after current expenses were paid, of around $6,100,000,000. The Department of Agriculture envisions the 1937 wheat crop as the most valuable in 10 years and this supports the view of economists and statisticians that farm income this year will approximate $9,000,000,000, with a net of around $6,000,000,000.

RAILROADER WITH LOADED REVOLVER ALARMS LINDSAY

Shot is Fired at Gil Saunders and Police Are Also Threatened.

FACES SERIOUS CHARGE.

LINDSAY July 26 — Desmond "Babe" Heels, a C.N.R. employee, ran amok with a large 45 Colt revolver at 3.30 Sunday morning, allegedly shot at a neighbor, Engineer Gil Saunder and is said to have tried to pull the same gun on police officers Alf Hodgson and Jarvis Massingham when they jumped out from behind a barn and grabbed Heels. The man was taken into custody, Magistrate Gee aroused from his bed and Heels remanded until Monday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, which charge may be changed to a more serious one.

Heels had been causing anxiety at his home and among the neighbors. "Im going to shoot you," he suddenly said to his neighbor, Mr. Saunders and without warning pulled a revolver on the unsuspecting and astonished Saunders. "I had barely time to strike the man's arm and duck my head at the same time", said Saunders "when the revolver spouted and I felt the bullet whizz by my left ear. Believe me, it was a narrow call for me."

Constable Hodgson was summoned and picking up Officer Massingham, the two men began their search for Heels who still had his revolver. He was not to be found and the officers were about to come out in the open when they heard someone approaching from a vacant lot at the rear of the Heels home. They ducked behind a barn and grabbed Heels as he went by. Heels gripped his gun tightly and clung tenaciously to the gun when the officers grabbed his arm. He then went along peacefully to the police station.

It is stated that Heels has not been well of late. The revolver taken from Heels was a large 45 Colt and was loaded to the brim except for one bullet. It was still smelling of fresh powder. It is stated that two other revolvers were picked up by the police at Heels' home.

LIGHT SENTENCE FOR MADELEINE

Not Over 3 Years Likely For Divorcee Who Shot French Count.

PARIS, July 26. —(UP)— Mme. Madeleine de Fontanges, sultry-eyed divorcee who shot Count Charles Pineton de Chambrun because "he shattered my unforgettable hours of love with Benito Mussolini," was assured of a light sentence last night.

The examining Magistrate, after a long police inquiry that involved well-known diplomats of two nations, ordered her held to trial in the Tenth Correctional Court on charges of non-declaration of firearms and battery and mayhem.

Her sentence in the Correctional Court cannot be more than five years; is likely to be a two or three year term.

Had she been held to trial in the Assizes Court she would have faced long imprisonment at hard labor or solitary confinement.

Legal circles buzzed with a rumor that the French Government is "playing down" the crime and directed that the trial of Mme. Fontanges—also known as Magda le Ferriere—be sent to the Correctional Court to avoid further scandal involving famous persons.

The Government still refuses to reveal the contents of a diary kept by Mme. Fontanges, who testified that she was Premier Mussolini's mistress for three months in Rome until Count de Chambrun "poisoned" Il Duce against her.

She accosted the Count, former French Ambassador to Rome, as he stepped aboard the Brussels Express at the Nord Station here last March and fired a bullet into his groin.

The Count, fully recovered from his wound, has filed a civil suit for damages in an attempt to "clear my name of the scandal - mongering charge."

Mme. Fontanges testified before an examining Magistrate that de Chambrun "ruined my idyl with Mussolini" in order to repay a political debt. She also involved "a former Premier of France in her testimony.

TORONTO FLIER'S PLANE CRASHES PILOT IS KILLED

Youth Gets Only 200 Yards From Hangar When Craft Goes in Spin.

HAD LICENSE WEEK.

TORONTO, July 26. — Ray J. Lynch, 24-year-old Toronto garage mechanic, who obtained a private pilot's license one week ago, was almost instantly killed late on Saturday when the light monoplane which he was solo flying dived vertically into the barnyard of a North York farm.

Lynch, dragged from the wreckage of the machine by George Bowers, farmer, and his children, died in a Public Health ambulance just before it brought his smashed body to Western Hospital. He suffered a fractured spine, fractured skull, and numerous other injuries.

The plane dived, according to witnesses, from about 300 feet above the ground, partially righted itself just before it struck, and then dropped nose first. So vertical was the fall that, after it struck, it came to rest with the tail almost straight up, leaning back slightly against a dog's kennel. The dog was killed when it was struck by the right wing.

Not Far From Hangars

The crash occurred about 200 yards from the hangars of the Murray Aeronautical Corporation, owners of the craft from whom Lynch had rented it a few minutes earlier. He had flown several times from the Murray premises where he had taken instruction and was considered a good, practical student. Officials of the company declined to discuss the crash, pending completion of an investigation immediately launched by Wing Commander Douglas Joy, Inspector of Civil Aviation.

An inquest will be held, Coroner J. P. F. Williams stated. The date will be announced on completion of examination of the wreckage by Commander Joy and Howard S. Aiguire, Government Inspector of Aircraft for Toronto district. Police-Constable George Wilson guarded the wreckage all night until early yesterday when Inspector Aiguire began stripping the wreckage of the craft and carried away the sections for testing.

Occurs in Daylight.

The accident occurred shortly after 8 o'clock, while there was still plenty of light for flying. Nearest eye-witnesses were 14-year-old Archie Bowers, 12-year-old Sylvia Bowers, and 9-year-old Bobbie Bowers. The three are the children of George Bowers, whose farm is at the south-west corner of Dufferin Street and McDougall Avenue.

EMERGENCY MEET CALLED BY JAPS OVER HOSTILITIES

Bombing Planes Take Hand, Wiping Out Chinese Barracks on Peiping Line.

ARMY ADVANCES.

TOKYO, July 26 (A.P.). — Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye summoned his Cabinet to an emergency session to-day on the eve of a joint session of both Houses of Parliament where he was to make a significant statement on the North China situation.

The Government viewed the new outbreak of hostilities between Chinese and Japanese troops with extreme gravity and ordered "all measures" be taken against further Chinese attacks.

Vice-Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Third Fleet in Chinese waters, was ordered by the Navy Department to carry out "emergency measures" in the crisis.

Some observers here looked for the Japanese Army to launch an attack on the ancient walls of Peiping in the struggle to establish Japanese claims to special economic privileges in North China.

Japanese brought bombing planes into the fight for the first time and virtually destroyed the Chinese army barracks at Langfang ,midway between Tientsin and Peiping on the strategic military railway. Japanese were reported to have driven the Chinese troops from their positions and to be pursuing them as they retreated to the north-west.

As the crisis took its sudden turn the Japanese Air Corps began a five-day test of the defences of the metropolitan area from air attack.

CAR HITS BRIDGE DROPS IN CREEK

Whole Structure is Moved Off Abutment, 2 Men Escape.

LINDSAY, July 26.—Death had two chances to snatch a pair of victims early Sunday morning, but missed out both times.

After knocking a steel bridge clear off its cement abutment, a car driven by George Edmonds, 2 Sultan avenue, and containing his friend, George Duthie, 296 Wright avenue, Toronto, plunged into the water, almost trapping the young men.

Edmonds said he was blinded by a car's headlights when about to cross over Emily Creek. He remembered nothing more until he found himself struggling in the water alongside Duthie. Neither was hurt beyond a few bruises.

The impact with the steel girder of the bridge shifted the bridge into the water, where it sank. The men escaped injury in the impact, but they came close to drowning when the machine tipped into the water. Neither Duthie nor Edmonds was able to say how he escaped from the car.

All traffic on No. 36 Highway had to be detoured on account of the damage to the bridge.

CHARLES SAUNDERS NOTED SCIENTIST DIES IN TORONTO

STUDIED MUSIC YEARS.

TORONTO, July 26. —(CP)— A year to the day after his wife's death, Charles Edward Saunders, who won a knighthood by his contributions to Canadian agriculture, died at his home here yesterday. He was 70 years old. To North American wheat growers in particular and to all agriculturalists he will be best remembered for his development of Marquis wheat.

Sir Charles became the first Dominion cerealist when the Canadian government created that post in 1903. This was, in part, in recognition of his achievement in giving the Canadian and United States West an early-ripening wheat that established the prairies as the granary of the world.

King George V recognized the scientist's great contribution to Dominion and Empire in 1934 when he made him a Knight Bachelor. Sir Charles honored the title, remaining the same kindly, modest man that had endeared him to all who knew him.

VETERAN RELATES STIRRING EVENTS OF PIONEER DAYS

Herded First Cattle In Alberta. Calgary Then Only Tent Town

RECALLS INDIAN FIGHTS

CARDSTON, Alta., July 26—(CP)—Indian battles and struggles in the wild and woolly west of early days were described by Frank Harrison, of Babb, Mont., one of the real old-timers attending Cardston's Jubilee Celebration. The 83-year-old veteran helped to drive the first large herd of cattle into Alberta.

"They were great days and I'm not sorry I lived during them," he said. "In 1881 I helped trail a herd of cattle into Alberta. We drove 4,400 cattle north from Helena and finally reached the Fort Benton trail and followed it into Canada. We made about 10 miles a day and had no trouble finding water. And the grass—well, the grass toucher our stirrups.

"There was nothing then in this country except the Mounted Police post at McLeod and Calgary and a few squatters. We delivered the cattle to Hay Creek on the Cochrane Ranch.

He recalled the coming of the Mormans in '87 to Lees' Creek. "They did a lot to open this west country and were the souls of hospitality."

When he hauled the first load of freight from Medicine Hat into Lethbridge for the budding towns of Tweed and Ewart, both settlements had only store tents.

"I knew Nick Sheron and freighted from his mine at Lethbridge to Fort McLeod in the old days," he continued. "I also remember Jerry Potts, famous Indian scout and guide, and George Houk too." Houk was close friend and confidant of the Indians, and later became marshal at Fort Benton, and married into the Blackfoot tribe.

Harrison married a Blood-Indian girl, who died three years ago, and from her gained an accurate account of the last great Indian battle waged on the present site of Lethbridge in the early '70's.

"My wife was in the encampment when the Cree war party swooped down on them and started to shoot into the tents, leaving dead and wounded right and left. It was a surprise attack, as the Bloods had no idea there was a Cree band in the vicinity" he said.

But the revengeful Bloods, aided by white buffalo hunters, trappers and traders, overtook the marauders and wiped out nearly the entire band.

His wife found him dead with his head in a gas oven. The dog was dead near him. The wife said after living for 20 years in a house with a garden they moved to a flat where dogs were prohibited.

The verdict was Hooper took his life, "while the balance of his mind was disturbed."

ONE EXPLANATION

Old Lady Thinks Archbishop Blessing Crown during Fumble

LONDON, July 26 (CP)—An explanation for the popular conception he had "fumbled" the crown during the coronation ceremony was made by the Archbishop of Canterbury at a banquet of the Society of Knights Bachelor.

The Archbishop declared: "I could make a most sincere apology for that performance but it brought some compensation in the form of a letter from an old lady who said: 'The most beautiful thing in the coronation was to see the dear Archbishop blessing the four corners of the crown before he put it on the King's head.'"

GROUP THEATRE PLANS COMEBACK

Offshoot Of Guild To Resume Producing In Coming Season

NEW YORK, July 26.—(CP)—Along with its successful commercial producers, Broadway supports a number of theatre groups who are more interested in artistic and ethical aspects of their productions than in a strictly mercenary result.

The Theatre Guild, after it reached the stage of presenting several box office hits a season, often was accused of being strictly a commercial outfit. Yet, along with their profitable hits, the Guild can point to "Faust," Shaw's "The Apple Cart," Eugene O'Neill's "Dynamo" and other such expensive and distinguished plays which failed miserably at the box office. Also, it was the Guild that took the risk of producing O'Neill's nine-act "Strange Interlude" when it seemed impossible that such a long play could survive at regular admission prices. Happily it was a hit and added much to the coffers of the Guild.

For several years Eva le Gallienne conducted a civic repertory theatre for enthusiastic audiences. Some of her plays, notably "The Cradle Song" and Ibsen dramas, were tremendous successes, and even those which were not hits won vagrant bits of praise. But Miss le Gallienne's low admission prices would not cover the expenses of her permanent company and she closed shop.

Now the news is that the Group Theatre, a collection of experimental youngsters who branched off from the Theatre Guild, will resume producing when the new season opens next month despite the fact that they decided to go into retirement in the middle of last season. They are coming back, with their first production likely to be Clifford Odets' "The Silent Partner."

The idea of the Group Theatre, as outlined by Harold Clurman, one of its director, is this: "A collective effort in the theatre, a company without stars working towards the best interpretations of the plays they believe in."

A Home Improvement Plan

"You know this Home Improvement Plan?" said Mr. Picobac, helping himself to a match from the manager's desk. "Well, it's got me into a jam."

"How's that?" asked his friend, Mr. H. B. "Pete" Christie, bank manager and financial counsel.

"I saw about it in the paper and showed it to Mrs. Picobac, and I said it might be a good time to put in one of these improved inglenooks they have nowadays to smoke in. You know—with a brick fire-place and seats at each side for a pal or two."

"And what did Mrs. Picobac say?"

"She thought it was just the time to modernize the kitchen like the magazine pictures," chuckled Mr. Picobac. "So we had to compromise . . . we compromised on the kitchen, and I'm here applying for a Home Improvement loan for $300."

"I think you are wise," said the manager. "That kitchen will give her a lot of pleasure—and you don't need any special place to smoke Picobac in."

"Yes," said Mr. Picobac, his face wreathed in smiles. "Picobac's a mild, cool, sweet smoke in a pipe—anytime, any place!"

Fashion Service

Playtime on the beach or in town is lots of fun for 2 to 6 in a cool print seersucker romper suit like this. And imagine the thrill of wearing a hat to match — with a strip crown, just like mummy's new hat. This little seersucker ensemble is so easy to wash and doesn't need to be ironed.

Note the cunning way the rompers button at the back. Non-slipping suspender straps leave the dress so free for action. There's a useful pocket for hanky which is always amusing to youngsters.

Best of all — it's as easy as A, B, C, to make — and takes just the minimum of material. You'll find just the nicest plain and printed cottons on the remnant counters for a mere trifle.

The pattern includes an Illustrated Sewing Instruction chart for this quick-to-sew romper and hat ensemble.

Style No. 2933 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 39-inch material for sun-suit and hat.

PRINTS AND TWEEDS GO TO THE RACES

GOING TO the races? Most of us are. Whether we consider ourselves "sporty" people or not, there is a lure in the pounding hoofs and the sight of the beautiful, intelligent creatures tearing around the track, trying so hard to win for their masters and mistresses. It is in our blood, this love of horse racing.

Two costumes that have been seen recently at the tracks are (left), the printed dress topped by the plain long woollen coat. It is a favorite costume of the season.

And (right) is an illustration of how smart are checks or plaids in tweed suits for the turf events.

In Paris there is night racing, and lovely evening gowns are created especially for wear at these entertainments. Paquin has many dresses made of combinations of black lace inset on white silk organdie.

The millinery displayed at the Grand Prix in Paris, indicates the trend of autumn hats. They are tall, especially toward the front, with a forward movement of the whole hat. A white panama turban, for instance, seen there, had coq feathers that drooped toward the front, and most of the newer hats have the same styling.

Two very well-dressed women at the Grand Prix, wore identical dresses—Alix' draped models—only one was in black, the other white. The women carried identical bags, but their hats were different. The one who wore the white dress having a wide-brimmed black hat; the other a white draped turban, both by Suzy.

For other types of racing—boat racing, for instance, are worn different clothes entirely, especially as boating enthusiasts are apt to be participants in the sport.

For regattas, light blue dungarees with nautical decorations and accessories are worn. Pullover sweaters with narrow or club stripes and many sailor collars are worn by participants and spectators alike. Many of the girls who took part in the racing wore slacks, and so did some lookers-on. Navy jeans, tweedy linens, sharkskins, synthetic mixtures, hemesput cottons, some flannels and wool gabardines were seen.

Presentation To Cricketer

During the interval at the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket match on Saturday afternoon, at Nicholl's Oval, the members of the Peterborough team, as a token of esteem and goodwill presented "Tommy" Williams, one of their number with an electric clock.

J. Lawrence, vice-captain of the team, asked Mr. Williams, who was recently married, to accept the gift with his team mates' best wishes for all future happiness.

Mr. Williams briefly thanked the members, saying how much he enjoyed taking part in the games with them, and that he looked forward to continuing the association when he was able to do so.

Quartet and Soloist Enjoyed at George St. United

During the morning service at George St. United Church on Sunday, the musical numbers were given by the Garden Hill male quartette and by Mrs. Percy Maybee, who sang a solo. Two numbers were given by the quartette in well-balanced voice. These singers have filled many engagements since attaining very high marks at the Durham County Musical Festival, and their willingness to help by singing of sacred and secular numbers has gained for them the appreciation of large audiences. The members of the quartette are: Lawrence Dunbar, Stewart Gray, Mark Gardiner, and Wesley Hannah. Mrs. H. M. Foster is the director.

Very few vocalists have had the choir and oratorical experience of Mrs. Percy Maybee. Mrs. Maybee has sat in choirs under the leadership of Sir Ernest MacMillan of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Dr. R. A. Pricker, the late A. D. Jordon, organist of Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, Professor M. M. Stevenson of Toronto, and J. B. Renwick, a former organist in Peterborough and Port Hope. Having such a wide experience in choir work the singer gives great assistance in the district south of Peterborough, where Mr. and Mrs. Maybee now reside.

Bauman—LaPlante

The following newspaper clipping from Rochester, N.Y., will be of interest. Mrs. Leslie L. Bauman, who before her recent marriage, was Miss Irene LaPlante, has many friends in this city.

"Outstanding in the midsummer weddings was the marriage of Miss Irene M. La Plante, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. T. LaPlante of Selye Terrace, and Leslie Lawrence Bauman, of Boston, Mass., which took place Saturday at 9 a.m. in Holy Rosary Church.

"Roses and delphinium were used to decorate the sanctuary for the ceremony which was performed by the bridegroom's cousin, the Rev. William Canaan of Hammondsport."

The bride wore a stunning white lace gown over satin and carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret LaPlante, who wore peach chiffon over matching satin and carried blue delphinium and roses. Lawrence Hart was best man and ushers were Henry Kearse and Raymond Bauman.

"A frock of blue print chiffon worn with a corsage of gardenias and delphinium was chosen by the bride's mother. The sister of the bridegroom was attractive in a blue net gown with a corsage of tea roses.

"Following the ceremony, breakfast was served at "Ye Olde Farme". Here delphinium and roses repeated the color scheme chosen for the wedding. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Among out-of-town guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Glover, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rutherford, all of Peterborough, Canada."

Gimblett—Curtis

The marriage was quietly solemnized at nine o'clock this morning at the parsonage of Park Street Baptist Church of Florence Aileen Curtis, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curtis of Penelon Falls, to James W. Gimblett, son of Chief George Gimblett and the late Mrs. Gimblett. The Rev. C. C. Boyter officiated.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of pink chiffon made on princess lines, with which she wore a white poke bonnet, white gloves and slippers and a corsage of roses.

The attendants were Mrs. W. A. Cochrane, sister of the bride and George Gimblett, Jr., brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gimblett left to spend their honeymoon at a cottage on the St. Lawrence River, near Napanee. The latter chose a suit of white California cloth, with blue hat, gloves and purse as her going away costume. They will reside in Toronto.

Tewsley—Tully

In St. Paul's church at seven o'clock on Saturday evening, a very pretty wedding was quietly solemnized when Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Tully, of Murray street, was married to Harry Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Tewsley, of Benson avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charmingly distinctive gown of navy blue sheer over taffeta. Her short tailored jacket was fashioned with wide revers bound with white corded silk, and her hat in coronet style was of white corded silk. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of roses and cornflowers.

The young couple were unattended, only immediate relatives and friends attending the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Tewsley, Jr., who are now on a motor trip in the States, will reside at 174 McDonnel street when they return.

Pillsworth—McPhee

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Little Britain United Church recently when Dorothea Irene McPhee, daughter of Mrs. T. Bullivant, Little Britain, became the bride of Hudson Franklin Pillsworth of Woodbridge, with the Rev. H. H. Hillis officiating.

The bride looked charming in an ensemble of white chiffon, made on princess lines and wearing a tiny hat in halo effect with a short veil. She carried a bouquet of lillies, pale blue delphiniums and baby's breath. Her attendant, Miss Marjorie Wilson, was attractively attired in blue flowered crepe with white accessories and bouquet of lillies, dark blue delphiniums and baby's breath.

The best man was Marshall Stephens, Jr.

At the reception later the guests were received by the bridal party and Mrs. Bullivant, mother of the bride, wearing blue flowered chiffon with white accessories, and Mrs. Pillsworth, mother of the groom, in a white tailored suit with pink pleated blouse. Guests were present from Toronto, Peterborough, Woodbridge and other centres. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Stephens, Lois Stephens and Jack Stephens, Mrs. W. G. JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The habit of reading is the only enjoyment I know in which there is no alloy. It lasts when all other treasures fade. It will be there to support you when all other resources are gone. It will be present to you when the energies of your body have fallen away from you. It will last you until your death. It will make your hours pleasant to you as long as you live." Trollope.

Dear Friends:

Recently I wrote you about having an outlet for your emotions and now I will give you some pointers as to how it can be done.

My favorite outlet is reading. Once I was rather catholic about my reading, everything and anything that was readable I read. But now I am more conservative about it.

When I was a girl I was laid aside by illness for about six weeks, and I read all Sir Walter Scott's works and got a taste for real literature. It opened an entirely new world for me.

Then I read all of Jules Vernes works, Forty Leagues under the Sea, Six weeks in a ballon, and all the others, and through them I got the possibilities for invention which God had granted men, for I reasoned like this. If He had let men get the idea of these things why wouldn't He let the ideas be fulfilled and since then I have seen many of those ideas brought to fruition.

Aeroplanes are now a commonplace thing to us, dirigibles, submarines and all the other inventions. Shakespeare I think it was who said, "And the night shall be filled with music, And the cares that infest the day, Shall fold their wings like the Arabs, and as silently pass away."

All these writers had a glimmering of what was to be. Not for them the fulfillment of their ideas, but they knew they were possibilities for the coming generation.

And so you see, reading can be an outlet with unlimited possibilities. If you want romance it is there, adventure, exploration, invention, travel, anything and everything your heart can desire will be found on the pages of your own Examiner, or within the covers of a book.

You can travel without even leaving your bed, and most of my reading is done lying down, for my sore spine can rest then, and I can forget about the ache in it while I lose myself in a story.

I like to read history now, but sometimes I wonder what the common people got out of life but misery, for only certain ones had even a semblance of luxury, and what was considered luxury then would be scoffed at now. No baths, nor furnaces nor showers, nor running water nor sanitation. Who would want to live in the good old days?

And I like a love story with a happy ending, for I have seen too many which ended the other way in real life, and I like to think someone is happy even if it is only in a story.

So you can see that reading can use up a lot of surplus emotion, giving you so many outlets in one that you can never be so dependant on others as you were before. Sometimes I'll grant you, I wish I could live some of these things instead of just reading about them, and sometimes I am glad I can take it all out in just doing the reading part, for I can get all the thrills without the discomfort. So try Reading and see how much fuller your life will be. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

He Worked on a Farm

There is one young man in this city who finished his schooling not many weeks ago and then wanted something to do. How many inquiries he made we do not know, but evidently working on a farm was the first thing that seemed to offer immediate results. So that is where he has been, and he went through the haying season, receiving 75 cents per day and his board. He said he wanted to work and could not afford to wait for something more to his liking to turn up.

An employer in this city heard about it, and he left word for the young man to came and see him. He did not want the farmer to be stuck, and suggested that he finish his haying. The man in the city said he had a job waiting for him.

Why? The explanation is that his prospective employer in the city says he is generally ready to take a chance on any of the young men who will go and do farm work rather than waste their time around the city. He considers it evidence of willingness and desire to work, and that is about all the recommendation he wants for a starter.

The Weakness of a City

The city of Buffalo is a place of some 600,000 people, a progressive and busy spot on the Niagara frontier in New York state. If one were to consider it in the light of improvements and conveniences it would probably be called quite up-to-date in every way. It has all the conveniences to which this age is accustomed.

And yet a city of that size is vulnerable. It does not need a visit from a foreign army to prove that, nor yet the visitation of a plague. The warring factions in the labor world, C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor, have finally joined forces these in a fight with retail stores and wholesale meat packers. The truckers are out and deliveries of goods cannot be made.

Inside of four days it was reported that many of the independent and chain stores were out of many kinds of canned goods; some stores had no butter, eggs, meat. Shoppers had not waited for delivery; they had gone to these places and carried their orders away with them. But today when shoppers go for more there are many places where they cannot be served. So the city of Buffalo is in a bad way. And was in a bad way when delivery services had been held up only four days.

A city has not the stamina of a rural community in that way. One may say they have no strike in rural communities to interfere with food distribution, but even if they did it would take considerable time for the effect to be noticed. It might mean that more farm homes would have to bake their own bread if the delivery stopped, but apart from that the farm home is away ahead of the one in the city when it comes to being more self-contained.

A large city is not as great as it seems to be nor as strong as it may suppose. Interfere with its food supply for a few days and its weakness comes to the surface.

Little Car, Little Loss?

When going to a fire in Hamilton several weeks ago some of the apparatus from the fire department was badly broken, and the car in which the chief of the department rides was also cracked up.

The Board of Control has been considering what is best to do. Previously it appears the chief had done his riding in a civic sedan, but Mayor Morrison thinks there should be a smaller and a lighter car for the chief, and he works the problem out in a manner which suggests the cool calculation of algebraic certainty. The smaller the car the less the damage in case it does get smashed is the logic of the chief magistrate.

Ald. Weir, chairman of the Fire and Jail Committee, looks at the thing in a different way. He favors a good big car and a strong one so that the occupants would have greater safety in case the hour of crash should come again.

And in between some wise person may rise to make comment that the car might possibly be driven in such a way that there would be only a remote chance for another smash.

Arm Lost By Poor Tire

If, as has been suggested, the Highways Department is thinking of injecting a degree of horror in its advertising to secure safer driving on the highways, the evidence and material is not going to be hard to collect.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huber, 34, of Detroit, was taken to the hospital at Windsor, and she will probably recover from injuries she received when driving in a car which had a weakened tire on the back wheel. It blew out and caused the car to swerve into a pole. Mrs. Huber's right arm was torn off at the elbow, and she would have died from loss of blood had not a farmer working in a field a short distance away arrived and applied a tourniquet.

It is perhaps unkind to try and point a moral out of a tragedy, but that particular accident should not have happened. A good tire on that wheel would not have blown out. Tires do that because they are old; because they have been repaired several times; because the wall has become weakened. That is why it is always safer to have good tires even if the owner of the car has to cut down on something else. Good tires are being made today and when they are in good condition they will not blow out.

The Fine Art of Restraint

Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, the English clergyman who sprang into prominence by going to perform the marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield, has been giving a series of lectures in United States. He has an advance agent and apparently he has been doing fairly well as far as attendance and gate receipts go. He had been booked for several appearances in Canada, but now the Canadian centres are not at all certain they want a visit or an address from Mr. Jardine.

It all came about on account of an address he delivered in Baltimore in which he made an open attack on the Archbishop of Canterbury, and in doing so referred to him as an "ecclesiastical cad." Right then it seems the welcome side on the Canadian doormat was turned under. The clergyman explained afterward he was sorry for what he had said, and his manager says he was riled up at the time and "just let 'em have it." He was not speaking from notes and at the time it is said Mr. Jardine forgot that what he was saying was being taken down and would be published.

It may be Mr. Jardine will learn something on this trip. We do not know whether he is a good speaker or a fair or an ordinary one, but it is plain he has not been schooled in the fine art of restraint, and that is the difficult channel for a good many people to negotiate.

There are those who seem to enjoy either in writing or speaking a generous display of vigorous denunciation. One can quite readily in that way acquire a reputation for being a hard hitter or something of that order. Actually it requires little skill and small labor to follow that course. It is just another way of being a "common scold" or a "nagger." That method generally does what the writer or speaker does not want done—it was the opposite effect to the one most desired. That is what has happened in the case of Rev.Anderson Jardine. As long as he had something to say and in the saying of it displayed a degree of good sportsmanship and common sense the way was open to him. When he was aroused and "let 'em have it" the open door was closed and he created sympathy for the individual whom he attacked. If Mr. Jardine learns something of the fine art of restraint by reason of his experience on his lecture tour he should go home a better equipped man.

Provincial Election

Toronto reports there will be a provincial election in three months, and the report has not been denied. Truth is the first report may have been inspired and for that reason will not be denied. Provincial Secretary Nixon says if any one knows the date then that is information of which he is not possessed. Interesting perhaps, but it means nothing at all.

Some of the political wise men are seeking to tell in advance what the issue in the election will be. We are informed that chiefest will be the attitude of Premier Hepburn in opposition to the extension of the C. I. O. in Ontario, but that is hardly an issue with sufficiently wide application on which to ask the people to vote. The Separate School legislation, although repealed by the Hepburn Government, will be made an issue whether the Premier desires it that way or not. People have a way of selecting the issue which most strongly appeals to them when it comes voting time, and party leaders can seldom bring before the people one issue which dominates all others. An exception to that was in 1911 when Reciprocity with United States was the only question before the Dominion electors.

We are inclined to believe there will be cabinet reorganization before the provincial election. There will have to be, as the cabinet as it stands today is not sufficiently impressive to be taken on the election circuit. It would cause no surprise at all if Col. George Drew were called in as Attorney-General. It is essential that a Premier have an Attorney-General with whom he agrees. We have no way whatever of knowing what changes may be made, but we may be in for some degree of coalition government in Ontario, although the immediate need or reason for it is not apparent. The Liberals have a numerical strength in the Legislature which can be called overwhelming, and Mr. Hepburn cannot say he has been handicapped by not being able to carry out his own desires.

The legislature previous to the existing one dissolved on May 14, 1934; nominations were on June 12 and polling day was the 19th of June. Although the election was on June 19, 1934, the legislature was not called together until February 20 in 1935. It may be that a year in which there is a good harvest is considered the proper one to hold an election.

The Word Was Correct

A reader of the Examiner called attention to a wrong word in the paper. It was found in a story telling of the disposition of the estate of the late Marquis Marconi, the man who gave wireless to the world. The word itself was "usufruct," and the context was: "Marconi's widow will receive the usufruct of one-fourth of the estate."

There was no error in using that word, although it is seldom seen in print. It means that the beneficiary has the right to use the income of an estate without impairing the size or value of that estate. That is, she will have the income from the portion of the estate set aside for her benefit.

According to one authority Burrill, the word means: "The right of using and enjoying the profits of an estate or other things belonging to another, without impairing the substance."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Caddies at the Cobourg golf links struck for more pay and got a ten cent increase which must be about par for the course.

A Quebec judge told a hit-and-run driver that he was a villain and it would be difficult to say that the bench used language that was too harsh.

In Germany you can be jailed for listening in to the wrong kind of radio program. If that law were in force here a lot of us might find ourselves behind the bars.

Now that it has been reported that the Ontario provincial election will be over by October 9, the Ottawa government has named October 11 as a day of national thanksgiving.

The German government is urging economy in food, clothing and speech and it is to be hoped that the attention of Chancellor Hitler has been called to the last item.

It is said that fifty merchants in Leamington want the beverage rooms opened there. Just why the despatch does not state and the story would have been much more helpful if that information were supplied.

The United States senate report condemns the police for their conduct during the South Chicago strike. A coroner's jury on the other hand found the shooting justifiable but then of course the jurors were not in politics.

Up to the end of June $7,000,000 had been issued in loans under the Home Improvement plan, and that sum represents only a fraction of the money the drive has set to work in the building trades.

Britain may be slow but it is worthy of note that 100,000 visitors to this year's radio show in London will be able to see television programs and that is something they would have difficulty in finding anywhere else on the globe.

HOLIDAYS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfaa's been on holidays, and travelled much in dizzy ways, had pleasure by the peck; now she has sunburn on her frame, likewise a fair amount of pain, from blisters on her neck.

¶ Alfalfa up and jumped the town, before her nerves got broken down, her nerves were bad indeed; they told her if she didn't go, her future would be full of woe, and she would go to seed.

¶ She had a pain within her head. It hurt her when she went to bed, and she felt dizzy too; a weight bore down upon her chest, she needed quite a heap of rest, the only thing to do.

¶ Alfalfa struck a splendid place, where things went at a dizzy pace, and she felt tired no more; she danced until the clock struck one, and even then would not be done, unless her feet were sore.

¶ Alfalfa had three men in tow, they kept her hourly on the go, they thought she was a peach; and she'd play tennis till she'd drop, and then when she turned out too hot, she'd simmer on the beach.

¶ She'd sleeping in at noons today, long hours she spends upon the bay, she hasn't yet got dressed; Alfalfa had her holidays, and travelled in such giddy ways—so she's some home to rest.

An Irishman Named Levy!

THIS is an age when anything can happen. Illustration — James Murphy, 23 years-old, Inwood, N. Y., truck driver, arranged for his wedding to Eleanor Meyer, but first he wanted one thing settled. Last week he won legal right to change his name to one he has used for some time. Now James Murphy, an Irishman, becomes James Levy!

One day after Youngstown Sheet & Tube put fires in their furnaces steel was coming through, the first for 48 days. The strike was over. By the end of the week the nation's steel production had climbed 4 points—up to 65 per cent. of capicity. When workers came in they did so under a covered stairway and under the eyes of company police. They were taking no chances, but it was useless as the pickets had been pulled off.

The Robins Drydock and Repair Co. Brooklyn, N. Y., installed a motion picture camera and a recording microphone last week. The purpose is to identify C. I. O. pickets and to record their language and gestures.

In Cincinnati the C. I. O. is running a labor school where members are instructed in how to organize and how to conduct negotiations for better wages and conditions.

Picketing Is His Job.

IN New York Meyer Rosenbaum brought suit against Charles Gompel, the owner of a barber shop. Said he had been chased away while acting as a picket there. Rosenbaum explained he visited strike headquarters whenever trouble started and he could generally pick up a day's work acting as a picket for some one who did not want to go on duty. Court found Rosenbaum had gone to the wrong place to his picketing as there was no strike on at the barber shop. He should have been on duty eight blocks away.

Years ago kangaroos were as numerous in the Australian bush as were buffalo on the American plains and the Canadian west. They are being wiped out in Australia for, being grass eaters, they are considered a pest and in the state of Queensland alone the government has paid bounties for nearly 10,000,000 kangaroos destroyed in the last twenty years.

Wool is a perfectly elastic material. No matter how much it is stretched without breaking it will return to its original length. A single wool fibre, if kept wet and stretched slowly can be extended by 70 per cent. of its length, and will then return to its original length.

The Versatile Soy Bean

(From the Timmins Press.)

WELL, at least the Manchouko forces should be "full of beans"—soy beans— for any possible unpleasantness.

The soy bean, the little "honourable plant" of China but flourishing to its fullest in Manchuria, complimented by rice would be the staple diet of the armies in any Sino-Jap war.

There are some 5,000 varieties of the soy bean which has been cultivated for more than 5,000 years in Eastern lands and which is now being considered as a possible crop for Algoma.

If it would be good for Algoma, it should flourish hereabouts.

The beans grow on almost any kind of soil. It is relatively impervious to drought, damp or bug. Its chief enemies are rabbits, grasshoppers and blister beetles. It is planted in May or June and the harvest continues through September, October and November, according to the time of planting.

November harvesting in Northern Ontario?

Will the little honourable bean is quite impervious to frost.

Soy beans contain 40 per cent. proteins and this of the finest quality. It has three times the protein value of wheat or eggs and more than twice that of lean meat. It may be converted into cheese, salad, oil, butter, macaroni, breakfast food and, if the beans are ground in water, into milk.

Soy beans are not fed to stock because they make the stock too fat but the meal left after the oil is extracted is a good cattle food.

In fact, after reading all about the virtues of the soy bean, bread as the staff of life seems like a pretty broken reed.

Food is only a small part of the soy bean's usefulness.

Last year for instance the U. S. consumed in manufacturing, 91 million pounds of soy bean oil of which 3 1-2 million pounds went into soap, 4,500,000 pounds into linoleum and oilcloth and 13 million pounds into paints and varnishes.

It's not only an "honourable" little bean but darned versatile.

Synthetic Milk

(From the Barrie Observer.)

FIFTY years hence, a writer assures us, the milk cow will be replaced by a milk-producing machine. This factory milk will be pure and not lacking in nutritive elements. It will be cheaper, too.

Science is truly marvelous, and there is nothing more astonishing than the number of plans which it has advanced for consigning the cow to oblivion.

A decade ago an English concern announced that it would make milk from grass and we were asked to previsionn great loads of hay being driven into one end of an industrial plant and an endless chain of bottles, filled and sealed, emerging from the other. Later the soy bean was hailed as the source of our milk supply, and we were told that this legume of the Far East would make the cow as dead as the dodo. Then Roger Babson predicted that by 1950 we would be getting our cheese and butter from kerosene.

So far as can be seen, there is practically nothing between the old cow and extinction except a division of opinion among the experts on how it is to be accomplished. Another minor item is that science hasn't yet mastered the trick of slicing a T-bone steak from a flywheel, extracting a rib roast from an oil can or making a Chinese bean taste like a beef tenderloin. Until science has all the answers, we will cleave to the cow, and yield our laurels only to the inventor who is able to produce synthetic pork chops at something under 25 cents per squeal.

In all this business of synthetic substitutions there is still something lacking and that something constitutes the difference between natural food and a chemical product that may look like the real thing and contain all its elements but has not the flavor nor the appeal.

That mysterious process that causes sap to rise in springtime in the trees, that puts the green color into grass when it is exposed to sufficient sunshine, is the touch that scientists have so far failed to master. If they could do that, it might be concluded that the cow could be dispensed with.

THE PROPER FOOD.

(Winnipeg Tribune)

IT is the considered opinion of many a he-man that some strange facts and fancies have been flourishing in our kitchens in recent years. Our forefathers waxed great and strong on solid fodder that would back up against a fellow's chest bones and stay there, letting him know that he had had a meal. But we, their unworthy descendants, are facing a world in which the kitchen has become an experimental laboratory for a ladies' bridge club, so that a platefull of cream-colored fluff on a wilted lettuce leaf is actually held to be suitable nourishment for a hard-working adult human being.

The he-man, of course, probably knows little about the modern discovery of vitamins. So he cannot be expected to enter into the spirit of cookery of the "chiffon school" — as one iconoclast has aptly described it. The he-man may be all wrong, but being a he-man he likes to know when a meal is over by the feeling of fullness inside him rather than by the emptiness of his plate.

Dietary ideas of the past could not have been wholly wrong. We might try re-discovering some of the old-fashioned recipes for old-fashioned foods and give the can-opening wrist a chance to relax.

BRIGHT HEADLIGHTS

(Chatham News)

IT is remarkable to note the number of motorists who steadfastly refuse to dim their automobile headlights, even when approaching drivers give them the signal to do so. If these motorists would only stop to ponder what it means to them personally, their attitude would undergo a complete change.

When a motorist switches on his dimmers he definitely informs the driver coming from the other direction that the latter's lights are blinding — that they are confusing the motorist he is about to pass on the road. He virtually says: "Turn down your lights so I can see the road, and prevent a collision with you."

When any motorist refuses to respond to such a signal by dimming his own headlights, he is in effect saying to the blinded driver: "Go ahead and hit me if you want to—or take to the ditch—I don't care which you do."

And a blinded driver is just as apt to hit the other car as he is to go in the ditch.

A FEW TALL ONES.

(Sault Star)

THOSE three ton-of-coke Algoma stories circulated in these columns the past few days show that the district is ever and always Algoma.

The boat of two Michigan fishermen was attached to a big pike on June 29 on Lake Anjigami, 135 miles north of the Soo. On the second lunge at the boat, the pike slid up an oar and landed in the boat where it was killed.

At Blind River on July 7 one of the town's boys led a skunk down the street on a leash and permitted—or rather the animal permitted—a number of tourists to stroke his back. No casualties.

Up the Algoma Central Railway, a prospector killed a bear by hitting it on the nose with a whiskey bottle. The report is that the two met in a hollow log. This paper gives this information "if, when and how" following the style of brokers' announcements. In the meantime nothing herein contained is meant to cast any doubt on what sounds like a perfectly reasonably occurrence—in Algoma.

HERE'S WHAT TO DO.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

THE first thing to do towards putting yourself in harmony with the hot weather is to refuse to speak so constantly of its discomforts. The second thing is to get up a little earlier in the morning and stop rushing about to make up for time lost in cat-napping. The third thing is to wear loose, light clothing regardless of what that snooty Miss Fashion thinks of it. The fourth thing is to watch the diet, eschewing carbohydrates and gallons of ices and alcohol in any form, and eat sparingly though often. And the fifth and final thing is to stop rebelling against the heat!

So the next time old John Thermometer skyrockets a squirt of mercury out of the top of his head, laugh at him. It's plenty of fun when you get the hang of it!

BARGAINS IN CROPS.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A farmer in Huron county commente on the hay crop in that area as being so positive this season that it has no value except as feed. It could not be given away. It is said that no resident of Huron can remember such a growth of green fodder crops.

It must be admitted that when nature is overgenerous in the matter of crops, the farmers have a problem on their hands. It requires extra labor to harvest these record crops and then there is no market. However, it is a general principle worth considering that when commodities are plentiful and cheap, it is a favorable time to establish a reserve. That applies to all lessons of business and those who have systematically taken advantage of such conditions have become rich.

So now or later, nature is going to be less bounteous than is the case in many parts of Ontario this year and then there will be demand for the surplus available this year. Those with the foresight to make the necessary dispositions will profit thereby.

VACATION TIME.

(Kitchener Record)

NOT at any time of the year do fat fields look greener than they do at the end of June and the beginning of July. The reason for it is that John Hopeful Public and his wife have lost interest in the seed catalogues by transferring their zeal to the travel folder with its enticing pictures of expansive lakes and slim bathing girls.

John's interest of course is in the lakes with their promise of fish and Mrs. John's interest is in John's responsiveness to the folder and the hope that she will be able to get his mind settled on a trip somewhere.

Yes, vacation time is here. The camp, the cottage, the hotel, the boat and the long open road with its curves and straightaways beckon with an urgency from the pages of every travel folder, magazine, newspaper and casual periodical.

John Public's interest should be keen on a holiday. The days when men bent over desks or slaved at their tasks for 12 uninterrupted months of every year are gone. The death knell of the no holiday policy was sounded in the 90s. The necessity of a couple of weeks or a month to rest and rebuild after the battle of the fall and the winter is too well known now to require argument.

Let's go!

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

(Shining Lines)

ANY man who can sell goods will be forgiven much. The producer may count on a secure seat on or near the throne. A story in The Boston News Bureau, illustrates this truth.

The manager of a concern dashed into the owner's office. The owner asked what was the matter.

"It's Goodwin, our travelling salesman," explained the manager. "Used most insulting language. Told me to fry my face and he said you could go and shave yourself."

"He did, did he?" snapped the owner. "We'll fire him without ceremony. Let's see, he's been with us for five months. What business has he done in that time?"

"Two hundred dollars the first month," stated the manager, reading from reports he produced, "$800 the second month, $1,600 the next and $5,000 the next."

"Hmm," murmured the owner thoughtfully. "I often think I ought to take a little more exercise and I dare say the head of the hardware department will give you a trying year."

HIS RIGHT TO HOWL.

(Timmins Press)

HAVING seen that all his wolves were well fed and quietened down, Jim Curran, editor of the Soo Daily Star and fanning crayons of wolf yarns hied himself to Toronto for a summer vacation trip.

And there the fun pitter ran into some two-footed wolves which prowl the streets of the Toronto, for his car was stolen.

Editor Jim no doubt raised a howl that would have put some of his newspaper pals in Algoma to shame but so far, the car is still gone.

No doubt, Brother Curran will go back to the fold, continue the wolf reports and write a piece about that species of wolf in sheeps' clothing which infests Toronto and draw comparisons that will make life in Algoma more and more alluring—more and more placid and quiet—even granting that the domestic wolf does a little sociable howling once in a while.

"Any man that says he's been at my a wolf is a liar," runs a caption in the Soo Star.

And any man who says that there aren't two-footed wolves in Toronto, will have to argue it out with Editor Curran.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat prices swirled down the five-cent allowable limit on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day in sympathy with drastic weakness at Liverpool and lack of demand for Canadian wheat. Liberal commission house liquidation left closing values 5 to 4⅞ cents lower, July at $1.39¼, October $1.31 to $1.31⅛, and December $1.27⅝.

July wheat cracked the five-cent limit in late trading, while October and December futures were more than four cents down. All other major world wheat markets were easier.

Wheat was below Saturday's close throughout. Little support was encountered on the break which was accentuated by heavy stop-loss liquidation. Despite light seaboard purchases, Canadian wheat sold for export during the week-end was reported insignificant.

UNITED STATES GAINS 2-1 LEAD IN DAVIS TENNIS

Budge and Mako Put Americans Ahead With Doubles Victory.

TWO MORE SINGLES.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 26—(AP)—Overcoming stubborn resistance, Don Budge and Gene Mako defeated C. R. D. Tuckey and F. H. D. Wilde in the doubles to-day, 6-3, 7-5, 7-9, 12-10, and gave the United States a 2-1 lead over Great Britain in the Davis Cup challenge round with two more singles matches yet to be played.

With that one point advantage, American supporters now hope Budge will beat Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin in the final singles matches tomorrow for the clinching point if Frank Parker bows to Charles Edgar Hare in the opener.

Budge and Mako, the All-England champions and conquerors of Germany's combination of Gottfried Von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel in the inter-zone finals, gave their followers many anxious moments today before they finally pulled the doubles match out of the fire.

Stubborn Resistance

After sweeping through the first two sets in rapid style, the Californians appeared headed toward an easy triumph. But with the veteran Tuckey performing brilliantly in support of the untried Wilde, the Britons came roaring back to win the third set and almost snatched the fourth as well.

By a strange quirk, Tuckey captured every one of his service games until the 21st game of the fourth set. And when Budge and Mako broke through then it spelled curtains for the Britons. Leading 11-10 then, Budge served a love game in the 22nd game for set and match.

A few minutes earlier the Britons had reached set point against Mako's service in the 20th game, only to fall into a series of errors which allowed the Americans to come back to win the game and stay level at 10-10.

In the long run, however, it was Wilde's weak play that allowed the Americans to win. Budge and Mako broke through his delivery in the eighth game for their decisive advantage in the opening set; they cracked his service again in the 11th game of the second set to take that too. In the third set which the Britons finally won by breaking through Mako in the 16th game, Wilde endangered his team by dropping his service in the third game.

He lost his service twice in the final set in the third and 15th games, but each time the Britons came back in the succeeding game to break through Mako's delivery and square the count again. So that in the end it was Tuckey's failure to hold his service in the 21st game that was decisive.

Budge won every one of his service games throughout the match and Tuckey lost only one. Mako was beaten five times on his own delivery and Wilde six times.

J. J. DUFFUS, M.P. TELLS ROTARIANS OF OTTAWA SET-UP

Federal Member Gives Impressions of Parliamentary Folk and Business.

AN INTERESTING TALK.

In his address to the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel today, J. J. Duffus, M.P. spoke on the subject "Parliamentary Impressions" providing an informative supplement to the historical review a week ago by Senator Ivo C. Fallis who traced the history of Parliament and its symbolism and traditions back to the earliest centuries of the British nation's development.

Mr. Duffus, introduced by Rev. Dr. Barr, said that the management of Canada's public affairs was entrusted to a responsible executive or cabinet whose functions had devolved to an inner council called the Treasury Board, consisting of the Minister of Finance and any five other members of the Cabinet nominated by the Governor-In-Council. The present members of the Board are Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, chairman, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines; Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture. The Governor-in-Council means all the members of the Cabinet with the Governor-General included.

"The Treasury Board acts as a committee of the Privy Council," Mr. Duffus said. "It deals with all matters relating to finance, revenue and expenditure, and public accounts, submitted by the Cabinet, or which it may recommend to the Cabinet. It has power to require from any public department, board or officer, any account or information which the Board may deem necessary in the performance of its duties. A decision of the Board need not be accepted by the Prime Minister who is the director of the administration and its representative before the whole Dominion."

Mr. Duffus sketched the constitution of the sixteen departments of the House of Commons, and said that the Ministers presiding over these departments are appointed by Commissions under the great seal. These Ministers become the executive council and may be removed by the Governor-General. "In case of serious conflict a Minister who has been found wanting and refuses to resign, may be dismissed outright by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister."

Departments are autonomous, Mr. Duffus continued, and the Minister is free to manage it saffairs without the interference of any of his colleagues. Details of bookkeeping, annual departmental reports, composition of the House and Senate, and a brief outline of some of the rules were also explained.

Standing Committee

"Standing committees of the House usually sit in the mornings, and their work is of highest value, and is appreciated by the House although it does not come much before the public eye. There is no more useful member of the Commons than a painstaking, tactful chairman of a committee."

Other topics in Mr. Duffus' address were public and private bills, questions of privilege and points of order, and the essential democratic basis of Canada's parliament, modelled after the British system. He referred to the criticism that there are too many members in the House, "but if all the other members have as much detail to look after as my experience has been I should say that there are not too many. It is a full time job for the Member who will look after all the matters that come before him within his own constituency. He is elected to give all his time and ability to the nation's business, to interpret the requirements and the thoughts of the country, and to assist in crystallizing them into legislation for the well being of the Dominion as a whole."

A vote of thanks to Mr. Duffus was extended by the chairman, A. D. Runions, on a motion by T. J. Carley.

Alderman Dutton referred to the illness of George N. Graham, proprietor of the Empress, and moved, seconded by Alderman Juby, that the club send him a bouquet of flowers with best wishes for his recovery.

Fred L. Roy was welcomed back from his trip to Europe which included his attendance at Rotary International Conference in Nice, which Mr. Roy said sometimes seemed like a congress or babel of the nations. He will give a report of his trip at an early meeting in August.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat prices swirled down the five-cent allowable limit on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day in sympathy with drastic weakness at Liverpool and lack of demand for Canadian wheat. Liberal commission house liquidation left closing values 3 to 4¾ cents lower. July at $1.39¼, October $1.31 to $1.31¼, and December $1.27¾.

July wheat cracked the five-cent limit in late trading, while October and December futures were more than four cents down. All other major world wheat markets were easier.

Wheat was below Saturday's close throughout. Little support was encountered on the break which was accentuated by heavy stop-loss liquidation. Despite light seaboard purchases, Canadian wheat sold for export during the week-end was reported insignificant.

UNITED STATES GAINS 2-1 LEAD IN DAVIS TENNIS

Budge and Mako Put Americans Ahead With Doubles Victory.

TWO MORE SINGLES.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 26—(AP).—Overcoming stubborn resistance, Don Budge and Gene Mako defeated C. R. D. Tuckey and F. H. D. Wilde in the doubles to-day, 6-3, 7-5, 7-9, 13-10, and gave the United States a 2-1 lead over Great Britain in the Davis Cup challenge round with two more singles matches yet to be played.

With that one point advantage, American supporters now hope Budge will beat Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin in the final singles matches tomorrow for the clinching point if Frank Parker bows to Charles Edgar Hare in the opener.

Budge and Mako, the All-England champions and conquerors of Germany's combination of Gottfried Von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel in the inter-zone finals, gave their followers many anxious moments to-day before they finally nulled the doubles match out of the fire.

Stubborn Resistance

After sweeping through the first two sets in rapid style, the Californians appeared headed toward an easy triumph. But with the veteran Tuckey performing brilliantly in support of the untried Wilde, the Britons came roaring back to win the third set and almost snatched the fourth as well.

By a strange quirk, Tuckey captured every one of his service games until the 21st game of the fourth set. And when Budge and Mako broke through them it spelled curtains for the Britons. Leading 11-10 then, Budge served a love game in the 22nd game for set and match.

A few minutes earlier the Britons had reached set point against Mako's service in the 20th game, only to fall into a series of errors which allowed the Americans to come back to win the game and stay level at 10-10.

In the long run, however, it was Wilde's weak play that allowed the Americans to win. Budge and Mako broke through his delivery in the eighth game for their decisive advantage in the opening set; they cracked his service again in the 11th game of the second set to take that too. In the third set which the Britons finally won by breaking through Mako in the 16th game, Wilde endangered his team by dropping his service in the third game.

He lost his service twice in the final set in the third and 15th games, but each time the Britons came back in the succeeding game to break through Mako's delivery and square the count again. So that in the end it was Tuckey's failure to hold his service in the 21st game that was decisive.

Budge won every one of his service games throughout the match and Tuckey lost only one. Mako was beaten five times on his own delivery and Wilde six times.

J. J. DUFFUS, M.P. TELLS ROTARIANS OF OTTAWA SET-UP

Federal Member Gives Impressions of Parliamentary Folk and Business.

AN INTERESTING TALK.

In his address to the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel today, J. J. Duffus, M.P., spoke on the subject "Parliamentary Impressions" providing an informative supplement to the historical review a week ago by Senator Iva C. Fallis who traced the history of Parliament and its symbolism and traditions back to the earliest centuries of the British nation's development.

Mr. Duffus introduced by Rev. Dr. Barr, said that the management of Canada's public affairs was entrusted to a responsible executive or cabinet whose functions had devolved to an inner council called the Treasury Board, consisting of the Minister of Finance and any five other members of the Cabinet nominated by the Governor-In-Council. The present members of the Board are Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, chairman, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines; Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture. The Governor-in-Council means all the members of the Cabinet with the Governor-General included.

"The Treasury Board acts as a committee of the Privy Council," Mr. Duffus said. "It deals with all matters relating to finance, revenue and expenditure, and public accounts, submitted by the Cabinet, or which it may recommend to the Cabinet. It has power to require from any public department, board or officer, any account or information which the Board may deem necessary in the performance of its duties. A decision of the Board need not be accepted by the Prime Minister who is the director of the administration and its representative before the whole Dominion."

Mr. Duffus sketched the constitution of the sixteen departments of the House of Commons, and said that the Ministers presiding over these departments are appointed by Commissions under the great seal. These Ministers become the executive council and may be removed by the Governor-General. "In case of serious conflict a Minister who has been found wanting and refuses to resign, may be dismissed outright by the Governor-General on the advice of the Prime Minister."

Departments are autonomous, Mr. Duffus continued, and the Minister is free to manage it saffairs without the interference of any of his colleagues. Details of bookkeeping, annual departmental reports, composition of the House and Senate, and a brief outline of some of the rules were also explained.

Standing Committees

"Standing committees of the House usually sit in the mornings, and their work is of highest value, and is appreciated by the House although it does not come much before the public eye. There is no more useful member of the Commons than a painstaking, tactful chairman of a committee."

Other topics in Mr. Duffus' address were public and private bills, questions of privilege and points of order, and the essential democratic basis of Canada's parliament, modelled after the British system. He referred to the criticism that there are too many members in the House, "but if all the other members have as much detail to look after as my experience has been I should say that there are not too many. It is a full time job for the Member who will look after all the matters that come before him within his own constituency. He is elected to give all his time and ability to the nation's business, to interpret the requirements and the thoughts of the country, and to assist in crystallizing them into legislation for the well being of the Dominion as a whole."

A vote of thanks to Mr. Duffus was extended by the chairman, A. D. Runions, on a motion by T. J. Carley.

McARTHUR FAMILY ENJOYS RE-UNION

Martin, Head of the Clan, Spends Day in Bed Ill With Members Around Him.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, July 26.—The annual gathering of the McArthur family was held last Thursday at the home of Mr. Martin McArthur of Seymour. Since the first reunion of the McArthur's three years ago to celebrate Mr. Martin McArthur's eightieth birthday, the family decided to make it a yearly event having it fall each year on his birthdate, July 22.

A few days before the picnic this year, Mr. McArthur was confined to his bed due to his poor health, and the family met at his homestead instead of Crow River Bridge, the original spot chosen for the picnic.

The relatives, after a lovely dinner, spent a very pleasant afternoon among themselves, and although Mr. McArthur had to remain in bed, this in no way dampened his bright spirits and he spent the day conversing cheerfully with his kinfolk.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bartley and family; Mr. Martin McArthur, Sr.; Mary, John, and Martin McArthur, at home; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McConnell and family; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie McArthur; Mrs. Neil McArthur; Mrs. Bert Wannamaker; Mr. R. T. Stillman; Mrs. Post; Mrs. Donald McArthur; Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Gould and family; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith and family; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnston and son; Mr. and Mrs. Joel McArthur and family; Mrs. A. A. Sudbury Officers End Manhunt With Ambush

The greatest manhunt ever conducted in the Sudbury, Ont., district came to an abrupt halt with the killing of Victor Gray and the wounding of Tom Ponarmarenkio, his companion, when they were ambushed by Sudbury officers. The two men are alleged to have shot and killed Sergeant Fred Davidson, as he approached an automobile from which the license plates were being removed. The officers, waiting in ambush near a rock cut on the C.P.R., 40 miles west of Sudbury, called upon the men to halt, as they emerged from the bush. Both attempted to pull out guns. Gray was killed with the first shot while Ponarmarenkio continued to fire at the four police. CHARLES SAUNDERS DIES IN TORONTO

After 22 years' service, Sir Charles retired, coming to Toronto to live about eight years ago. He had been in ill health since the death of his wife and his illness became more serious two months ago. A complication of ailments sent him to his bed two weeks ago and he died quietly at noon Sunday.

Taught Music.

Agricultural science seemed destined for a time to lose the work of Charles Saunders when as a young man he turned to music. He studied in the United States and later taught at Havergal and St. Maraget's Colleges in Toronto.

But a family tradition seemed a stronger attraction and in the 1890's Charles Saunders joined his father, Dr. William Saunders, then head of the Dominion Experimental Farms, and his brother, A. P. Saunders, in their experiments with wheat strains.

Marquis was first obtained from a cross between Red Fife and Red Calcutta by the brother, Dr. A. P. Saunders, but it remained for Dr. Charles in 1903 to develop the strain. The process, as Sir Charles would some times recall, he tested the gulten qualities of the wheat by chewing little blobs of it.

Introduced in the Canadian West, Marquis for its hardihood and early ripening qualities became widely accepted and today it billows across thousands of acres of farmlands.

ganda, but engaged in selling out the church through insidious propaganda."

Insists On Description

"Any person who kicks a man when he's down or strikes him in the back is a cad," Rev. Jardine told his audience, reiterating his description of the Archbishop of Canterbury as a "cad."

Criticism of this description by the official Vatican publication Osservatore Romano did not surprise him, Rev. Jardine said. He first made the statement in Baltimore some days ago.

"After due reflection I am still at a loss to think of a description which fits Canterbury and his action more perfectly," said the clergyman, adding he welcomed the Vatican's championship of Canterbury because "it proves that the archbishop was and is too friendly with the Vatican and is doing more to destroy the work of reformation through his high position than any one else in the Church of England."

RANKS SOLID STRIKERS SAY AT PARK RALLY

Reports of Threatened Split in Strike Leadership Are Denied.

TAG DAY YIELDS $830.

Oshawa Band and Speaker Lend Support to Textile Workers.

Auburn and Bonner-Worth strikers seized upon the opportunity of an open air meeting in Nicholls Oval Sunday afternoon to declare again that rumors of internal strain in their strike organization have been exaggerated. Quarrels among strike leaders were admitted but speakers declared the leadership of the strike is undivided.

In comparison with mass meetings of the earlier days of the strike, the meeting was quiet and uneventful. A crowd of less than 200, divided about evenly between strikers and sympathetic citizens, was in attendance. In the absence of C.I.O. organizer Alex Welch who has taken the leading role at past rallies, lesser lights of the strike leadership here and representatives from the Oshawa local 222 of the United Automobile Workers Union, held the spotlight. Welch spent the week-end in Ottawa in attendance at the conference of Eastern Canada textile union heads.

$830 Collected

Mike English, strike chairman, announced that $830.67 was realized in the strike tag day effort Saturday. He declared this substantial sum indicated the strike cause has wide support among the general ranks of citizens.

Nora Adams, C.I.O. organizer from Oshawa who is reported to have been the centre of recent trouble in the strike ranks, declared The Examiner's report of a threatened split in the strike leadership to have been a lie.

"The local papers printed there was dissention in our ranks but if printing this puts more butter on their bread they can print what they wish," she said. "We know our ranks are solid."

Elmer Hickey, strike secretary, said: "We may have individual quarrels, but they mean nothing. What was printed in The Examiner was false."

Oshawa Support

Bill Harmer, secretary of the Oshawa local 222, reassured the strikers that Oshawa is ready to stand behind them to the last. George Burt, also of the Oshawa local, commented: "Peterborough is Oshawa's left wing and neither Herr Hepburn nor the plant managers here can stop you from winning your strike."

Mrs. William Harmer, president of the Oshawa local's ladies' auxiliary, declared the success of a strike must depend to an important degree on the women. When General Motors went on strike, wives of the strikers would not allow their husbands to return to their benches, she said. Women in Peterborough strike families must play the same valiant part, she said. William Smith encouraged the strikers with a review of the Oshawa strike, enumerating many gains for workers obtained through the strike.

In attendance at the meeting was a 20-piece band sent from Oshawa by Local 222. Under the leadership of Thomas Dempsey, the band afforded a concert with a distribution of numbers through the afternoon's program.

With the Boy Scouts

The Akela Pack will meet in St. Johns Tuesday at 8 p.m.; all Cub Leaders and Assistants are requested to be on hand. This meeting promises to be both entertaining and instructive. Akela Lily Bull will be in charge.

We all join in wishing Roy Spencer "bon voyage and God speed" during his trip to the Old Land with his parents.

St. Johns Troop left Saturday for a weeks camp somewhere around Sandy Lake, and is in care of Scouter F. Ford, assisted by Akela F. Pammett.

The Rover Moot is drawing closer to us. We understand that nearly 200 Rovers and Leaders will be under canvas on the shores of Bald Lake, 35 miles northwest of here next week-end. All along the trail leading to the grounds are posted signs bearing the word "Moot." They are in same colors as the Rover shoulder knot, Red, Green and Gold. These will help to direct incoming Rovers who are expected from London, Niagara and points farther west to Kingston on the east.

The camp grounds are ideally situated. The Rev. Geoffrey Gitlin, formerly of Montreal, was Chief Director of the display features and march past at the first All-India Jamboree, held recently. Canada still is in front.

During a great Thanksgiving service at Olympia, the Chief Scout had called upon all to remember those Brother Scouts who had fallen in the war. There was dead silence. Then the Chief's voice rang out: "Scouts, Lift up your heads! Look wide."

Everyone present felt electrified at those words.

We want to look wide in all that we do. Looking wide means seizing every opportunity to gain knowledge to make ourselves fit by plenty of healthy outdoor exercise so as later on we can take our place in the world. Looking wide means looking ahead and being prepared.

D.C.M. Gordon Clegg, S.M. Alex Chivas, Rover Mate Charles Jeffries and Friend Vic Coleman are holidaying at the Graham Cottage at Lakehurst. The latter three boys will canoe to Rover Camp at Bald Lake for the week-end.

CRASH VICTIM LIVED IN CITY FOR SOME TIME

Ray Lynch, Killed in Plane Crack-up, Well Known Here.

HAD BEEN UNLUCKY.

Home in Peterborough Destroyed By Fire and He Was Burned.

Ray Lynch, 24-year-old Toronto garage mechanic who was killed on Saturday night in a plane crash in North York a week after obtaining his private pilot's license, was well-known in Peterborough where several of his wife's relations are living.

Mrs. J. G. Dodson, 984 George Street, whose husband is a cousin of the dead youth, was planning to leave the city this afternoon to attend the funeral in Toronto.

It was learned from her that the late Mr. Lynch and his wife lived on Edison Avenue about six years ago. While there their house was burned down and Mr. Lynch went to hospital with severe burns to his feet and hands.

Tragedy has struck at the family on more than one occasion. The young aviator's father was killed in action during the Great War, and around the time of his father's death, his mother was killed in a motor accident near St. Catharines, according to Mrs. Dodson.

The late John Birchenau who was buried at St. Peter's Cemetery this morning was the grandfather of the dead aviator's wife.

DRINKS GASOLINE CHILD RECOVERS

Two-Year-Old Peterborough Youngster Shows No Effects of Experience.

Two-year-old Camilla Robinson, daughter of Mrs. E. Robinson, 219 Carlisle avenue, who drank half a cup of gasoline the other day, is none the worse for her experience. Prompt action by the infant's mother, who forced milk down her throat, caused vomiting and the child recovered, although for a time it appeared that shock and intense irritation set up would cause her death.

The little girl's 10-year-old brother had found the bottle of gasoline, used to clean clothing, in the back shed and had poured the liquid over bullrush heads to make a torch. He set the bottle on the verandah, where it was discovered by Camilla, and she immediately poured herself a drink.

She was limp when her mother reached her, and the latter had considerable difficulty forcing the milk down her throat.

Dr. Herbert Young gave the child emetics, which were more effective, and three hours later she appeared fully recovered. Gasoline, according to the doctor, is not poisonous, but sets up an intense irritation.

Build Long Tunnel In Scottish Hills

GLASGOW, July 26.—(CP)—A five-mile tunnel connecting Loch Oarry and Loch Erichst in the heart of the Grampians as part of a hydro-electric power project has been completed after two years' work.

The tunnel, about nine feet in diameter, runs beneath Mam Ban, a peak 3,600 feet high between the lochs. The intake at Loch Garry will be 22 feet below the present surface of the water. Inflow will be controlled by regulating gates, so the level of the loch can be raised or lowered as required.

The scheme cost about £250,000.

SWEPT BY STORM

TWO EXCEPTIONS

Merchants in Colborne and Deloro were the sole exceptions throughout the district who refused the tickets of the Peterborough Exhibition for the four cars that are to be given away to the holders of the lucky numbers. In all the other towns as far west as Beaverton and Bowmanville tickets have been accepted in larger numbers than last year, and interest in the Exhibition Board's feature is keener than ever.

FEW CRUISERS THIS YEAR.

It is worthy of the attention of the Kawartha Lakes Tourist Association that while the number of motor tourists here this summer has been above the average, there has been a distinct falling-off in the number of cruisers on the Trent Waterway, which would seem to indicate that more publicity directed toward that particular class of tourist who do their travelling by water is needed. It is doubtful if more than a dozen cruisers have passed through here this season and most of them are repeaters whose owners have made a number of trips through the Trent waterway.

NEEDED A LIFT

On Sunday afternoon about five o'clock a couple at the side of the road leading to Sturgeon Lake from Omemee wanted a ride. A young man and his lady friend, and as each car came along they stepped far out on the road to make sure a car would stop. The young lady was hanging to the arm of her escort, and it appeared he might do better if he also had something to which to cling. Painfully evident they had been drinking.

TRUTH THE SUBJECT.

"Truth' was the subject of the lesson-sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The golden text was, "The truth of the Lord endureth for ever. Praise ye the Lord." (Psalms 117: 2). Selections from the Bible included the following from Psalms 86, 5: "Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following from page 287: "In Science, Truth is divine, and the Infinite God can have no unlikeness. Did God, Truth, create error? Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter? God being everywhere and all-inclusive, how can He be absent or suggest the absence of omnipresence and omnipotence? How can there be more than all?"

Tweedsmuir Likes Trapper's Log Cabin

FORT CHIPEWYAN, Alta., July 26 (CP)—One of the highlights of Lord Tweedsmuir's trip "down north" was provided by a trip to a free trader's cabin on the Athabasca River Friday. He went in a kicker-power skiff piloted by Captain Marcel Alexander only to find that the trader, Elmer Reed, was in hospital in Edmonton.

Lord Tweedsmuir was delighted with the cabin built by Reed from timber he cut and moved from the bush country more than 500 miles from Waterways, the nearest railway point.

Publishing of paper will be temporarily suspended for next few weeks.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 27.

A very lively, progressive and generally prosperous state of affairs is read from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects of governing planets. There will be a heightened impetus to initiative, with strenuous efforts to launch new and important projects. This may be done with the assistance of influential persons, who may be approached with confidence. But there is a minor loophole for deception or craftiness. Be wise in employment. Speculation and investments should thrive.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of progress and prosperity, with much stirring in the launching of new undertakings and the indorsement of those in financial power. The energies will be under high stimuli for success in either investment or speculation, but in all be alert to a bit of deception or shrewdness. Sentimental relations have an intriguing, peculiar or mystifying angle.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, constructive and ambitious and should carve for itself a successful and prosperous career, in which some powerful interests may give substantial indorsement. In private affiliations there may be a peculiar or mysterious influence.

CHILDREN ENJOY CRUISE ON LAKE

Over 200 Lakefield Public School Pupils Participate in Jolly Party.

LAKEFIELD, July 26.— An unknown gentleman gave the tpuptle of the Lakefield Public school an enjoyable outing on Friday last, July 23, when he chartered the steamer Stoney Lake for the day and took the children—over two hundred of them—on a tour of the lakes. The steamer left the dock at Lakefield at 9 a.m. on Friday and arrived back promptly at 4.00 p.m. with its load of delighted youngsters. During the trip, sandwiches and lemonade, ice cream and watermelon were served, all provided by the generosity of this unknown person who realizes what a day on the water may mean to youngsters who don't often have the chance to enjoy it.

Scoutmaster McKerchar and his troop of Boy Scouts were on hand, along with a number of women chosen to look after the precious boatload of stirring young humanity and see that all were enjoying themselves in safety.

As the boat docked in the afternoon, at the conclusion of a memorable day for a large number of kiddies, Chairman J. W. Ridpath of the School Board, addressed the youngsters on behalf of the person who had made the party possible, hoping they had all had an enjoyable outing. At the conclusion of his address, three cheers and a tiger for the "unknown gentleman" broke forth from the crowd of assembled children.

The echo of the cheers could still be heard as the children broke up into groups and hurried home to recount to parents the pleasures of the trip which will doubtless live in their memories for some time—a trip made possible by the generous thoughtfulness of an unknown gentleman.

DRIVER FACES CHARGE AFTER MAN JUMPS OUT

Milton Barnard, Otonabee, Escapes With Minor Injuries After Accident.

TRAFFIC CASES HEARD.

Three Drivers Fined and Have Licenses Cancelled 10 Days.

Max Dickson of Hall's bridge was given bail in the sum of $200 to appear for hearing on August 4, following his arraignment before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning on a charge of failing to report an accident contrary to provisions of the Highway Traffic Act. He was represented by T. J. Carley, K.C.

The charge against Dickson alleges that he failed to report an accident that occurred on Water street Saturday night in which Milton Barnard, Otonabee farm laborer was injured.

Police allege that Barnard jumped from the car in which he was a passenger, Dickson who left the scene of the accident subsequently, after being stopped and questioned by a civilian, was arrested Sunday afternoon as he was driving towards Peterborough on the Lakefield road.

In his leap from the car Barnard sustained superficial wounds about the face and head and extensive bruises. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and removed to hospital by ambulance, but was reported to have received his discharge from hospital early on Sunday.

Harold Andrews of Norwood was fined $15 and $4 costs and his license suspended 10 days when he pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving. According to police he drove his car on Charlotte street without brakes or windshield wiper.

Harvey Hayes, who police said, drove through heavy traffic at 40 miles-an-hour Saturday night also pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He paid a similar penalty and his license was cancelled for 10 days.

A reckless driving conviction was recorded against Earl Gilman, 24, 116 Sophia street who paid a fine of $10 and $4 costs and had his license suspended 10 days. It was stated by Provincial Motorcycle Constable F. Grant that Gilman collided with another car on Lakefield road around 12.30 a.m. Sunday morning.

BLIND AMERICAN ENJOYS HOLIDAY

Visitor With His Family On Annual Tour Through Eastern Canada

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 26.—(CP)—For his third successive year, J. W. Osterman, blind piano tuner of Lynn, Mass., has visited Belleville in the course of a Canadian holiday tour that will take him east to the Nova Scotia coast.

Travelling with his wife and family and "Lady," a beautiful Alsatian dog—companion from the Seeing-Eye Institute, Osterman gets the utmost pleasure out of his vacation trip.

A blind man on holiday can "see" just as much as a sighted person, he said. "The blind 'see' with a greater perception and keener enjoyment, their senses and faculties are more alert because they use them more. Don't pity anyone who is blind. They don't need it. Sympathy is entirely unlooked for, and wasted in such cases. We even resent such attempted help we are often unconsciously given."

Entering at Windsor, Mr. Osterman and family will end their Canadian trip at the Atlantic coast in Nova Scotia. By a circuitous route they will retrace their journey back into their own state. During their tour they rely upon tourists' homes for overnight accommodation.

"We have yet to be refused on account of 'Lady,' the perfect companion and a true lady," reflected the proud owner.

NOTICE TO CATTLE BREEDERS.

Breeders of pure-bred cattle who intend to exhibit them at the Peterborough Exhibition are advised that G. A. Brethen will be at F. J. A. Hall's office at the Court House on Wednesday, instead of at Mr. Bonson's office as previously reported.

Upward Climb Of Boston Bees Features National Loop Race

Hub's Big Four Flingers Holding Heavy Bats of League Leaders.

CUBS' MARGIN CUT.

NEW YORK, July 26 (CP)—They were still chasing after the Cubs on the National League merry-go-round today, but the brass ring appeared to be exclusively in possession of Boston's believe-it-or-not Bees.

With the National League's west and the American League's eastern divisions heading home again after an up-and-down swing through the rival sectors, the Bees were chuckling up their collective sleeves over a pitching staff that came out of nowhere and is pure poison to the rest of the senior circuit.

And the payoff is that, although the Bees' big four flingers are worth their weight in pound sterling right now, they didn't cost wily Old Bob Quinn and Cagy Bill McKechnie much more than enough to keep a Sunday crowd in hot dogs.

Danny MacFayden landed in Boston on waivers. Every other club gave up an old Guy Bush. Lou Fette and Jim Turner, a couple of 30 year rookies, couldn't have cost much to bring up from the minors this year, at an age when most others are on the way down.

Million Dollar Staff

Yet, this quartet, aided by a couple of other "cheap" assistants, such as Johnny Lanning and Gabbo Gaspar, and without the backing of any kind of batting punch, have burned up the loop in a drive that has skyrocketed the Bees from eighth place on June 27 to a spot where they're flirting with the first division.

They have won 22 of 30 starts, have allowed but 81 runs in 270 innings, and have a fine collective earned-run average.

They calmed their winning spree yesterday by topping the Pittsburgh Pirates in both ends of a double-header 5-2 and 7-5, with Bush and Fette doing the work. The twin win stretched their victory streak to seven straight over the high and mighty Cardinals and Pirates, and stole the Sunday diamond show from the usually featured pacemakers in both leagues.

Cubs' Margin Cut

The Giants finally found a hurler able to go the route, and salvaged the last game of their series from the Cubs 5-0 behind Harry Gumbert's six-hit elbowing. This defeat sliced the Cubs' lead to two games.

At the same time, the Yankees wound up their western whirl by splitting with the Chicago White Sox, thereby droping their first series since June 7. They won the first game 12-11 on Bill Dickey's two homers, and were nipped in the nightcap 7-6, despite a pair of round-trip belts by young Tommy Henrich, all of which left them with a five-game lead in the American League.

Senators Get Twin Win

Washington's Senators knocked the cats off seven St. Louis Browns' pitchers for a twin win, 16-10 and 18-5. Lefty Grove hurled a two-hitter as the Red Sox socked the Indians 4-1 in a single game cut to five innings by rain, and the Detroit Tigers banged out four homers to whip the Athletics 12-9 as their lone tilt was washed out in six frames.

The Dodgers and Cardinals put on 23 innings of dizzy baseball, with Brooklyn winning the opener 6-5 in 11 innings and tying the nightcap at 7-all in 12.

The Reds split with the Phillies, dropping the second game 7-3 after taking the opener 13-3.

Bottomley Replaces Rajah

ROGERS HORNSBY
JIM BOTTOMLEY

Announced by President Donald Barnes as "for the good of the club," Rogers Hornsby, great slugging veteran of the past decade and for three seasons manager of St. Louis Browns in the American League, has been released. Jim Bottomley, reserve first baseman and coach, will succeed him temporarily. Hornsby carried into his managerial duties the same aggressiveness that marked his playing career and was considered by baseball experts an ace diamond strategist.

Ready For Battle In Tuesday's Game

Orillia Terriers play the local Auburns an exhibition lacrosse game at nine o'clock under the lights of the George Street Arena here tomorrow (Tuesday) night. Local district and Central Ontario fans are expected to pack the arena for this big fixture. The thrice-Dominion senior champions should defeat the undefeated Auburns, but it ought to be a grand game as played by experts of the gutted-stick sport. Len Smith of Toronto and Dit Clapper of Hastings have been named by the O.A.L.A. to referee the fray. Auburns will be at full strength and will battle their heads off to make a good showing in front of their home fans.

The visitors have promised to be here at full strength, with their whole galaxy of lacrosse stars. These include such notables in that sport as: McArthur, Connell, Cheevers, McMahan, Bain, Boettger, Walsh, the Currans and Mortimer. The Terriers went right through to cop the Mann Cup the past three years and are now leaving their Ontario senior grouping. It is probably the greatest lacrosse machine ever assembled. Auburns have as fine an intermediate club as there is in Ontario; so this contest should be a nifty number.

MOORE PITCHES SECOND NO-HIT

Syracuse Hurler Scores Only Run of Game in 1-0 Victory.

DONALD FALLS TO ROYALS.

TORONTO, July 26 (CP) — The Reds sent Lloyd Moore to Syracuse Chiefs but apparently Lloyd has other ideas—among them a yen to get back with the Cincinnati club.

He demonstrated this last night by pitching the second no-hit game of the International League's 1937 season, a 1-0 victory over Jersey City Giants. Moore fanned four, collected one of the six hits the Chiefs made off the veteran right-hander, Ben Cantwell, and scored the only run of the game in the eighth inning when another Red farmhand, Eddie Joost, doubled him home with the winning run.

The Chiefs, victims of the league's other no-hit no-run game this year, are getting into the habit. Crip Polli of the Montreal Royals stopped them, 6-0, on June 19. The Giants salvaged some glory from the night double bill by shading the Chiefs 3-2, behind Walter Brown in the opening game. Their first victory in Syracuse this season.

Donald Beaten By Royals

While Moore was making his way into the hall of fame, another young hurler was being ushered out. Atley Donald, crack Newark ace, was beaten by the Montreal Royals in the first game of their double bill, 9-3. Donald's winning streak had reached 14 straight before yesterday's defeat.

In the nightcap, Joe Beggs of the Bears held the Royals to seven hits while his mates clouted Jim Pattison and Hod Lisenbee for 13 safeties and an 11-3 triumph. Bob Seeds clouted a home run for the winners with two aboard.

The Buffalo Bisons rallied with four runs in the eighth inning and beat Baltimore, 8-6, in the only other game of the day. Rain prevented the clubs playing the second game of the double bill and washed out a single game at Rochester where the Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs were scheduled.

Colbran who batted well for 21, and then proceeded to take all the Peterborough wickets that fell to the bowlers (two men being run out) his figures being 8 for 50.

Consistent batting throughout the Peterborough team brought them victory with seven men out.

PETERBOROUGH CLUB.

Another fine turnout of golfers faced the starter on Saturday at the Peterborough Golf Club course for the Variety Sweepstakes. Robert Abbott took the marbles for most pars on 18 holes with 10. J. L. For the highest net on the holes, W. B. Gordon won with 36, while Stan Payne piled them on in the second nine to win with a net 43. Other scores were:

New Slant On Vanderbilt's 'Ranger', America's Cup Holder

And what a slant! Members of Commander Harold Vanderbilt's crew seem to be having a hard time staying on board the speeding yacht "Ranger" as the America's cup defender plows through the water off Newport, L.I., in one of its trial runs. "Ranger" has been definitely selected as the yacht to meet the British challenge of T. O. M. Sopwith's second Endeavour in the international races starting late in July.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Dizzing Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ONCE upon a time there was a ball team named the Ponies and they hailed from a town called Kingston. Now it came about that these Ponies adopted some cousins and the names of these cousins were the Petes. The Ponies were very rough indeed, their motto being: Treat 'em rough and treat 'em often. But this did not hurt the feelings of their cousins, the Petes—in fact, the cousins up and presented them with six lovely ball games on a silver platter! Those Kingstons couldn't beat Oshawa, whereas Oshawa couldn't beat Napanee, and Napanee couldn't beat the Petes. And since the Petes found the Ponies much too masterful this made it an ideal merry-go-round. But it seems the Petes were taken for the most rides. And, to make a long story less sad, the Petes lived unhappily ever after each other—that is each other of Oshawa and the Ponies.

* * * * * *

YEAH, the Ponies came to town Saturday and went to town at the expenditure of the locals to a 7-1 tune. They pounded Russ Kitchen for 14 safe hits—but some of those blows were measly little ones that should have been outs. They had one big frame—the second when five runs scored—and outside of that it was a good ball game. But you can't laugh off that frame. Tony Paczkowski proved too good for the Collins' clan and he let them down with six hits. At that, the locals were nailing the apple hard but right at one of the outfielders. And the Ponies gave their hurler nifty support. Which about sums up the sad story, we fear.

* * * * * *

IT WAS a typical Kingston-Petes ball game, even to the result. The boys bickered back and forth all through, nearly came to blows once as Calladine bumped Compeau off second base, and Manager Joe Daley wound up sitting in the grandstand. At that, he was lucky—in Kingston, visiting pilots who get tough get a police escort right out of the park. Joe swore at Umpire Corrigan and tried to push him around. Pat up and got his Irish up and hollered for the law. A hefty limb of the law, in the shape of Jack Deannard, led Joe off and told him to be a good boy and sit in the stand. He was chased from the dugout, and Hewitt Smith—ex-Pony who lives now in Ottawa, but was up for the game here—handled the squad the rest of the way. That occurred in the third heat.

* * * * *

BEING in a benevolent mood today, we don't intend to do any rapping. Some of the wolves are howling about the locals or the manager. But the boys are doing their darndest to lick Kingston—they just seem jinxed or they aren't good enough. Not enough hitting and the twirling isn't the best against the Ponies. We never claim a manager should get credit for a winning team. Nor should he get all the blame for a losing club. He can't pitch or bat for the squad—he can only keep 'em in harmony, tell them what to do and put the best gees available in his lineup for each game. No, if we knew the answer to the Petes' inability to beat the Ponies, we'd need no urging to spill it. But it has us beaten.

CLYDE ENGLE, coach of Toronto Leafs, will be here Wednesday noon to conduct baseball training at Riverside Park in the afternoon. He will stay for the Napanee-Petes' game—which has been transferred here Wednesday eve from Napanee—giving pointers to local and district players, and a number from the district is expected to take advantage of it. All are invited, Engle is an experienced pro coach and can give a lot of important pointers in a short time on baseball as it should be played. Bob Elliott of Delora will likely bring up a bunch of players from down that way. Those who can attend the afternoon class should make it a point to be there.

IF THE weather is right tomorrow eve, a huge crowd of fans will see Orillia Terriers and Auburns meet here in a lacrosse exhibition. It is under the lights at nine o'clock, and should be a memorable melee. Len Smith of Toronto and Dit Clapper of Hastings will be referees. Smith has been refereeing lacrosse, rugby and hockey for 23 years and is still going strong. He and Bill McArthur—Orillia's veteran goalie—will soon be applying for the old age pension! Orillia players promise to be here at full strength. Piper Bain and Coach Chute, of the Auburns, used to live near each other in Toronto. The locals hold a practise tonight at seven, and all should attend. Everything is shaping up okay for the big game on Tuesday evening.

Ralph Guldahl banged away with every club to win the U.S. open! That was the gist of every reporter's story about the young Texan's record performance.

There is a great lesson to be learned from this statement. The tournament season brings all kinds of stories about unusual happenings on the course. As a rule these stories are built around a player's performance with some particular club. The success of his performance generally is credited to a long putt, a fine brassie shot or a certain recovery shot, with the result that thousands of players set their hearts on mastering these shots so that they, too, can win by them.

Nothing could be more inconsistent. Because no competition was ever won by a player's performance with any single club. It takes more than one club to play even the shortest hole and each shot has a direct bearing upon the next. Golf is anything but a one-shot game. Players have been trying to boil it down to a few shots for a good many years, but it still remains a game of many different kinds of shots.

The player who learns to think in terms of doing well with most, if not all, of the clubs he carries in his bag will find that there is no call to be exceptionally good with any single club. And he gets more fun out of playing such a game.

No Canadian Welterweights Are Given Rating In Big 10

Jimmy McLarnin and Frank Battaglia Fail to Make the Charmed Circle.

N.B.A. SELECTIONS.

NEW YORK, July 26. (CP)—Prominent Canadian fighters were missing from the championship ratings of the National Boxing Association, but several young boxers from across the border have been ranked highly. British boxers also gained prominent positions.

Jimmy McLarnin, baby-faced Vancouver slugger who once wore the world welterweight crown, was not ranked in the first ten welters. Another well-known Canadian left out in the cold was Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg's contender for the world middleweight title.

Yack Lister 8th

Frankie Martin of Montreal, former Canadian bantamweight titleholder, gained fourth ranking in that class, while his successor to the Dominion crown, Baby Yack of Toronto, was listed eighth. Yack outpointed Martin this summer in Toronto, but the decision was protested by the Montrealer's manager.

The association did not recognise Frankie Genovese of Toronto, newly-crowned Canadian welterweight champion. Gordon Wallace of Vancouver, former Dominion titleholder, also failed to gai na notch in the "Big 10." Peter Degraise, another Canadian, was ranked seventh among the featherweights.

Farr Ranks 5th

Great Britain's new threat for the world heavyweight title, Tommy Farr, ranked fifth in that class. Jock McAvoy, another Briton, was given fourth position among the light-heavyweights. Benny Lynch of Scotland was listed flyweight champion.

Other British flyweights to rank in the first ten were, Tiny Bostock, Peter Kane, Jim Warnock, Pat Palmer and Phil Morgan. Ginger Foran and Johnny McCory of England were given fifth and sixth ratings respectively in the featherweight division.

Leafmen Dim Nats' Hopes For Playoff

Maple Leafs dimmed the Nats' playoff hopes in a recent Southend Softball League game with a 10-2 victory. Manager Hatton made his first start on the mound for the Leafs and pitched four-hit ball while fanning six and walking four. Wallock was nicked for 18 hits but went fair till late in the fray when errors and timely hitting, including Giardino's homer, gave the opposition seven runs. Thompson shone defensively and all the Leafs went well, having four double-plays. Giardino got four hits. The teams:

Hawks Cop 6-3 Win In Southend League

In a neat Southend Softball League fixture, Hawks took a 6-3 nod over Cardinals. Nice pitching and fielding featured the tilt, though Craig was wobbly at the start. Elliott gave but six hits as he fanned seven and walked one. Craig was nicked for 10 hits and a walk while striking out five. Half the hits came the first two innings. Busby pulled a circus catch one-handed on Maloney's drive that looked like a homer with two on. The win gives Hawks a tie with Leafs for second place. The teams:

Cards—G. Maloney, lf; Conroy, c; McBride, 1b; Deane, cf; T. Maloney, ss; Craig, p; Foster, 3b; Berwick, 3b; Hodgson, rf.

VICTORY STREAK OF DELORO CLUB GETS A SETBACK

Packers Get Fitting Revenge in Defeating Smelters 3-0 On Saturday.

WEAKENED LINE-UPS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 26. — Deloro's home league record was lost on Saturday afternoon as Packers took revenge for the two reverses sustained earlier in the season, and handed the Smelters a 3-0 defeat.

The visitors were not at full strength, and Deloro though playing its full team, fielded players crippled in an exhibition game played against the Trenton Air Force in mid-week. At half-time it looked as though the scoreless sheet would be seen at the end of the 2nd half, but the old saying, "You never can tell," applies to games where these old rivals battle it out.

Deloro kicked off, and O'Neill conceded a corner from which no score materialized. End to end rushes ensued. J. Hart was within an ace of scoring when heading the ball he hit the cross-bar. Brown shortly afterwards had the misfortune to miskick when presented with an opportunity by the Deloro centre-forward. Buchan at the other end shot high and O'Neill twice fisted out neatly as the opposing forwards tried to draw blood. W. Hart speeded on the right wing forcing a corner from which nothing resulted, although the Deloro shooters were on the alert for an opening. A rush on the Packers' goal saw a pair of players of each side roll over and Curtis saved the situation. A few moments later, the Peterborough goalie ran out and cleared as the Deloro forwards were on another rush. At the other end G. Downer placed the sphere just over the cross-bar. Another Deloro rush, ended in Brooks having the misfortune to shoot wide. Curtis saved two good shots in quick succession, and then Brooks was again unfortunate in shooting a trifle high. Bradley also just missed with a warm shot. Brown was unlucky with two more shots and Curtis did well to clear Bradley's hard drive. O'Neill made good clearances at the other end prior to the whistle recording the arrival of half-time.

Early in the second half G. Downer sent in a shot which only the quickest action on the part of O'Neill could and did save. Brooks sent in a stinging shot to find Curtis sound. On the succeeding attack by Deloro J. Hart kicked wide. Packers were having their half of the argument, and Tommy Foster tried for goal to see the ball scale the cross-bar. Brown showing his usual energy shot well, but Curtis proved unbeatable. The visitors almost registered as the ball came from a corner kick, but O'Neill threw himself at the ball and relieved the situation. Eventually George Downer obtained a neat goal on a pass from Buchan. This enlivened the play of both teams. A rush initiated by the Deloro right wing resulted in Smith having possession to shoot wide. Packers then brought off another attack and Harris placed the ball in the further end of the goal to give O'Neill no chance.

At this juncture the Deloro forward line was reorganized, J. Hart going to outside left and Brooks taking centre. Deloro staged another rush for Brown to deflect his shot. Cousins placed a high shot in front of Brooks, the latter having hard lines in not netting. Packers increased their lead shortly before play terminated, Buchan scoring prettily on a good combination effort with Harris.

Final score: Packers 3, Deloro 0.

George Blowers handled his first game on the Deloro ground, and had it well under hand. Owing to the late arrival of the Packers, the game was an hour late in starting.

The teams:

Packers — Goal, Curtis; backs, A. Todd and Asa Downer; half-backs, N Downer, Jones and Art Downer; forwards, Cribbes, G. Downer, Buchan, Foster, and Harris.

Deloro — Goal, O'Neill; backs, Townson and Cousins; half-backs, Gray, Smith and Sproule; forwards, W. Hart, Bradley, J. Hart, Brown and Brooks.

Referee—George Blowers, Peterborough.

On The Sidelines

FRED ASH

Classy first-sacker of the Petes who is out of the lineup at present with a lame back. Making a comeback in baseball this season, Ash is going good on the initial sack.

OSHAWA REVENGES NAPANEE SETBACK

Johnny Turner Holds Gibbards to 6 Hits in Motormen's 4-2 Victory.

OSHAWA, July 26.—Oshawa General Motors avenged their defeat at the hands of Napanee Gibbards in Napanee last Wednesday by scoring a close 4 to 2 win over the Easterners in a well played C.O.B.L. fixture here Saturday.

Johnny Turner did a fine hurling job for the motor men, holding the Gibbards to six hits and with the exception of the fourth inning, when the visitors got both their runs, he was never in difficulty. "Red" Jubenville and Tommy Foley both cracked out circuit clouts for the homesters.

DOUBLE FIGURES IN LONDON PAYOFF

But the Longest Shot, Pomegret, Pays Less Than Eight-to-One.

LONDON, July 26 (CP).—Four winners out of seven paid off in double figures at Queen's Park race track Saturday but the longest shot, Pomegret in the second, was less than eight-to-one.

W. T. Raines' Big Fish grabbed the featured Smallman and Ingram handicap by three lengths from Sam Worthy of the Medway Stable. Sam Worthy, coupled with Ladymuch, was a prim favorite but jockey E. Burns had little trouble in bringing the son of old Koenig-Lady Angler home in front. Governor Bill was third over the 6½ furlong stretch.

A photo finish was needed to decide the first race with Minda getting the decision over the favorite Centremarch, Minda held a slight lead from the start and combined with Prompegret for a double worth $138.

KINGSTON KEEPS ON TOP OF PACK WITH 7 TO 1 WIN

Ponies Outhit Petes, With 14 Safe Blows to 6, Including Three Doubles.

A STORMY STRUGGLE.

Kingston Ponies continued to jinx the Petes in the C.O.B.L. here Saturday when they copped a 7-1 decision to maintain their pace in front of the pack. It was the sixth straight win for Kingston over the locals, and their showing Saturday left no doubt in the minds of some 800 disgruntled fans.

It was a stormy struggle with frequent arguments, the high-light taking place in the third inning when Umpire Pat Corrigan had a police official take Manager Joe Daley of the Ponies from the dugout after he swore at the arbiter and commenced pushing him around. Daley saw the rest of the game from the grandstand. The argument resulted when Joyce was called out for stepping into his own bunted ball on fair territory. Corrigan first calling it foul but changing his decision after conferring with Umpire Johnston.

Big Second Frame

Aside from a big second frame, when the visitors scored five runs on solid hitting, it was a neat scrap. The Ponies outhit the Petes by a big margin, getting 14 safe blows—including three doubles—to six for the losers. They also looked better in the field, the Petes having two errors and letting several scratch hits by. Catcher by McQuaide, Clark and Calladine were defensive features. Clark's resulting in a double-play. McQuaide and Scrutton had three hits each for Kingston, while Starr led the losers with two.

Ton Paczkowski twirled a good brand of ball for the victors, limiting the locals to six scattered hits as he fanned three and walked none. He had fine assistance from his teammates. Russ Kitchen went fair after a bad second inning, keeping the hits spread apart better from then on while striking out six and walking one.

An errort and hit by McQuaide put two of the Ponies on in the first but they died on the sacks, and Starr's hit in the Petes' half did no good. Kingston tallied five runs in the second. Scrutton, Joyce and Goodfellow singled in a row. Paczkowski was safe on a fielder's choice as Scrutton scored. Buck walked to force in a run, and Elliott's fly sent in another. McQuaide then doubled to left to score two more. Scrutton hit a single and Goodfellow a cheap double next frame but they failed to count. The Petes went down in order in the second and third.

Scoreless Middle Frame

McQuaide got this third hit in the fourth inning but it meant nothing, and Calladine was safe on a miscue in the homesters' half but he died on first. Neither team did anything in the fifth, while hits by Buck and Arneil came to nothing in the Ponies' sixth and the Petes went back one-two-three in their time at bat. Scrutton singled in the seventh but a double-play cut him down. The Collins' crew finally got a run in their seventh, Whatley singling, taking third on Clark's hit and home on Long's length fly.

Buck hit for Kingston in the eighth and Starr for the locals but they got no further than first base. With one out in the visitors' half of the ninth, Elliott was safe on a miscue. He raced home on a long double by Compeau to right, the latter scoring on a single by Joyce to make the count 7-1. Calladine led off for the Petes with a single but he was forced at second and nearly started a fight by bumping Compeau in an effort to break up any double-play attempt. The next two went out.

TOM DEWEY NO. 1 RACKET BUSTER

and struggled as bailiffs bore them off to prison.

That was last March 26. The city applauded another climactic triumph in 36-year-old Thomas E. Dewey's meteoric career as special rackets prosecutor in the City of New York.

It was a climax, but not the finish. Quietly, Dewey went back to work in his closely-guarded headquarters in the Woolworth Building directing his staff of 40 aides in gathering new evidence.

Then, when ready, he "cracked down" again and again, without warning, striking fresh terror into the "invisible empire" or organized crime — aimed not alone at the flashy gang-type criminal, but also at the mild-appearing racketeers who like to think of themselves "respectable" and not as blood-sucking leeches preying on legitimate business to the tune of more than $100,000,000 a year in New York City.

A "Printer's Devil."

A one-time "printer's devil" in his father's country newspaper shop in Owosso, Mich., then a graduate of the University of Michigan, Tom Dewey came to New York undecided whether to be a singer or a lawyer. He had a rich baritone voice and for a time he sang as a paid soloist at St. Timothy's Church on West 84th Street.

Finally he entered Columbia University and two years later emerged with a Bachelor of Law degree. In 1931 he was appointed Assistant United States Attorney, and that same year saw him plunge into the investigation of a ring of really racketeers who bilked victims from coast to coast.

He was taking an interest, too, in the financial affairs of a surly-tempered plug-ugly known as Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer.

Investigating the Dutchman's income and tax payments, Dewey found the beer baron had deposited $856,000 in the last six months of 1930—at the rate of $5,500 a "working" day—without paying the United States Government a nickel.

Dewey was also appearing in court against a pale, cold-eyed little figure known as Jack "Legs" Diamond, who at that time had already survived three gunfire sattacks and had gained the soubriquet of "the clay pigeon of the underworld."

'Legs' Beat Rap 24 Of 25 Times

The youthful prosecutor won a four-year prison term conviction against Diamond, but "Legs" wrote his own doom by appealing and gaining freedom on bail.

The furtive little gangster who began his career as a bundle-snatcher and became bodyguard for "Little Augie Orgen" and Arnold Rothstein, later becoming one of the century's most vicious racketeers, died in a blast of tommy-gun slugs in Albany (Dec. 18, 1931).

Diamond had "beaten the rap" in 24 out of 25 cases before Dewey got to work on him.

In 1933, still laying the background for his brilliant performance as racket-smasher, Dewey turned the heat of income tax investigation on Dutch Schultz, the notorious Waxey Gordon, Giro Terranova, the "Artichoke King," and Terranova's successor, Joe "Muskie" Castaldo, who harvested more than $9,000,000 in three years by cornering the artichoke market.

He secured an indictment charging Gordon with defrauding the government on taxes on $1,826,890 for the two-year period 1930-1931.

Waxey fled into hiding, and Dewey was confronted by a series of death-silenced witnesses—no less than four men murdered to seal their lips from testifying against the fugitive Gordon.

It was apparent that when the last witness had been "rubbed out," Waxey would calmly reappear and laugh at Dewey. The only way to stop the murders was to get Gordon.

Dewey got him, capturing him at his Catskill hunting lodge—a ludicrous figure, snoring open-mouthed, with a revolver under his pillow.

If Dewey was shy on witnesses, he had all the facts. He had amassed 6,000 documents—cheques, ledgers and bank accounts— and the jury convicted Gordon in 40 minutes on four counts of conspiracy and evasion of income taxes. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

STRIKE PARLEYS UNDER WAY AGAIN FINE IS HOPEFUL

Louis Fine, chief conciliator of the Ontario Department of Labor, to serve as meeting chairman.

Again Henry Barrett, managing director of Dominion Woollens, was present as the chief representative of the company management. He was backed by D. G. H. Melton, manager, and C. B. Merrett, superintendent, of the Bonner-Worth, and Peck Barbour, manager, and R. S. Leybourne, controller, of the Auburn mill.

The same bargaining committee of twelve workers representing each department of the two plants represented the strikers. Today the committee made no appeal to have their organizer, Alex Welch, admitted to the meeting but went in under the leadership of J. L. Cohen, reputed international labor legal adviser. It is understood Cohen was admitted by an agreement made between the strikers and the management through Conciliator Fine.

The strike bargaining committee was composed of: Alex. Townsley, Mike English, Kenneth Bayliss, Elmer Hickey, Clifford Willis and Joseph Vinette, all of the Auburn plant, and Mrs. Edith Frizzelle, Marie Thompson, L. Slaughter, Lucy Ronco, Norman Leigh and Fred Smith, all of the Bonner-Worth.

Fine Hopeful.

Asked by reporters for a statement just before the negotiation meeting convened, Fine said he knew nothing more than he did when he told the press last Friday evening that the arrangements for resumption of negotiations had been made. Asked if he believed the present negotiations would see the end of the strike, he stated:

"If I didn't think the dispute could be settled, I would not be here."

Members of the strike bargaining committee conferred with Cohen at length this morning in preparation for the afternoon meeting. No hint of the tenor of the meeting was revealed.

Responding to rumours that an attempt was to be made by the managements to open the Bonner-Worth plant this morning, a mass picket gathered along the plant front on Ackbonnel street shortly after 6 o'clock. Six or seven men who have continued work throughout the strike entered the plant as usual and were greeted by loud boos but the expected larger groups of workers did not appear. Rumor had it that the company had been canvassing its workers personally and by 'phone and that between 50 and 100 had agreed to return.

One hundred and fifty strikers were in the picket group in contrast to the small handful usually to be found at that time of the day. When no trouble arose, an impromptu rally was held. Several strike leaders spoke briefly, urging the strikers to remain fast.

The Cornwall Situation.

Alex Welch was on the scene and extended the strikers greetings from the Cornwall strikers whom he visited on his way to Ottawa over the week-end.

The re-organization of Canadian textile unions under the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress leadership, set under way at the Ottawa conference, will have no material effect on the Peterborough strike, Welch commented in an interview, he explained that the present idea is to organize the textile workers of Canada into a group of federated locals. Through the Trades and Labor Congress, the locals will still remain indirectly affiliated with both the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Explaining the position of the Peterborough textile local which has charge of the strike here, he said the local will first receive a report on the Ottawa conference from its delegate to the conference and then decide whether or not to seek a charter from the Trades and Labor Congress. Welch was named secretary of the provisional council of the new textile union set-up. Arthur Laverty, the organizer in charge of the big Cornwall strike, was named president of the provisional council.

CLEAVAGE WIDENS IN BRITISH HOUSE

motives. They do not consider that the evacuations they have effected are a breach of the non-intervention agreement."

No Violation.

Labor pressed again. Were ships bringing out refugees breaking the no-intervention agreement? Miss Eleanor Rathbone, Independent, cited Duff Cooper's statement and asked whether His Majesty's Government shared that view. But Eden contented himself by replying that evacuations effected from Bilbao were not a violation of the non-intervention agreement.

Labor turned to Duff Cooper. Had not the British steamship MacGregor been shelled on the high seas with the Navy standing by?

Duff Cooper replied the insurgent cruiser Almirante Cervera fired warning shots across the bow of the MacGregor while in territorial waters. As she did not obey, the Cervera fired again. This time the MacGregor was outside territorial waters. The British warship requested the Cervera to cease fire and took the MacGregor under her protection.

Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, asked whether, seeing the MacGregor was on the high seas when the last shots were fired, any representations had been made to General Franco.

As the MacGregor had defied the authorities on the spot, when in territorial waters, Duff Cooper did not think representations to Franco were called for.

Ten Taken To Hospital From Detroit Club.

DETROIT, July 26 (AP) — Approximately 50 persons became suddenly ill yesterday at the suburban Blue Rock Gun Club where the international trap shooting tournament is being held.

Dr. C. J. Martin, club secretary, said food poisoning caused the illness. Ten persons were taken to hospitals.

The condition of all those in hospitals was described as temporarily serious. Detroit police and health officials began an investigation.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By

CHAPTER 42

THE PRESCRIBED week passed, and Marcia was reluctant to return to town. Santa Cruz held an inexpressible charm that she didn't wish to lose. She found these mountains different from the commercialized resorts close to Los Angeles. People really lived all year in these cozy little houses, neatly fenced in and protected by towering trees. There were quaint little taverns where a hungry guest could get a charcoal broiled steak, crisp French fried potatoes, and a blazing rum omelet for dessert. The simple lives of Marie's friends engrossed her, and she was disappointed when Gary's message finally came.

"Time's up. Expect you back Monday. Meeting morning train. Love, Gary," read the wire. He would meet the train, she thought with some impatience. Doubtless he was ready to plunge back into the same whirlpool of emotions from which she had just escaped. In some part she realized she had not yet reached any decision regarding him, and that working under his eyes at his office would be practically an impossibility. She made up her mind to do the important new illustrations in the security of her own home.

Sadly she took her leave of Marie whose voice had turned gruff to disguise a flood of unaccustomed sentiment.

"Come back again, my dear," she said throatily, "either with Gary or without the old boy. You'll be welcome either way!" And Marcia felt this one of the most genuine compliments she had ever received. Waving goodby, she realized she was leaving this peaceful interim behind her, and entering upon another and demanding period of her life.

Bary was matter-of-face when he greeted her, although his eyes betrayed deeper interest than he would confess. Desperately he tried to ascertain what the days with Marie had meant to the girl by his side, but while he approved her golden tan and renewed vitality, he was unable to penetrate deeper into her private feelings. Marcia was a vivacious companion as they drove from the station to Gary's office, chattering merrily of anything and everything but nothing that told him what he wanted most to know.

"This place looks smaller," she looked puzzled when she reached her old desk. "That's what you get for sending me into the wide open spaces; I feel cramped in this office."

"You'll have plenty of time to get used to it," the man told her. "we've a heavy schedule ahead of us. Feel up to it?"

This gave Marcia her cue to suggest that the cooler, quieter surroundings of her apartment would be more desirable. "And Gary," she bolstered up her argument. "this new work requires so much more concentration, I think I'd do better away from all these people."

Gary jumped to the conclusion that their necessary conferences would take place in the privacy of her home and, so for the very meetings that Marcia sought to eliminate, he agreed to her proposal.

Eagerly he studied the sketches she had started in the mountains, and he was generous in his praise. The clearly etched emotions of the character intrigued his interest, and he felt the man had the desired intensity. Instinctively he realized that some inner emotions had enabled Marcia to reach hitherto unscaled heights in her work, and he hoped desperately that this was a good sign for his ambitions.

Marcia went home alone that evening, glad of the business appointments that kept Gary from accompanying her. She wanted to go back to her own home by herself and to feel once more in command of her life.

The apartment had a musty smell from being closed, and she opened wide the windows. The early summer day had been warm, and there was a depressing pressure of heat that seemed almost to threaten her. Turning to the mail box, she found two cards bearing Sandy's hastily scrawled greetings. So he had come! First joyfully and then apprehensively, she wondered why he'd wanted to see her after so long—and whether Gary had maneuvred it so that she would be unavailable. She shook herself mentally, ashamed of her thoughts.

While the grass literally withered and the hot sun beat down upon the city, Marcia struggled with her assignment. She was alternately thrilled beyond belief at the opportunity she had, and depressed at the futility of work that had no accompanying pleasures. For each day brought to Marcia the growing conviction that, regardless of anything else, she could never accept Gary in Sandy's place. The knowledge weighed heavily upon her as the necessity for a final decision was less than a week away. She realized it would be a heart-breaking experience to tell Gary how she felt, and dreaded the thought of destroying his hope of happiness by the denial that her heart was forcing upon her.

The phone rang and Marcia welcomed the distraction from her dreary thoughts. She was surprised to hear Ellen's voice on the other end of the wire.

"Perfect idea," she replied almost immediately. "I'll meet you at Westover's in about an hour."

Even the brief conversation with Ellen seemed to revive her, and she slipped into her bedroom to freshen up before joining her in a "cup of tea" at a fashionable cocktail bar.

It was less than an hour when she reached the meeting place, and she was only slightly ahead of Ellen. As she saw her swinging down the road, Marcia was impressed with the radiant happiness that seemed to emanate from her friend.

"You look as brown as the proverbial berry," Ellen greeted her.

"Thank the gods, I'm tired of being referred to as one of these pathetic little ghosts that haunt people's closets."

"Silly, those are skeletons. You have to rattle to qualify for that brand of haunting. With the extra poundage, I hardly think you will do," Ellen said.

"I forgot. Ghosts are people who write things that other people get the credit for."

"Yes," said Ellen, gazing resentfully at the menu. "But I once knew a ghost that got a job of writing to do on her own, and had to hire someone to haunt her! What are you going to order?"

Marcia selected a sandwich and a cool drink, then looked inquiringly at Ellen when she settled on a salad.

"On the wagon?" she joked. "It's kind of a bumpy, lonely ride. I might warn you. Is Tony aboard too?"

Ellen smiled a little self-consciously. Then she turned to Marcia and said seriously, "I have a new hobby, Marcy. Guess?"

"Horses," Marcia said promptly, "to pull the wagon!"

"No, you've got too many legs. This is a bird."

"Don't tell me you've gone rural," Marcia pretended horror.

"Not quite. This fellow has long legs, and he flys over chimneys," Ellen said shyly, her face shining with happiness.

Marcia was speechless for a moment, then she could not restrain her pleasure.

"What a place to spring news like that, my dear. I want to dance and shout and sing. I'm so darned happy for you!" With wholehearted approval, Marcia squeezed her friend's hand. "Tony. Is he glad?"

"Marcia, I've never seen a man so happy. You'd think he was having this baby all by himself."

From the tone of her voice Marcia realized that Ellen finally had a firm grasp on real happiness, and she foresaw clear sailing ahead for these two friends.

"I have it all figured out," Ellen began, and Marcia was not sure whether or not she was completely serious. "I once told you I'm the managing kind. Now maybe I can get all my managing out of my system while this infant is tiny and needs bossing—and then I'll be ready to let him tell me what to do when he grows up."

"So, she's a 'he', is she? I'll be willing to wager that you'll be naming that little beggar after her old maid auntie," she teased. The two girls gossiped for an hour more before Ellen got up and headed guiltily for home. She apologized, "I'm late. We're going out for dinner tonight, and since I'm no longer working I have no excuse for not being ready on time. Come over soon, my dear."

And Marcia looked enviously at the girl who had wifehood and approaching motherhood to glorify her life. Almost in a dream she heard Sandy say again, "All you know about love is what you put in your gosh-darned ads!" True enough, the only romance she had at that moment was synthetic—except the unwanted love of Gary.

Duds Dropped in Spain Contain Best Wishes From German Workers

WINDSOR, Ont., July 26 (CP)—Ambulances must be camouflaged in Spain because they will be bombed if they bear red crosses, Mrs. Lini Fuhr, New York nurse just returned from Spain, told an audience here last night. She said the worst wounds came from Italian dum-dum bullets. She told of a night air raid when five of nine bombs dropped did not explode. Opened, the "duds" were found to be filled with sawdust. Each contained a note that read "These will not explode. Victory to Spain. From the German Workers."

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY SCRATCHES THE FOX

Wiggy! Wiggy!" grunted a voice in the camping tent where Mr. Longears was asleep. "Wake up, Wiggy! It's time to go!"

Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady, who was asleep not far away, heard the voice. Up she popped shouting aloud:

"Don't you take my husband away, you Bad Chaps!"

"I'm not a Bad Chap, Mrs. Longears," grunted Mr. Twistytail, the fat gentleman pig. "But Wiggy told me to call him early this morning as we are going on a hunting trip."

"Oh, excuse me. Mr. Twistytail," said Mrs. Longears. "I was sleeping so soundly I had forgotten you were visiting here in our camp. I thought you were one of the Bad Chaps."

"What's this? Bad Chaps!" cried Uncle Wiggily, sitting up so suddenly on his cot bed the twinkle fell off the end of his pink nose.

"It's all my fault," laughed Mrs. Longears. "I mistook Mr. Twistytail for the Fox. It's all right. So you are going out hunting with your friend are you, Wiggy?" asked Mrs. Longears as she went back to bed.

Wants More.

"We are going to hunt some more hard, stiff pine tree cones to make back scratchers," explained Mr. Twistytail. "I have so injoyed the back scratcher Uncle Wiggily made for me that I am going to make some to give to my pig friends. But I shall need many pine cones."

"Indeed, you will," said Mr. Longears. "We'll go hunting them, Twisty, as soon as I get my pink nose-twinkle from under my cot bed and have a spot of breakfast."

"I'll crawl under the cot and get the twinkle for you," offered Mr.

Twistytail. "It was my fault it bounced there, waking you so suddenly. I'll get it. Sit still."

Uncle Wiggily sat on the edge of his cot in the camping tent and the fat gentleman pig started to crawl under. But the cot was low and Mr. Twistytail was very fat and high and so in a moment he raised the cot up and off the floor, and upset it and spilled Uncle Wiggily.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "That's a fine way to get out of bed. I'm surely awake now. Ha! Ha!"

"Oh, I'm sorry!" grunted the fat pig, crawling out from beneath the upset couch. But here is your twinkle, Wiggy."

Off to the Woods.

Mr. Longears put the pink twinkle back on the end of his nose and then after Nurse Jane had given the two friends a spot of breakfast, away they went to the woods to look for pine tree cones.

They soon found many large ones and filled a basket the pig carried. When he went back home he was going to fasten cones on the ends of long sticks and sell them to his friends for scratchers.

Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail were having a good time picking up the cones when, all of a sudden, along came the Fox.

"Ah, ha!" yapped the Fox. "I am going to have an early breakfast, I think. Ah, ha!"

"I don't know about breakfast!" said Uncle Wiggily, brave because the fat pig was with him. "But I do know you are going to get a good scratch."

With that Mr. Longears suddenly scratched the soft and tender nose of the Fox so hard with a hard, sharp pine cone the Bad Chap howled and ran away as fast as his legs would take him.

"That was very clever!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. Then the basket was filled with pine cones and the two friends went back to the camping tent peaceful and happy.

And if the window shade will stop running up to the top floor to see if the roof has a piece of candy, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's adventure stump.

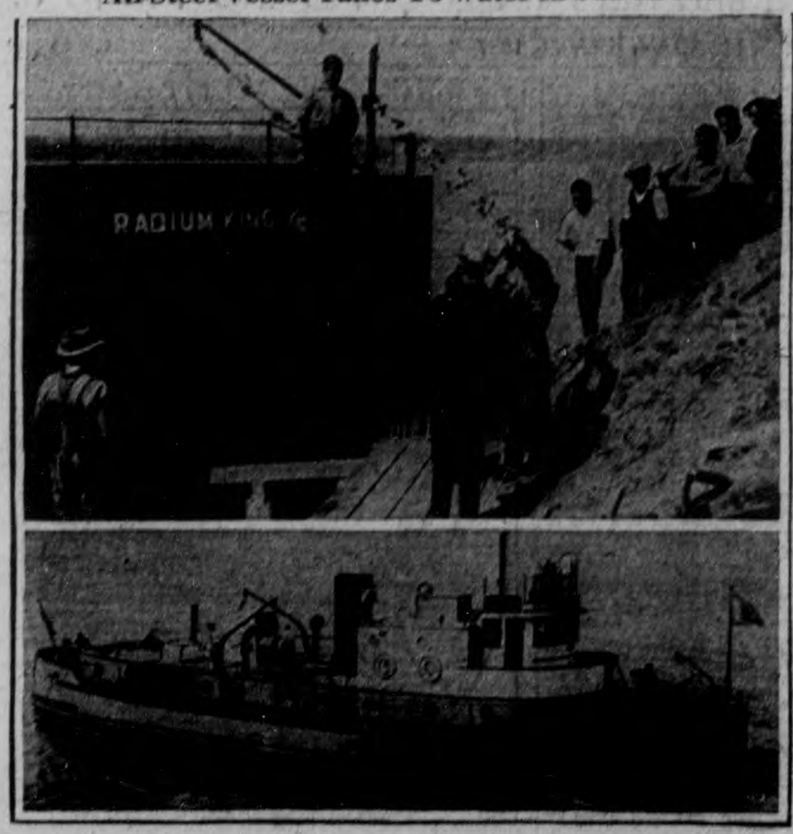
All-Steel Vessel Takes To Water In Sub-Arctic



The first Diesel motored all-steel vessel to serve in the great river system of the Northwest Territories was launched at Fort Smith, Alta., before a cheering crowd of workmen, trappers, traders, priests and provincial dignitaries. Mrs. J. C. Bowen, wife of the lieutenant-governor of Alberta, christened the new vessel "Radium King." The ship was built at Sorel, Que., cut into sections and shipped by rail to the northern city, where it was welded together again. It will carry radium supplies out of the Great Bear Lake district. Mrs. Bowen is shown in the upper photograph as she broke a bottle of champagne over the ship's bow. The lower photograph shows the "Radium King" after the launching.

RASPBERRY SOCIAL ENJOYABLE EVENT

Successful Play, "The Blue Bag," Features Orange Corners Program.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ORANGE CORNERS, July 26.—Just by way of a change in the form of a garden party, members of St. John's Anglican Church, sponsored a "Raspberry Social" on the church grounds on Wednesday evening, the event proving to be the most successful held for some time.

Two long tables were set in the shed and laden with good things to eat, a very large number being looked after by an efficient staff of ladies.

Program Enjoyed

After supper the young people of the congregation presented their play, "The Blue Bag" and the rapt attention of the listeners showed their intense interest in a play, full of humorous situations so that there was not a dull moment throughout.

To Miss Mildred Magee goes a great deal of credit for a fine performance, she having given much of her time to the training of the cast. While each member was well-chosen for his or her part, that of Obadiah Macklyn and his wife "Cindy" were exceptionally well done by Vernon Nelson and Norma Jackson. Equally effective was the part of the maid, "Chattanooga Elvira Livermore," played by Jane McConnell.

The Play

The opening scene of the play, presented in three acts, takes place in a country hotel in a small village.

Rev. Mr. Simpson, of Millbrook, made a very capable chairman and the numbers between acts consisted of a vocal duet by Norman McBain and Vernon Nelson with an encore and a musical monologue by Vernon Nelson who also responded to an encore. The accompaniments were played by Miss Mildred Magee.

MILLBROOK

Misses Margaret and Kathryn McCarthy, nurses-in-training at the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, are spending their vacation with their mother, Mrs. E. H. Barnes.

Misses Ruth Thorndyke and Mary Burnham, who have been holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hill, of Toronto at their summer home on Draper Lake, returned home on Thursday.

Messrs. Albert Lord, and his nephew, Harold Pullin, of Winnipeg, who have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord, for the past week, left for their western home on Saturday evening. Part of the time in Ontario was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lord, of Peterborough, at their summer cottage on Chemong Lake.

Messrs. William Edworthy and Joe Thorndyke have returned home after a brief holiday with the latter's sister, Mrs. E. A. Hill, and Mr. Hill, at their summer cottage near Kingston.

The final game in the softball league for the west section of the Peterborough Presbytery Y.P.U. will be played at Millbrook on Monday, July 26, at 6.15 p.m., at the Agricultural grounds. The Presbytery picnic will this year be at Millbrook on Civic Holiday, August 2, when the championship in the softball league will be played off after supper, preliminary games in the afternoon deciding who will be in the finals.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Ford, and Mrs. Wentworth Gray motored to Gravenhurst on Sunday and visited Miss Maretta Gray whose health is improving after her recent indisposition.

Miss Bernice Thornton of Toronto is holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thornton.

The local Cadets are holding a lawn carnival, and dance, on July 30 on the grounds of Reeve P. Stinson and R. A. Wainman, when games of various kinds, and other attractions, will round out a well-planned evening, the proceeds to help pay expenses of sending the rifle team to Ottawa again this season, to compete in the D.C.R.A. matches at the Connaught Ranges.

The Serenaders' Orchestra will provide music for the dancing.

Plan Marriage

Francis Lederer and Margo

Although no date has been set, the marriage of Francis Lederer, screen actor, and Margo, actress-dancer is expected to take place soon. The two are shown in Hollywood.

Senior and Junior Millbrook Organizations Entertained By Mrs. Coyte.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 26.—Mrs. A. Coyte entertained the Senior and Junior Missionary Auxiliaries of Grace Presbyterian church at the week-end for their July meeting, which was a joint gathering, with the president of the older society, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, welcoming the younger organization, congratulating them on the good work they are accomplishing, and then resigning the chair to Miss Ada Peers, junior presiding officer.

Following the devotional period a study of India was taken up, those assisting being Mary Eakins, who gave "A Day in Jhansi," Helen Elsworth, whose paper was, "Activities in Jobat Hospital," and the president who spoke on "The School at Amkhut."

It was decided to postpone the tea which was to have been held on Wednesday, July 28, until the first Friday in August, the event to be in the church parlors.

The committee in charge served a dainty tea, with raspberries and cream, bread and butter, and tea, during the social hour at the close.

Fences Blown Down and Trees Uprooted in Downeyville Area.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, July 26.—A very bad thunder and wind storm passed through here and fences were blown down, trees uprooted and the people were all next day fixing up fences. They had to keep the cattle shut in all night to keep them out of the crop. At Patrick Duffy's, on the shore of the lake, the clock was blown off the wall and broken and dishes were also broken, the wind was so high. The barn of Bernard Murray was struck with lightning and a few boards blown off, also a large barn on the farm of Thomas Flynn was struck with lightning. This is the second time Mr. Flynn's barn was struck. It was hit last year also.

VEGETABLE CROP DOING SPLENDIDLY

No Fear of Shortage in Warsaw Sector—Potatoes Excellent.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, July 26.—There is no fear of shortage of vegetables this year for everything is doing splendidly. Spinach, Swiss chard, beets and other things are growing and keeping fresh. Green peas and beans for home canning never were better and potatoes are exceptionally good.

Hay is nearly all in and in good condition. Wheat is good, but in some places especially where there are low spots it is ripening unevenly. The root crop is fine. It was sorely needed. The weeds do not forget to come. Purslane (or gardeners' pest) is rather plentiful and one of the most difficult things to get rid of.

WILD BALSAM CURE FOR IVY POISONING

Grows in Same Neighborhood as Ivy Itself and is Effective.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, July 26.—Again we hear of poison ivy. It should be easily distinguished with its three leaves on a vine—lighter green than Virginia creeper. A sure remedy for it is wild balsam or jewel weed. This antidote for the ivy poisoning is generally found growing in the same neighborhood (poisons and their antidotes often are). Just rub some of the crushed leaves or stems on the infected area. It will cure permanently recurrent poisoning (poisoning that return at the same season each year without contact). This remedy has been boxed and sent through mail and effect cures with only a few applications.

DEATH CHEATED AS 5 RESCUED OFF LOG BARGE

Crew Tell of Wild Night Dodging Flying Timber on Storm-Tossed Craft.

DRIFT AS LINE PARTS.

Coast Guard Makes Midnight Rescue—Two Stick Aboard.

HABOR BEACH, Mich., July 27.—(AP).—Five men rescued by coast guardsmen told here today of dodging loose logs aboard the storm-tossed barge Michigan adrift in Lake Huron, before they leaped to a coast guard lifeboat last midnight.

The power life boat brought them ashore here this morning. More than two hours later the barge, with Capt. Roy McGregor and Joe Huston of Owen Sound, Ont., still aboard, was towed into port by the tug Harrison. It was riding low in the water but was in no danger of sinking.

Approximately half its cargo had been swept overboard.

James Johnson, engineer of Owen Sound, said things "looked pretty bad" when a town line broke last night.

"Waves were sweeping over us," he related. "We had to hang on the best we could and keep out of the way of the logs that were being washed away. We had no power and didn't know what was going to happen until the coast guard arrived."

The tow line connecting the Owen Sound, Ont., barge and tug snapped about 4 p.m. yesterday under the strain of the heavy seas about 24 miles northeast of Pointe Aux Barques.

The Cardigan and powered lifeboats from the Harbor Beach and Tawas Point coast guard stations put out to the rescue while the limestone freighter, T. W. Robinson, stood by.

Taken from the barge by the Cardigan were Melvin Kenoe of (146 12th St. East), Fred Harrison, cook, of (1868 6th Ave.) James Johnson, engineer, (1667 9th Ave.), and Norman Cripps, fireman, (234 10th Ave. East), all of Owen Sound; and Rennie Lacrois, fireman, of Spragge, Ont.

F. L. Beck, in charge of the Harbor Beach coast guard, said the guards encountered difficulty in removing the men because of projecting logs, which damaged the cutter slightly.

Two Fail to Jump.

The five who were taken off were able to jump directly into the coast guard lifeboat, which was driven away from the side of the barge before McGregor and Huston could

ITALY TORPEDOES BRITAIN'S PLANS

Blocks 7-point Questionnaire to Interested Powers in Spanish Situation.

LONDON, July 27 (C.P.-Havas).—The Spanish No-intervention Subcommittee was saddled with a new series of complications to-day after a meeting which saw Italy torpedo the British plan to submit a seven-point questionnaire to the interested Powers regarding the British compromise non-intervention proposal.

The fact Italy, Germany, and Portugal expressed approval in principle of proposals for withdrawal of foreign volunteers failed to brighten the picture or lessen the pessimism evinced in the press.

Instead of sending out the British questionnaire, as originally planned, the non-intervention sub-committee decided to request the non-intervention Powers to submit their decisions on the original British compromise plan of July 14 before Thursday noon.

The Daily Herald predicted a new deadlock would occur when the subcommittee meets on Friday to discuss the replies.

An astute move by the Italian Ambassador at yesterday's meeting, consisting of a proposal for submitting a rival Italian questionnaire, also went by the board.

The arrangements for the meeting were made after Arthur Laverty, president of Cornwall Textile Workers, agreed to permit negotiations to proceed without him being a member of the workers' committee. The meeting will be in camera.

Hepburn May Get Aid From Federal Liberals

Will Not Jeopardize Loyalty To Premier Ottawa Heads Hint

Prime Minister Silent on Subject—Policy Avoids Provincial Elections.

LIVE TOPIC AT PRESENT.

Many of Parliament's Best Orators Among 50 Liberal Members From Ontario.

OTTAWA, July 27 (CP).—Federal Liberals will be able to campaign alongside followers of Premier Hepburn in the forthcoming Ontario election without jeopardizing their loyalty to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, those high in councils of the Dominion party said last night.

Belief announcement of the provincial election is imminent has raised speculation as to whether there would be any change from past policy. The question became prominent because of the statement a few months ago by Premier Hepburn Ontario and Federal Liberal organizations would be divorced.

The view here is that no impediment will be placed in the way of any federal Liberals who wish to support local candidates. Weight was lent that opinion because Mr. Mackenzie King has made no public comment on the Ontario Premier's remarks. Furthermore friends of the prime minister have stated he does not intend to do so.

The policy in the past has been that while the Federal prime minister does not participate in provincial campaigns, Federal Liberals may follow their own inclinations similar to any private citizen.

Some of the best orators in parliament are among more than 50 Liberal who represent Ontario constituencies. If any considerable number take part in the coming election the opinion here was their efforts would be a substantial force toward return of the present government.

Norfolk Tobacco Men Hiring Help

SIMCOE, Ont., July 27.—(CP)—Hiring of the extra hands needed for the tobacco harvest by Norfolk growers started this week as harvest got underway. While hundreds of men are flocking into Simcoe and Delhi only a small percentage can be placed immediately.

Frank Kelly, head of the Government Employment Service branch here, interviews 250 to 300 men a day and a crowd of men stand or sit along the sidewalk outside his office. Mr. Kelly placed 22 men on Saturday and 45 yesterday.

Yesterday a man urged waiting grouns to hold out for a minimum of $3.50 a day and board when a grower offered a group of men jobs. He was told to "get out" of town.

$15,000 Fire Hits Hamilton Pottery

HAMILTON, Ont., July 27—(CP)—Fire in a kiln shed of Hamilton Potteries Limited last midnight caused damage estimated by plant officials at $15,000 when it destroyed the shed, damaged finished stock and stock in progress and caused considerable damage to a hot kiln. Officials said the loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Twenty-seven men with 3,800 feet of hoseline worked almost an hour before the fire was brought under control. It was reported the likely origin was a boiler which sent sparks on the tinder-dry shingles of a shed roof. The reflection of the blaze could be seen two miles.

21 Bananas Too Many Cost Drover His Bet

Stratford, July 27 (CP).

HAROLD TWIST, well-known Downie Township cattle buyer, lost a bet—one of the few in his lifetime.

Mr. Twist told a group of Stratford men he could eat three dozen bananas within fifteen minutes. They doubted his word and purchased the bananas. Harold managed to eat fifteen bananas before he gave up. The failure cost him the price of the fruit.

He has a good excuse for losing, however. The bananas weren't ripe enough to be eaten wholesale, he said.

30 BODIES FOUND AFTER QUAKE HITS MEXICO DISTRICT

LINES ARE BROKEN.

MEXICO CITY, July 27—(AP).—Workmen to-day picked through piles of debris that once were homes and public buildings in Veracruz to reckon the cost of Sunday night's earthquake. At least 30 bodies had been recovered.

Stricken telephone and telegraph lines still rendered a complete survey impossible. Piecemeal reports showed, however, that Maltrata, Veracruz, was hardest hit with 16 dead and more than 70 injured counted up to last night. Many were still missing. Half the buildings of that town of 8,000 were reported levelled, including an ancient colonial church.

A special train carrying physicians and nurses, reached Maltrata from Orizaba, 13 miles away in the mountainous country around the long-dormant volcano named Orizaba.

Along with a number of friends he was preparing to go out for a spin. He was alone in the boat and had turned on the motor and started the engine when the explosion occurred. The craft was badly damaged, and when Mr. McIntosh was extricated from the wreckage it was found that he was suffering from serious burns and bruises as well as shock.

River Skipper Hates The Sea As North Weaves Spell On Him

Weatherbeaten Scot on Turbulent Athabasca and Slave Waters and Loves Them.

By Guy E. Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

FORT CHIPEWYAN, Alta., July 27—(CP)—Captain Harvey Alexander hates the sea.

The 59-year-old weatherbeaten Scot, skipper of the steamship Athabasca which took Lord Tweedsmuir and his party down the Athabasca and Slave rivers from Fort McMurray to Fitzgerald on their way to Aklavik, has been on big rivers for 32 years and he is satisfied to stay.

Accustomed to sailing stern-wheelers where charts don't work, Capt. Alexander went to sea for brief spell, coasting on British Columbia for a time and making three Pacific crossings.

"I didn't like it," he said at this Lake Athabasca centre, "when you've piled these rivers for a few years they get you and you don't want to leave."

The veteran fresh-water skipper stays on the rivers in summer and goes home to Vancouver in the winters. He likes the winding courses.

Douglas Planning No Alberta Visit

LONDON, July 27 (CP Cable) — Major C. H. Douglas today announced he had no intention of visiting Alberta in connection with the Alberta government's Social Credit policy.

"I have been kept posted regarding the mission of Powell and Byrne," he said, "but I shall not have anything to say until the meeting of the legislature in the fall."

L. D. Byrne and G. F. Powell, associates of Major Douglas and long prominent in the Social Credit movement, are conducting an investigation of Social Credit in Alberta. Douglas previously said he would visit the province if the report of his lieutenants convinced him the trip would be worth while.

Douglas branded as "vivid imagination" reports published in the London press the Alberta government proposed to seize bank deposits in return for credit notes on the government and that the banks were preparing to close their doors.

Aviation stocks are popular among investors of England this year.

Two Of The Principals In Strike Parley

Louis Fine, chief conciliator of the Ontario Department of Labor (Left), chairman of negotiations between representatives of 650 textile strikers and the manage of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited, is seen leaving the office at Bonner-Worth plant at the close of one of the sessions, while at (Right) J. L. Cohen, reputed international labor legal adviser poses for the camera. Mr. Cohen, it is understood, was admitted to the conference to represent the strikers as the result of an agreement made between the strikers and management through Conciliator Fine.

BUFFALO HOMES ON FOOD RATIONS AS STRIKE HOLDS

Both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. Union Bodies Involved in Supply Blockade.

WANT UNION CONTRACTS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 27.—(AP)—Retail food merchants rationed their supplies to harassed housewives today as striking truckers and meat packers planned a finish fight for a closed shop.

Grocery truck drivers strengthened picket lines around 44 wholesale houses and the packers faced a stalemate in negotiations at least until Wednesday as retail stores of eggs, butter and poultry dropped almost to nothing.

Owen J. Kavanagh of the Buffalo Central Labor Council pledged the territory's 85,000 American Federation of Labor members to help maintain a blockade around the warehouses that supply poultry and dairy products to 1,000,000 persons.

At the same time, Hugh Thompson, Committee for Industrial Organization regional director, refused to negotiate with representatives of four strike-closed meat packing establishments when they advised him they had no authority to sign a union contract.

A union mass meeting hooted down with cries of "closed shop or nothing" a compromise contract embodying a modified closed shop.

O'Hara of Ottawa Beaten in the 3rd

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP)—Walter Senior of San Francisco, 12th ranking player in the United States, gained quarter finals of men's singles in Canadian Lawn Tennis Championships today, crushing Joe O'Hara of Ottawa, 6-2, 6-2 in the third round.

The rangy Californian played a long-driving game and as the pair volleyed from the back courts Senior was far superior.

Len Hartman of New York progressed with Senior as the second day's play opened under cool, sullen skies. The dark-haired Hartman set down Gordon Robinson of Niagara Falls, Ont., student at North Carolina University 6-1, 6-2.

Shorts For Softies But Not For Sailors

Provincetown, Mass., July 27 (AP).

SHORTS are for softies, not for sailties, in the opinion of 85-year-old Captain A. L. Kent, who has spent most of his life on the sea.

He issued an edict that he was banning shorts aboard the excursion boat Steel Pier of the Boston-Provincetown Line. Men who wear shorts, he said, could come aboard his boat at Provincetown and visit, but if they want to ride to Boston they'll have to wear regular trousers.

GARROTS WOMAN AT HER REQUEST THEN CALLS LAW

Salesman Loses Nerve To Suicide as Climax of Illicit Love Affair.

BOTH MARRIED.

NEW YORK, July 27 (A.P.).—Police quoted Stanley A. Martin, an unemployed salesman, as saying he strangled a woman companion early to-day at her request because "she didn't want to live any longer."

The slaying, police said he told them, climaxed an illicit love affair which had become "hopeless" because both were married.

The victim, Mrs. Florence Jackson, 37, mother of two children, was found dead in a car driven by Martin when the alleged slayer stopped a police car and asked for medical aid for Mar. Jackson.

She had been garotted, police said, with a belt from her dress.

Police said Martin told them he met Mrs. Jackson in a restaurant last night and she accompanied him to several night clubs.

"After we had driven around for a while," the officers quoted Martin as saying, "we discussed the futility of our love. We were both married and it looked hopeless. She said, 'What's the use of living—why not kill me?'"

Martin complied with her request, according to police, because he "did not want to disappoint her." He also planned to take his own life and started to write a note explaining the tragedy, when he became frightened.

Martin was held for further questioning.

CANADA'S CATTLE MARKET ON VERGE OF ANOTHER BOOM

Shortage in U. S. Sends Ottawa Buyers Flocking West to Drought Areas.

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY.

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP)—Canada's cattle business, domestic and foreign, is ready to boom under the impetus of a government-assisted plan for shipping thin livestock from the dry prairies to Ontario's rich feeding lands—then to market.

Livestock men said today the movement of western cattle to Ontario has started several weeks earlier than last year, the first in which the Dominion Government paid half-cost of shipment and half-fare of eastern buyers who select their own cattle for finishing.

Because the market is better, due largely to cattle shortage in the United States, eastern cattle men are hurrying to take advantage of the government scheme. Personally,

NEW YORK, July 27—(AP)—"Pay up and shut up!"

In 1936, racket-plagued business men in New York City found it was far the healthiest policy. It was dangerous to take their complaints to the police. The city was in the grip of gang rule. Tribute for "protection" was exacted at gun-point, or by strong-arm mobs. Windows were smashed, restaurants bombed, food poisoned and "squawkers" were slugged and sometimes murdered—under the cold-blooded regime of such racket overlords as Dutch Schultz, Charlie (Lucky) Luciano,

Give Opponents Chance To Rally Cohorts--"If Any"

Premier Admits Date Has Not Been Discussed at Any Cabinet Meet.

PLENTY OF RUMORS.

Will Wait Until After Vote To Reline Slate of Ministers.

TORONTO, July 27 — (C.P.). — Back from a visit to his Elgin country farm, Premier Hepburn said today his Cabinet has not formally discussed a general election date, and "we have no intention of calling a snap election."

"I know there are plenty of rumors," the Premier told reporters who gathered in his Queen's Park office. "All I have to say is that our opponents will have ample notice to marshal their forces, if they have any."

Mr. Hepburn said he did not plan any cabinet changes before the election, which has been forecast for October. "It would not be advisable, since we have no knowledge beforehand as to how many ministers will be elected," he said.

"I do not think it is right to make any change before an election. You have the field to choose from after an election, but if the choice is made beforehand the door is closed."

During the April crisis arising out of the C.I.O.-called strike of General Motors of Canada workers at Ottawa, Attorney General Arthur Roebuck and Hon. David A. Croll, Minister of Labor, Public Welfare and Municipal affairs, resigned at the insistence of the Premier. They disagreed with his strike stand and have not been replaced.

Motorist Is Ditched By Very Dead Skunk

London, Ont., July 27 (CP).

SHUNNED in life, a skunk, even in death, almost proved the undoing of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pickard on a week-end motor trip. The London couple escaped injury in an accident caused by a dead skunk.

The incident occurred on No. 2 Highway in the Hamilton district. Noticing the body of a skunk directly in his path, Mr. Pickard, due to heavy traffic, was unable to avoid it. As the car passed over the body there was a loud report and the vehicle swerved into a ditch. Investigation showed a sharp bone from the skunk's body had pierced the tire and caused a blowout.

CLAIM PROGRESS BUT NO AGREEMENT HAS BEEN REACHED

Strike Negotiations Continue To-day After Two Sessions on Monday.

NOTHING GIVEN OUT.

Resumption of negotiations between Auburn and Bonner-Worth strike bargainers and company officials, scheduled for 10.30 o'clock this morning after the Monday evening adjournment, was postponed unexpectedly to 2 o'clock this afternoon. The postponment was made at the request of J. L. Cohen, legal adviser to the bargaining committee, who wished an opportunity to confer with the strikers.

Cohen was closeted with the members of the bargaining committee in the second-floor parlour of the Empress Hotel during the greater part of the morning. Company officials headed by Managing Director Henry Barrett were in conference with their legal adviser B. L. Killoch at the Bonner-Worth offices.

No further statement concerning the negotiation situation could be obtained from either the strike or management side of the dispute at noon today. Department of Labor Conciliator Louis Fine and Cohen both indicated they were hopeful that a strike settlement would result from the present series of negotiations.

The strike was 29 days old today. On June 29, the day shift of weavers at the Auburn plant walked out shortly after reporting for work in the morning. A further portion of the Auburn employees joined the weavers on strike during the morning and by afternoon plant operations were at a standstill, remaining workers being frozen out. The strike at the Bonner-Worth mill followed later in the week in the nature of a sympathetic walk-out.

No agreement had been reached between the bargaining committee of striking Auburn and Bonner-Worth workers and the management of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds at the end of five hours of negotiations last night.

Two meetings between the strikers with their labor lawyer J. L. Cohen and Managing Director Henry Barrett and his local company officials were held during the day under the chairmanship of the Ontario Department of Labor's chief conciliator Louis Fine. The first meeting convened shortly before 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continued to 4.30 o'clock. The second continued from 8 o'clock to a few minutes after 10 p.m.

Minutes of the meetings were not

MYRNA LOY GIVES WIVES SOME TIPS

Could Give Reno Back to Indians if Same Care Taken in Marriage As Business.

HOLLYWOOD, July 27—(AP).—From the vantage point of a year's marital happiness, Myrna Loy advised her sisters in wedlock to-day to keep their chins up and their hair waved.

The green-eyed 32-year-old actress, was married—for the first time—to Arthur Hornblow, Jr., her director in "Arrowsmith," June 2, 1936.

She had prepared for matrimony by playing both vamps and "perfect wives" on the screen. So she was tolerant when her husband disdained her favorite salad, and he, previously divorced, overlooked the feminine furbelows in their new home.

"A wife cannot escape the competition of other women," is Miss Loy's philosophy, "but she shares the same privileges at the beauty parlor.

"Luckily, women are finding out that the battle has just begun when the altar is reached. If they all learned to put as much effort into making marriage a success, as they would into business — then Reno could be given back to the Indians."

SEVEN IN BARGE WAITING RESCUE IN HURON STORM

Tug and Freighter Stand By Pending Break in Gale Before Contact.

COAST GUARDS PREPARE.

Heavily Laden Craft Feared in Imminent Danger of Foundering.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., July 27—(CP).—After sleepless hours aboard the Canadian barge Michigan, adrift in Lake Huron off Saginaw, Mich., seven men awaited rescue to-day. The barge went adrift when two lines between it and the tug Harrison parted in a gale.

Battered by a wild sea and bitter wind which kept rescuers at a distance, the Michigan was in imminent danger of foundering. Two of the men aboard, Joe Houston and Jim Allen, live in Owen Sound, but names of the others were not immediately available.

Both the Michigan and the Harrison are owned by the John Harrison and Sons Company, Owen Sound. In a wireless message from the tug, the company learned the barge had broken away in a storm yesterday morning. The all-steel barge was loaded with logs bound for Guelph from Duck Islands in Georgian Bay, south of Manitoulin Island.

Captain Frank Waugh, in charge of the Harrison said in his message rough seas made immediate rescue impossible. The Harrison was standing by, as was also the limestone freighter T. W. Robinson, according to a despatch from Rogers City, Mich.

Receive an SOS

The Rogers City despatch said an SOS message was received there presumably from the Harrison, at 5.10 p.m. (E.D.T.); it gave the drifting barge's position as 24 miles north eastby north of Point Aux Barques.

The barge was a car ferry at Detroit before being rebuilt by the Harrison Company to carry logs and lumber to the company's mills here and to other Great Lakes ports. Company officials declined to give the names of her crew, pending definite word regarding her fate.

From Alpena, Mich., the coast-guard cutter Cardinan was sent out to aid in the rescue, and the coast-guard station at Tawas reported it was also sending out a lifeboat crew of five. Would-be rescuers awaited a break in the weather before attempting to reach the barge.

LIBERIA FEARFUL NAZI-POLISH GRAB

Increase in German Traders Worries Only Unfettered State in Africa.

MONROVIA, Liberia, July 27. —(AP)—This West African negro republic, which originated in the efforts of philanthropists to provide a home for freed American slaves, celebrated its ninetieth anniversary yesterday.

One cloud darkened Liberia's horizon—fears that Germany and Poland may seek to expand, economically if not territorially, in the only remaining unfettered State in Africa.

German traders have increased their domination of Liberia's largely undeveloped industry, and Polish interests have spread counter-campaigns for influence. Liberia is rich in soil, forests, rubber and minerals.

Crowds of European traders, gold prospectors, rubber planters, missionaries and a few remaining descendants of the original American-Liberian freed slaves toasted President Edwin Barclay at the Executive mansion.

The country is prosperous. Rubber plantations covering almost 500,000,000 acres has provided sufficient revenue and royalties to run the Government on a liberal scale. The discovery of extensive iron and copper deposits in the Liberian hinterland is expected further to strengthen the republic's finances.

Besides fear of the colonial ambitions of Germany and Poland, Liberia's main worries are sleeping sickness and illiteracy. Sleeping sickness takes a huge toll in the isolated inland areas particularly on the eastern border near the French Ivory Coast colony.

8,000 BUSHELS FOR BOYS' WHEAT CLUB FROM SMALL START

Sponsored By Rotary, Effort Builds Up $8,000 in Two Years.

35 MEMBERS SHARE.

Thirty-five boys who joined the seed club sponsored by the Peterborough Rotary Club two years ago will harvest approximately 8,000 bushels of white winter wheat this season, A. D. Runions, county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, informed the Rotarians at their weekly luncheon Monday.

And G. A. Gillespie roughly estimated the value of the boys' crop at $8,000, a handsome return from the $6 that was invested to buy certified seed for the boys when their club was organized.

Originally there were forty-three boys in this group of junior farmers, and each of them received two bushels of wheat for sowing. Thirty-five of them are still members. Their planting last fall ranged from five to twelve acres each, and it has been learned from sources other than the brief announcement to the Rotarians that the quality of the boys' crop this season is of almost uniformly high standard.

Mr. Runions is president of the Rotary Club this year. He was elected a comparatively short time ago. In reporting to the Rotarians the prospect of the young farmers' wheat harvest he took no credit to himself or Rotary, and presumably it was Mr. Runions who recommended this project for Rotary's support two years ago.

Eight thousand bushels of white winter wheat from the eighty-six bushels that were purchased and distributed only two seasons ago! And the president of Rotary tossed off the highly interesting information in less than a minute, a bare statement without a note of self-satisfaction.

An $86 investment swollen to $8,000 in a scant two seasons! Mr. Runions' only amplifying remark was to the effect that the boys would display samples of their wheat and enter them for competition at the Peterborough Exhibition with the further prospect of winning some of the prize money. Possibly wheat may not pay one dollar a bushel, although farmers generally are hoping for a higher price than that. The estimate was merely mentioned to the Examiner by Mr. Gillespie, himself a Rotarian, but somehow the whole story, told without a trace of frills, and baldly matter of fact, seemed to involve figures that were hardly credible. It sounded as if some whooping-up should go along with it.

Eight thousand bushels of wheat from eighty-six bushels in two years, and grown by the boys themselves! It seems that some one ought to say "Ain't that somethin' " or words to that effect.

COLUMBIA OPENS FILMS DIVISION

Gotham College Recognizes Import Of Movies In Cultural Line

NEW YORK, July 27 — (CP), — Columbia University here has established a new division known as "Film Study" in recognition of "the growing serious interest in the motion picture as a new and vital mass art form that is profoundly characteristic of our time."

Director James C. Egbert of university extension described the object of the new division as "to further in every possible way the development of motion picture study and appreciation and to co-operate actively with other organizations and groups — both academic and non-academic—that have similar aims.

He said this was the first time an effort had been made to co-ordinate the study of motion pictures and to plan definitely for future development in the field.

"The status of the motion picture up until recently," Dr. Egbert observed, has hardly warranted serious recognition by university authorities. Now we feel that this has changed. The quality of the commercial film has been raised in recent years by such outstanding pictures as The Informer, the French Crime at Chatinet, the Russian Don Quixote, the French Carnival in Flanders, the English Fire over England and David Copperfield."

Film Study will sponsor an international amateur motion picture show next April, in co-operation wit the Montreal Amateur Motion Picture Club and similar organizations in other countries. Amateur films of outstanding merit will be selected from prize winning films in Canada, the United States and other countries.

Pilot Dies In Plane Crash Near Toronto

Receiving his commercial pilot's license only a week before, Raymond J. Lynch, 24-year-old pilot, crashed to his death on a farm on the outskirts of Toronto, when his motor stalled 100 feet above ground. Lynch, preparing to land at the airport adjoining the farm, swooped low and then rose in order to gain altitude. The machine went into a tail spin, hitting a parked automobile before striking the ground. A valuable greyhound dog was instantly killed when its neck was broken by one of the falling wings. The above photograph shows the machine after it crashed on the farm.

PEACE MOVEMENT GAINS MOMENTUM

U. S. Societies To Launch Drive For World Economic Co-operation

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—Unity in the movement for peace "has at last been achieved on an impressive scale" in the United States, R. B. Inch, national secretary for the League of Nations Society in Canada, reported on returning from New York where he studied plans of a campaign for world economic co-operation.

Thirty-eight national organizations, united under a central staff, will launch the drive Oct. 1 with New York headquarters and 12 regional offices as bases. A national conference in Washington next spring "will bring the campaign into focus in terms of United States governmental policy."

The project is similar to one already authorized in Canada by the League of Nations Society and United States representatives have suggested the society send a delegate to the Washington conference and that the United States organization be represented at the society's next national conference, as they were when the organization met last at Hamilton.

Mr. Inch said the Foreign Policy Association, an independent research organization, will assist by publishing a text on "The Economic Causes of War," to be used as basic text. The campaign platform says "there must be positive international co-operation to make it possible for all nations to improve the standard of living of their peoples." It sets forth that positive co-operation involves improvement of labor and living standards by international agreement; access to raw materials on equal terms; freer access to markets; trading on a basis of equality; currency stabilization; and possible extension of the principle of mandates or international control of colonial areas."

Canadian efforts to enrol in the League of Nations Society all organizations interested in peace have been commended by officers of the United States conference, Mr. Inch said. The society has been recognized by the conference as the corresponding body in Canada.

Courses in vocational guidance are to be held in Moscow, Russia.

BREAKS TRADITION.

Archbishop Celebrates Communion For All Denominations.

OXFORD, Eng., July 27 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury broke a tradition of the Church of England yesterday by celebrating communion for members of all Christian denominations at the World Conference on Church, Community and State. Holy Communion was in St. Mary's Church and the primate led in a final service of thanksgiving.

The Bishop of Chichester announced a delegation would relay to Germany's embattled evangelical church leaders the proceedings of the conference "at the time most convenient for church leaders in Germany."

CORNWALL MAYOR TO MEET LAVERTY

Committee of Citizens to Try Negotiations if Conference Breaks Down Again.

CORNWALL, Ont., July 27.—(CP)—Mayor Aaron Horovitz today will meet Arthur Laverty, president of the Cornwall local of the United Textile Workers Union, and a committee of the 1,700 striking employees of Canadian Cottons in an effort to iron out difficulties which have apparently retarded negotiations to end the week-old walkout.

Laverty said "something may come" of the conference called to discuss the question whether the union president would be a member of the strikers' negotiating committee.

The company has asserted its opposition to him being a member as he is not an employee but it is willing to let the committee consult him on any question that may come up during negotiations. Strikers, however, insist that he be a member of their committee.

It was understood if today's conference fails to result in negotiations opening, a committee of local citizens will be formed to act in an intermediary capacity.

Laverty denied last night that union members of Courtauld's (Canada) Limited, rayon mill here, would walkout in sympathy with the cottons strike.

JARDINE LIKELY TO DELAY VISIT

Probably Not Come to Toronto Until Late in Summer He Says.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 27.—(AP)—Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, English clergyman who defied his ecclesiastical superiors to marry the Duke and Duchess of Windsor left for Niagara Falls yesterday.

After two lectures here Sunday in which he challenged the Bishop of Bradford to a public debate, Rev. Jardine said he might wait until later in the summer before keeping his lecture dates in Toronto.

Toronto theatres and lecture halls have refused to grant him permission to speak as scheduled on Thursday his manager, Hugh Ernst, said.

Rev. Jardine said the Bishop of Bradford "who fired the first bullet leading to the abdication of Edward," is scheduled to speak in Toronto about September 1.

"I have challenged him to a debate on the subject of whether he is a true churchman according to his prayer book, the 39 articles and the scriptures and have offered to meet him in any hall in Canada or the United States," the minister said.

Leads Anti-Fascist Brigade

This distinguished appearing Italian warrior has been fighting in Spain—but not for Mussolini. He is Major Humberto Galleanni, commander of the 12th International Brigade of the loyalist army, the brigade that was credited with saving Madrid when the capital appeared doomed. Major Galleanni lived in New York for 14 years but he was among the first Americans to volunteer for service agrinst Fascist-inclined General Franco. He organized and commanded the Garibaldi battalion composed mainly of anti-Fascist Italian volunteers and led them in a notable campaign. Now he is back in United States for a lecture tour.

LOST LAKE IS STILL UNEXPLORED

No Form Of Life Known To Exist In Frigid Subterranean Water

HILLSBORO, N.B., July 27—(CP)—An underground lake, geological phenomenon, exists at Demoiselle Creek near this village in Albert County. The entrance is a mouth-like hole at the foot of a high cliff and the outlet is a smaller hole in a vertical cliff of gypsum more than a quarter of a mile away.

Clear, icy water creates a chilly atmosphere at the lake entrance. Water and rock blend into blackness a few yards from the mouth. Size of the lake is unknown as ledges dip too low for a boat to pass and no swimmer has ever dared an attempt at exploration.

No form of marine life is known to exist in the frigid underground water. For years country folk of the district have referred to the eerie subterranean area as the home of blind frogs but with lack of anything to support this belief it is considered a myth.

The geological explanation is that limestone and gypsum are soluble in water. During the ages a trickling spring ate away the rock that occupied the space of the present huge cavern.

MALVERN, Worcestershire, July 27—(AP).—Bernard Shaw celebrated his 81st birthday Monday, his undimmed vitality giving the lie to his hint a year ago it was about time he started his own obituary.

NEEDS HER FATHER GIRL HUNTS WEST

Hitch-hikes, Rides Freight, Walks From Winnipeg to Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—A 19-year-old Winnipeg girl sat in a Y.W.C.A. hostel here today and told of her two-weeks' journey from the prairie city by foot, freight train and automobile.

Olive Peters is looking for her father. She believes he came here from Winnipeg two years ago after the death of his wife. The tall 57-year-old carpenter gave no hint of his destination but he was on the Pacific coast in 1933 and Olive believes he had returned here.

"I made up my mind I was going to find dad," Olive said today, "and I just started out. At the start I took the wrong road and had to go back five miles. Then I got a lift, and between walking and riding, I reached Regina."

The same method of transportation, with an occasional span covered by freight train, carried her across the prairies, which in some places were "like a desert—all dry and burned up," to the British Columbia town of Golden and on to Vancouver.

Letter to the Father of a 21 Year Old Son

IF YOU are a wise father, you'll be honest with your son.

You'll tell him both sides of the argument between prohibitionists and those who believe in true temperance.

If you have brought him up in the British tradition, you can be sure he will want to know both sides.

Right now he is hearing from the prohibitionist, who is loudly crying that the beverage rooms are corrupting youth and debauching public morals.

You will do your son and yourself a favor if you set him straight.

Tell him what happened when we had prohibition. Tell him about how it bred contempt for law . . . how bootleggers prospered and how racketeering and lawlessness grew.

Tell your son that people can't be made sober by law. Tell him that the way of tolerance and temperance is best.

Today, now in certain communities, men are trying to persuade us to extend local option laws, close beverage rooms.

The occasional drinker who indulges too freely . . . the few license holders who may not always adhere to the strict regulations of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, are being used as arguments against present conditions.

So tell your son the whole story. Tell him this . . . that properly conducted beverage rooms are the first defence against the bootlegger, the strongest weapon against excessive drinking.

Tell your son about true temperance — which is moderation and self-control.

● This advertisement is inserted by the Brewing Industry in the interest of a better public understanding of certain aspects of the problems of temperance and local option.

Choosing The Right Sports Clothes

For Fishing, Golf and Beach is Delightful and Profitable

Left, Heim's transparent beach coat; centre, four-pocket jacket and slacks of navy blue denim, worn with cotton cashmere hairline plaid shirt and adjustable stitched wool hat; right, white culotte.

If the girl on the beach would be very swanky she will choose Heim's long, transparent beach coat that floats out behind her as she walks along the sand.

A huge beach hat fastened under her chin will keep the sun from making her too brown — or red, or freckled — whatever she dreads most.

Maybe fishing is mademoiselle's favorite sport. Wading in deep pools and casting the gay fly to lure the wily trout is her game. Modern sports goods departments are ready to outfit her with just the correct clothes to make her feel well dressed as well as festive.

For fishing our model wears a four-pocket jacket and slacks of navy blue denim, which, by the way, are also wonderful for gardening, with a cotton cashmere hair-line plaid shirt and adjustable stitched wool hat.

If her companion is a man—and ten to one it is—he wears a four-pocket coat made of tightly-woven cotton gabardine, over a suit of preshrunk blue denim and a cotton chukker shirt. Both of the fishermen wear waders of rubber.

Clothes for Dude Ranch.

For golfing the culotte or divided skirt holds first place. And all-white, as pictured, is very smart. The belt gives a bit of contrasting color.

If you honeymoon on a dude ranch, why not wear twin outfits of blue jeans (the same as the cowboys wear), with shirts made of a rough plaid silk tussah that washes and hardly requires ironing. Top them off with a Stetson ten-gallon hat, and you will own the world.

By the way, for that dip in the briny, a suit patterned with signal flags is a "hot number." The design was being used on a pair of bathing shorts in a recent fashion show.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"To improve the golden moment of opportunity and catch the good that is within reach, is the great art of life."—Johnson.

Dear Friends:

This time I will tell you about our trip to New York City. We were within seventeen miles of it, so to be so close and not go there was out of the question. The busses run, on the hour, twenty minutes after, and twenty minutes to, just as our own busses do.

So, off three of us went, all women again, and planned to meet a fourth who was a nurse there, and who was to be our guide for the day. It took us an hour to get there, and the bus goes right on to the ferry, from which we saw the famed sky-line of New York, and it is truly impressive.

In the Hudson river the tugs were scurrying back and forth, and we saw the French liner Normandie in dock. It costs one-fifty to see over it, and takes about two hours, and was well worth seeing, like a small city in itself.

But first the bus took us to 42nd street and Times Squares, and as we were passing we saw where some poor fellow had been caught between two cars, but don't know how badly injured he was because of the crowds.

The logical place to meet our friend was in a restaurant so in we went to a place that looked very nice, put in a phone call. When asked where we were 'phoning from, great was our amusement to know it was "Diamond Jim's place."

We dined on southern style chicken with all the trimmings of fruit cocktails, etc. Then my friend came along, and off we went to see the sights. Radio City was the first place, and the cost of being guided through ranged from forty cents to two and a quarter dollars.

So we shot up express elevators, ten stories in seven seconds, and it seemed as if our stomachs stayed down while we went up. It was air-conditioned, and we saw Norman Clothier and heard them on the air, also Nellie Revel, who wrote "Straight Off the Chest," while lying in a hospital bed.

Also many others were on the air, but we could not go in for fear the noise would be heard. We were shown how the noise of frying bacon and eggs, or fish, was simulated by rubbing a bit of cellophane between the fingers.

After seeing all we could see, out we came on Broadway or Fifth Avenue, and watched to see if all the talk of well-dressed women was true or not. It's true alright, and cheek by jowl with them are fat women in the cheapest of garments.

We climbed the circular stairs of an open-air bus, and went jogging up Fifth Avenue, to Washington Park, and stayed on for the return trip. From there we went through some of the large stores, but it was too hot, and we wanted to see all we could, so out we came and by this time we were getting hungry again, so we went to one of those little places where you get really good food, and it was good.

Off we went once more, this time to the Roxy theatre, where the vaudeville was good, but the picture a washout which made us yawn too much. By the time it was over, "the Great White Way" was all lit up, and it was lovely to see. All the cafes and restaurants were waking up for the late trade, streets crowded, and we were hurrying for the return trip. New York's skyline all lit, was a scene never to be forgotten. By this time we were so utterly tired that it did not disturb us a bit when it was evident our driver had a date which he meant to be on time for, and we were whirled around curves on two wheels, and he kept his hand on the button for drivers to get out of his way. Home in record time, climb wearily into a taxi, and then to bed, glorious bed, and old Mr. Sleep deserted me. More later? Let me know if you would like it.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

We Noticed.

. . . a very natty costume yesterday on a gay young visitor in town. She was wearing a beige sharkskin suit with wide shoulders and double triangular breast pockets. A brown Ascot tie and a brown hankie peeping from one of the pockets, matched her off-the-face hat of brown felt with ribbon streamers.

. . . that black velvet berets worn in every conceivable way are popular once more.

. . . that black silk jersey for frocks is mentioned again and again and again.

GREEN ORGANZA DANCE DRESS IS STRIPED IN RED AND ORANGE

By LISBETH

BUTTERFLY sleeves and a high, empire waistline characterize the pretty summer dance dress worn by Ann Sheridan.

The material is organza striped in vivid shades of red and orange against a cream ground. The sleeves are almost elbow length and give a perky appearance to the shoulders. The decolletage is a deep V, accented at the point by a small bunch of flowers. A double band of ribbon marks the high waistline.

White Accessories

White accessories grow more important as the summer progresses. There are white gadgets for your handbag — white vanities, white enameled lipstick covers and compacts. They are not expensive, and of course go with handbags of all colors.

Costume jewelry too, is in white—plaster white being dazzling with all the colors—navy, black, dark green and brown. There are large clips, bracelets, breastpins and bead chokers. White is sometimes combined with rhinestones, too, and is very effective, as are the white and colored settings.

Straw bags are being carried with summer cottons, and come in all sorts of colors. Black and golden tan good colors to choose.

Sales Increased

According to the department of commerce, sales in furniture and household supply stores have increased 80 per cent. since 1932. Sales in these stores were 25 per cent. greater in 1936 than in 1935.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace, with white hat, gloves and shoes. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's-breath. Her attendants were Mrs. J. L. Beane of Peterborough and Miss Bernice Northey of Omemee. The former was attired in a gown of yellow georgette with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of red and yellow roses and baby's breath, while the latter wore pink georgette with pink hat, white accessories and carried a similar bouquet.

The best man was Robert Hayes of Omemee.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, when the table from which refreshments were served was centred with the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Williamson, Jr. left later for a trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. T. Osborne of Lindsay and Mr. and Mrs. G. Tinsdell of Omemee.

"In a gown of white georgette made on princess lines with long full sleeves and a long train, (designed by her bridesmaid), and carrying a bouquet of roses and lilies - of - the - valley, Evelyn May Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Harris became the bride of Francis Alfred Guest Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, in a pretty ceremony on Saturday afternoon, performed by the Rev. P. E. Powell. St. Barnabas' church was decorated with summer flowers. The wedding music was played by Philip Lovick, and during the signing of the register Ruth Hanna sang. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Audrey Field, who was gowned in a dress of yellow georgette made with a small train and short puffed sleeves. She wore a large brown picture hat and carrier a bouquet of roses and baby's breath.

"Howard Cransworth was groomsman and the ushers were Gorden Owen and Clarence Wilson.

"A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, when her mother, attired in a gown of flowered sheer georgette over satin with navy blue accessories and a corsage of orchids, received the guests, assisted by the groom's mother, who was gowned in rose lace with white accessories and a corsage of roses.

"Following a motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Toronto. Mrs. Thompson chose a navy blue georgette dress trimmed with white embroidery and white accessories for her travelling ensemble."

Among the guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Groombridge, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Groombridge, Mrs. George Groombridge and daughter, Doreen; Mrs. Bassett and Mrs. C. Gadd, all of Peterborough.

London Finds Out

Three years ago London, Ont., was sanctioned as a place for an annual race meeting. It has been going on for several days and business men say they are getting hit too hard. It is the same now as during the racing season last year and the year before. People are going to the races; they are betting their money and they cannot afford to lose it.

There was the feeling that a race meet would "put London on the map," but it has not worked that way. Men who deliver bread claim collections are off from 20 to 25 per cent. while the horses are in the city; grocers say trade is less and so do many of the general stores. Some of the merchants say "there are people betting money on the track from whom I cannot collect my account."

Others speak of the evil which is done by giving young people an opportunity to get a taste of betting, but the most audible protest comes on the ground of the way in which business is being hit. It does not take extended reasoning or argument to show the people who take their money to bet at the race track cannot have it to spend in the stores.

No Crop In 8 Years, But—

In the district of Hussar, Alberta, the farmers are just now experiencing their eighth consecutive crop failure, and of ready cash there is said to be virtually none at all.

But in the Hussar area there is a young lady of 21 years, Ruth Helen Brown, and she has been sick since April of 1936. Since then stomach nerves have apparently become paralyzed and she has lost to some extent the use of her legs. We read that seven physicians in Calgary have tried to identify the illness but have not been able to do so.

Ruth Helen Brown is going to the Mayo Brothers Clinic at Rochester, Minn., and that will cost money. The money is being put up by neighbors in a district where they have not had a crop in eight years.

Of course a story like that does not occupy much space when told in the column of a newspaper. There is no war talk in it, and it lacks the flash and chase of a bandit robbing a bank. But when it is plumbed by the measure of human qualities and by self sacrifice it is indeed a very great story. If the world were busy doing similar things it would be one happy place.

Our Largest Family

Pope Pius XI caused his blessing to be bestowed on the Masse family of Dryzdale, on the shores of Lake Huron. There are in that family Mr. and Mrs. Onezime Masse and 21 children, said to be the largest family in the Dominion. When time came to cause them all to be assembled at one place at one time some distance from home for the ceremony it looked as though transportation facilities would not be adequate, but help came from good neighbors.

Papa Masse is hoping that the fame of the family will spread in such a way that tourists will desire to come and see them and pay as well a fee. With that in view he has secured a manager who will see what can be done to divert tourist trade toward the Masse home.

It is openly admitted that it takes at times more cash to run the family than can be garnered from the 300 acres of land which the father works. It was Mama Masse who told a reporter that it takes from six to nine large loaves of bread every day, and 100 pounds of flour does the family just one week. A pig of 200 pounds will last the family just two weeks, and a pig of that size can be sold for close to $20 now.

One may says it is mercenary and wrong to hope for tourists coming to see such a family, but for mother and father who have to attend to food and clothing and all else for a family of that size the financial picture must be one where outside assistance would be welcomed. If tourists wish to pay a fee to enter the premises we dare say Mama and Papa could readily think of plenty of use for the added revenue.

Holiday Bereavements

Stanton W. Berkey of Highland Park, Mich., a young man of 22 years, decided to spend his holidays by motoring through Ontario with some friends.

Mrs. Margaret Campbell, 54, of Columbia, South Carolina, was doing the same thing, touring with friends in a car through this province.

The two cars, one from Michigan, and the other from South Carolina, met head-on in a crash eight miles from Windsor, and in the crash the young man from Michigan and the woman from South Carolina were killed. Eight others were also injured, some of them seriously.

How many of those holiday bereavements are taking place is something which we do not know, but the number must be impressively large. The total score of funeral processions which have their starting point in Ontario and their destination at some place across the line grows every day. And what a homecoming it must be for relatives who only a short time ago saw a loved one start in happiness and health for a journey through a strange land!

Negative Regulations

There have been more regulations passed regarding parking in Peterborough and the need for more regulation is self-evident. The trouble with our parking regulations is the same as that which marks a good many other efforts. It is always purely negative. People who drive cars are admittedly selfish when it comes to parking them. They want to leave them some place close so they can get them easily. They do not care if they pull up in front of another man's place of business and help to close off his entrance. So that is why we must have regulations.

We have passed the stage when regulations can all be of the "you can't park here" variety. A stranger coming through here or a person from our own district coming to the city sees these signs, and the first thing the individual will want to know is simply this—well, where can I park?

A survey of the down-town area is necessary to see if an intelligent answer can be furnished to that very reasonable question. It is not sufficient that our Council should keep adding to its list of negative instructions without exploring the larger field of trying to find a reasonable answer to the problem of the man who has good and sufficient reasons for parking but who does not know where to go.

The Same Here

One rather well-regulated citizen expressed surprise that 600 people in Sudbury had asked for permission to see the remains of Victor Syzmonski, the bandit who was shot down by officers. He also expressed disgust. He could not understand why people would want to go and see the body of a slain man.

We do not believe the people who live in Sudbury are much different from those who live in our own well-regulated community. We would not guarantee that if a similar thing happened here there would not be a great many people doing exactly what they did in Sudbury.

People may deny it, but they are curious. If they hear of an accident they will rush there; if the fire rigs go out they will follow in such numbers they make a nuisance of themselves; if there is a fight they will gather; if there is a violent death they will try to get as close to the place as possible. It makes little difference whether they live in Peterborough or Sudbury or elsewhere—they are pretty much the same.

Making A Typewriter Go

Already the publicity people are beginning to tell of contests which are going to take place at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, and we learn that every typist who amounts to a row of beans is going to be present for the championship speed contests. One man has entered who has a record of 135 correct words per minute for an hour without stopping. That we consider much too fast. If we were to go romping through a day's work at that rate this page would be filled before noon and then some person around the premises would be apt to suggest a number of other chores which might be attended to for the rest of the day.

We admit to entertaining a remote admiration for those who use all their fingers when making a typewriter shoot. As a rule such smart folk are cooped in the business office of this establishment. In the editorial department most of the people use three fingers only—one on each hand to hit the keys and another on the right hand to hit the space between the words.

People who run business colleges would scoff at such a method, and perhaps the scoffing would be well placed. But there are certain advantages in the two-finger system. On the desk in this office is a very patient and long-suffering machine. It's a regular John L. Sullivan or a Joe Louis when it comes to taking punishment. There are times when an idea comes weighted with all the tonnage of deep thought and it seems necessary to pound it out with conviction. On such a rare occasion there is full-freighted satisfaction in hitting the keys down hard and with heavy emphasis. It is something like a preacher who wants to hit the pulpit a resounding whack when he is speaking We are certain as can be that if all the fingers were making the machine go that moment of coming to grips with real things would hasten past too quickly. There would be no opportunity to simmer for a moment in a great thought and we would of necessity be too quickly launched again into dealing with lesser things.

In all there will be six typewriting contests at Toronto and some of the prizes run as high as $500, which admittedly is a fabulous amount especially in a year when financial arrangements in general have mostly gone haywire. But we don't expect to see many men from editorial offices entered. There is no three-fingered class open for competition.

Rather Hard To Believe

This seems strange enough but it is quite true. The New York Park Department arranged a portable barnyard which made a tour of the city playgrounds, making a three-day stop at each in turn.

A red barn was towed by a truck. At each stop there would be a fence erected over which the children could gaze at a real cow with its calf, and at pigs, ducks and turkeys. And the gazing was done wide-eyed.

The mooing of the cow was such a success that another expedition was started showing flowers and plants and with a lecturer to tell about them. Slum youngsters came and saw for the first time marigolds, black-eyed susans, fuchsias, forget-me-nots, petunias, roses, mint, cotton, peanut and tobacco plants.

There was also great interest in an exhibition of frogs, toads, turtles and insects.

There are thousands of children in the slum districts who had never before seen any of the things mentioned in the above list. All of which makes one conclude we have a peculiar sort of civilization which makes little use of God's great outdoors.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some unfortunate folk find it difficult to enjoy life in the hay fever season.

One farmer was telling us his binder always seemed to be all right until he started using it.

Mussolini had the wife of an Italian workman launch Italy's new superdreadnaught. Il Duce is not a bad politician, at times.

Thirteen persons were killed in highway accidents over the week-end. Most of them would be alive today if some one had not been careless.

The Montreal Gazette has apparently read Mr. Bennett out of the party but then Mr. Hepburn did that for Premier King and the latter is still very much on the job.

One hundred Americans are killed every day in their homes and if they go out their chances for sudden death are even greater. It is a situation that puts everybody on the well known spot.

New Hampshire reports that pink skunks have been seen in that state. We understand however that the color is of no particular help to folk with sensitive noses.

Ontario's liquor profits have increased by fifteen per cent. during the second three months of this year. It may be a sign of returning prosperity but many folk would prefer a better one.

Bandits held up a Hamilton drug store over the week-end. That sort of store seems to be a favorite among gunmen possibly because they can easily get the dope on a drug store.

An hour after Hull's new chief of police took office he had a $15,000 bank robbery to deal with. Some chiefs go through their whole life without having that much excitement.

So far 1937 has produced fewer births than last year and a number of European countries will probably accept that as a sign that Canada is not preparing for war.

The American guild of musical artists has become an outright trade union, under the presidency of Lawrence Tibbitt and one thing is certain that if Mr. Tibbitt calls a strike everyone will hear him.

Port Hope is now able to supply the United States with part of her radium requirements. Hitherto the chief boast of Port Hopers has been that they furnished Uncle Sam with an admiral to lead the U. S. war fleet.

BOASTING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I meet with old friends of mine, I have not seen since twenty-nine, I would impress them much; I tell them since we had the crash, that I have really earned some cash, no longer need a crutch.

¶ I talk investments for a spell, and say that my returns were swell, I've parted from my woes; I bought my niece a fancy hat, my nephew got a ball and bat, I have two suits of clothes.

¶ I like to brag about the way, that salesmen come to me today, and offer me their wares; how I just shove a cheque at them, am numbered with free spending men, nor bound by penny cares.

¶ And thus I talk and spend the time, discussing days since twenty-nine, my friends seem so impressed; they tell me I'm a brainy jay, and wish they'd learned my money way, for they have been distressed.

¶ I give advice I know is true, I try to tell them what to do, to cure their money ills; the best plan they can follow yet, is first to free themselves from debt, by paying all their bills.

¶ But as I talk some jay comes in, and he has stubble on his chin, and he is stubborn too; he's out collecting bills today, he hands me one I've got to pay —for it's long overdue.

PEOPLE are generally willing to listen to an intelligent and well-stated criticism of the present economic system. This is by Professor John Hodgdon Bradley, Professor of Geology at the University of Southern California:

By a strange combination of generosity and greed Man protects the weak in asylums and kills the strong in futile wars. By a strange combination of idealism and eroticism he seeks without finding a satisfactory system of intersexual relationships. By a strange combination of ingenuity and impotence he multiplies the basic necessities of life far beyond any possible need, only to let millions go hungry and unclothed for lack of efficient distribution.

THAT is the name of a book by Albert Fribourg and David Stein. From it we quote:

FACTS: Anna Mohr's right ear ached so badly that when the specialist advised an operation she readily assented. Before she was anesthetized, Anna Mohr belived that the specialist would operate on her right ear. Great was her astonishment when she discovered that he had actually operated on the left one.

The specialist explained that before starting the operation he had examined both ears, and found the left one in more urgent need of an operation. The patient's family physician was present at the operation, and knew of the change of plan. Everyone agreed that the operation had been successful, and skillfully performed; nevertheless the patient sued the doctor.

LAW: An unauthorized touching of another's person is an assult and battery—for which damages may be recovered.

PROBLEM: Was Anna Mohr entitled to damages because the specialist cut the left ear without bringing her out of the anesthesia and obtaining her consent?

RESULT: $14,922.50 for Anna Mohr. A patient's consent to an operation is a contract authorizing the surgeon to operate only to the extent of the consent given. Unless an emergency involving life and death is presented, the doctor is liable for an unauthorized incision. Correct diagnosis and skillful treatment is no defense. Mohr v. Williams, 95 Minn. Rep. 261.

A MODERNIST WRECK

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A few days ago I met a young lady of the usual routine church affiliations, who animated by the new spirit of human self-sufficiency went into fits of laughter at the idea that anybody should now take Jonah and the Whale and Noah's Ark seriously and should believe that the book whence they came was an inspired revelation.

"It could be so and they could have happened, parabolically or otherwise, with the object of conveying the lesson involved?" I asked.

"Oh, possibly so. Anything may happen. They could have happened but do you think God is so ridiculous as all that?"

"What you mean is that the work and methods of an Infinite God must be defined and approved by you before you will believe them."

"What's the catch in that?" she asked defiantly.

"There's no catch in it. The catch is in what you say, namely, that you by your reason must approve before you will believe—rather foolish that isn't it? Moreover it is impossible. You can not judge infinity."

"What then?"

"Unsolved and unsolvable by man—just as the fact of the universe itself. It is therefore Faith or nothing. Our reason fails us here.

CRITICAL

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Regarding the debate on parking bylaws it is high time something was done. Peterborough is years behind the times in allowing cars parked on streets over night any place in the city limits. Belleville has forbidden cars parked on paved streets in any part of the city all night long. I was given a warning as a first offender in 1932. As a traveller I note other cities don't allow all-night parking. In most cities the street cleaners get the main streets done between 5 and 8 a.m., before traffic is heavy, this gets the job done quicker, avoids danger. Why are some merchants allowed to park cars all day long on main streets? If they wanted business at all said merchants would make room for customers cars instead of blocking business. We simply drive to any other store. It is high time the council quit listening to a few narrow minded merchants and made Charlotte and George streets a through street with no left hand turn at any time other places smaller than Peterborough have it, and it speeds up traffic, avoids danger to all.

Peterborough grocery stores stay open till almost Sunday morning when all clerks and owners should be home and in bed after a hard day's work; from 8 to 10 is certainly long enough.

Oshawa has a bylaw where all stores must lock doors at 10 p.m. Saturday night with no delivery after 6 p.m., and they get along just the same as Peterborough merchants. Why don't the Lords Day Alliance People get after this Sunday morning selling after 12 p.m. Saturday night. Our police should check this law breaking.

Another very foolish bylaw is the eating house license of $2 for selling pop, etc. This allows a store to stay open all night and he sells anything he likes, even though the bylaw states merchants must close at 7 p.m. on week days, yet grocery stores are open all over the city after seven.

In closing, congratulations to the strikers and all those who have assisted them. Poor-pay shops in Canada must go. Peterborough has several. This to my mind is the starting of the clean-up. Stick together strikers, win the battle just the same as we did in 1914-1918. Living costs are much higher, hotels state food costs are up 33 per cent. working men must get more money and better working conditions.

Yours Truly,
COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER.
Peterborough, July 26.

A Shortage of Farm Managers

(From the Financial Post.)

H. R. HARE, M.A., B.S.A., of the Agricultural Economics Branch, Ottawa, speaking at the Agricultural Representative Conference the other day, pointed out that in Canada, statistics show, there is ten times greater demand for good farm managers than for industrial managers.

There is an average of 20 to 30 workers employed in each of Eastern Canada's industrial plants for each urban industrial manager. That is, industry requires one manager out of each 20 to 30 persons employed. Ontario has 190,000 farms operated by as many managers. Each manager directs the work of from 2 to 3 persons only. In agriculture, we have only 2 or three workers from which to choose a farm manager. The comparison indicates that there is ten times greater demand for farm managers than for industrial managers. It is Mr. Hare's conviction that the successful operation of a farm requires just as great management skill as is needed in industry. Training in farm management is vitally important.

He could not but pay tribute to farmers who have risked all in taking their families to farms and wagering that they could maintain themselves and their families from the soil. Many have succeeded in spite of handicaps, but management training would have greatly reduced the apprenticeship period, improved the income of those carrying on and avoided many failures.

The basis of farm management lies in accounting.

Farm account books have been available to farmers for years but have been used scantily. Farm accounting is more than the recording of details to learn the status of the business. This is very useful but the record of this year's business can readily form the basis of an improved farm business for the coming year.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

(Sarnia Observer)

THERE is not much likelihood that there will be legislative prohibitions against those municipalities that favor daylight-saving time in summer, even if an effort is being made, sponsored by the Peterborough County Council, to get the government to declare illegal the setting forward of clocks.

People who live in urban communities want an extra hour for recreation when they have finished the day's work in the shop, the factory or the office. The experiments along this line during the last quarter of a century have proved agreeably and the majority in the cities are for it.

On the other hand the diversity of time in different sections of the country is decidedly a disadvantage. It is said that the majority of farmers are opposed to the daylight-saving plan, though why they should be is somewhat obscure. In most cases the day on the farm starts with the departure of darkness and ends when it becomes too dark to work. It happens occasionally that the farmer comes to town at four o'clock p.m., farm time, and finds that the store is at five o'clock, with the merchant out at golf or some other favorite time-killer. This sort of gets the farmer's goat for he wanted groceries, meat and repairs for the binder. He had forgotten that the town was on daylight-saving time.

FINDS THEM SCARCE

(Galt Reporter)

MISS Georgina Lee, a plump and fairly-good-looking colored girl, of Ketchikan, Alaska, who started out on a world tour to cure her infelicity complex and capture a tall, thin husband in the process, is back to New York without having accomplished either purpose though she spent $8,000. She admits she had an enjoyable time but she is somewhat disappointed with the applicants for the job of husband. Though this girl is a graduate of Wilberforce College, the answers to her advertisement were unsatisfactory. Those who wanted to marry her either too young or too old. One was a preacher 55, another a boy of 21.

It is evident that the supply of eligible men is limited. The advertisement specified a man about 42 years of age, tall and thin, one with at least half the experience of the advertiser, "not a real dumb man" and "some money, not much."

ADVERTISING WHEAT

(Calgary Herald)

NOW British consumers are being told of the advantages of the use of Canadian wheat in their bread; of life on the Western Canada farms where wheat is the principal commodity produced; of the elaborate wheat handling and freighting system which has been set up on the prairie in order that the cereal may be handled and transported cheaply and quickly. They are also being impressed with the value to Britain in having a great wheat-producing country like Canada able and ready to supply vast quantities of the required bread grain during perilous times as when war breaks out. The advertising plan appears to have already justified itself and is certain to be continued.

"It gets a bit exciting at times," he declared, "but it's just a job."

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC.

(St. Catharines Standard)

IN determining to oppose the American Newspaper Guild and its C.I.O. affiliation, publishers and executives of American papers, including the American Newspaper Publication, which has a number of the larger Canadian newspaper in its membership, is protecting the public.

Though reporters work for private employers, they are, in fact, servants of the public on whose integrity as news gatherers democracy is utterly dependent. The reporter's opportunity, and to much the same degree that of every news worker, to load the dice of public opinion is not generally appreciated, but that it is great and constant no one will question who has any acquaintance with his function. Let him answer for his bread to a union, not as a involuntary member, and the end of fair play for popular thought and sentiment is at hand.

BACK TO THE LAND.

(Niagara Falls Review)

THERE is fairly general recognition that the scheme of settling farmers and families with no farming experience on lands in Northern Ontario has not worked out well and there is much more to be said in favor of the placing of veterans on farms in Essex County. Small plots, ten acres in size, would be cut out of 200 acre farms upon which twenty veterans and their families would be given a plot apiece. Each family would be given $1,800 with which to erect buildings, buy tools and livestock and some help would be given until they are established. That certainly is better than the old idea of settling people on unsuitable lands in the north far from markets and possibilities for social intercourse. In many parts of old Ontario there are abandoned or semi-abandoned farms, close to market which would be far better for such an experiment.

LABOR LAST

(San Francisco Argonaut)

IT may be great sport for John L. Lewis to demonstrate his strength as a labor leader. He has the will to power to a marked degree, and nobody will deny that, in seeking his own ends, he manifests a great deal of ability.

But is he really accomplishing anything for labor? Is he not indeed doing much to harm labor? There is of course nothing wrong in a man's trying to improve his economic condition, nor is there anything wrong in the effort of a body of men to improve theirs. But is it not a fact that labor leaders only too often consider themselves first and labor last in their aims?

Not one of these labor leaders does any manual or clerkly labor. They work for their own ends, and by making pawns of those who do the hard work of the world, they succeed in living on the fat of the land.

FISH AND QUINTS

(Kitchener Record)

ALMOST every province or community has its feature attraction these days, good for so many tourists a year. Occasionally, however, a locality has two big drawing cards, and their competition is likely to develop some amusing situations.

D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of game and fisheries, made a statement recently to the effect that more tourists invaded Ontario in the good fishing seasons of 1934-35 than in any comparable period since the birth of the five famous sisters.

In view of the world interest in the quints, many Ontario residents may consider this statement nothing less than open heresy. Nevertheless, it seems that Mr. Taylor would be certain of a share of victory if there is any argument. For, with the quints steadily gaining in popularity, this province is going to need a good man to keep its fishing properly propagated. And from the start he has made, Mr. Taylor appears to be the right man for the job.

jump. They chose to stay on the barge rather than jump into the water and risk being rescued by the coast guardsmen.

The barge, owned by John Harrison and Co. of Owen Sound, was being examined to-day to determine the extent of the damage.

Johnson said to-day: "It was still pretty risky business with the life boat bobbing alongside the barge, but five of us jumped safely into the boat before it was driven away from the side. Then McGregor and Huston had to choose between staying on barge and jumping into the water and they stuck with the barge.

"The wind and cold mist made things pretty unpleasant riding in that life boat the rest of the night, but we came through it all right. At daybreak the coast guardsmen helped get a line from the tug to the barge and we came on in."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Higher wheat prices in United States markets and export sales of Canadian wheat estimated at 300,000 bushels led to late firmness in prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Wheat closed 1¼ cents lower to ¼ cent higher, as $1.37⅞, October $1.31⅝ to ⅛, and December $1.28 to $1.28¼.

Prices fluctuated irregularly in the moderately active session in which wheat climbed to levels around the previous close after showing maximum loss of three cents in July and two cents in October and December.

Strength of Liverpool wheat quotations led to early two-cent gains, but weakness followed due to the overflow of yesterday's liquidation operations and adverse tidermarket spreading between Chicago and Winnipeg interests.

Yesterday's Quotations.

Loyalists Capture German Tank Near Madrid

While German arms and amunition have helped Spanish rebels carry on their fight against the loyalist government, the German tank shown in this photograph failed to bring success to the insurgents commanding it. The tank was captured in the Casa del Campo section of the Madrid front where loyalist and insurgent forces are locked in the greatest battle of the war. Government forces have been driving deep into rebel territory following the 10-mile salient which they established several weeks ago.

CLAIM PROGRESS BUT NO AGREEMENT HAS BEEN REACHED

released for publication by either side in the negotiations and no definite indication of the trend of the debate was available. Filing out of the Bonner-Worth offices after the first meeting in the afternoon, members of the bargaining committee appeared in good spirits and one reported he believed a settlement would be reached after a few more hours of discussion.

Both sides reported "progress" after the evening meeting had been adjourned. Chairman Fine stated: "Progress has been made on all points under discussion." Asked if that meant that the company has offered wage concessions, Fine withdrew the word "all" from his statement.

While the strikers were led by their lawyer Cohen, Barrett and his company officials had R. L. Kilfoch, prominent Canadian corporation counsel, in attendance for their guidance at the meetings.

Since all of about twenty-five demands of strikers other than those concerning wage increases and holidays with pay were disposed of at the previous negotiations which fell through 10 days ago, it is believed wages and piece rates constitute the entire subject of present negotiation discussions. Some of the strikers who waited in the picket group outside the Bonner-Worth offices in last night's chill breezes took the length of the negotiation sittings to mean that the situation held hope. Others held the opinion negotiations would again break down in dead lock.

GOUGH-CALTHORPE ADMIRAL PASSES

Commanded Mediterranean Fleet From 1917 to End of War.

RYDE, Isle of Wight, July 27 (CP)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Somerset Gough-Calthorpe, 72, retired, died today at his residence at Woodlands Vale, near here.

He leaves a widow, Effie, daughter of the late Hon. Robert Dunsmuir, of Craig-Darroch, Victoria, B.C., whom he married in 1900.

He was first and principal naval aide-de-camp to King George V in 1924 and the following year was gazetted an admiral of the fleet. He retired in 1930.

Brother Joins Jailed Pastor Niemoeller

BERLIN, July 27.—(AP). — The fiery leader of the Protestant Confessional Church, Rev. Martin Niemoeller, was joined in jail today by his younger brother, Rev. Wilhelm Niemoeller, because he opposed Nazi church policy.

The arrest was made secretly last night, a trustworthy source disclosed, after the younger man delivered three sermons Sunday in his brother's Dahlem parish.

Throngs crowded into the three services and other hundreds were turned away from the church doors.

He read a message from the Confessional Church leader in jail, urging his followers not to believe stories that other pastors had fled fearing arrest, and prayed publicly for the success of the Oxford World Church conference which the Nazis consider unfriendly.

CANADA'S CATTLE MARKET ON VERGE OF ANOTHER BOOM

or through agents, they are buying western cattle in July—last year heaviest purchases were in August—to get an early start.

The Dominion Livestock branch here reported July shipments "unusually large" and added that the heaviest movement was expected in the period from August to November. Three-year-old steers and heifers, or younger and cows and calves qualify under the government's plan.

Higher prices and prospects of a ready sale to the United States are incentives to Ontario dealers who find choice grade steers marked at $9 to $9.25 compared with around $6.75 a year ago.

Cattle moving to Ontario will not be marketable until fall, but livestock men are satisfied there will be no slackening in demand.

BOOMING IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, July 27 (CP)—Unusual livestock shipments to eastern Canada for this time of the year were reported by the Dominion livestock branch here today.

Cattle shipments in the last four weeks were approximately 23,750 heads as compared to a small number in July, 1936. More veal calves moved east last week than during the first 26 weeks of 1936, 954 and 650 for the respective periods.

Cattle prices were higher while calves and select bacon hog values were about the same. Choice grade steers last week sold for $8.50 a hundredweight against only $5.50 in the same week of 1936. Calves sold for $8 a hundredweight while select bacon hogs brought around $9.50.

Comparative figures for shipments to eastern Canada for the 28 weeks ending July 16, with last year's figures in brackets, follows:

Cattle 47,860 (30,903); calves 3,670 (650); and hogs 34,431 (26,467).

'PASTEURIZED' BAN SHELVED BY HOUSE

Scottish Member Claims Term Misleading—Would Force True Desoription.

LONDON, July 27 (CP Cable).—A laughing House of Commons this afternoon declined to receive a private bill to prohibit the use of the word "pasteurized" in connection with the sale of milk.

F. A. Macquisten, Conservative, presented the bill. Its object was not to prohibit pasteurization itself but to compel the use of "truly descriptive designations in connection with the sale of any milk heated above a certain temperature."

In a speech delivered in broad Scottish—he is the member for Argyle—Macquisten told the House how misleading, in his view, the term pasteurization was. There were some who thought of pasteurization as leading same way down green pastures. As an advertizing term, with enormous financial interests in it, it was used to make the buyer believe he was getting something more than milk which had been half-boiled and allowed to cool again.

William Leonard, Labor, challenged the view that pasteurized milk was only boiled milk.

"Half boiled," interrupted Macquisten, the House laughing again.

Leonard cited a Toronto experience as illustrating occurrence of bovine tuberculosis among children when raw milk was used and its absence when the milk was pasteurized.

A division was called on whether leave should be given to introduce the bill. But support for the bill was insufficient. The division was dropped. The bill, therefore, was no introduced.

VIVIAN BURNETT DIES.

Played Original of Little Lord Fauntleroy.

PLANDOME, N.Y., July 27—(CP)—Vivian Burnett, 66, original of the Little Lord Fauntleroy portrayed by his mother, the late Frances Hodgson Burnett in her juvenile classic, died Sunday on Island Sound.

Burnett, who was cruising on the Sound in his yawl, had just finished supervising rescue of three persons from an overturned sailboat when he collapsed and died.

Born in Paris, Burnett was graduated from Harvard in 1895 and later entered newspaper and magazine work.

WILDCAT STRIKES STIR G.M.C. PARLEY WITH AUTO UNION

Corporation Demands U.A.W. A. End Disturbance Before New Agreement Discussed.

CONTRACT UP AUG. 11.

DETROIT, July 27—(AP)—General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America prepared to confer to-day on "wildcat" strikes before taking up the question of revising the contract which ended last winter's long and costly labor controversy. The contract expires August 11. The union has requested revision.

In an exchange of letters between the two parties last month the union gave notice of its current demand. The correspondence was not made public. The corporation, however, has insisted that no new agreement can be reached until satisfactory assurances are given by the union that it will prevent interruptions in production and unauthorized strikes.

The position of the corporation was stated formally by President W. S. Knudsen on the eve of the conference. He said:

Start Talks Tuesday

"General Motors officials will enter into negotiations with the United Automobile Workers as represented by Mr. Homer Martin, Tuesday, for the purpose of agreeing upon a satisfactory clause outlawing wildcat strikes, in line with the corporation's letter of June 23, and specifying the proper disciplining of instigators.

"As soon as satisfactory clause has been agreed upon, the demand outlined in the union's letter of June 19 will be taken up."

Earlier Martin, union president, said, "It was determined that negotiations on the whole agreement between the corporation and the union will begin Tuesday with first consideration to be given to the clause or clauses necessary to eliminate unauthorized strikes and stoppages of work."

Martin said he anticipated no difficulty in working out a new agreement.

HUNT 3 FLIERS IN WILDS OF B.C.

Seen Dropping in Parachute From Apparently Burning Plane.

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C., July 27 (C.P.). — Police and volunteer searchers returned to Williams Lake Monday to report they could find no trace of two airmen reported to have descended by parachute near this Fraser River town yesterday.

Provincial Police led a search party into the region between here and Dog Creek, about 18 miles south, after Joe Place, a rancher at Dog Creek, said he and his two daughters had seen the airmen dropping from the skies near there.

Place's report followed others from Canoe Creek that a plane had been flying slowly over that point. It had appeared to be attempting a landing, but had continued north. One report said the plane apparently was on fire showing "red under the tail and wings."

At Alkali Lake, in the same region, the unidentified plane was reported sighted. Williams Lake is 200 miles north of Vancouver.

FORGET FRICTION IS WOODSWORTH'S DEMAND ON C. C. F.

Sees Showdown Coming on Interest Payments—New Crisis Ahead.

INSECURITY STILL HERE.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—(CP)—Recognizing lack of unity born in petty differences, J. S. Woodworth, national chairman, today called upon the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation to close its ranks and march forward for effective political action to achieve co-operative economy for Canada.

Addressing the opening session of the fifth annual convention of the federation, the veteran members of parliament for Winnipeg North Center cited financial crises facing governments, warned against reckless exploitation of natural resources and hurled the epithet "opportunist rats" at those who joined the Federation for convenience.

Declaring sooner or later a showdown must come on interest payments, Mr. Woodsworth said the greater part of the public debt could never be paid and he said the demands on governments to cut costs must not be permitted to curtail social services so urgently needed.

He termed the drought situation in Saskatchewan a national calamity and a Dominion responsibility warranting rehabilitation on a large scale. It might be necessary to move families out of the drought area but those families should not be permitted to suffer, he said.

Clear Empire Policy Needed.

On the question of war he cited resolutions passed at the 1936 convention in Toronto urging such action as would enable Canada to be free to be neutral. "In view of the imperial conference which has been conducted with a large measure of secrecy, it becomes more necessary than ever to outline clearly our policy with regard to the Empire, to the United States and the world neighborhood," he said.

Mr. Woodsworth noted "A lift in the depression—at least sporadically." This was due, he contended, to war preparations. "There still may lie ahead a still deeper crisis," he warned. "In any case, unemployment, debt and insecurity are still with us."

CLAIMS NEW GAS DESTROYS MASKS

Young Iowan Student Discovers Combination From Waste of Copper, Zinc Smelters.

AMES, Iowa, July 27—(AP)—J. Leon Prenn, 22-year-old chemistry student at Iowa State College, believes he has perfected a "poison gas" which destroys gas masks as efficiently as it kills human beings.

Prenn holds a commission as second lieutenant in the United States army ordnance department. He said the gas can be manufactured cheaply from the waste products of copper and zinc smelters, oil refineries and common salt.

Prenn said the gas was a combination of mustard gas and phosgene, two lethal weapons of the Great War, plus an unnamed ingredient which removes the soda-lime element used in all present day gas masks.

The soda lime, he said, neutralizes the acidity of gases drawn into gas masks before they are filtered through a carbon layer to remove the poison. Without the soda lime in the mask, Prenn said the poison gas would reach the lungs more quickly, causing death.

Prenn said his experiment was started to find a use for the millions of tons of waste sulphur dioxide gas cast into the air by Copper and zinc smelters.

Army Looking Into It.

WASHINGTON, July 27—(AP)—The United States Army expressed willingness yesterday to give "serious consideration" to a poison gas on which J. Leon Prenn, chemistry student at Iowa State College, has been working.

PUPILS CONCLUDE VACATION SCHOOL LAKEFIELD CHURCH

Program of Music, Recitations and Model Lessons Feature of Event.

BISHOP SPEAKS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 27.—Prize-giving and a program of music, recitations and model lessons prepared and delivered by the pupils, marked the closing exercises, held here on Saturday, July 24, of the Summer Vacation School of Catechetics, which has been in session at St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, since July 6. His Excellency the Most Reverend Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D., attended the closing exercises held on Saturday in the senior classroom, which was filled to capacity by other members of the clergy, parents and pupils.

Father Garvey occupied the chair, and in a brief introduction welcomed His Excellency the Bishop, who had so graciously consented to be present. He said he wished to thank His Excellency for the very great kindness and encouragement shown towards the school. In conclusion, he desired to thank the three teachers for their patient perseverance during the three weeks the school had lasted. He said it was necessary only to look about the room to see the results achieved. Two large tables were covered with the project books made by the pupils, and the walls were tastefully decorated with drawings illustrative of events of both the Old and New Testaments.

Entertaining Program

Father Garvey then proceeded with the program:

Opening hymn, "Mother, Dearest," Junior Room; Lesson on the chart, "Christ Multiplies the Loaves and Fishes," by Stafford Hill; Recitation, "Our Teacher Says," by Betty Hill and Jim Sheehan; Model lesson, "The Child Jesus," conducted by Miss V. Johnson; Hymn, "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy," by the Senior Class; Dramatization of the "Annunciation," by Peter Elmsley and Kathleen Coughlin; Recitation, "Jesus of Nazareth," by Billie Delledonne; Lesson, "Christ Cures the Sick," by Clair Johnson.

The chairman now requested His Excellency the Most Reverend Denis O'Connor to address the audience, which he was very pleased to do.

He told how he had visited Lakefield several weeks before and found Fathers Garvey and Maiane following the avocation of St. Joseph, as they removed the old plaster and replaced it with wallboard ,to produce the fresh, bright and cheery room now forming the Senior classroom. "I don't think," he said, "St. Joseph was always as well dressed, as we usually see him represented, and so, neither were Father Garvey and his assistant."

Continuing, he noted the great pleasure it gave him to be present, to see the results of this work which is so badly needed to-day, by the world, faced as it is, he said, with such troubious auguries of things yet to come.

For the future, he wished the school greater successes, and hoped that its example would be copied far and wide.

Theresa McFadden thanked His Excellency on behalf of the pupils for coming, and requested him not to leave without imparting his blessing.

Present Prizes

The prizes for attendance, punctuality piety and work were then distributed by His Excellency:

Conduct—Senior, P. Elmsley; Junior, Bobby Delledonne. Piety—Senior, J. McManus; Junior, J. Sabatino. Attendance—Clair Johnson; Theresa McFadden. Best Student—Stafford Hill, Betty Hill. Art—Senior, Jim Sheehan; Junior, Lettie Wannamaker. Best Project Book on the Mass.—Carl. Hill; Theresa McFadden. Best Project Book on The Creed.—K. Coughlin; B. Delledonne. Best Project Book on the Life of Christ.—Jack Sheehan, B. McFadden, J. McManus. Punctuality—Juniors, Barrie Sabatino; Ray Arthurs. Latin—Pat. Spencer. Greek—Francis Arthurs.

The chairman then called upon the Very Reverend Dean O'Sullivan to address a few words.

"The thing that has struck me most forcibly," he said, "has been the idea of putting the pupil on the transmitting end of the educational scheme. Usually the pupil is on the receiving end, and the reception is not always as good as expected. To-day," he concluded, "the defence of religion is needed more than ever,—particularly since our universities have become so irreligious."

Rev. Father Corkery, Chancellor of the Diocese, expressed his pleasure at having the opportunity to attend, and wished the school every success in the future.

Miss V. Johnson, and Miss J. White of Lakefield; and Mr. W. Pluard of St. Peter's Seminary, London, who had had charge of the school, were then each presented with a mysteriously wrapped package from the pupils and the program was brought to a close with a hymn.

FENELLA

The Young People's Society of Fenella United Church had charge of the morning service on Sunday, July 25. The guest speaker was Mr. Orval Kelly, Warkworth, president of the Bay of Quinte Young People's Society. Mrs. Frank George welcomed the guest speaker, Miss Donna Lonsberry read the scripture lesson and Mr. Wilbert Macklin led in prayer. A duet was sung by Miss Donna Tailing and Mrs. Frank Down. Marvel Lonsberry and Harold Macklin took up the collection. The subject of Mr. Kelly's address was "Youth."

Car Plunges Into Ditch Near Tweed in Effort to Miss Auto Ahead.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 27. — Bernard Wright, 12, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Edmond Langevin, 18, of Hungerford township, were seriously injured on Saturday night, two miles east of Tweed on the Bogart road, and admitted to Belleville General Hospital. William Masterson, 20, of Hungerford township, driver of another car said to be involved in the accident was arrested by Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed shortly afterwards on a charge of criminal negligence. He appeared before Justice of the Peace, Charles H. Kerr, and was remanded without plea for trial.

The Wright lad suffered a dislocated hip, extensive lacerations of the neck, a puncture wound in the left breast and a possible neck and left shoulder fracture. He was attended by Dr. M. G. Dales of Tweed, being given first aid at the scene and then rushed to Belleville Hospital. In that institution he was attended by Dr. J. J. Robertson, who stated on Monday that his condition was fair. Edmond Langevin, 18, sustained a concussion and his condition is reported good. Ernest Wright, 16, driver of the car and Raymond Langevin suffered slight bruises, but not sufficient to cause their admittance to hospital. Masterson was not injured and his car was not damaged, while the Wright car was a complete wreck.

Chief Constable Hayes stated that Masterson was alone in his car, was driving ahead of the Wright car on the Bogart road and started a left turn into an old laneway. The Wright car in going off the end of a large culvert pancaked so hard that it collapsed.

Mr. Henry K. Denyes had a narrow escape from serious injury on Saturday when the team he was driving on a horserake took fright and bolted. Mr. Denyes pulled them into a nearby fence. The impact threw him several feet, where he landed upon some sharp object which left a bad puncture of his left arm and badly bruised right hip. He received a general shaking up, but expects to be around again in a few days.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. M. BAKER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 27.—The funeral of Amy Roberts, beloved wife of Malcolm J. Baker was held on Thursday afternoon, July 22 from Trinity United Church.

The church was filled to capacity with people from the entire village and surrounding country who gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to one who in life had been a friend. The full choir in their surplices were present to show respect to one who had been a member. Only a few weeks ago the lady members had gathered at her bedside and sang her favorite hymns on her birthday. The members of Trinity United Church mourn the passing of one who had been devoted to her church since she came to the village 25 years ago. For 23 years she was treasurer of the Women's Association. Although her friends feel the loss of her passing they were pleased when she had been called to higher service and relieved of her pain, for indeed she was a great sufferer.

Her pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell was assisted by the Rev. H. J. Bell of Blackstock, a former pastor of Trinity United Church, who read the scripture from II Corinthians 5th chapter and also spoke feelingly of the deceased. Rev. F. W. Newell chose as the subject of his very able discourse, the 2nd Beatitude "Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted," which was a message of hope and comfort for the bereaved.

The funeral cortege was followed by a large number of friends to the Trent Valley Cemetery where interment took place.

DOROTHY HENSON TO FILL VACANCY

Application as Public School Teacher Accepted By Board.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 27.—The application of Miss Dorothy Henson to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss May Hubble of the Public School teaching staff was accepted at the meeting of the Board held in the council chambers of the public library on Monday night. Although four other applications for the position were read there was only one other than that of Miss Henson which had the required qualification to teach music. The board also received and accepted the resignation of Miss Enid Richardson also of the public school staff and instructed the secretary to advertise for a teacher with the necessary qualifications to fill the vacancy.

The Internal Committee reported that since information regarding the necessary equipment for the manual training and domestic science rooms was not yet available the matter should be deferred to the next regular meeting.

James Massey, caretaker of the high school addressed the board, requesting that his salary be placed at its former amount. On motion of F. C. Bonnycastle who stated that the internal committee had made an inspection of the school which was found to be in excellent condition due to the fine work of Mr. Massey who he felt was entitled to have his salary increased to $1400. Mr. Bonnycastle's motion was seconded by George S. Free.

With reference to the request of certain members of the staff of the high school that a revision of salary be instituted. Dr. H. O. Richardson reminded the board that no provisions for any increases had been made in its requisitions to the council and the board would certainly "be in the hole at the end of the year if such requests were granted."

Following the report of Mr. Bonnycastle that the repairs to the public school had been completed and were well within the estimates, the accounts were passed and the board adjourned.

NORTH WANTS LOCAL GOODS GORDON FINDS

Products of Peterborough Factories Are in Great Demand There.

SECTION IS BOOMING.

Vast Nickel Deposits May Reach Value of $200,000,000.

Returning from a couple of weeks holidays at the head of the Lakes, the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., stated that Port Arthur and the mining areas of Ontario were booming. On Friday last, W. F. Langworthy, K.C., paid over to Cross Brothers, who owned a nickel deposit, $250,000.00 and registered the deed to the International Nickel Company of the Cross Brothers' property.

According to Mr. Gordon, Mr. Langworthy reported to him that there was $50,000,000.00 of nickel available, which the diamond drilling of the International Nickel Company's engineers show was present and the International Engineer in charge of the diamond drilling crews has a definite belief that the nickel deposits will run into $200,000,000.00. This is in addition to the deposit that the International Nickel has at Sudbury.

Every train, according to Mr. Gordon, brings in the miners carrying their dunnage bags and tools and going to Long Lac, Little Long Lac and into the areas being developed further East.

Bowlers Remember Peterborough

The South African bowlers were aboard the Athabaska. Mr. Gordon stated and he was with them from Port McNicholl to Fort William. They had only been beaten in two places and Peterborough was one of them, but some of them explained that a few of the South African team had been up late the night before and if it had not been for them, Chief Gimblett and J. T. Braund and the rest of them would not have succeeded so well at Peterborough. However, they remember Peterborough Bowling Club as one of the most friendly they had met on the entire trip.

Mr. Evan Evans, the newspaper reporter on the trip, says the Quaker Oats products are used just as much in South Africa and Johannesburg as they are in Peterborough.

Port Arthur and Fort William, according to Mr. Gordon, can sell most of the whole output in watches of the Westclox, because Mr. Wells of Wells and Emmerson told at Port Arthur, that every miner and worker in the Pulp and Paper Mills, always buys a Westclox watch and at that time the company did not have one in stock and were trying to get them in Peterborough.

C.G.E. Goods Stand High

The Canadian General Electric products stand high in the Port Arthur district and all through the mining areas so Mr. Gordon was told by Mr. Langworthy, the solicitor for the International Nickel Company and Nashua Paper products are distributed through the Sault and Port Arthur and all through that part of the country.

Travelling around through the various cities of New Ontario, Mr. Gordon stated that Peterborough apparently was counted on as one of the great industrial centres of Canada and the manufacturing concerns stood very high in reputation all through the districts.

The Johnson Motors are used on the rivers and lakes in the mining areas as a means of transportation and around Port Arthur and the Sault, Canadian Johnson outboard motors are employed apparently all through the bays and lakes.

At Port Arthur, the manager and editor of the daily paper was inquiring about Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Muir and the late Perry Giffen. Both of these gentlemen considered Peterborough as one of the best known industrial centres in Canada.

According to Mr. Gordon, no one needs to leave Canada to have a first-class holiday and one of the best is the Great Lakes trip and a holiday around Port Arthur and Fort William, with an occasional trip down the Lake or across to Duluth.

REBEL CASUALTIES BELIEVED 25,000 IN LAST SIX DAYS

Gen. Miaja Rushes in Reinforcements as Loyalist Line Begins to Crumble.

MADRID THE PRIZE.

MADRID, July 27.—(AP)—Powerful contingents of reinforcements moved into the government's western front salient today to bulwark Gen. Jose Miaja's sagging line.

Two days of concerted insurgent thrusts at Villanueva de la Canada, nerve centre of the government's sector, forced Miaja to bring up heavy reserves for what may be the final answer to the question:

Who shall have Madrid—the government forces that have held out against siege for nearly nine months or the insurgent army at her gates?

The determination of the year-old civil war, in the opinion of many military observers, hung by Madrid's fate.

All government positions along the 30-mile looping front which Miaja had driven into the insurgent besiegers' rearguard territory nearly three weeks ago were rocked by combined bombing and shelling.

But only at the north of Brunete, demolished tip of the salient, had "Millicianos" been hammered back.

After the fall of Brunete Saturday, the government troops had fallen back to positions in a wood not far from the shattered town.

The government set insurgent casualties of the last six days at 25,000 and admitted its own losses were heavy.

It was estimated 200,000 men, divided about evenly between insurgents and the government, were involved in the attack and counter-attack.

One of the largest air battles of the war was fought last night at Villanueva de la Canada. Forty insurgent bombing planes were routed in a clash with a squadron of government pursuit ships, the government reported.

HOPE TO SAVE SIGHT OF EYE BY OPERATION

Clare Scollard, Motor Accident Victim, is Brought to Peterboro.

BONE IS REMOVED.

Delicate Surgery Relieves Pressure Caused By Fracture of Skull.

Seriously injured in a motor accident at Reaboro ten days ago, Clare Scollard, son of W. Y. Scollard, was removed from the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, to St. Joseph's Hospital at the week-end and was operated on by Dr. J. M. O'Brien on Monday. An area of the frontal bone of Mr. Scollard's forehead was fractured and driven against the brain causing pressure symptoms and extensive hemmorhage.

In the delicate operation Dr. O'Brien removed a piece of the bone about 2½ inches by 3½ inches in dimensions. There were also two other fractures into the socket of the left eye causing blindness of that eye and hemmorhage behind it. This piece of bone was elevated to relieve the pressure on the main optic nerve in the hope that the sight of the eye will be saved. In a year's time it is expected that a silver plate will have to be inserted in the forehead as projection in the place where the fractured forehead bone was cut out.

Mr. Scollard's condition was reported quite favorable today. His father expressed appreciation of the attention his son had received from Dr. Logan and the Ross Memorial hospital staff.

G. F. Leith, driver of the car, was confined to the Lindsay hospital for a week and returning Saturday went on to his home in Lucknow.

DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE ENLARGED

Case Involving Aggravated Assault Also Left For Future Hearing.

"Are you satisfied to have this dealt with as a summary conviction matter," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., asked Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., this morning with reference to a drunk-driving charge with which he was dealing.

Expressing the belief such charges should be by indictment because, "these offences are getting to be a serious matter," Mr. Kerr decided to treat the charge as a summary conviction matter.

The accused R. H. Ferguson, 543 Park street, N., charged with being intoxicated while in control of a motor vehicle on George street did not plead. Through his counsel A. L. Elliott he obtained an adjournment of the hearing until Thursday morning.

Edward Jones, 30, of Nassau charged with an aggravated assault on his wife Mrs. Ida Jones entered a plea of not guilty. On application of the Crown he was remanded bail being set in the sum of $1,000.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A WIDE CIRCULATION.

John Williamson of Ohio, a tourist visitor to the Kawarthas, says The Examiner must have a very wide circulation for it is found in the most unexpected places.

He relates he was fishing in Upper Stoney Lake the other day when his hook snagged something on the bottom. At first he thought it was an old boot but gentle tugging brought to the surface a folded copy of The Examiner a trifle moist but still readable—C.P.K.

LOOKS LIKE SUICIDE.

This is a report of a drowning tragedy.

Mrs. N. Gilmour, 308 Aylmer street, had prepared a tub of scalding hot water and set it beside an open window yesterday, possibly in readiness for the traditional Monday morning wash. A sparrow flew in the window and fell into the steaming water in the tub. All was over for the little creature in a very brief instant.

Was it accidental death or suicide? No inquest is being held.—C.P.K.

Nazi Sub Causes Excitement

Excitement was caused in England upon report of a German submarine in Portland Sound off Portland Bill, England. According to one report the sub spent two days beneath the waters of the English channel prior to being spotted by the British destroyer Wolfhound, bringing it to the top by dropping detonator bombs. But the admiralty later said a German sub merely happened to pass as the destroyer dropped a practice charge.

HANDICAP PIN GAME.

Pin game players emptied the pot in a main street store Saturday and on Monday from various reports the game was emptying the players. After taking it for the last nickle at the weekend, a hurryup call was sent out for the owner to fill it up again. The gang suspects that the owner in the meantime ran in four or five dead balls, throwing them off their stride, and taking the icing off the "good thing." At any rate, they say, as a game of skill it is a lot more in favor of the owner, who is reputed to own a number of them.

LETHAL CHAMBER FOR SURPLUS DOGS

Morley Powell Designs Electrocution Box For Use By Humane Society.

Electrocution, said to be an instantaneous and humane method will in future be the means employed to destroy the city's unwanted or diseased dogs.

Presented by Morley V. Powell, designer and maker, with an electrocution chamber, Thomas Johnston, V.S., inspector of the local branch of the Royal Humane Society, has scrapped the lethal box formerly in use.

But while the electrocution chamber has been tested by engineers to determine its technical perfection, it has not yet been put to practical use, having been recently completed and presented to the Society.

Mr. Powell, himself a member of the Society, designed and made the electrocution chamber for the humane destruction of dogs, because he said he was impressed by the success this method had met with in England and the United States.

While not in common use in Canada, he said, there are electrocution chambers for destroying dogs in use at Ottawa, London, and Hamilton.

Designed to accommodate dogs of all sizes, the electrocution chamber is 2 feet wide, 5 feet long, and 3½ feet high. The maker claims it is absolutely fool-proof, and declares the circuit cannot be completed until the dog is securely inside the chamber and the lid shut. Closing of the lid completes the circuit and sends a current of 1,100 volts coursing through the animal. Death is immediate.

The animal, when in the box, stands on a galvanized floor which is dampened to ensure good contact. About his neck is a brass collar fitted with projecting studs so designed that they penetrate the fur about the animal's neck and make contact with the skin. Plate-glass windows on either side of the box assist in giving the operator complete control.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, July 28.

The planetary operations bearing rule on the affairs of this day hold promise of great importance in putting the future and its fortunes on a very firm foundation. The astral influence is a definitely stabilizing one, with tendencies to bring to a sound culmination matters long lagging and uncertain. This may concern property, possessions, work and organizations, in which elderly individuals of long-established institutions contribute substantial support.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great importance in stabilizing their future work and destinies. Firm foundations will be laid for the fulfilment of cherished plans, with elderly persons or old institutions lending substantial support. The executive ability will be keen, industry and application stimulated, and lands and other possessions should accumulate. It is a year for forging ahead with definite plans and purpose for signal success.

A child born on this day may be industrious, responsible, ambitious and enterprising. Its steadiness and organizing ability should bring substantial returns in its later life.

CLEVELAND RIOT IS FATAL TO ONE INJURES OVER 80

Workers Pour From Plant and Attack Pickets—Shots Fired, Gas Used.

100 CARS DAMAGED.

CLEVELAND, July 27—(AP)—Rioting between workers and strikers at the Corrigan-McKinney plant of the Republic Steel Corp. was brought under control early today.

With the toll of Monday's fighting standing at one death and between 80 and 125 injured, police and city officials moved to prevent a recurrence of the riots.

Assistant Safety Director Robert W. Chamberlin asked Republic officials to abandon the night shift change, placing the plant on a two shift day, while Police Chief George J. Matowitz cancelled police vacations. Mayor Harold H. Burton and Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell said they would not ask that National Guard troops be sent back here.

Sporadic fighting between worker and striker groups through the day Monday, was punctuated by more serious rioting with the changing of shifts.

Guns And Gas Used

More than 80 persons were injured, 100 or more automobiles damaged, shots fired, tear gas bombs thrown, and clubs wielded indiscriminately that often, police said, members of the two groups were fighting their own men.

Headquarters of the steel workers organizing committee near the plant was wrecked by a band of workers. A newspaper reporter who saw the fight inside the S.W.O.C. building said he saw Miss Rosina Artino, 19, preparing food for pickets, struck on the arm with a club and thrown through a window.

Furniture was broken, windows smashed, and glass and debris were thrown into the food intended for the pickets, the reporter said.

Strikers evaded police who had been keeping back crowds of sympathizers and made their way into the valley where they could stop cars at will.

About 500 workers identifying themselves with white arm bands, rushed out of the independence road gate of the plant attacking a group of about 100 pickets, witnesses said.

The pickets fled before the workers, but occasionally one would attempt to grab a club or other weapon from a worker, and a fight would start.

Every available policeman was ordered to the scene as reports spread that all the workers in the plant were to come out and attack the crowd of sympathizers.

Nearly 300 workers did start up the valley toward the spot where police held back sympathizers, but turned back.

Hundreds of women, children and curiosity seekers were included among the crowd of nearly 5,000 who watched the riots from the top of the valley, where 150 policemen were on duty.

Eventually came the attack on the S.W.O.C. headquarters and fighting became general in the steel plant valley. Nearly 100 pickets who had slipped through the police lines and approached the Independence road gate were dispersed by tear gas bombs. Witnesses were unable to say who had thrown the bombs.

Shots were fired, but police said they heard no reports of anyone being wounded, and that in the darkness it was impossible to tell who had fired the shots.

John Orency, 48, an S.W.O.C. picket, and a Republic crane operator for 16 years, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a car driven by a Republic worker, and which, police said careened out of control when the driver ducked to avoid a barrage of rocks. Police gave the driver's name as William Johnson.

A granite monument to the late Cunninghame Graham was shipped from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to Scotland.

APPEAL MADE TO E. J. YOUNG FOR WAGE LAW

Acting For Some Textile Workers G. N. Gordon Asks For Action.

MINIMUM FOR MEN.

Feels Immediate Attention Should Be Given to This City.

At the request of some of the employees of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited, G. N. Gordon telegraphed this morning to E. J. Young, Toronto, chairman of the Labor and Industry Board, urging that the new minimum wage law for men be put into effect in the textile trade in Peterborough. Mr. Gordon informed The Examiner. He said it was particularly desirable that this wage advantage be implemented here as soon as possible, particularly before the present strike negotiations were concluded.

Mr. Gordon stated that the minimum wage law was now effective legislation except that investigations regarding living conditions in various cities had not been completed. He felt that in view of circumstances Mr. Young should direct immediate attention to Peterborough for the purpose of establishing a minimum wage scale for the textile trade.

SAYS HOME WORK MOSTLY USELESS

Adrian Macdonald Tells Lindsay Rotarians School Training is Sufficient.

LINDSAY, July 27. — Adrian Macdonald, of the Peterborough Normal School staff, was the guest speaker at the luncheon of the local Rotary Club on Monday. He dealt with the revision of the course of study, and pointed out that the revised elementary course is being taught right through to Grade Six, and provides some very interesting phases of work. He gave it as his opinion that homework was nothing but a bugbear, and that ample time is provided during school hours to cover the work without burdening the children with homework. He claimed that 90 per cent. of the homework was useless.

Motorcyclist Arrested.

A motorcyclist from Omemee ran amok on Lindsay's main highway on Saturday night, threatening pedestrians and motorists alike. He was arrested and was remanded on a charge of reckless driving.

THRILLING CARD FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY

Motor Cycle Races at Exhibition Grounds Will Be Exciting.

For the first time in several years residents of Peterborough are to be given a Civic Holiday attraction that should be an inducement for them to stay in the city on that day.

Under joint sponsorship of the Lions Club and The Kawartha Motorcycle Club, a thrilling card of motorcycle races is to be run off on the track at Exhibition Grounds, with several well-known daredevil cyclists among the large list of entries so far received.

From the proceeds of the effort the Lions Club hope to donate $900 to the newly-formed Lions Club Boy's Band to defray the cost of instruments.

Working in close harmony the members of the two clubs sponsoring the holiday event and leaving no stone unturned in an endeavor to provide a program packed with spills and thrills, Sam Carew, president of The Kawartha Motorcycle Club and other local motorcyclists are practicing daily at Exhibition Grounds, and he plans to make a daring leap in mid-air on his machine over the prone forms of five of his fellow clubmen.

Yack Retains Bantam Title With Victory Over Martin

First Defence of Canadian Title Highly Entertaining to 45,000 Fans.

UNANIMOUS VERDICT.

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.)—Norman (Baby) Yack, 116 pounds of boxing machinery, stuck out his chest to-day and told Promoter Jack Corcoran to bring on world champion Sixto Escobar or any other leading bantamweight.

The Baby made his first defence of his Canadian bantamweight crown a successful one last night, pounding out the closest of decisions over Montreal's Frankie Martin, from whom Yack took the championship on June 14 on a split, and hotly disputed decision.

There was little question to the champion's right to the decision in the return bout, but Martin lost no prestige in dropping the verdict to the bronzed idol of Toronto's fighting populace.

Only last week, the National Boxing Association, ruling boxing body on the North American continent, placed Martin as the fifth best bantam in the world; Yack the eighth. And Yack demonstrated in beating the experienced, tough Martin that he's ready to shoot his bolt against any of the top four, Escobar included.

4,500 See Fight.

He may be called on, however, to go against Martin once more before tackling anybody else. The fans—4,500 and all cheering for the Baby—roared their approval of the bout from the start.

It was a unanimous verdict by Referee Ray Smillie and the two judges, the first time a boxing verdict has been given in Ontario by the referee. The former method of these judges went out by order of the Ontario Athletic Commission when Frankie Genovese was given a questionable decision to take away Gordon Wallace's welterweight crown about a month ago.

Yack beat off Martin's challenge to the throne in a furious tenth round after the challenger had right-handed his way to a narrow margin in the first nine rounds.

Too many things to think about! This is the general complaint against golf instruction and one that is in order because many teachers heap too many details on the heads of their pupils.

It is a well known fact, outside of golf, that proper attention can be given to only one thing at a time. Perhaps teachers wouldn't throw so many things at their pupils if they knew how much fun the player gets out of the game when he has only one thing to think about.

Recently I went out to play with David Goodrich of New York. His trouble was that stated above. I told him that he could do much to improve all shots simply by keeping his head in position until after the ball had been hit. In fact I told him that I would ask nothing more of him during the entire round. He concentrated on this one item with very good results. On a very difficult course he was off the fairway only once in 18 holes and his tee shots were much longer than usual.

He was greatly surprised to find that a single item could bring such an improvement with so many different shots and to say that he was pleased over having but one thing to think about is putting it mildly. He was tickled pink, as you will be if you stick to this particular item.

Next: Effect of Errors.

CANADIAN HENLEY CORONATION MEET DRAWS BIG ENTRY

St. Catharines Annual Regatta Attracts Best Singles Sculler

STERN COMPETITION

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 27 (C.P.). — Stern competition in the singles and crew events is expected at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta over the well-known course here on July 29, 30 and 31. The 56th annual regatta is styled the "Coronation" water carnival of the North American continent.

The Canadian Henley, the last three days in July and the American National, premier event in the United States, scheduled for Buffalo the following week, bring the two spectacles of American rowing circles more closely together than in the past century of competitive sculling.

Officials of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen have already received entries from leading aquatic clubs and colleges of the U.S. who regard the Royal Canadian as the ultimate in competition and their success in Canada's foremost water event here will largely determine the merits of contending crews and oarsmen for the American National.

An indication of the quality of competition at the Canadian Henley this month may be gleaned from the fact five of the best senior singles scullers on the continent have already entered the championship singles. Charles "Chuck" Campbell, Toronto Dons, and Johnny Coulson, Toronto Argonauts, both of whom contested the 1937 Diamond Sculls at Henley-on-Thames, will match strokes here, while Herb Miller, former University of Toronto rower and winner last year, will seek to retain his honors as a clubmate of Coulson in the Double Blue.

Jim Miller, Toronto Argonauts, and Joe Burke, Penn A.C., Philadelphia, are other contestants for the singles title and it is expected that Ervin Konrad of Buffalo, American National and Canadian Association titleholder, will also be on hand to make the singles race a real North American championship event.

Undines of Philadelphia are priming the strongest crews in their history along with Eugene Clark in the 140-pound singles, and their champion heavy eight will contest the honors with Pennacs, Hamilton Leanders' "Scarlet Runners," conquerors of all American rivals, and Canada's last Olympic eight, as well as Toronto Argos, Buffalo Westsides, Detroit, and Wyandotte's "boilermakers."

Lachines, Montreal, have already entered a 150-pound junior eight and Ottawa R.C. will send the familiar red and black colors here again with Stothart, sensational young single sculler in junior ranks. Winnipeg "White Horses," absent for the last three years, will pin their hopes on a junior heavy eight if it should first win at the Head-of-the-Lakes.

Penn A.C. also expect to send two senior doubles and their quartette forms a senior four that will contest honors against the best Canadian and American fours of Buffalo, Detroit, and Philadelphia.

Elmer Faux Returns To Hastings Home

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 27.—Elmer Faux arrived at his home here yesterday afternoon from the Cobourg Hospital where he was rushed on Sunday evening as a result of a car accident near Baltimore. The car driven by Arthur Turner, also of Hastings, hit some fresh gravel on a sharp curve and took to the ditch remaining upright. Faux was in some manner thrown from the car sustaining a broken arm close to the shoulder. A passing motorist rushed him to the Cobourg Hospital where he remained overnight. The other occupants received a severe shaking up and a few bruises and scratches.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ORILLIA TERRIERS play the Auburns an exhibition lacrosse match here tonight under the arcs. When you say that, you've said about all you can on the subject. Lacrosse fans know what it means. They know our Auburns are a mighty nifty intermediate outfit—a team that has won 13 games in as many starts this season, mostly by one-sided scores. And they know the Terriers have been Dominion champs for the past three years. Thus they realize that the game here this eve is making lacrosse history in Peterborough. Even if the locals lose—as they probably will—it will be a grand exhibition of Canada's national pastime, the old gutted-stick sport. A record crowd is expected, many outsiders and many newcomers to the game being on deck for the doings.

* * * * * * *

WE COULD rhyme off a flock of names like Cheevers, the Currans, McMahon, Bain, McArthur and so on—but what's the use? Everyone knows the famed Terriers, and their names are as familiar to lacrosse gents as Conacher, Aurie, Cook, etc., are to hockey—and Gomez, Greenburg, Hartnett, etc., to baseball. Or Hepburn, Rowe, King, et al, to the dizzy whirl of politics! And no need to name again the Auburns—they are too well-known also. And Referees Len Smith and Dit Clapper. We also have several times mentioned the fine accommodation for fans at the new George St. lacrosse arena. So there is nothing more to be said. Be seeing you at the Terriers-Auburns' tussle tonight.

NAPANEE GIBBARDS and the Petes clash tomorrow (Wednesday) e'en at 6.15 or so in Riverside Park. It is a regular C.O.B.L. game, but the Nape' home tilt which they had transferred to Peterborough. These teams are fighting for the third-place playoff berth, so it is an important tussle for both teams. Should be a neat scrap, too. Whitehill will pitch for the Petes most likely, but we dunno who Walt Gerow will start. Clyde Engle of Toronto Maple Leafs will be here tomorrow afternoon to conduct a training class for ballsters. Local or district chaps, young or old, may attend free gratis and gain some useful pointers on the diamond sport. He will remain for the game in the evening and conduct a chalk talk afterward.

* * * * * * *

IT IS high time there was some talk of reviving baseball in these parts. At present all we have is a so-so senior team and a pretty fair junior squad. No City Baseball League, no East Peterborough Loop, no School Circuit, no district leagues, no independent ball. If Ralph and the Rotary Club give up the ghost next year on junior ball—there will be no minor baseball here at all. And if Napanee drops out of the C.O.B.L. next season—as we suspect the Gibbards may—where will the senior league be? Yeah, baseball has been declining a lot in late years and something will have to be done soon. Or else.

LOOKING over the box score of the Napanee-Oshawa ball game of Saturday, we see where Foley was in centre and Hurst covered left field for the GM-men. Rowden replaced May on third and Osborne was back at short. Hurst and Foley led the hitters with two each, while Wallace and Osborne booted a couple apiece. In recent weeks, the Oshawa scribe hasn't been bragging about having the best defensive infield in the circuit. We probably have it. Turner and Blazetich both hurled nice ball but bunched hits, including two homers, gave the GM-men the 4-3 win. There is the possibility of an Oshawa -Napanee game Civic Holiday being transferred to Belleville. The Motor Citizens play in Kingston tomorrow.

COBOURG GALS rubbed Omemee out of the lasses' softball race with a 21-0 eraser at the Bowl yester gloaming. Too much power in the Cobourg clubs but the O's battled valiantly. Keene and Westclox meet here tonight, while Omemee and Westclox clash at the Bowl tomorrow. Up at Central last p.m., those surprising Young Petes upped and copped a 4-2 nod over the Motorists to about go into a first-place tie with Omemee. Leaving Motorists next just half a tilt up on Westclox. The race is right torrid in this final week of the schedule. Fleming pitched three-hit ball last e'en and his buddies got a flock but couldn't cash in on very many. Barons play Westclox here tonight and Motorists meet Barons tomorrow.

ENTRIES are coming in okay for the big motorbike races which will be held here Civic Holiday. They are for the Canadian half-mile dirt track championship, in novice, expert and pro classes, and are sponsored by the local Lions' Club and the Kawartha Motorcycle Club. This is something new in sports here and the dare-devil riders should attract a big crowd that afternoon in the Exhibition Grounds. Noted racers from various parts of Ontario, Quebec and the U.S. are expected to compete for $350 in prizes and the honor of a Dominion title. Over 20 local guys will be in there skidding around the bends at a rate that is enough to bring on the hiccups among the customers. Plan to attend these races, if possible.

THIS chilish weather reminds one of autumn, football and fire in the furnaces, eh? Here's an item from Oshawa: "Peterborough Orfuns plan on a bangup team this fall with several former Lindsay gridders. Wouldn't it be too bad if they build up a strong team and then find themselves in a weak group—with no opposition, in fact, maybe no group at all?" Gosh, are we scared! It is okay by other towns when local teams in various sports offer little opposition, but when we do build up a nifty outfit—then, they holler. Well, our advice is: Go and do thou in like manner. And did the Motor City ball moguls worry about no opposition when they were importing Biddle, May, Jubenville, Turner, Bennett, Foley, et al? The local officers are beginning to talk football now and meet one of these nights.

GRAB-BAG: Grandstands and programs are free at tonight's lacrosse match here; and don't let cool weather keep you away from this big tilt.../O.B.A.A. has intimated that Ed Melvor, enquiute flinger now with Prood, had better not seek any more transfers.../Entries for the big Bridgenorth softball tourney Civic Holiday are being taken this week.../Westclox men softballers have an exhibition fray in Lindsay tomorrow.../We hear Pointer and Whitehill will pitch here tomorrow eve; and the ball training class will start at two bells tomorrow afternoon.../Cobourg has a lacrosse game in Norwood on Friday while Oshawa comes here.../The 222 team claim they had a rough passage in their last fixture in Norwood.../ Rotary Juniors practise this eve in Riverside; they may play their final scheduled game in Cobourg tomorrow, though it has no bearing.../And that is about all for today.

MOTORISTS LOSE TO YOUNG PETES

Junior Softball Squad Goes Into Virtual First Place Tie With 4-3 Win.

The Young Petes beat the Motorists (in a drizzle of rain) last night at Central by the score of 4 to 2. The pitching of Fleming on the Petes' mound and the timely hitting of the lads was too much for Barrett's gang. The Y.P. had the edge all through the game getting one run in the first and bingling Montgomery for 17 safe hits. While Fleming allowed only 3 hits, pitching a superb game, walking 4 and fanning 2. Montgomery was hit for 17, struck out none, and gave no walks.

For the winners Coursey and Anderson led at bat with nice performances getting 3 hits each, both having a double. Creighton, Foster, Jamieson, O'Leary and Millen did their share with 2 hits each. One of O'Leary's being was a double. Fleming hit a single.

For the Motorists Gainey with a double, and Crary and Smith with singles got the only hits. Gainey on short stop for the Motorists and Millen in centre field for the winners ran far to grab some hard-hit ones.

The teams:

Young Petes: Coursey, 1b; Conroy, ss; Creighton, c; Foster, lf; Jamieson, 3b; O'Leary, 2b; Millen, cf; Anderson, rf; Fleming, p.

Motorists: Crary, 3b; Walsh, c; Board, 2b; Weir, lf; Gainey, ss; Price, rf; Smith, 1b; McQuade, cf; Montgomery p; White batted for Price in ninth.

Umpires—Ranger and Payne.

Soccer Notes

Saturday's win by Canada Packers against Deloro puts them on even terms with Smelters in the league standing, and the Canadian General only one point behind them; while the C.C.F. have lost every game in the league, they have been the best attraction to the fans by their sportsmanship throughout the whole series. In fact, they have lost two-thirds of their games by the odd goal. The league standing:

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts
Deloro	9	6	2	1	13
Can. Packers	9	6	2	1	13
Can. General	9	5	3	1	12
C. C. F.	10	0	10	0	0

Two points for a win, one for a draw.

The C.C.F. won the Injured Players' Cup this season from the C.G.E. in a postponed game from last year, and are holders of the trophy at the present time.

The Deloro representatives were instructed to inform the club that the association will not permit the throwing of missiles at players on the field of play. This took place on Saturday when the Canada Packers played Smelters. The official referee's report stated the practice was dangerous.

Owing to Canadian General players being on holiday this week, the association was informed that they could not play, and agreed to the request that no game be played this week. They will be instructed to meet the Deloro aggregation next Tuesday night in a league match—kick-off at 8.30 prompt.

To-night the C.C.F. plays Deloro in the replayed Injured Cup competition on King Edward Park. Kick-off at 8.30, and the game will be played to a finish.

On Saturday afternoon, August 7, the C.C.F. play Kingston in the Limestone City, and the following Saturday they meet them in Peterborough.

If arrangements can be made by the Canada Packers to travel out of the city on Monday, the executive granted them permission so that they can play an outside team.

Canada Packers made the request to play their Thursday night game on Friday night against the C.C.F. Kick-off at 8.30. Referee Will Jones.

Next Tuesday night, C.G.E. vs. Deloro. George Blowers will referee. There is no game on Saturday, or on the holiday.

Judge Landis To Investigate Horse-Race-Betting Charge

High Commissioner Will Get to the Bottom of Hornsby Affair.

QUESTION HOUSEBOY.

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—An investigation of betting on race horses by Major League ball players was opened Monday in Chicago by Kenesaw M. Landis, High Baseball Commissioner.

Aroused by the gambling revelations in connection with the release of Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Browns last week, Landis said in a telephone conference from his offices in Chicago this afternoon that he "would dig to the very bottom of the entire affair."

(Hornsby admitted after his release that betting on race horses was the cause. He denied that betting interfered with management of the Browns and surrendered his contract, calling for $20,000 for 1937 and 1938 for approximately $7,000 in cash.)

Maybe Keyman

Milton (Alabama) Delmas, clubhouse boy for the Browns, may become the key-man in Landis' investigation.

"I understand Delmas has some information that may be of importance to my office," Landis stated. "If he has been running bets on race horses for some ball players in the American League, as he has been quoted, then that means I'll have to roll up my sleeves and go to work on this case."

Delmas has been quizzed by President Donald L. Barnes and Vice-President William O. Dewitt of the Browns during their investigation of his part in the betting activities.

Delmas denied he had placed a single wager on the horses for Hornsby. He said, however, that he had left Sportsman's Park on numerous occasions and visited handbooks in the vicinity of Grand Boulevard and Dodier street.

Delmas stated to the writer last week that he had made bets on horses for several American League players.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., July 27 (AP)—Cardinal Prince, E. J. Baker's bay horse, did a two-minute mile around the "kite" track yesterday in winning the $1,000 Old Orchard Pace in three straight heats.

With Sep Palin in the sulky, the stable mate of the great trotter, Greyhound, made his best time in the second heat, bucking a strong head wind in the home stretch. His other two heats were in 2.01½.

Hanover Mettle won the $600 2.24 trot, finishing 1-1-2, and paying his first heat backers $74.70, biggest pari-mutuel payoff of the day.

BAD WEATHER HAMPERS PLAY TENNIS SERIES

Canadian Hopes Still Rest on Murray, Cameron and Wilson.

CUP TEAM ARRIVES.

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP)—Britain's Wightman Cup team arrived today to add new zest to the Canadian lawn tennis championships at Toronto Cricket Club. The English women, captained by Kay Stammers, entered second-round play on byes and multiplied the gallery that was cut to a minimum yesterday by bleak, rainy weather.

On a day when winds did tricks with lob shots and footing was none too good, top-seeded players still were the most impressive of the big field. And Bob Murray, of Montreal with Doug Cameron of Vancouver and Ross Wilson of Toronto, gave Canadians added hopes a domestic ace would go through to the men's singles crown, won last year by Jack Sibbald of California.

The women's singles picture was not so bright for the home forces. Miss Jean Milne of Vancouver, No. 1 in Dominion ranking, was given a struggle by Miss Ora Davis, Ottawa, finally winning 6-4, 11-9. Mrs. Helen Dyson of New York was regarded as North America's favorite to keep the championship on this side of the Atlantic.

Gets Close Victory.

Mrs. H. L. Boite, Ottawa, was another top-flighter who was pressed, scoring over Eloise Tennant, former Londoner but now of Toronto, 10-12, 10-8, 6-3. Mrs. H. L. Beer of Ottawa came in with a second-round triumph over Mrs. A. Gausby, Hamilton, 6-2, 6-1.

Men's and women's singles play went through the better part two stages and men's doubles went nearly a round before dark. Walter Senior of California and David M. Jones of New York, experienced tournament men—and both tall and broad-shouldered — came through easily. Senior beat J. Sibulash of Toronto, 6-2, 6-3, and A. Centner, Toronto, 6-2, 6-2. Jones whipped J. A. Rivine, Toronto, 6-0, 7-5.

Murray went over Grant McLean of Toronto, 6-4, 6-4, to continue the brilliant play he showed earlier this month in attaining the Ontario and Quebec titles.

Nurses Broken Jaw

Looking little the worse for wear except for the harness he wears to keep the pieces of his broken jaw together, Wayne Ambler, second baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, is shown before he left for Philadelphia. Ambler, a Duke University alumnus, sustained the broken jaw in a head-on collision with Catcher Ben Huffman of the St. Louis Browns during a game at St. Louis.

Twilight Struggle Here On Wednesday

C.O.B.L. standing todate:

Team	P	W	L
Kingston	16	11	5
Oshawa	17	11	6
Petes	17	7	10
Napanee	16	4	12

Napanee and the Petes play here tomorrow evening at 6.15 in Riverside Park. It will be Napanee's home game, the Gibbards transferring it here because of lack of fan support in the Furniture Town. With both the Naps and the Petes battling for a third-place playoff berth as the schedule nears a finish, this is an important fixture.

The Gerowmen have had no luck so far this season against the Petes but they hope to crack that jinx here Wednesday night. The Petes need the victory, too, to keep their lead over Napanee, and it ought to be a good ball game. It is uncertain yet who will start on the Gibbard mound but Gunner Whitehill is likely to do the locals' heaving. A good midweek ball crowd is expected.

OMEMEE OUSTED IN GIRLS' RACE

Cobourg Softballers Take 21-9 Win Over O's to About Clinch Playoff Berth.

Cobourg eliminated Omemee from the Girls' Softball League race last night before a small crowd of fans at the Bowl by a 21-9 score. Bad weather kept down the attendance as the Cobourgites practically cinched a playoff berth with a hard-hitting attack that netted them 23 safe blows to 11 for the losers. The O's made it a nice battle most of the way but the Lakeshore lassies had too much power. The fielding was good on both sides.

W. Hoskin hurled for Cobourg and made a fair job of it with three strikeouts and two walks while allowing 11 hits. M. Hannah on the losers' slab was hit hard as she struck out four and issued two walks. There were plenty of extra-base clouts on both sides, including homers by R. Hoskin, J. Young and E. Bigelow. The latter led the O's at bat while R. Thompson was best for Cobourg. M. Mooney pulled a fielding feature with a fine catch. The teams:

Cobourg: R. Thompson, 3b; J. Fowden, ss; M. Bulkowski, 1b; R. Hoskin, c; W. Hoskin, p; I. Toyne, rf; J. Young, lf; A. Gibson, cf; M. Mooney, 2b.

TOP + TOSSERS In the Majors

BILL LEE

Outstanding in the Chicago Cubs' hot pennant fight this season is the pitching staff. And, among the pitchers is William Crutcher Lee, Jr., who is curve-balling victory after victory.

One of the taller players in the majors, Lee, who stands six feet three inches and weighs 195 pounds, has been a mainstay ever since he came up in 1934.

Lee roamed the minors for several years before getting his start. After college days at Louisiana State University, where he starred in athletics, Lee was given a chance to play pro ball with St. Joseph of the Western League in 1930. He accepted and participated in three games. He was demoted to Greensboro of the Piedmont League. There he won six and lost five.

In 1931, the big right-hander went to Scottdale where his 22 victories gave him a boost into the American Association. He signed with Columbus and pitched two seasons, winning 20 and 21 respectively. That was enough to satisfy major league scouts and the Cubs took him to training camp in 1934.

The last two years Lee has been a masterful pitcher. He won 20 in 1935 to top the league's slabmen in percentage, and 18 last season. This year he again is on the road to a 20-game season.

Lee was born in Plaquemine, La. He is 26 years old. He bats right-handed. He has been in one world series. He began playing baseball as a first baseman.

QUEBEC GOLFERS WIN TEAM TROPHY

Winners' Four-Man Aggregate For 36 Holes Placed at 619.

OTTAWA, July 27—(CP). — The Dominion's team supremacy settled in Quebec's favor by a one-stroke margin a field of almost 100 amateur golfers swung into action today in the five-day campaign that will produce the 1937 champion of Canada.

All 28 players who competed in yesterday's 36 holes of medal play took up the title chase along with 69 others, including ten from the United States led by Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who carried off the amateur crown last year at Winnipeg.

Quebec's four-man aggregate for 36 holes yesterday was 619. Frank Corrigan completing his afternoon round late with a 79, just enough to decide the title. Ontario's grand total was 620, Jack Nash of London leading his mates with scores of 75 and 74.

B.C. Places Third

When the Manitoba players, except Reith, faltered in the afternoon, British Columbia, aided by Ken Black's 73 in the afternoon, slipped into third place with 630. Manitoba dropped into fourth spot with 634. Then came Alberta, 644; New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island, 673; and Saskatchewan, 686.

A deluge of rain that came suddenly in the midst of the morning round gave practically the whole field trouble. But the sun reappeared before the afternoon round started, and Phil Farley of Montreal and Bobby Reith of Winnipeg turned in some sparkling golf.

Farley, starting the afternoon with 36, one under par, completed his second round with 39 for 71, two under. Reith, after taking 40 on his first nine, played steadily and was never over par again till the final nine when he came in with a 37, missing par by a stroke.

Clapper Is Secured As Lacrosse Referee

The biggest crowd ever to witness a lacrosse match in Peterborough is anticipated tonight (Tuesday) at the George street arena when Orillia Terriers play the local Auburns an exhibition game. It will be under the lights, starting at nine o'clock or shortly after. Fans from the city, district and various points in Central Ontario, will trek to the new arena to see the three-times Dominion senior champions playing the undefeated 1937 local squad. While the visitors should win the game, it promises to be a fine battle all through.

Auburns have not lost a game so far this summer in 13 starts, nine being loop fixtures. They have a fine intermediate outfit. The Terriers are again leading their Ontario senior grouping and may go through to their fourth Canadian championship this year. Lacrosse has built up a big following in Peterborough this season and tonight's outstanding attraction makes history in the gutted-stick sport of this district. Both teams are expected to be at full strength for the fray this evening and Len Smith of Toronto and Dit Clapper of Hastings have been secured as officials.

HARRIS-DUKE COMBINE FOR ROYALS' WIN

Former Accounts For All the Runs in Montreal's 9-3 Victory.

BEARS BEATEN 8-4.

TORONTO, July 27.—(CP)—Dave Harris, slugging Montreal outfielder who is known to his teammates as "Sheriff" can pin a star to his coat, all right.

Dave didn't solve any mysteries last night but he solved the hurling of two Jersey City Giant pitches for three home runs and a single, just about the top slugging turned in by an International League player this year.

His hitting accounted for all the runs in Royals' 9-3 victory over the Giants for he drove home five tallies and scored four. The victors collected 12 hits off Rollie Stiles and Mike Radon, Jersey hurlers.

Marvin Duke, one of the Royals' steadiest hurlers, held the Giants to seven hits to register his 13th victory of the season.

Bears Beaten 8-4.

Newark Bears dropped an 8-4 decision to Rochester Red Wings in the only other league game.

Five of the Wings 13 hits came in the seventh inning when the victors gathered six of their runs. The victory was the 14th of the year for Norbert Kleinke of the Wings. Steve Sundra, the Bears nominee, saw his winning streak of 11 snapped. Frank Morehouse, who clouted a homer in the third and Reg Jurisich, who collected three hits, were tops in the Wing attack.

The Syracuse Chiefs game with Buffalo at Buffalo was postponed because of rain and cold weather forced the postponement of another night game between Baltimore Orioles and Toronto at Toronto.

Beats League Ace

A southerner whose home town is Odum, Georgia, this sturdy hurler has become the mainstay of the Toronto Maple Leaf pitching corps in the International League race. In his latest start he outlasted the sensational Atley Donald of Newark who was lucky to escape without breaking a record of 14 straight wins. Davis won the game after Donald had been lifted for a pinch hitter.

ULSTER PROTESTS TRIP TO WINNIPEG

Football Association Takes Firm Stand on All-Canada Series.

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.). — Ulster United, Eastern Canada soccer champions, pondered to-day a Dominion Football Association ultimatum which requires them to entrain to-night for an All-Canada final series at Winnipeg. Team officials were informed late last night after they defeated Frood Mines for the Eastern title, the D.F.A. championships opened in Winnipeg on Thursday.

Ulster wired a protest to Secretary Sam Davidson who replied the Eastern titlists must leave Toronto to-night "or they don't leave at all." The final series is to be a three-game affair to be completed by next Monday.

Ulster drew with the Frood Tiger Cats last night to protect their one-game margin in the best-of-three series. The score was 1-1, same as in the first game last week. Ulster scored a 1-0 victory on Saturday in what proved to be the deciding game of the low-scoring series.

Trent River Beaten By Havelock 15-14

HAVELOCK, July 27. — The Wreckers pulled out another win in the Kawartha Junior League schedule, last evening when they defeated the Trent River boys by a 15 to 14 score in a very close and exciting battle. "Mickey" McMullen again was on the mound for the locals and pitched a great game although he was relieved in the sixth by Cliff Kennedy, when he became a little wild. Trent River also used two pitchers, Cliff Chapman and C. Anderson.

Features of the game was a home-run by the bantam of the Havelock squad, Keith Pollock, when he smacked a hard one out into deep right field. Cliff Kennedy, of the Wreckers and Jay Brown of Trent River also provided homers for their respective teams, Kennedy's being the tieing run in the seventh.

The teams:

ENGLAND'S SIDE ONLY 114 AHEAD

Home Team Must Fight Hard to Defeat New Zealand Invasion.

MANCHESTER, July 27 (C.P. Cable).—Featured by a gallant stand between A. W. Hadlee and his captain, M. L. Page, New Zealand hit up 281 runs in reply to Englands first innings score of 358 for nine wickets, declared, in the second test match between the two countries to-day. Before play closed England had lost three of its finest batsmen for 37 runs, giving the Mother Country a lead of 114.

Five New Zealand wickets had fallen for 119 runs when Hadlee and Page came together. The pair put on 99 before Page was dismissed for 33. His colleague went on to score 93, hitting 10 fours. He was at the wickets three hours and 40 minutes.

Of the rest of the touring players, only the veteran H. G. Vivian and N. R. Gallichan, young Wellington bowler, played with success. Vivian, one of the opening batsmen, was fifth out after compiling 58 by careful defensive batting and Gallichan made 30.

England's second innings' start was disastrous. Charles Barnett, Gloucestershire star, had made only 12 runs when the first wicket fell at 17. Twelve runs later, Leonard Hutton, young Yorkshireman who made his first test century on Saturday, was caught off J. Cowie's fast bowling. With no addition to the score Wally Hammond, leading Old Country run-getter, was dismissed when he sent up a catch to D. A. R. Moloney off the same trundler. It was a rare experience for the Gloucesterman.

Joseph Hardstaff, Nottinghamshire, and Ed. Paynter, Lancashire, played out time. The match concludes to-day.

Arthur Wellard, Somerset all-rounder, playing in his first international match, led England's bowlers, taking four wickets for 81 runs. Fred Brown, Surrey amateur spin bowler, took three for 81 and Jim Smith, Middlesex giant, two for 29.

Favorites Continue Feature At London

LONDON, July 27 (C.P.).—Boscobel romped in first by three lengths in the feature sixth at Queen's Park Track yesterday to join the other favorites on a form-winning card. Boscobel, little better than even odds was too fast for Big One, in second place, and Smosee third.

Threatening weather cut the attendance and the slim card saw favorites come down in every race except the fifth, in which Field Mouse paid six to one. Jockey Remillard scored his sixth victory of the meet on Field Mouse and his seventh on Boscobel. The veteran rider had three winning mounts, being also aboard Queen's Color in the third.

McDougall and McTague each scored double victories. Fay Vixen romped in under McDougall in the fourth far ahead of the more favored Centre March, which finished fourth. McTague scored a double in the first two races on River Crest and Ree.

DEWEY GOES AFTER N. Y. LOAN SHARKS

Nick Montana, Cockeyed Louie Weiner and others.

At last a New York County grand jury—appalled by the tales of racketeering terror which witnesses told them behind locked doors started action. With the newspapers solidly behind them, a committee of six grand jurors called on Governor Herbert Lehman and demanded appointment of a special prosecutor of rackets. They told the governor the regular law-enforcing agencies were useless.

Lehman asked four well-known lawyers, including Charles E. Hughes, Jr., to take the job. Unanimously, they said there was only one man to conduct such a "clean-up" crusade—Thomas E. Dewey. On July 29, 1935, Dewey began his task of cleaning out New York's "Augean Stables."

Drop $50,000 a Year Job.

Leaving his $50,000-a-year private law practice to accept the regular salary of $16,695 for a prosecutor, Dewey "cajoled" four other young attorneys into enlisting as his aides, and together they set up headquarters in the Woolworth building.

His first act was to broadcast an appeal for information, inviting the public to come to his office and tell him of rackets "protection money" demands. They came at the rate of hundreds daily. But to Dewey's disappointment, with few exceptions, they were psychopathic "cranks" with false grievances or schemers trying to use Dewey against their enemies.

Some busines men refused to cooperate. Frightened of gang "retaliation," they preferred to pay.

Using his power of subpoena, Dewey scrutinized the books of one busines man after another and found out how much "protection" they had been paying.

When they still refused to testify before the grand jury he decided the only way out was to fight terror with terror—to make honest men tell their terror of gangs by "terrorizing" them into doing so.

When they kept silent or evasive he sent them to jail for contempt of court. They began to weaken and give him the evidence he needed.

Almost immediately, Dewey found himself investigating more than 100 separate rackets—industrial rackets as well as strictly crminal "enterprises" such as prostitution, stolen goods and loan sharks.

Loan Sharks First

The young prosecutor turned first against the loan sharks, who were taking an annual interest of 1,040 per cent and terrorizing their victims with strong-arm hoodlums who told them:

"I get $75 a week for bumping off guys like you. You better find that dough."

Patiently, week after week, Dewey gathered information. Oct. 31, 1935, he arrested 38 sharks—sending them to prison for terms up to five years.

At first Dewey was not interested in prostitution. He made it plain at the outset he was not interested in petty crooks, street walkers, gamblers and crooked police. He was out to get the big shot bosses.

But he heard a mysterious shadowy figure known only as "The Boss," was muscling in on prostitution, organizing the so-called "parlors" on a chain store basis. "The Boss," he learned reaped at least $12,000,000 a year.

After weeks of preparation, on Feb. 1, 1936, Dewey launched a series of swift and widespread raids which netted such "ladies of the evening," madames and bookers as Nigger Ruth, Jenny the Factory, Cokey Flo, Sadie the Chink, Jo-Jo, Six Bits, Cut-Rate Gus and Cold Potato Annie.

He didn't get "The Boss," but he was on the trail.

Tries "Respect" Angle

Using a new type of psychology on the sullen girls seized in the raids, Dewey instructed his aides:

"Treat them decently. Say 'please' and 'miss' to them. See they have chairs and are comfortable. We don't want the women as prisoners. We want them as witnesses."

It worked. Mildred Harris talked and "Cokey Flo" talked. A booker named Marcus tabbed the "big shots" of the ring—four or five of them.

"Who else?" Dewey pressed him.

Marcus hesitated, squirming.

"Spill it!"

"And Charlie," said Marcus, in a nervous whisper.

"Charlie who?" snapped Dewey.

"Just Charlie. That's all I know."

Dewey smiled. It was enough. There was only one Charlie...

UNITED STATES REGAINS WORLD TENNIS HONOURS.

Parker's Victory Over Hare Clinches Winning Point For Americans.

BUDGE UNDEFEATED.

Final Score Gives U. S. 4 Wins Against One for Great Britain.

WIMBLEDON, July 27.—(AP)—Sorrell-topped Don Budge, undefeated this year, whipped Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin today, 8-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 as the United States completed its conquest of Great Britain's Davis Cup forces and regained the international tennis trophy for the first time since 1927.

Budge's victory came after 21-year-old Parker had clinched the cup with an astonishing straight set triumph over Charles Edgar Hare, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, thus making the final score four victories for the United States against one for Great Britain's unsuccessful cup defenders.

Parker Clinches Cup

WIMBLEDON, July 27—(AP)—The United States regained the Davis Cup, emblematic of international team tennis supremacy, today as Frankie Parker trounced Charles Edgar Hare, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 for the point that enabled the American team to clinch the challenge round series with Great Britain.

Parker's victory gave the United States its third and decisive point of the five-match series. One more singles match, between Don Budge and Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin remained to be played but this became merely an exhibition.

Plays Flawless Tennis

Parker, conceded no more than even chance as a result of his sad showing against Austin Saturday, played virtually flawless tennis to score the most important triumph of his career.

Effective on his service, uncannily accurate with all his shots, the 21-year-old Milwaukee star ran Hare, a newcomer to Davis Cup tennis, ragged with well-placed lobs whenever the big British left-hander sought to take the net.

His victory gave the United States the trophy for the first time since France won it at Germantown, Pa., in 1927. England had held it since 1923.

The team result had been forecast in advance for Great Britain weakened by the loss of Fred Perry, a professional, and of George Patrick Hughes, also doubles artist, through illness, obviously was no match for the United States team.

500 CHINESE SHOT IN JAP ASSAULT

Bombing Planes Take Part in Engagement 12 Miles From Peiping.

TIENTSIN, July 27 (A.P.).—Japanese sources reported to-day 500 Chinese troops of a brigade stationed at Tungchow, 12 miles east of Peiping, had been killed or wounded in a punitive attack made by Japanese infantry and bombing planes.

The Domei (Japanese) News Agency reported the Japanese went into action when the Chinese refused to submit peacefully to be disarmed.

Previously Domei had reported the brigade of 88 men had given up their arms to militarized Chinese police of the East Hopeh regime, friendly to Japan.

Japanese losses were said to have been 10 killed and wounded, including one officer. The Japanese troops were said to have been under the command of Col. Takashi Kayashima.

When the Chinese refused to lay down their arms, Domei reported, the Japanese attacked with the support of bombing planes, "decimating the Chinese, killing and wounding an estimated 500."

Neutral observers expressed the opinion that if the report was true the Japanese had taken the Chinese unawares, as it would otherwise have been impossible to "decimate" so large a force with such small casualties to themselves.

CHAPTER 43.

SANDY was not the only one to feel contempt for the avaricious methods of the Acme Advertising Agency, but there was none to cause Acme trouble until Ignor Bardoni rose up to defend his rights. The fiery little printer was just one of the "little fellows" whom Sandy had promised would be crushed by the cut-throat practices of Acme.

Several months before Bardoni's greedy little eyes had literally popped at the prospect of a fat $60,000 account Abe had dangled in front of his nose. "Sure, I can swing Hartley's business to you, if you will play ball with me," he had said cautiously, and Igor was glad to make it worth Abe's while to win this remunerative account. For weeks he had been giving him below-cost prices, marking his losses off to commissions and good will that were to result in profitable business to Hartley, the father of Zimmerman's partner.

As the summer wore on Igor became increasingly alarmed at the postponements of the long overdue contract. He had lost more money than he could afford, catering to Abe and his empty promises. He sat in his grimy offices one day, nervously studying the growing pile of unpaid bills. Suddenly he realized he was definitely facing bankruptcy unless the Hartley account materialized within the month. He had little margin for unprofitable business, and he had overstepped all reasonable bounds in dealing with Abe. His brow furrowed in worry, he went to the phone on the wall and called Abe.

"Hello, Zimmerman. This is me, Igor," he said when the connection was complete. "I haven't heard from you in two-three days. Maybe you have some good news for me now, eh?"

Incredulous amazement was written on Igor's face when he heard Abe's voice. Igor shouted back: "What do you mean the last job was not any good. I ran it off myself; there was no offset on that job. It was a perfect piece of work. Say, listen, you can't pull any of that stuff on me. You'll pay me for that job, or by God—Say, Abe, I can't stand no more losses on your account. And if I don't get that money I'm about washed up. You and your promises, I get eyestrain watching for the color of that Hartley money."

Igor slammed up the received and stumbled blindly into his chair. He was mumbling to himself, "The rat, the dirty low-lifer. Now he wants to get out of paying anything at all for my work, does he? We'll see—." Suddenly a look of cunning crossed his swarthy face as he decided on a daring move. He would call the Hartley offices himself pretend he was representing Abe if necessary. He had to know how much longer before he could expect to get the Hartley business and start to make up some of his losses. Quickly he called the publishers, and beads of perspiration sprung out on his forehead as he heard their answer.

"You can't mean it? That contract couldn't have been awarded last month. Why just to-day Zimmerman told me—," and he let the received drop nervously from his hand while he leaned heavily against the wall.

He had it on direct authority at last that the much vaunted Hartley account had been awarded as long ago as last month, and to "some printers who have been working hand-in-glove with Acme, our representative." So that's the kind of a crook Abe had turned out to be, Igor fumed. Probably had several other printers and engravers, too, whom he was bribing on similar terms, literally taking his unearned profits out of their perspiring hides.

Igor took one despairing look at the unpaid bills that tumbled wildly over his battered desk, remembered that Abe had refused to pay him for the last job on some trumped-up charge of poor work—then he considered this last devastating news. Abe had known for a month there was no chance for Igor, in fact had personally awarded the contract elsewhere. Probably he had extracted a bigger cut from this other printer! As Igor's mind raced over and over these facts he paced the cement floor nervously. A lifetime's business ruined because of the greed of one man. It wasn't to be borne!

Suddenly he stopped dead in his tracks. There was one way to stop the man, stop him forever! As he thought of a plan of retribution he sneered at the probable cost of this last rash act. He had nothing more to lose.

In his half-maddened state it was easy to work himself into the necessary frenzy to carry out his threat. Deep in the back of his bottom drawer he unearthed a treacherous looking revolver, fondled it lovingly. "You'll talk to Abe for me, won't you?" he said, and there was little sign of sanity left in the face, now completely bathed in sweat. "You'll make him stop his infernal cheating, won't you, my pet?" he said softly, then hid the weapon in his almost thread-bare overcoat.

Like a sleepwalker Igor left his office, and headed straight for the Fine Arts building. His steps were deliberate, his eyes fixed in an unseeing stare. Once at the building, he automatically stepped into the elevator and rode to the fourth floor.

As he opened the door of the Acme office, he glanced bitterly at the gaudy trappings: the shining chromium, the mirrors, and the rug. Viciously, he spat upon the swirling pattern of green and gold. Pounding on Maxie's desk with his ink-grimed hand, he demanded to see Abe. "Tell him we can't wait," he said, hugging his weapon to him. He felt a new confidence when he realized the threat he held so close against his side.

"You better see him," Maizie said to Abe nervously, when Abe sent his stereotyped reply that he was not in. Something in her voice made Abe change his mind, so he said suddenly, "Well, let him come." He knew he had an unpleasant interview ahead of him, and lighted a cigar to fortify himself against the ordeal.

Igor was almost speechless by the time he was ushered into the pretentious offices.

"I know, I know," he said in a deliberate monotone, drained of all expression. "I've just found out that you have been cheating me out of my very life. I have talked to Hartley. Now I will talk to you. Pah!" And again he spat, this time onto the gleaming desk where Abe sat.

"None of that, you hear," said Abe nervously. Suddenly he realized that he had a madman to deal with, and he didn't want to antagonize him unnecessarily. Better let him talk and rave until he got through, then he'd go quietly enough. But Abe had not reckoned on the vindictive little Igor, who had been so maliciously trampled under his feet as Abe climbed higher and higher.

"I spit where I want to," he said almost ridiculously. "What I want to know is why you try to fool Igor about that Hartley work. For one whole long month you've known I wouldn't get that contract—but you've forced me to cut prices so that I could keep in good with you. And for what. What good can you ever do me, you double-crossing rat. What good have you ever done for anybody except your own fat self. Fathead, that's what you are!"

Igor stopped for breath, and Abe looked around helplessly. He never was one to court physical danger and he wondered to what lengths Igor's madness would lead him. Slyly he pressed the buzzer on his desk, while he mumbled an answer. "Oh no, Igor. Not me. You got me wrong. Why I have been trying to help you along. That was only a little account we awarded: there's a bigger Hartley one coming your way. You'd rather—"

Walt Hartley came in from his adjoining office to face the cowering Abe.

"What's this, a game of mide-and-seek?" he said facetiously, then followed Abe's terrified glance to the corner where the threatening Igor stood. His accuser was a scant five feet four inches, but his vibrant anger gave him impressive size. Even Walt felt uneasy as he sensed the desperate vengeance of this man.

"If you've gotten yourself into a mess, you get out of it," Walt disclaimed loudly. "You can't involve me. I'm clear of it, clear."

"Why, you welcher. You put the idea in my head, how we could keep these fellows on the string—." Too late Abe realized that he had admitted his guilt in front of the desperate little printer. Even as he spoke, he saw the gleam of triumph flash across that swarthy face.

"You see, I knew it," Igor said with deadly calm. Then suddenly his voice raised to a shriek as he produced his revolver and waved it menacingly. The gleaming barrel pointed alternately at Abe and Walt while the little man enjoyed his moment of triumph. "Well, now," he shouted, "let's see what you have to say to this!"

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ADVENTURE STUMP

"Take a smell, Mr. Fox. Take a smell," invited the Bob Cat one day as the two Bad Chaps met in the woods. "It's a lovely flower," mewed the Bob Cat. "Take a smell!"

He held a blossom close to the nose of the Fox but that Bad Chap jumped back quickly and cried out: "Ouch! Don't touch my nose."

"What, not even with a flower to smell?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Not even with a cobweb," said the Fox. "My nose is very sore."

"What from?" asked the Bob Cat.

"From Uncle Wiggily," growled the Fox. "He scratched my nose with a pine cone. But I'll fix him for it! I'll fix him!"

"How?" asked the other Bad Chap, hoping the Fox wasn't taking too much notice of the silly little tall Bobbie had behind him.

Has a Plan

"I'm going to sit on his adventure stump until he comes along and then I'll get him!" growled the Fox, putting out his tongue gently to touch the end of his sore nose.

"What is Uncle Wiggily's adventure stump?" asked the Bob Cat.

"It's a big flat stump in the woods and right behind it is a hollow tree that Uncle Wiggily uses for a backrest when he sits on the stump," answered the Fox.

"Why does he sit on the stump?" the Bob Cat wanted to know.

"To wait for adventures," answered the Fox. "But this time I shall be his adventure and I'll pay him back for pine cone scratching my nose. Burr-r-r-r-r! How it hurts."

"Well, good luck to you," purred the Bob Cat as he slunk away.

The Fox thought he had a very clever trick to catch Uncle Wiggily. As the Bad Chap told the Bob Cat, there was a flat stump in the woods, close to a tall, hollow tree. The rabbit gentleman often sat on this stump on pleasant days and sometimes adventures would come to him. Sometimes he would go to them.

"And this time Uncle Wiggily will come to me," giggled the Fox as he sat down on the flat stump and leaned back against the hollow tree. "Ha! Ha! Ha! Won't he be surprised!"

About this same time Uncle Wiggily left his camping tent to hop to the woods to look for an adventure.

"Do you want to come with me?" he asked Buster, a boy rabbit.

Expects Visitors

"Thank you," Daddy, but I must stay around the tent to wait for Johnnie and Billie Bushytail," answered Buster. "The squirrel boys are coming to visit me today."

"If I see them in the woods I'll tell them you are waiting," said Mr. Longears. Then he hopped toward the adventure stump where the Fox was sitting waiting for him. Only Mr. Longears didn't know this.

Soon Johnnie and Billie came scampering through the woods. When they saw the stump and the Fox sitting on it, right away those squirrel boys knew the Bad Chap was waiting for Uncle Wiggily. They could tell it just by looking at him.

"Say, I know how to drive the Fox away," said Billie.

"How?" asked Johnnie.

"I'll climb up inside the hollow tree. Then I'll climb down inside it and through a hole I'll bite the fox from behind," said Billie.

"Go ahead, do it!" whispered Johnnie. "I'll stay out in front high up in another tree, where the Fox can't get me. I'll rustle leaves so he won't turn around and see you come out the hole in the bottom of the hollow tree."

So the two squirrel boys got ready to play their trick. The Fox sat waiting on the adventure stump and Uncle Wiggily was coming.

Something funny is going to happen. It will be told of in the next story—Uncle Wiggily's laugh. But please don't let the radio turn into a refrigerator and make ice cubes when it should play tag.

BAILIEBORO

NOT ENOUGH RUST TO INJURE GRAIN

Bailieboro Expects Wheat Yield of 25 to 50 Bushels Per Acre.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, July 27.—The major portion of the fall wheat crop of the district is now cut and stooked and farmers report some rust but in very few fields sufficient to have injured the quality of the grain.

It is generally believed that fall wheat this season in the immediate district will yield from twenty-five to fifty bushels per acre, depending largely upon the condition of the soil and the lay of the land as many acres are sowed each year lacking proper cultivation as well as nourishment, while other fields are sowed on soil not adapted to fall wheat and therefore reap a lesser yield.

W. D. Hibbard, residing on the north shore of Rice Lake, sowed two fields which have been sowed to wheat for three years in succession without having added and barnyard manure or commercial fertilizer to the soil and for the third successive year has a fair crop of wheat.

Barring continued wet weather this week much of the 1937 wheat crop will be safely under cover and ready for threshing.

The rust in some crops of late oats which up to a week ago looked promising are proving a disaster to the late oat crop. The earlier varieties however are now well filled and promising a bumper yield. Barley is also promising and beginning to ripen.

Peas in most fields are far below par and the yield will generally be poor.

TAMMANY LEADER J. J. DOOLING DIES

In Midst of Party's Bitterest Struggle—Backing Senator Copeland.

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—James J. Dooling, Tammany Hall chieftan, died of a stroke Monday at his home in Bell Harbor, Queens.

Dooling, 44, had been in ill health for months. He was one of the youngest men ever to rise to leadership of Tammany.

Dooling's death came in the midst of the bitterest struggle in Tammany's long history.

An anti-new dealer, Dooling backed as a candidate for New York's Mayorality next fall United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, new deal foe, although leaders of the other four county Democratic organizations, new deal sympathizers, agreed on Grover A. Whalen as candidate.

Dooling managed to put through Copeland as Tammany candidate for the mayorality primaries against a revolt of Whalen sympathizers.

Immediately after his victory, Whalen backers started a drive to take his leadership away from him. Dooling, although dying, responded by advising in the setting up of pro-Copeland organizations in the four counties in the city not controlled by Tammany.

MADRID MASSES HER ACE TROOPS

Battle See-Saws For Days Without Let-up 18 Miles West of Capital.

MADRID, July 27—(AP).—Crack Spanish government troops massed before Villanueva de la Canada today to halt the drive that swept Insurgent troops into Brunete, spearhead of the government's western salient.

Locked in battle for command of the siege lines west of Madrid, Insurgent and government commanders threw into great combat the greatest war machines yet assembled in the year-old civil war.

Military observers believed the fate of the government's attempt to lift the Madrid siege might hinge on the Villanueva battle. The town, 18 miles west of the capital, is the key to communication lines in the 100-square-mile wedge driven by General Jose Miaja into the Insurgent lines.

The government announced Brunete fell before a withering Insurgent attack yesterday.

"The enemy displayed formidable resistance and with the aid of its aviation and artillery succeeded in foiling our advance, and captured Brunete," said a government communique.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's reinforced army east of Brunete drove deep into territory won in the government's two-week offensive and forced Gen. Miaja's troops back with heavy casualties.

The Brunete battle raged all day yesterday and far into the night government squadrons took to the air when Insurgent airmen swooped low over the government lines, spitting lead. The government air attack swept a wide territory from Villa Viciosa de Ordon, south of Brunete, to the Insurgent concentrations on the right bank of the Guardarrama River which is east of Villanueva de la Canada.

Three Fiat (Italian) fighting planes were reported shot down in one encounter with government patrols while official reports said the government lost only one.

Insurgent reports, however, claimed far heavier casualties had been inflicted on the government's air forces with 15 planes shot down in Sunday's battle alone.

RAWDON FARMER DISAPPEARS ON HIS WAY HOME

CHINESE SMASH JAPS IN FIRST MAJOR BATTLE

Take Fengtai, Invaders' Field Headquarters, West of Peiping, By Storm.

NIPPONESE DENY IT.

Rioting Reported in City as Tokyo's Bombers Stage Raid.

SHANGHAI, July 28.—(AP.—The Foreign Office announced to-day Gen. Sung Chen-Yuan's 29th Chinese Army had smashed the Japanese drive against Peiping in the first major battle of an undeclared war between China and Japan.

Chinese troops, defending their right to garrison the North China provinces of Hopeh and Chahar, were reported to have reformed their lines and after a dawn bombardment by squadrons of Japanese warplanes, counter-attacked and captured Fengtai, Japanese field headquarters west of Peiping.

The Foreign Office announcement at Nanking said that the strategic railway centre of Langfang, 30 miles south of Peiping and mid-point on the military line to Tientsin, had been taken by storm.

Japanese military quarters denied reports of Chinese victories and asserted the 29th army had been driven out of its garrison stronghold at Nanyuan, five miles south of the ancient, walled city.

The Japanese attacked at dawn after Chinese had refused an ultimatum to withdraw from North China where Japan asserts she has preferred economic rights. It was the largest scale fighting since the first hostilities occurred west of Peiping July 7.

The intermittent fighting since that time, despite what Japanese claimed were promises to withdraw anti-Japanese troops, had convinced them, the High Command declared, that the only way to safeguard Japanese nationals and interests was to drive out the Chinese troops. Last midnight, the Japanese declared they would take "free action" in the crisis and six hours later the general advance was ordered.

Rioting in Peiping

Rioting was said to have broken out in Peiping as Japanese bombing planes attacked the environs of the beleaguered city. Neither report could be confirmed.

Rifle firing was said to be sporadic in the streets and Chinese reports said an American embassy guard had been wounded when he was caught between the lines of Japanese and Chinese fighting near Peiping's principal shopping thoroughfare.

Chinese troops instead of obeying the Japanese demand to evacuate were digging trenches in the streets and criss-crossing the city with formidable barricades. The Japanese embassy guard called out its civilian reserves and issued them uniforms and ammunition.

Chinese claimed that in addition to their victories at Fengtai and Langfang they had destroyed the

6 DEAD, 21 INJURED IN BARBADOS RIOT

British Warship Lands Marines After Street Battles Rage 36 Hours.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, July 28—(CP Cable)—The British battleship Appollo landed marines here today to enforce order in a quietened city where 36 hours of rioting had left a known toll of six dead and 21 injured.

Police said there had been one flareup today after the marines were landed, but claimed the city was "quiet" after a period of violent disorder Monday night and yesterday.

The situation remained "tense," however, and Governor Murchison Fletcher issued a proclamation appealing for restoration of order and offering his services in investigating and attempting to remove any grievances rioters might have.

Disorders were at their most serious stage yesterday when rioting laborers formed a mob and smashed shop windows, broke the glass in automobiles and pushed some into the sea. Buses were dismantled by the rioters and transportation in the city was brought to a standstill.

It was then that police exchanged their batons for arms, formed a company and placed themselves before an advancing mob. The riot act was read to the unruly crowd, but it refused to disperse.

The police were then ordered to fire and two rioters were killed by shots from the volley.

Rioting raged unchecked in Bridgetown streets today, 36 hours after street fighting broke out Monday.

Police were forced to fire shots yesterday above the heads of a mob of rioters before they would disperse. Fighting broke out again later and has continued unchecked.

Level Crossing Crash Kills 5 Near Sudbury

Family Wiped Out, One Friend Jumps In Nick Of Time

Survivor Claims Driver Saw Flyer and Tried to Back Off Tracks.

LOSES HUSBAND AND SON.

Wreckage Hurled 50 Feet—Second Car Clears Tracks By Inches.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 28 (CP).—Death rode the Soo Flyer late last night, smashing a stalled automobile to wreckage at a level crossing here and claiming the lives of its five occupants. A sixth passenger escaped by a split second as she jumped from the car to safety.

The dead:

Aksel Lamplle, 46, died in ambulance on way to hospital.

Limpi Lamplle, 45, his wife, died in motor car on way to hospital.

John Tuuri, 40, killed instantly.

Oliver Tuuri, his 4-year-old son, killed instantly.

Mrs. Hilda Tuuri, 42, wife of John, saved herself by jumping from the doomed machine as the flyer thundered towards the crossing. In panic, she ran from the scene to her home, several blocks away and was hysterical when later found.

All five victims lived in Sudbury and the crash wiped out the entire Lamplle family in Canada. It occurred at the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing of Long Lake Road, just outside the city limits. The Sault Ste. Marie-Sudbury flyer, No. 28 was in charge of conductor J. D. Wilson of Sudbury.

Lamplle at the wheel of the automobile descended a slight incline to the railway track and then, for some unexplained reason, stalled diagonally on the track. Mrs. Tuuri slipped out just before the locomotive ploughed into the machine and its helpless occupants.

Car Hurled 46 Feet.

The terrific impact sent the automobile flying 46 feet, strewing pieces of wreckage along both sides of the track. By some odd freak, however, the headlights still burned when the first spectators arrived. The car had

Auto Is Dominion's Major Death Agent

Suicides numbered 922, homicides 136, drownings 781, railway accidents 238, street-car accidents 28 accidents in mines and quarries 138, and airplanes 16.

BROADER DIVORCE LAWS FOR CANADA SENATOR ADVISES

Would Involve Legislation Predating Confederation—Adultery Been Only Basis.

1,526 CASES LAST YEAR.

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).— Extension of the grounds for divorce in Great Britain has raised the question as to whether similar action might be taken in Canada.

Yesterday at Winnipeg Senator McMeans, member of the Senate Divorce committee, asserted divorce laws should be broadened, and support for the British divorce bill was voiced here by Senator Cairine Wilson while the bill was before the Commons at Westminster.

The bill which went through final stages of the British House a few days ago includes desertion, cruelty and insanity as grounds for dissolution of marriage. Canada has always adhered to the old tradition of British law adultery is the only basis for divorce.

To alter that tradition here would involve legal and constitutional questions dating back before Confederation.

The British North America Act enumerates "marriage and divorce" among subjects in Section 91 over which the Dominion has jurisdiction and for many years after Confederation nearly all applications for divorce came before the Parliament of Canada in the form of petitions for relief.

Under Section 129, however, it was provided laws already in effect in provinces joining the union were to be preserved. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had passed divorce legislation prior to Confederation, Prince Edward Island had a court with jurisdiction over marriage and divorce since 1835, although few if any cases have ever been presented to it.

Ontario Made No Claim

By a proclamation of Sir James Douglas, then Governor, British Columbia established courts with jurisdiction over divorce in 1858. Ontario and Quebec laid no claim to jurisdiction and the right of courts of the Prairie Provinces to hear divorce actions was in doubt.

Since 1918, however, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta courts have dealt with divorce following a decision of the Privy Council that the English divorce law formed a part of their laws and accordingly their judges had jurisdiction.

In 1930 an act by the Dominion Parliament conferred on Supreme Court of Ontario the power to handle divorces. Quebec is without divorce courts.

In the opinion of constitutional

Belfast Is Rocked By Gas Main Blast As Royalty Enters Explosion, Heard By King and Queen, Occurs Half Mile From Their Route.

CORONATION VISIT.

Million Spectators Turn Out For Welcome—Violence Flares on Border.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 28.—(AP).—A wide area of Belfast was rocked by the explosion of a gas main to-day, only half a mile from where the King and Queen were travelling to the city hall on their Coronation visit.

The King and Queen themselves heard the blast. The noise carried for miles throughout the city. A customs building near the main was badly damaged.

The explosion—whether it was accidental or planned—came as a climax to a carefully-laid campaign of terrorism which flared along the Irish Free State frontier a few hours before the arrival of the Royal party in Belfast.

Apparently the only casualty of the gas explosion was a child, playing nearby. The child was only slightly hurt. Every pane of glass within a 300-yard radius of the shattered main was broken.

The King and Queen were in an automobile, between lines of soldiers and police, on their way to the city hall for the first ceremonies of their one-day visit to Ulster.

More than 1,000,000 spectators had turned out to welcome them.

But the blast and the incidents along the Free State border did nothing to diminish the enthusiasm of the thronged capital. As the Royal party landed booming guns and sirens joined with the cheers of thousands to welcome the King and Queen.

First Visit in 13 Years

In an address at the city hall the King said:

"Thirteen years ago the Queen and I paid our first visit to Northern Ireland. Though a long time has passed it has remained fresh in our memory and we have always hoped for an opportunity of returning to your beautiful country.

"The Queen and I have now come on our coronation visit. We cannot thank you enough for the kindness and warmth of the welcome you have given us. We are delighted to find ourselves among you once again to renew our increasing prosperity and happiness."

THINK STRANGLER PLANNED CRIME

Pretty Wife of Prisoner Supplies Jealousy Motive in Death of Broker's Spouse.

NEW YORK, July 28. —(AP)— A jealousy motive supplied by an estranged wife led District Attorney Charles Sullivan to demand the death penalty today for Stanley A. Martin, Jr., 29-year-old confessed slayer of a Wall Street broker's wife.

Sullivan said the new motive, volunteered by Mrs. Evelyn Martin, pretty wife of the philandering killer, was evidence Martin strangled his victim by design and not—as he insists—"because she asked me to."

The victim, Mrs. Florence Jackson, 39, mother of two small children, was found dead, with her arms clutched around Martin's shoulders, as he drove her around yesterday. She had been garroted with the red leather belt of her dress.

Mrs. Martin told the district attorney that some weeks ago her husband, commenting on his illicit love affair with Mrs. Jackson, declared:

"I'm going to kill her because she is making me jealous."

She said her husband also remarked once before he had tried to "choke that woman."

He discussed his clandestine relations with the older woman in frequent conversations with her, Mrs. Martin said, adding that he was almost garrulous in disclosing details of their gay drinking parties and amorous dalliance.

FOUR AIRPLANES BANNED FROM AIR AT SUDBURY BASE

Private Pilots Reported Flying Without Proper Certificates and Stunting.

FRIGHTENING RESIDENTS.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 28 (CP.)—Four of the five privately-owned airplanes using Sudbury as a base were unofficially reported grounded today pending an investigation by officials of the Civil Aviation Branch of the Department of Transport next week.

The planes were grounded for breach of flying regulations, it was understood, including flying without certificate of airworthiness and failure to effect proper repairs.

The machines affected include one which stunted at a low altitude over the Ontario Refining Company on Monday, alarming employees of the plant. A complaint was registered by Chief Constable James Ramesbottom and the reports to be submitted to the Department by the inspectors will determine subsequent action, if any.

Oshawa, July 28, (Special).

TAKING their cue from the success of the Toronto police games, the South Ontario Agricultural Society will stage a beauty contest at the Oshawa Fair, Sept. 11 and 12, R. B. Faith, Secretary of the board, stated today.

To discover "Miss Oshawa," the contest will be arranged in two groups, girls from 12 to 16 and from 16 to 20. The first and second of each group will then stand for final selection in front of the grandstand. The fair will be opened by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce, and many other features of general interest to rural and city folk are planned by the directors.

REBELS IGNORING BRITISH DEMAND TO RELEASE CARGO

Laborite Asks What Eden Intends to Do—Order Defied 3 Months.

MINISTER CONSIDERS.

LONDON, July 28.—(CP Cable)—Questions over Spain again rattled across the floor of the House of Commons today.

F. B. Cocks, Labor, opened the exchange by asking whether General Franco had yet complied with the British government's demand for the immediate release of the "Fernando L. de Barra."

When Foreign Secretary Eden replied "no," Cocks declared it is now three months since immediate release of the cargo had been demanded. How long, Cocks wanted to know, was the Empire going to put up with this impudent "rebel."

His remarks brought cheers and shouts of dissent. Eden, while not accepting the description of the situation, agreed the position was unsatisfactory. He said he was considering what further action to take.

From the Conservative benches, Sir Alfred Knox asked the government whether the Spanish embassy in London was engaged in propaganda.

Eden replied that the conditions attached to embassies were that they should not interfere with the internal affairs of the countries to which the ambassador was accredited and should not do anything to disturb friendly relations between the British government and a foreign government. So far as he was aware, the Spanish embassy in London had not infringed on these conditions. The reply was greeted by cheers from the Labor benches.

G. R. Strauss, Labor, asked whether a large number of Italian troops had landed in Spain in the last few days. "I have no information to substantiate the report," Eden replied.

Guns No Menace.

Questions about Franco's famous guns in Algeciras Bay were countered by references to last night's statement by Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coordination of defence, that neither in number nor size do the guns threaten Gibraltar.

Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, was the centre of a passing storm over British merchant ships seized by Franco in Spanish territorial waters. Had these ships, asked Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, committed illegal acts? So far as I am aware, the answer is in the negative," Duff Cooper replied.

"Is it not clear that the ships

Later Reports However Cause Another Theory as His Disappearance.

HARNESS UNHITCHED.

Some People Think Man Not Hurt But Merely Gone Away.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28.—Later details in connection with the disappearance of Fred Thain that came to light this afternoon lead to the opinion in some quarters that the missing man was not hurt but has merely left the district, leaving what purported to be evidence of an accident. In support of that theory it is pointed out that part of the harness had been unhitched. One of the traces was broken and the britching strap missing, although there is a report that part of the missing trace was found near a swamp. It has been ascertained that Harry Petherick saw Thain after Lloyd had met the man. Thain was then two miles from home and was driving his horse attached to a buggy.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — No trace had been found early this afternoon of Fred Thain, thirty-eight-year-old Rawdon Township farmer, who has been missing since Tuesday night, disappearing on his way home from Campbellford, where he had been on business.

The first intimation that anything had happened to Thain was early last evening when the horse he had been driving ran home minus the buggy. A search was instituted and the vehicle was found in the ditch by the side of the road a quarter of a mile from the man's home, but there was no sign of Thain.

The alarm was given and Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell of Campbellford and a posse of friends and neighbors searched the surrounding district without locating the missing man, who, it is thought, was injured and dazed in an accident and wandered away from the road.

Thain came into Campbellford on business yesterday morning, and so far as is known left for home around 3 o'clock. He was seen on the road a little later by Garnet Lloyd.

The missing man is married and the father of three children.

FOUL PLAY UNLIKELY.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 28. — Inspector Frank Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police, said to-day the body of Fred Thain was expected to be found in the bushes near Campbellford. Police and farmers have searched for the body today without success.

"There is no suggestion or suspicion of foul play," Inspector Gardner said after receiving a report from Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell, of Campbellford.

GERMANY STORING WHEAT AND RYE

Bought Ten Times as Much as Last Year—Canada Benefitting.

LONDON, July 28 (C.P.).—Faced with a sharp reduction in domestic production and cognizant of the possibility of a serious shortage in 1938, Germany has been storing up supplies of wheat, rye and other grains to meet the normal demands of her people and for national emergency.

Latest official figures on grain imports show Germany has bought more than 10 times as much wheat from January to June, 1937, compared with the corresponding period of 1936.

In Berlin last night, Walter Darre, Minister of Agriculture, announced a decree whereby prison terms at hard labor and high fines would be penalties for feeding wheat or rye to animals. Wheat purchases exceeded 22,000,000 bushels at a cost of approximately $30,000,000 or an average of about $1.35 a bushel. For the corresponding period in 1936 imports were only about 2,000,000 bushels at an average price of 67 cents.

Rye imports also show an enormous increase, with a total of nearly 3,500,000 bushels against 500,000 bushels from January to June, 1936.

Canada has shared to a considerable extent in this accelerated grain-buying policy, but Germany has also replenished her bins with large imports from Australia, India, and Danubian countries. She has had to find the money for Canadian, Australian and Indian grain, but most of her business with Rumania and Czechoslovakia has been on a barter basis.

Transparent Pianos Feature Modernized Instrument Show

What Happens When You Play a Chopin Prelude Is No Longer Mystery

GOURD OFF MANDOLINS.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(AP)— If little Maisie's music teacher gets an eyeful of the 36th annual Music Industries Convention here this week, she will probably imagine she has strayed into surrealist's heaven.

Five floors of a downtown hotel are given over to showing what has happened to the family of musical instruments, sedate and frivolous, under the impact of the streamlining age.

There is, for instance, a transparent piano with blue sharps and flats and lavendar naturals. The transparency is achieved by constructing the instrument's casing of cellulose acetate, so that what happens inside when you play a Chopin prelude is no longer a mystery. The functioning of the piano's "action" is visible to all.

There is a mandolin without a gourd, according to instrument stylists. It's just as good an instrument tonally and a good bit more sightly with the cumbrous bowl lopped off.

Mrs. Miller was found swimming in the bay while fully clothed.

Britain Not Neglecting Air Defence Inskip Assures Worried Opposition

London, July 28 (AP).

FOR comfort in her anxiety over air raids in the event of a European war, Great Britain today had the assurance of her defence co-ordination minister "very remarkable results" had been achieved in air defence research.

Answering opposition speeches in the House of Commons last night on home defence measures, Sir Thomas Inskip said "This is a very vulnerable community in London but there are other communities almost equally vulnerable —for instance, the Coventry district (industrial heart of the Midlands) and our naval ports."

Referring to a statement by Sir Arthur Salter, Independent, the minister said:

"When the honorable gentleman speaks about storing foodstuffs not in ports which are very vulnerable but in some places further inland he has perhaps overlooked how almost every part of this country would become vulnerable if it was likely to attract an enemy."

Sir Thomas hinted the civil community might be given immunity from attacks within a few years as the result of certain methods of defence which the Air Ministry is devising. He did not detail these.

Winston Churchill joined the opposition in criticism of the government's program and asked for an official statement on foreign gun emplacements on the Spanish mainland near Gibraltar.

Sir Thomas replied that the guns mounted on Spanish insurgent soil, were "few in number, and neither in number nor size do they threaten Gibraltar."

BOTH FUGITIVES ESCAPE.

One Later Surrenders—Victim House Hunting When Pair Crash His Car.

TORONTO, July 28 (C.P.).—Shot by police as he attempted to aid them capture two fugitives, Reginald Young, 28, Ontario Civil Servant, was reported in good condition in hospital to-day as preparations were made for an operation to remove the bullet. The fugitives were held in custody on charges of automobile theft.

Young was shot by Constable William Mitchell, who with Constable Lloyd Kennedy was chasing two men in an automobile. Young saw the chase and grappled with Vernon Fritzley, Toronto, in a blind alley. The second man, Leslie Holmes, also of Toronto, ran off as Young was shot, and police gave up the chase to take him to hospital. Holmes later gave himself up.

Young with his wife and five-year-old daughter was inspecting a vacant house after parking his automobile near the alley where he was shot. He heard a crash and saw another machine stop near his and two men leap out. One headed up the alley, the other down the street.

Just then a police cruiser with Constables Mitchell and Kennedy drew up, and Young, realizing they were after the men who had abandoned the car, started after the man in the alley. As he grappled with him the constables fired, one bullet striking Young.

INDIAN ATHLETE GREETS PREMIER

Boyhood Chums Have Gone Far In Their Respective Fields

REGINA, July 28—(CP).—Back in the early 1900's a white boy and an Indian lad played together in the Grenfell district, and recently the pair—Premier W. J. Patterson of Saskatchewan and Paul Acoose, famed athlete, met to talk over the old days.

Paul Acoose, now a grandfather at the age of 52, has passed his heyday as a track man, but he still holds the unofficial world's record for the 15-mile distance. He ran it in one hour and 22 minutes in Toronto in 1909. The same year he defeated Tom Longboat, most famous of all Indian runners. For a week the soft-spoken Saiteau held the world's acclaim until beaten by the Englishman, Appleby, in Winnipeg.

That was in 1908. Premier Patterson, then manager of the Dominion bank in Grenfell, recognized his friend's abilities and acting as his manager, obtained a trainer for him.

The Indian, who journeyed to the File Hills Agency when the premier visited there to see his old friend, comes of a family of runners. Legend has it that his father chased seven elk for three days from Moose Mountain area to the Crooked Lake district, and finally overcame and clubbed them to death.

Paul is a little more modest in his version of the parental exploit, admitting instead of clubbing the harried animals he used a muzzle loaded for the coup-de-grace.

SLIT 1,000 THROATS IS BOAST OF GIRL AT SPANISH FRONT

Wounded Rebels the Victims—Loyalists Refuse to Let Her Back in Front Lines.

BETTER AT PROPAGANDA.

PARIS, July 28 (U.P.).—Senorita Pilara la Fuente, 22-year-old girl anarchist of the Spanish Loyalists who boasts of having slit the throats of 1,000 wounded rebels, was forbidden last night to return to the fighting ranks.

Pilara, known as "La Libertaria" among her comrades, is in a hospital at Gijon, on the Biscay coast, recuperating from wounds received in the bitter fighting around Oviedo last February.

The Loyalist high command decided to keep the bobbed-haired "Red Carmen" away from the front lines and use her for propaganda work among Spain's women.

The decision was made after the death yesterday of Gerda Taro, Polish newspaperwoman and war correspondent of the Paris Communist newspaper Ce Soir, on the Brunete front west of Madrid. Gerda, who was 26 years old, was rallying the International Brigade of the Loyalist armies to a counter-attack against Brunete when she was killed. As she stood on the running board of an automobile, shouting to the troops, a rumbling tank slipped and sideswiped the car.

"La Libertaria" had been regarded among the Loyalist troops as the successor to "La Passionaria," swarthy Asturian woman whose real name is Dolores Ibarruri and who was the first woman to carry a gun into battle in Spain. "La Passionaria," whose husband is a Communist functionary in Russia, has given up fighting and is giving nightly radio talks to women from a Valencia station. A Loyalist regiment still bears her name, however.

Arrangements Made For Street Carnival

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28.—Earl A. Bell, general chairman of the Street Fair committee, reported on the plans being made for the Rotary Carnival, August 10, at the weekly luncheon in the St. Lawrence Hotel, on Monday. In the absence of a speaker the time was entirely taken up with the discussion of the Carnival, which is to be held on the parking lot at the north end of Front street. Several new innovations for the fair were suggested, including pony races and archery contest.

GENERAL MOTORS EARNINGS SLUMP

Second Quarter of 1937 Shows Drop of $22,377,277 —Blame Strikes, Higher Costs.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Net earnings of General Motors Corp. in the second quarter of 1937, declined $22,377,277 compared with the similar period of a year ago, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman, announced in a financial statement yesterday.

He blamed "materially higher costs" together with inability, because of strikes to make full use of production capacities. After assailing inability of labor leadership to control its own followers he suggested a "proper respect" for understandings with industry might have to be "superimposed from without by due process of law."

Directly referring to the United Automobile Workers of America, he asserted:

"It cannot be said that so far the United Automobile Workers of America have proven themselves to be a responsible body, with ability to live up to their contractual obligations.

"Manifestly, neither industry in general, nor General Motors in particular, can be expected to long tolerate such a complete disregard of its own rights."

Net earnings for the three-months period, he said, totalled $66,731,100, including a non-operating profit of $1,473,079, equal to $1.48 a share on the common stock after preferred stock requirements. This compared with $88,108,372 or $2 a share in the second quarter of 1936.

For the first six months net earnings were placed at $110,546,266, or $2.47 a share against $140,572,846, or $3.17 a shore in the corresponding period last year.

NO DRIVER NAMED BY PORT HOPE JURY DEATH TWO WOMEN

Cyrus Ashton, Found Near Machine, Claims He Was Victim Also.

BRUSHED BY FENDER.

PORT HOPE, Ont., July 28—(CP)—An open verdict was returned here last night by a coroner's jury inquiring into the deaths of Mrs. Edgar Neal of Detroit, and Miss Kathleen Freer, who died Thursday as the result of injuries suffered when struck by a car on a bridge crossing the Ganaraska River.

The jury found the car was owned by Richard Lees, of Port Hope, but was driven by a person or persons unknown. Since the accident Cyrus Ashton, of Port Hope, has been held on a charge of manslaughter but last night he denied he was driver of the ill-fated machine.

Ashton was found in a dazed condition about 100 yards from the scene by police and others who conducted a search after the crash. He claimed that he had walked from the corner of Walton and Ontario streets, a distance of about one mile, to the point where the accident took place.

Girls Pick Ashton

Two girls, Miss Bessie Balmforth and Miss Mary Hulin, employed at the Summer School of the Ontario College of Art, which is close to the bridge against which the car crashed after striking the two women who were walking along the roadway, testified that when they arrived Ashton was lying on the ground on the left side of the car. When they returned he had disappeared. On the day following both girls picked Ashton from a police lineup as the man they saw at the car.

Ashton claimed he intended to go for a swim in the river, but finding the water too cold was walking back toward town when a car approaching from the south crossed from the right to the left side of the road and brushed him with a fender before hitting the bridge. He declared he did not see the two women who were killed at any time. Ashton said he had been working on the death car a couple of days before and that he had left one of two or three caps he owned in the car. He claimed he could not remember anything after being brushed by the car until he was found by police lying in a patch of weeds and grass.

Little Damage Done In Millbrook Fire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 28.—The fire department answered an alarm on Monday about ten a.m., an incipient fire having broken out in the shed back of Allie Sloan's residence, King street centre. The origin of the fire is unknown. Fortunately but little damage was done, but the high wind at the time made any outbreak of flame exceedingly dangerous, particularly as there is a garage closely adjoining the shed where the trouble was located.

Miss L. Burton was apparently the first to notice heavy smoke issuing from the building which is just in the rear of her property, and J. Ridge, who lives a cross the creek, was also among the first on the scene. A "bucket brigade" hastily summoned from the men in the immediate vicinity had pretty well put out the fire, before the alarm could be answered, but the chemical engine soon completed the task.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 28—(CP)—Provincial police in Elgin county raided the American Hotel at Port Burwell and seized several cases of beer and three bottles of liquor.

Charges will be laid against the proprietor, Harry Butcher, and six individuals found in a room in the hotel where the beverages allegedly were being illegally dispensed.

John Howard to-day was sentenced to two months in jail and pay court costs as the result of a similar raid on the McIntyre House in Dutton. The proprietor of a Springfield hotel will also appear on charges under the Liquor Control Act, police said.

$700.00 Is Derived In Fishing Revenue

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 28. — The revenue derived from fishing licenses for Hastings and district for this month to date is in excess of $700, an Examiner correspondent learned last evening in conversation with three of the four issuers of licenses. H. G. Fairman, one of the village issuers, said that he believed that this was one of the best years for Hastings as far as American tourists were concerned, for some time.

FUTURE BRIGHTENS IN NEWFOUNDLAND

New Era of Prosperity Seen With Revenue Two Millions Over Forecast.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 28 (CP).—A feeling of confidence in the future is sweeping Newfoundland, as the long-term reconstruction program of the Commission of Government becomes known in greater detail. General opinion from city and outport is that a new era of prosperity is in sight for Britain's oldest colony.

Coming on the heels of a budget report showing revenue almost $2,000,000 higher than had been forecast, with the consequent ability to accept a smaller grant-in-aid for the year from the Government of Great Britain, announcement of a program under which approximately $6,000,000 will be spent throughout the colony in the next eight or 10 years was hailed in practically every quarter.

"We have waited three years for such a statement as the Commissioner for Finance gave us in the Budget speech," commented the News. "It was for many reasons a message of hope and an inspiration to greater confidence."

PRINTS SMART FOR AUGUST

Printed silk dress and matching coat bound in grosgrain.

July Shopping for New Dress Quite Exciting

SHOPPING these July days is an exciting experience. We expect the shops have marked down some of their smart dresses, and we can pick them up for that special occasion in August or the vacation at a fraction of their previous cost.

However, we cannot expect to get really fine materials and workmanship for too small a price. But whatever we pay for that lovely little frock that is made of such exquisite fabric and has that smart, advanced, new look, it is worth it.

Two summer frocks that are as smart as they can be and equally wearable are pictured. A thin silk dress with a matching sheer crepe coat is shown left, and makes an effective costume for summer days. This one is developed in a small, light and dark all-over print, and bound with grosgrain ribbon. Notice the drawstring neck, the gathers at the waist, the smart, broad-shouldered silhouette.

Printed Chiffon Good.

There is nothing to take the place of the printed chiffon costume in the mid-summer wardrobe. The delightful frock shown right features a magnolia printed chiffon redingote worn over a matching silk slip. It is simple enough for outdoor lunching and dining. Bright colored piping gives it further distinction.

In Paris all the fashion interest seems centered around the Exposition. The American Ambassador gave a Fourth of July party at which were an occasional American woman wearing an American version of a Paris model, and a Parisienne dressed in the French original. The principal distinction was in the length of the skirt. The Paris original was about 10 inches from the floor, the American replica was 14. The American building at the Exposition was inaugurated on this occasion.

Miss Clarke Addresses W. A. of All Saints

To hear an address by Miss G. Clarke, who is home on six weeks' leave from the mission fields in China, the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Church attended a special summer meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. John Edgar.

Miss Clarke is principal of the Women's Bible School in the Cathedral parish at Kaifeng, in Honan province, China. This parish has a new Chinese pastor, the Rev. Mr. Wong, the diocese of Honan having a Chinese bishop also since the retirement of Bishop White.

Beginning her address with an account of how, as a girl of eighteen, she felt the call to missionary life, and with an earnest plea for more prayer, and for more love and kindness to be openly shown, the speaker, with quiet sincerity, told of the work in Kaifeng, her description vividly portraying the wonderful expansion of the work in the mission fields. Four summers ago Miss Clarke returned to China, after being home on furlough, as a deaconess in the parish of the Cathedral at Kaifeng. A wonderful movement had begun at that time. Speaking of her work in connection with her Women's Bible Class, Miss Clarke described incidents showing the enthusiasm with which the true belief was grasped by the members, after once being converted. One interesting case was that of the daughter of a very high official, whose younger brother, on a visit later to his sister also became a Christian, and was for a time secretary to Miss Clarke and a great help to her in her work.

Wonderful opportunities opened when requests were received to go to the Government Normal School and to the Government Hospital to teach English. Miss Clarke held weekly classes at these institutions on the understanding that she might teach the Bible. In her class at the hospital she had a woman doctor, the superintendent of nurses, other heads of departments and twenty nurses.

The Bishop of Honan told Miss Clarke of his plan to start a Bible school in the city of Kaifeng, and placed her in charge of the work. A number of buildings behind the cathedral have been brought into use for this purpose. There is a boys' school and a girls' school and a kindergarten to which sixty little children come each day. Besides handicraft, they are taught cleanliness and discipline, with an hour of sleep every afternoon, something unheard of in their own homes.

Miss Clarke spoke of her anxiety at the organization of the Bible school that no mistakes might be made. Two terms have now been completed with an attendance of sixty-four students, ranging from illiteracy at their enrollment to a high school stage of education. The speaker closed her address with an earnest request for prayers for the mission work in China.

A vote of thanks to Miss Clarke was proposed by the Rev. P. E. Smith, in charge of the parish of All Saints' for the month of July, and was seconded by Mrs. Connolly. Mrs. Edgar also spoke in appreciation of the speaker and her splendid work.

Mr. Smith closed the meeting with prayer and the benediction: tea being then served by the hostess.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"There is work for all of us. And there is a special work for each, work which I cannot do in a crowd, or as one of a mass, but as one man, acting singly according to my gifts, and under a sense of my own responsibilities—I have a special work to do, as one individual, who, by God's plan and appointment have a separate position—a work which, if I do not do it will be left undone."

Ruskin.

Dear Friends:

Not long ago, I had a letter from one of my out-of-town friends, who suffers from arthritis, so she will know this is an answer meant to cheer and encourage her.

Now, there comes times in our lives when we think we are no longer needed. We cannot do the things we used to do (and it is not only when age overtakes us we can feel like that, for sickness and disappointment in youth can bring it on too.)

But life has changed for us, those we did so much for can look after themselves, and an empty feeling creeps into our hearts, and a nostalgia for the days that are gone, when we are so crowded with demands made on us we did not know which way to turn. We took a deal of pleasure in doing things for those we loved, but now if they have to do something for us, we deny them that pleasure by assuming we are a great deal of trouble to them.

In the words of the younger generation, "we could hand it out, but we cannot take it," and it is not so long since I had those same words said to me, when I needed some attention during a heart attack.

When you knew how to give graciously, cannot you learn to receive as graciously? You did not think you were putting others under an obligation in doing things for them, you did them willingly and lovingly.

Then why not think they do them to you the same way and in the same spirit? After all, if you keep on saying you are old and helpless, that you are no longer of any use in the world, you will first exasperate them, and then convince them what you keep repeating is true.

A lot of what others think of us is put in their minds by ourselves, and by no one else. If we draw attention to our age all the time, they will soon think of us as old. If we do the same about our lack of speed they will soon think we are slow. Left alone they would never think these things, but because of our own tongues, we plant the seed in their minds. And there is work for all of us, even if it is not what we have been accustomed to doing. Once I knew a woman, bedridden for years, and on the face of it one would wonder why God would leave her like that, for everything had been done that human hands could do, prayers had been offered, and yet there was no difference.

Yet, she was a shining light to all who came in contact with her. Few of us would want to shine at such a disadvantage to ourselves, yet she took this cross and brightened the lives of those around her, so that when she died there was a lack that never was filled.

Truly we cannot say she had never done a hand's turn for us, but it was the gracious way she accepted what we did for her that warmed our hearts. So, if you are a good giver, be a good receiver too, and never draw attention to the things you used to do which you cannot do now.

And be sure that God has a purpose for you, even if you do think you are insignificant. Once a common pin was a great value, and even altho they are now abundant, they are still mighty useful. So be the pin that binds the good in life together. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

When orders became mixed homes of hundreds of natives in Johannesburg, South Africa, were pulled down before new tenements were built, and the city has a problem in caring for them, it now being winter in that part of the world.

Studying How To Kill

J. Leon Prenn is his name. The age given is 23, and also a student in chemistry at Iowa State College. Like others of his tribe he has been experimenting and has come to a conclusion.

Just this—J. Leon Prenn has found a new gas which destroys gas masks just as efficiently as it kills human beings.

J. Leon Prenn says it is cheap stuff to manufacture from the waste products of zinc and copper smelters, oil refineries, etc. It is a combination of mustard gas and phosgene, two murderous elements used in the last war, together with an unnamed ingredient which will remove the soda lime element used in all present day gas masks.

So if J. Leon Prenn is correct there will be no use wearing a gas mask at all. His new poison gas will eat right through it and the person will be killed quickly.

If there is no known protection against gas then it will be simple enough to kill people by the thousands or the millions.

We wish J. Leon Prenn would sit down quietly for a few minutes and consider what it is he is trying to do. If he has ability as a chemist now at 23 years, he will probably have more ability when he grows older. With his ability he could probably cause people to die in misery, strangling and choking from J. Leon Prenn's pollution of God's fresh air, or he might be able to add to their comfort and margin of safety by attacking some of the causes of disease.

If he has a good set of brains—and he probably has—he can turn them toward the slaughter of women and children, or he can work as did a Lister, Pasteur and a Banting to save life and prolong it.

It is tough, cruel and malicious to see a young fellow of 23 begin a career with his mind bent toward destruction. A voice ought to speak to him like it did to Saul the day he was headed toward Damascus.

What He Said Is True

Magistrate Menzies of London, Ont., had a young man of 21 years before him, the reason being he was charged with being in possession of stolen goods. Likewise he was in possession of a revolver which had not been registered. Nor was that all. The young man of 21 also had a piece of hose plugged at both ends. When delivering sentence the magistrate remarked: "If you intend to use dangerous weapons like those you may land on the gallows."

Not likely any particular attention was paid to the remark, but it was not idle talk. The prisoner had a weapon, and the only reason why such a thing is carried is because the owner believes he may have reason to use it. If he cannot get what he wants without pulling the gun then the gun will have to come out. It is in such a way that people are shot and killed, and when they are killed the person doing the shooting forfeits his own life.

Nor would this young fellow be carrying a plugged hose for a plaything. Such a weapon is carried to strike some person in such a way that it will produce unconsciousness. It would aid in committing a crime. There was no exaggeration whatever in telling a young man of 21 years that if he persisted in the use of such equipment he might end on the scaffold. There is so much truth and fact in it that one cannot even laugh about it.

When Gold Was Used

The extent to which gold used to be used in this country was shown by a visit which a lady paid to a jeweler in Peterborough. This did not happen within recent weeks, but when the premium paid for gold was bringing out a good many pieces of the precious metal.

The lady in question was making a purchase in the store, and she inquired about the sale of some gold pieces. She had $75 in gold, in $5 and $10 gold pieces. She found she could get $6.50 in cash for each $5 gold piece.

Without making inquiries as to how long she had been holding the gold or where she secured it, the customer explained it was the last gold she had. When the farm had been sold a number of years previously the purchase price was paid in gold currency. But that was a good many years ago. There are plenty of the younger people in our country who have never seen a gold coin.

Might Read A Little

A letter arrived today without a signature, and it contained the statement of a grievance. One section was like this:

"There seems to be an utter lack of justice and there is an oppression of the poor people such as has never been seen before. Our governments have power to do what they please and they possess more power than the most autocratic rulers the world has yet known."

That indeed is a broad enough statement and it takes in a great deal of territory and quite an expanse of time. This paper is ready to admit that our governments are taking powers to themselves particularly in the way of taxation that are too broad, but when it comes to exercising power, history can show other instances which are not the equal of today.

It might be well for our unknown letter writer to read a little of the history of France in the days prior to the revolution of 1789-1799. About the time of Louis XV he will find the king possessed absolute power to make war or declare peace; arrange treaties and alliances. He could spend the entire revenue of the nation without giving an accounting; he could borrow money; he could make laws or change them, nor did he have to abide by them. He could order any person arrested and confined to the Bastille for any length of time by simply putting his signature to an order. He could make certain his favorites lived well and fat while the rest of the people starved. It was stated that in that period of French history nine-tenths of the population of France died of starvation, while one-tenth died of indigestion.

The lot of the peasant class was one of oppression such as we know nothing about. To their lords they paid tithes; they paid for the use of a wine press or a mill whether they used it or not; they paid over part of their crops and they paid rent; the lords and their friends could and did ride and hunt through the crops of the peasant tenant and he could do nothing about it. If he got a crop he knew for sure that four-fifths of it went to the word and on the remaining one-fifth he had to live and attend to wife and family. It would be well for our letter writer to do a little reading in his spare time before he comes to the conclusion that we are living under a system which is harder or more unjust than has existed elsewhere.

Is Stating Nothing New

Premier Aberhart says the people in the West are better informed in general on economic and financial matters than those living elsewhere in Canada. He also believes "They are becoming more and more assured of the fact that a province as wealthy in great and varied resources as Alberta certainly is, there should not be the suffering and privation that is to be found in their midst." From that premise Mr. Aberhart launches his appeal to the banks to come to the assistance of his party in the establishment of Social Credit.

We are willing to allow his claim that the people of Alberta and the West generally are well informed on matters of economic and monetary theories. Speeches delivered in the House of Commons by members from the West prove that. It was the Minister of Labor who was moved during the last session to express admiration for those from the West who spoke with such "apostolic certainty" of what should be done to reform system and change the world.

Living in the midst of plenty and yet being in want is a popular topic. Always has been. We have the same condition in Ontario. This is a wealthy province but we have people in want. We have not yet learned of an era in world history where poverty has been abolished. We have what might be termed plenty in Ontario; we have more than plenty because we are engaged in export trade, and that means we have more than we can use for our own consumption. We get our wealth from mines, from agriculture, from timber and from the process of manufacture and so on. But one cannot go to a mine and take away gold or silver, because it belongs to the people who own the mine. If one were to see a nice piece of land he could not take possession because some other man has a deed showing he owns the place. Plenty in itself does not mean plenty for all the people, and the same rule applies in Alberta as in Ontario or elsewhere. One can argue that such a plan is wrong, but the blunt fact remains that it is a stubborn truth from which we have not yet found the way of escape. Mr. Aberhart is not stating a new truth when he dusts off that old document about want existing in the midst of plenty. He is merely saying once more something which every person knows and recognizes.

Nor does he provide a good reason why banks should come to his assistance in making Social Credit a possibility. People form groups to organize banks because they believe they can make money by so doing. We know of no other reason for the existance of a bank. A bank was never organized to be a helpful institution in a community. It was brought into existence to make profit, and when it ceases to do that and starts recording losses it has to go out of business. There is little of what might be termed humanitarianism in many of the rules which the world follows. Our articles of faith in the business world are hard and fast things and they have not been altered. Selfishness has much to do with it, and Mr. Aberhart is not great enough to remove that.

As It Was On The Tenth

There was quite an article in a farm magazine recently about "Sanitation in the Farm Home," and the theme of the thing was that the farm home was rather lagging behind the rest of the world. In one place we read that "the roller towel is still in use in far too many places, and people who are working around a barn cannot be too careful of the condition in which they keep their hands." The writer of the article seemed to take it for granted there ought to be running water in each farm home.

There are such places; quite a number of them. Makes work a good deal easier. But we admit there was no running water on Lot 4, Concession Ten. We can tell exactly what it was like about this season of the year when harvesting was on. There was a tin wash dish on a small bench on the stoop at the side of the kitchen. And there was a rain barrel at the corner. Water was scooped from the rain barrel until the season turned dry and then it had to be pumped around at the other side of the house. When one finished washing in the tin basin then the water was given a sort of a fling on the flower garden and it seemed to flourish under that treatment. There was a roller towel outside and the person who had the last washing was apt to be in for a bit of hunting to try and find a dry spot.

The straw hats the men wore were always left outside, and we have always entertained a suspicion they were not up to much. They looked old and battered and they were old and battered. There had been the perspiration of several seasons worked into them, but no person ever seemed desirous of changing. It would have taken something like a mild tragedy to make a man change the hat he had become used to in summer work.

On threshing day there were generally three clean towels put out at noon and if the sow thistle had been bad or the dust heavy those three towels were wrecks. Generally on that day there were two or three extra wash bowls put out and the flowered one from the spare room was pressed into service a couple of times. That was about the only time that bowl from the spare room ever got a chance to know there was such a thing as outdoors and a threshing.

Nor do we recall that many people suffered from such sanitary conditions. Probably there were germs skipping around, and we wouldn't be at all surprised if they went romping from one old straw hat to another if they got tired sitting on the roller towel and wanted to make a change. But when we got our drilling of tonic and sulphur and molasses in the spring the germs of summer didn't have much chance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Hepburn says he has no intention of bringing on a snap election. There is a somewhat general feeling that when the campaign does arrive it will be no snap.

Gananoque boasts of a grandfather who is only 35 years old. He's got a big start on a lot of folk who have not even married at that age.

A Downie township man failed in an attempt to eat three dozen bananas in fifteen minutes. He would probably have got better mileage if he had been tackling corn on the cob.

Canada's exports to the United States increased by $64,000,000 during the first six months of 1937 and commodities covered by the reciprocity pact accounted for only one-third of that increase.

It seems a little unusual that it should be necessary for the Canadian government to bring an expert from France to tell them where Canada's national war memorial should be placed.

Hon. Peter Heenan advises working men to keep their feet firmly on the ground. That of course ignores the fundamental principle of the sit-down strike.

Premier King intimates that Liberal Federal members may help Mr. Hepburn if they desire but it is noticeable that the Federal premier is not climbing into the life boat to do any rescue work himself.

A pilot who did some wild stunts in the air near Paris has had his license suspended. If the same thing happened to every driver who does wild stunts on the road traffic conditions would be improved materially.

¶ When Annie came to visit us, we didn't make a starting fuss, nor worry when she came; for we knew Annie twenty years, and she was grey above the ears, and likewise very plain.

¶ For she would want to sew and knit, and help around the house a bit, or else she'd read a book; she'd putter in the kitchen too, and look for little things to do, or she might want to cook.

¶ But Annie took us by surprise, she wasn't half her former size, for she was rather slim; no surplus lard upon her frame, when she came popping off the train, she had no double chin.

¶ And no gray hairs upon her head, it was between a gold and red; much like the summer girls; the hair that was as straight as rope, had taken on new life and hope, it was a mass of curls.

¶ And Annie does not knit or sew, she dotes on places she can go, on house work she's not keen; the stuff she reads is wild I know, nor is it solemn like nor slow, a love-sick magazine.

¶ In summer Annie wears her shorts, and says she enters now in sports, she dives like chunks of lead; long hours before she ends her day, I yawn and want to hit the hay—and yearn to go to bed.

She divorced him twice and McCoy secured the third divorce himself. And his name never was Kid McCoy. Real name is Norman Selby.

Looking for Lost Wells.

NOW that many of the Saskatchewan lakes have become dry there is a search being made for what are termed lost wells, said to have been encased in stone and in use as far back as 80 years ago. But they cannot be found. The drying up of some of these lakes which used to be the gathering ground of ducks hunters, has laid bare great quantities of buffalo bones and farmers are now gathering them. There is a market for them at $12 a ton, and they have nothing else to sell.

Can A Man Paint His Own House?

Union in Cleveland Would Stop Him How Far Can this Idea Go?

(From The Kitchener Record)

UNION sympathizers, union unsympathizers, and all sorts of folks who just aren't interested particularly in unions, will do well to cast a glance at Cleveland.

For some time the spraying of varnish over newly-painted houses has been almost a daily occurrence. Investigation showed that most of these incidents were traceable to rivalry between two sets of building trades unions.

Distraught inquiries to the daily papers from anxious people who were contemplating a little amateur painting of their own houses brought out this fact:

That for months the Painters' District Council actually had been issuing permits to citizens allowing them to paint their own homes without interference, provided they could first show that they couldn't afford to hire painters.

Painters' union officials replied that "greed on the part of well-off property owners was causing them to try to avoid paying union wages" by doing the job themselves. It was the painters' union's job to see that such work went to union painters, and this it was trying to do by its permit system.

That seems reasonable enough on its face. But it is a mighty dangerous principle, if carried to its logical conclusion.

Suppose you want to adjust the carburetor on the old bus some morning, and find that you can't do it without first applying for permission of the garage-mechanics' union and convincing them that you can't afford to patronize a garage.

Suppose you want to fix up those tricky front steps, and find yourself in similar trouble with the carpenters' union.

Suppose the window-washers' union decided that home windows come under their jurisdiction as well as downtown office building windows, and that you'd better not wash your own--or else!

Absurd? And yet in any of those cases you would be robbing union men of work they are qualified and ready to do.

Perhaps it is not too much to say that anyone who can afford it ought to throw much work to men to whom it means a living. It is certainly proper for a union to try to get as much of that kind of work for its members as it legitimately can.

But there is something else involved here. It is the right of a man to do what he likes with his own. Unions will best serve themselves and their members by remembering those rights.

The Farmer's Sunday Guests

They Have No Poor Motives But they Can Overdo Visiting.

(From the Ottawa Journal)

THERE is a modern proverb: "The kind man is one who, having an hour to spare, spends it with one who hasn't."

This saying is curiously illustrated by recent protests of a country minister who finds that members of his congregation are kept from Sunday services by visitors from the city.

When people discarded the horse and buggy and used the motor car, one advantage in the change was that farmers could attend church and yet give their horses a day of rest. Besides, with the greater range afforded by better cars and improved roads, people at a distance from their churches could more easily attend. This helped to keep congregations at normal size notwithstanding the universal tendency of population cityward.

But in the city the motor car is often the reason for non-attendance at church, especially in Summer. The family, and perhaps a friend or two, can enjoy a day's trip into the country. As a kindly act they may make a call on Uncle Joe and Aunt Hannah. This idea occurs to many people, and, as it is neither patented nor copyrighted, any person fortunate enough to have a motor car and a country relative may try the experiment of doubling non-attendance at church by happening to call at the farm on a beautiful Summer Sunday.

And, judging by what we see in the papers, this is done so often as to call forth the country minister's protest as already stated. It is not done deliberately, of course, nor is it made systematic; it is merely another example of the innocent inconsiderateness which does so much harm in so many ways.

The remedy is not to be found in the protests by aggrieved congregations and their ministers, but rather by efforts on the part of city churches to keep their congregations intact, and at least to keep their non-attendant members from promoting non-attendance of their country cousins.

DISARMING THUGS.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A delegate attending the convention of the Ontario Police Association submitted a plan for the prohibition of revolvers and ammunition among the public and to send to the penitentiary anyone found in possession of such guns. It was asserted that only drastic action of that kind would curb the terrible havoc *G*I gunplay, robbery and murder in which the concealed weapon figures so prominently.

Governments can go to any extent in taking the citizen or in war they can order him into uniform for any purpose designated, but they claim that they cannot disarm the horde of thugs that carry guns to commit all kinds of serious crime.

One thousand determined citizens in Canada could do a great deal to ensure that the carrying of revolvers is prohibited. The police Association proposes to study the matter further, but it will require aggressive campaigning to stir the legislators into action.

HELPING YOUTH.

(Brantford Expositor)

THE real tragedy of the depression is to be found in its denial of opportunity to many of the young people of a country where opportunity should be ever-present. The ending of the slump will be welcome, but, even were a full measure of prosperity to be restored tomorrow, there would still be much ground to be regained in this respect.

Realizing this, the Federal Government has just announced a plan, in co-operation with the Provinces, for some systematic effort at youth rehabilitation, and this endeavor, extended as it will no doubt be from time to time, should be of definite assistance to a hard-hit younger generation.

There will be several fields in which such work can be carried on, but one of the best is undoubtedly that of apprenticeship, and to this Federal authorities are now turning.

MRS. GRUNDY AGAIN

(St. Catharines Standard)

THERE will be many young Canadian women, and rightly so, resent the remarks of that Baptist pastor, at Owen Sound, that shorts and indecent dress (or what the pastor might regard as indecent) are a prelude to lust. If the statement were true, one would have to give up hope for thousands of Canadian girls, but it isn't true. The fact is, our young people today are just as moral, righteous and decent as at any time in history. And they are without doubt, more athletic and healthier, the latter applying to the mind as well as to the body.

THE STARLING PEST.

(Sarnia Observer)

THERE doesn't seem to be as much complaint concerning the starling, that troublesome bird that has become so numerous in western and southern Ontario during the last decade. The reason is, perhaps, that the population has accepted him as a necessary evil and has resigned to a realization that it is impossible to eradicate him.

Prof. A. LaDrew of the Ontario Agricultural College estimates that there will be twelve millions of starlings in Canada by 1949. They are a notorious pest, destructive of farm and fruit crops, crowding out the fine song birds. Their habits are dirty and their song an imitation of other birds. It would be a service to the country if this bird could be eradicated but how to accomplish the extermination is so far an unsolved problem.

It is suggested that if people could be induced to use the starling for food, there might be more incentive to hunt it. The meat is said to be of excellent flavor and suitable for pie. The breasts are plump for the size. The recipe for starling pie calls for soaking the breasts in a salt and soda solution overnight and parboiling them. Perhaps some enterprising caterer will take the opportunity to specialize in starling pie. The passenger pigeon was exterminated on this continent because it provided palatable food.

EDUCATED SNEEZES.

(Kitchener Record)

FROM Dr. Beno Paul, pioneer European allergist, comes the news that "only cultured people, in general, have hay fever and other allergic diseases." Such maladies, he says, seem to be transmitted in certain social groups; city people, for instance, apparently being more susceptible than country folk.

What benefits humanity will derive from these data are not immediately discernible. There is a hazy suggestion of some circuitous connection between people who study, and the "genus bookworm."

Probably Dr. Feul has some real foundation for his belief, but until it is clarified, its only good may be to stimulate the urge to carry a thing to its logical conclusion. In line with that then, we might hope for this emergence at last of that long-sought and too often burlesqued phenomenon—the educated sneeze.

GERMANY STORING WHEAT AND RYE

the domestic wheat crop in Germany will fall short of the average yield by about 15 per cent., due to adverse weather conditions.

The result is that the German wheat situation must remain a problem for Chancellor Hitler despite the heavy imports and the already rigorous regulation compelling millers to mix maize, potato flour, and stale bread into flour for bread.

In a speech at Brueckberg, Central Germany, Hitler said: "If Germany's harvest should decline by 20 per cent., then it would be a catastrophe for the German people."

Since that speech a winter of severe weather without snow has harmed crops in East Prussia, East Germany, and Poland.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat futures on the Winnipeg Exchange to-day turned downward at the close after rising to higher levels in sympathy with the Minneapolis market which was influenced by rust reports from U.S. spring wheat areas. Final prices were ¼c lower to ⅛c higher, July at $1.37¾, October, $1.32¼, and December, $1.30.

Flurries of erratic trading and periods of dullness punctuated trade as wheat fluctuated above and below the previous close.

After starting out with gains of more than a cent prices eased despite reported export business in Canadian wheat estimated at 500,000 bushels.

Pride Hurt When Mauled By "Cops"

Barbara Stanwyck's arm is sore, but not half as sore as her pride. She was not recognized by a police officer at a preview at a Hollywood theatre and was pushed around like an autograph hunter. Miss Stanwyck, attended the preview with Robert Taylor. Some 800 persons, outside the theatre, saw Taylor and rushed him. In the jam, Miss Stanwyck became separated from her escort and when she attempted to regain his side, a police officer barred her path. "I'm Barbara Stanwyck," she told him. 'Oh yeah? And I'm Clark Gable," shouted the officer, pushing her behind the ropes. Taylor came to her rescue and convinced the policeman that she was really Barbara. This photo shows the two picture stars after the melee in the theatre lobby.

BROADER DIVORCE LAWS FOR CANADA

lawyers here, a relaxation of divorce laws would probably involve legislation by both the Dominion and the Provinces. Opposition to divorce on any grounds has often been offered by Quebec Members of Parliament representing constituencies where religious conviction is against it. Divorce is increasing in Canada. For several years before the war the number was about fifty a year. In 1917 the figure was 87. The next year it was 114 and in 1919 it jumped to 376. Since then, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there has been a gradual increase until in 1936 divorces numbered 1,526.

Of these, 40 were granted by Parliament, 36 to Quebec residents and four to Ontario applicants.

By Provinces the total was divided as follows:

Prince Edward Island, none; Nova Scotia, 41; New Brunswick, 38; Quebec, 26; Ontario, 511; Manitoba, 179; Saskatchewan, 79; Alberta, 209, and British Columbia, 433.

Premier King Joins Mark Twain Society

ST. LOUIS, July 28. — (AP)— Cyril Clemens, president of the International Mark Twain Society, announced last night Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, had accepted the membership in the society made vacant by the death of Sir James M. Barrie.

Clemens, a distant relative of Samuel Clemens, said Mackenzie King had accepted the membership in a letter which told of visiting at the Barrie home at Thrums, Scotland, a short time before the noted author's death.

Seven Passenger Planes To Make Debut On Trans-Canada Route

Canadians from coast-to-coast will soon be seeing seven of the latest type of aeroplanes suitable for carrying mail, express and passengers. Three of the machines, Lockheed-Electra 10's, will be put into operation within the next few months by the Trans-Canada Air Lines, while the remaining four are expected to be delivered early in 1938. The aeroplanes will carry 10 passengers and have a cruising speed of 180 miles an hour. The machines, similar to the one shown above, will be twin-motored and will be able to take off with only one engine operating. The remaining four machines will carry 14 passengers and have a speed of 200 miles an hour.

BELFAST IS ROCKED BY GAS MAIN BLAST

Conclusion of the King's speech was greeted by an outburst of cheering, dignified councillors in their robes and officials in brilliant uniforms and morning dress joining in the demonstration of loyalty and affection.

Along the Free State border, however, republican extremists did their best to stir up trouble.

The series of outrages included the dynamiting of a railroad bridge 10 minutes after passage of a crowded excursion train bound for Belfast. The span was completely wrecked.

Roving bands of incendiarists and dynamiters destroyed customs houses along the Ulster side of the border. Gasoline was splashed over at least a dozen of the small wooden buildings and then fired.

At one point several were blown up while an armed band held police at bay.

Vigilant police and troops exercised every precaution to prevent the violence from spreading into Belfast where more than 1,000,000 persons had gathered to welcome the King and Queen.

Authorities attributed the outbreaks to "republican extremists."

Plot To Bag Loyalists

The border outrages were believed to have been executed to keep out the influx of thousands of persons loyal to the Crown who came from the Free State yesterday and today.

After today's bridge explosion at Dundalk railway officials dispatched crews to inspect all bridges in the border area, fearful other mines have been laid.

All telegraph communication between Northern Ireland and the Free State was severed by the bridge blast, which was more serious than first reports indicated.

The blast at Dundalk held up a train bearing 400 ex-servicemen and women for nearly three hours. It arrived at Belfast too late for the passengers to see the royal procession.

Free State officers reported finding three unexploded mines under the railway line. One other had exploded.

Residents of Clones, in County Monaghan, said they spent the night in terror. Armed bands roamed the countryside, firing revolvers into the air. Other terrorists set fire to customs houses on both the Free State and Ulster sides of the border.

Six men in an automobile fired a volley over Clones houses.

Barn Customs Post

While one Free State customs post went up in flames a dozen men kept up a continuous fire for about 15 minutes. Terror-stricken farmers' wives screamed as bullets shattered windows. At Newry, County Down, armed men held back police with a machine gun. After setting fire to the customers' post they went to a nearby farmhouse, ordered out the nightgowned occupants, and set fire to the dwelling.

The damage from various fires along the frontier was placed unofficially at £10,000 ($49,800). Quantities of official papers and records were destroyed.

In one section of Belfast posters announced a meeting of the illegal Irish republican army to protest the King's visit.

Armored cars hurried to the scene of the proposed meeting, but no members of the organization appeared. Houses in the district were searched for weapons.

Hundreds Police on Duty.

Constables patrolled the area with rifles on their shoulders.

Free State police, sent from Dublin to the frontier, searched all cars crossing the border. Hundreds of officers were on duty on both sides of the line.

A series of arrests followed the outbreaks. Several members of the Republican Army were arrested at Belfast. Five men seized on the highway between Londonderry and Omagh appeared in special court at Omagh and were held without bail on charges of acting in a manner prejudicial to peace. Police said they carried revolvers and a wire-cutter.

But in Belfast the day of the Royal visit broke with brilliant sunshine. Their Majesties were astir early on the deck of the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert.

Thousands lined streets on the tops of broad wooden barriers erected along the procession route.

Shortly after dawn the Royal yacht left its anchorage at Loch Ryan, accompanied by a naval escort of three cruisers and six destroyers. A few minutes after the vessel berthed the Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, boarded the yacht to welcome the Royal visitors.

Their Majesties walked along the wharf to the destroyer Exmouth, and soon were steaming up the Lagan River to Donegal Bay.

These Names Make News

Anthony Eden

It has been rumored England may sign an agreement with Germany to include France and Italy without Russia. Josef Stalin, leader of the Russian people may make it embarrassing for England because it is likely France would not sign without Russia. Should France drop out it would leave England linked with Fascist countries

Joseph Stalin

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has an unenviable task ahead of him. It is evident the Tory government would like to break up the Franco-Soviet alliance, in order to ameliorate Germany and Italy. Yet the government does not want to "desert" France. The problem will be Eden's.

appeal against extraditing him," the jailer said.

"It's tomorrow now," one of the detectives answered. "Let's have the prisoner!"

Cursing his attorneys, whining "You're kidnapping me!" the prisoner was trundled from his cell, whisked to the railroad station and locked in the compartment of an east-bound train.

Charlie (Lucky) Luciano, or Lucania, scar-faced, dropp-eyed Sicilian spawned in the slums of east side New York, now known as the "Boss" of New York's vice ring, complained bitterly at the turn of his fortunes.

Maybe The Law Was Wong

The cops, he said, had him all wrong. Disorderly houses weren't his real racket.

The detectives nodded. Maybe he had a right to feel hurt. Maybe the grand jury indictments should have read something else than four counts charging compulsory prostitution.

Maybe the police wanted to talk to Charlie about how Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, the former big shot of New York racketeers, and three of his bodyguards were rubbed out in a Newark, N.J., beer tavern six months before.

In his delirious rantings before death, Schultz had told police that "the boss himself" shot him.

But the police had nothing definite on Luciano in the Schultz mass murders. And Dewey did have something on the unhappy Lucky in the Bordello racket.

Luciano had disappeared after the Schultz massacre. He was finally turned up in Hot Springs, Ark., but resisted extradition and gained a 10-day stay in order to make an appeal. In granting the stay, however, Judge Martineau specified Luciano's lawyers must give 24 hours notice for leave to appeal. Luciano's attorneys delayed until the last minute—in fact beyond the last legal limit, which expired at midnight.

That was when the alert Dewey, directing the fight in New York, had his detectives drag the sleepy-eyed Luciano from the Little Rock jail cell.

Unable To Meet Bail

Returned to New York, Lucky was locked up with 12 of his lieutenants under prohibitive bail totalling $1,750,000. More than 100 witnesses were kept in custody through all the weeks of the trial. But Dewey found it hard work to get witnesses to testify against the dreaded "Boss."

"For two hours," he told the jury, "I sat with Nancy Presser trying to persuade her to testify and that she would not be murdered."

And Nancy Presser did testify—and Dewey himself confused the sullen "master mind" Luciano on the stand. Dewey then wrung an admission from him that he had lied to every question on an application for a pistol permit.

For seven hours, in his final summation, Dewey pounded remorselessly at the scar-cheeked Lucky—gaining a conviction that sent the "Crime Croesus" to prison for a term of 30 to 50 years. Now 38, Luciano will be eligible for parole in 1967.

Nine of Luciano's lieutenants drew similar stiff sentences. Luciano had spent $250,000 trying to beat Dewey's evidence.

Legal War Impossible

NANKING, July 28 (AP).—A high official of the Chinese foreign Office declared today all efforts to maintain peace with Japan had been exhausted and "we accept the issue of battle."

The official's statement came after the foreign office had announced Chinese troops south of Peiping had defeated the Japanese army at two strategic points and captured Pengtai, Japanese field headquarters five miles west of Peiping.

The foreign office spokesman said there was no question of a formal declaration of war as "legal warfare is impossible since the Kellogg Pact."

"But actual hostilities will be on a major scale.

"And encompass all of China," he added. "It will not be the case of some Chinese soldiers in North China fighting the Japanese but instead will be all China against Japan."

He said the Nanking government expected "trouble to come to central and south China.

"There is no longer any hesitation in China's foreign policy. Our efforts toward peace have been exhausted. With reluctance we accept the issue to battle and once fighting begins we never surrender."

POOLING SYSTEM BE USED IN SALE DROUGHT CATTLE

Initial Price to be Given Western Farmers by Ottawa, Surplus Split Up.

SELL IN CARLOTS.

REGINA, July 28.—(CP)—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture yesterday announced plans for disposing of surplus Saskatchewan livestock through a pooling system operated by the Federal Government.

Developing from Mr. Gardiner's announced plan to move live stock from Saskatchewan drought areas to grazing grounds in other parts of Western Canada, the new pooling plan was divulged by the Minister following a conference here of Government officials from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Payment to Farmers.

Under the pooling plan, animals suitable for feeders or breeders will be assembled in corrals, where auction sales may be held giving Eastern buyers a chance to purchase carload lots. An initial price will be paid to farmers by the Dominion Government and subsequent earnings will be apportioned to farmers after marketing.

The proposed live stock pool is the latest in a long series of pooling schemes worked out in Western Canada. The wheat pools are the most auspicious example of the pool idea.

As the Federal Government planned to introduce the live stock pooling system in Saskatchewan, live stock officials in Winnipeg reported unusually large shipments of live stock from the West to Eastern Canada.

Kenneth G. Burns of Burns Brothers, Winnipeg live stock dealers, said good demand from Ontario for Western Canada cattle has proved exceptional because of better market demand in the East and good feeding conditions in Ontario.

It was stated that under present conditions it was profitable to fatten feeder steers, heifers, calves and cows for a period in Ontario to meet United States and other demands. Shortage of cattle in Ontario was given as another major reason for the large West-East movement.

Many shipments from the West have been direct to areas around London and Chatham, Ontario, where feed was reported cheaper than in Western Canada.

All grades of live stock were being taken, it was learned. Some of the poorer classes of feeder steers probably would be kept on grass during the fall, wintered, and marketed next year when they have gained about 150 pounds each.

Figures provided by the Dominion live stock officials in Winnipeg showed cattle shipments to Eastern Canada of the past four weeks were 33,750 head, compared with a comparatively small number during the same time a year ago. During last week, 934 head of veal cattle moved East, compared with 650 head for the first twenty-eight weeks of 1936.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make your feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no unpleasant or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

When Britain Was "Attacked" By Air And Sea Raiders

Here are two phases of the theoretical attack made upon "Redland" during the recent war manoeuvers of the British fleet and Royal Air Force, off the coast of England to test the defenses of Portsmouth, Portland and Plymouth, all strategic naval bases in time of war. You see the powerful fighting planes of the "Redland" defenders crossing the Cornish coast on the lookout for the attacking enemy. The formidable gun batteries are those of the battleship Rodney, of the "Blueland" fleet, commanded by Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse. The Rodney "shelled" the Redland coast at dawn, doing "enormous conjectural damage," with her 16-inch guns.

FARMER IN OPS KICKED BY HORSE

Lindsay Dairyman is Run Over—Omemee Man Fined For Wild Ride.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, July 28. — Harold Corley, of Ops Township, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from injuries sustained when he was kicked by a horse. He was leading the animal to the watering trough when it got nervous, struck out with its hind feet, kicking Mr. Corley in the back, inflicting serious injuries and also fracturing several ribs.

Charles Lee, local dairyman, suffered a peculiar yet painful injury on Monday. He was in the act of getting into the milk wagon when the horse started, causing him to fall to the ground. His leg was caught under the wagon in some way, and the wheels ran over his knee. He lay on the road in a helpless condition for some time, and was finally picked up by W. McMullen and removed to his home.

The Omemee resident who ran wild with his motorcycle on Lindsay's busy thoroughfare on Saturday night, faced Magistrate Langley on Peterborough on Tuesday morning. He was fined $14.50 for reckless driving, and also had his license suspended for ten days.

D. Heels, the local man who ran amok with a revolver on Sunday, and fired a shot at G. Sanders, came before Magistrate Langley on Tuesday. It was decided to send the man to Whitby Hospital for a period of thirty days for examination.

During the severe electrical storm on the week-end the barn on the farm of Roy Weldon of Cambray, and situated near Hartley, was destroyed, together with the outbuildings, cutter, buggy, harness, fanning mill, etc.

Harold Stewart of Beaverton received painful injuries when the car he was driving was struck by a truck from Lindsay on the Thorah road. The truck attempted to make a left turn at the intersection and crashed into the Stewart car, wrecking it badly. The driver was crushed against the wheel and received abdominal injuries.

'Crusoe' Shrine Is Tumbling Down

HARTLEY, England, July 28.—(CP)—The little ivy-covered cottage in Kent, where Daniel Defoe is supposed to have written "Robinson Crusoe" will not be saved for posterity.

The justice of the peace who owns it said in the absence of documentary evidence that "Crusoe" was created there he did not feel inclined to repair the cottage which is on the verge of tumbling down.

Rev. C. G. W. Batiks, village historian, has discovered however that Defoe was in the vicinity of Hartley in 1719 when the book was published. Another village claim is that Defoe is buried in Hartley churchyard, but biographers hold the opinion the author lies in a London cemetery.

MAYO IRON MINE MAY BE REOPENED

Agent For Hamilton Company Expected to Look Over Hastings Property.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 28.— Possibility of re-opening and re-development of immense iron ore bodies in the now moperative Bessemer and Rankin Mines, near Hermon, Township of Mayo, Hastings county, is being considered by the Steel Company of Canada Limited, Hamilton, Ont. It is expected that Mr. H. Girvin, agent of the company, will arrive in North Hastings next week, and proceed to the mine properties where a thorough examination of its possibilities would be made.

It is estimated that on the surface of the two properties over one half million tons of ore can be secured without the necessity of tracing the heavy bodies downward.

The inspection by Mr. Girvin follows considerable work on the part of local residents in an effort to have both properties developed. William Rankin of Belleville, is agent for the properties and has been in constant communication with the Steel Company at Hamilton for some time past.

FLEETWOOD, July 28. — This community received the severest shock in years when it was learned on the early hours of Monday morning that Mrs. Talbert Davidson had suddenly passed away at her farm home. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson and family had spent Sunday with friends at the lake shore and retired as usual.

Mrs. Davidson was a young woman who greatly enjoyed her large family of five boys and girls, the youngest of whom commenced school this year. The loss of her motherly devotion is irreparable. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the sorrowing husband and motherless children.

Before her marriage she was Miss Hazel Campbell, whose early life was spent in the Janetville vicinity, her brother, Mr. Wesley Campbell, now occupying the old Campbell homestead, where Mrs. Davidson's father passed away a few years ago.

been travelling toward the Copper Cliff Road, indicating the two families were out for a drive, as they were going away from Sudbury.

The body of young Oliver Tuuri was picked up 120 feet east of the crossing. It was decapitated and both legs were missing. The others were also horribly injured. Tuuri was dead when pulled from the wreckage.

Seen by railway investigators at her home and after she had quietened enough to tell her story, Mrs. Tuuri said Lampile had tried to back his car from the main lines track as he saw the train approaching. She said another automobile passed them as they were stalled there, possibly adding to Lampile's confusion.

"I jumped out and ran clear of the tracks," she related. "I saw the train hit the car. It was terrible—an awful bang. Then I ran all the way home."

Saw Tail-lights.

The train crew placed the time of the crash at 10.25 o'clock (E.D.T.). Besides Conductor Wilson, they are Engineer J. Delayer, Sault Ste. Marie, and Fireman James Pinch, of Sault Ste. Marie. Wilson said the locomotive whistle was sounded on approaching the crossing. His first intimation was when the crash occurred.

"As the train approached the crossing I saw one car pass over it," Engineer Delayer related. "First thing I noticed was the tail-lights of a car that looked as though it was stalled. My view was obstructed briefly by the car which passed over, but as soon as I saw the tail-lights I applied the emergency brakes."

The locomotive struck the automobile on one corner, throwing it over to the ditch almost 90 feet, diagonally across the crossing. Delayer said the train was running 45 to 50 miles an hour. The bell, he said, was ringing and headlights burning. Fireman Pinch corroborated this and added the night was clear.

CORONATION MADE DEEP IMPRESSION UPON FRED L. ROY

Emotion of Great Spectacle Overcame Him, Peterboro Photographer Says.

TAKES MANY PICTURES.

Fred L. Roy recently home from Europe with his 13-year-old son Robert, admitted in an interview with The Examiner that the keen excitement of the past three months had unsettled him. And that is not to be wondered at.

But, he declares he is glad to be back in Peterborough, and shortly he will have for release color movies of the Coronation procession of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Roy plans to title the Coronation series "The Pageant of Empire." They include the Coronation procession, the Review of the Grand Fleet at Spithead and "shots" of Coronation decorations in various parts of London among other things.

Complementary Series

The Coronation pictures which are to have their first public showing early in the autumn under auspices of St. Paul's Men's Association, are complementary to the Silver Jubilee series entitled "Britain on Parade," which Mr. Roy filmed on a previous occasion, and which met with wide acclaim wherever they were exhibited.

In addition to the Coronation pictures, Mr. Roy filmed several hundred feet in color at the reception to overseas Boy Scouts tendered by the Chief Scout Lord Baden Powell at Pax Hill, which he attended with his son a member of 1st Peterborough (St. John's) Troop. Scouts were there from all over the Empire and Mr. Roy and Scout Robert Roy both had the honor to be presented to the Chief Scout and to Lady Powell.

Other color movies, Mr. Roy secured were in the Kew Botanical Gardens where rhododendron, azaleas and orchids were blooming in all their glory; and at the Rotary International Convention he attended at Nice as delegate from Peterborough Rotary Club of which he has been a member since organization sixteen years ago.

Commissioned By C.P.R.

While Mr. Roy did not exhibit his Cotonation pictures for The Examiner, the proof of their excellence is attested by the fact that after viewing them in London officials of the C.P.R. publicity bureau commissioned Mr. Roy to film a series of color pictures in Great Britain and Ireland.

These pictures which were turned over to the C.P.R. in London when completed, and which are to be used by the company for exhibition throughout the Dominion of Canada, led Mr. Roy by motor car through the famed English lake district and to Blackpool the gay holiday resort of the industrial north; through the Trossachs in Scotland; the mountain and seaside resorts of North Wales and along the Antrim Drive and to the Lakes of Killarney in Ireland. In all he covered 2,000 miles on this particular assignment, and Mr. Roy voted The lakes of Killarney "as probably the outstanding beauty spot of the whole tour."

The Coronation pictures, which he of course regards as the most valuable he filmed, from the fact they can never be duplicated, were taken from a choice location on the Victoria Monument looking down the Mall towards the Admiralty Arch.

Deeply Impressed

Mr. Roy was deeply impressed by all that he witnessed on Coronation Day. Asked what had been his outstanding impression of the spectacle which he described as "brilliant and dazzling," he replied: "The emotion of the spectacle overcame me. It can best be described in the words of a fellow photographer representing the National Geographic Magazine who stood beside me all that day from three o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

"Standing in the pouring rain that fell as Their Majesties returned to the Palace he turned to me and said 'Roy I never had anything happen to me like that in all my life.' He had tears in his eyes as he spoke.

"He said 'In America we build things up only to tear them down again, but here is something that has been built up through the centuries and which symbolizes the tradition of a great nation and an Empire.'"

Excitement Tense

Mr. Roy said that at times the emotion mounted to such a pitch that if he had not had his camera on a tripod, he believed he could not have held it steady enough to take pictures.

Subsequently, Mr. Roy attended a reception given by The Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London to The Right Honorable Mackenzie King and other Canadian notables in attendance at the Coronation.

There he was privileged, he said, to meet and talk with Ramsay MacDonald former Premier of England. And again he said in trying to voice his own impressions of the spectacle he witnessed, he could do no better than recall the words of Mr. MacDonald who said: "I believe in trade and commerce and commercial bargaining, but with that alone and without this (meaning the Coronation and all that it symbolized) the Empires perished."

At the Rotary Convention at Nice, Mr. Roy asserted, "I got a vision of Rotary—the world-wide vision that I had never before been able to conceive in my sixteen years membership in the local club." There were 6,000 Rotarians in attendance representing 53 countries of the world, he said.

Where They Get 'Em.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 28. — On the Trent yesterday Mr. Fisher of Rittman, O., and Henry Scriver of Hastings landed four lunge ranging in weight from 4½ to 6¾ pounds and five black bass ranging from 2½ to 3 pounds, between 8 o'clock in the morning and 1 o'clock in the afternoon. They refuse to divulge even the approximate location of their fishing grounds, and add that they had to let one lunge go as they already had their limit.

REACHES ENGLAND DURING WAR GAME PORT IN DARKNESS

George E. Chandler Arrives at Southampton Under Unusual Conditions.

HAS SPLENDID TRIP.

Written aboard R.M.S. "Empress of Britain" in the English Channel off Cherbourg, a letter reached The Examiner's editorial department this morning from George E. Chandler at present visiting in his native England after an extended absence.

Included among his fellow passengers on the eastbound crossing was George King former organist at Trinity United Church here, who was on his way to London. He played the piano accompaniment when Mr. Chandler sang Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory" at the ship's concert on the night of July 14 last. Another interesting passenger whom Mr. Chandler mentions in his letter was the son of Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America.

Southampton was in total darkness as the "Empress" steamed into harbor, Mr. Chandler notes. She landed into port just as Britain launched the most extensive coast defence exercises in her history.

Warships and air raid defences from a mythical "blue land"—for the purposes of the war game considered to exist 600-miles out in the Atlantic—attempted to wipe out the important commercial ports and naval bases of Southampton, Plymouth, Portsmouth and Portland, and Mr. Chandler presumed the ship he was aboard was being theoretically attacked from the air or by coast and sea defences.

RESERVED SEATS FOR GRANDSTAND

Exhibition Directors Will Use Seats From Grand Opera House.

Peterborough Exhibition directors last night decided to make a reserved section in the grandstand using four hundred seats recently presented by the Hanson Theatres Limited. They are from the old Grand Theatre, and it is understood the 400 does not represent the complete gift. Prices for this year's Exhibition are: general admission 25 cents or one advance sale ticket costing 25 cents; grandstand reserved 50 cents or two advance sale tickets; cars 35 cents or one advance sale ticket.

Strips of four tickets are available for one dollar at many stores throughout the city, and with more dollars in circulation than during the depression years it is expected that a large number of people will buy the strips.

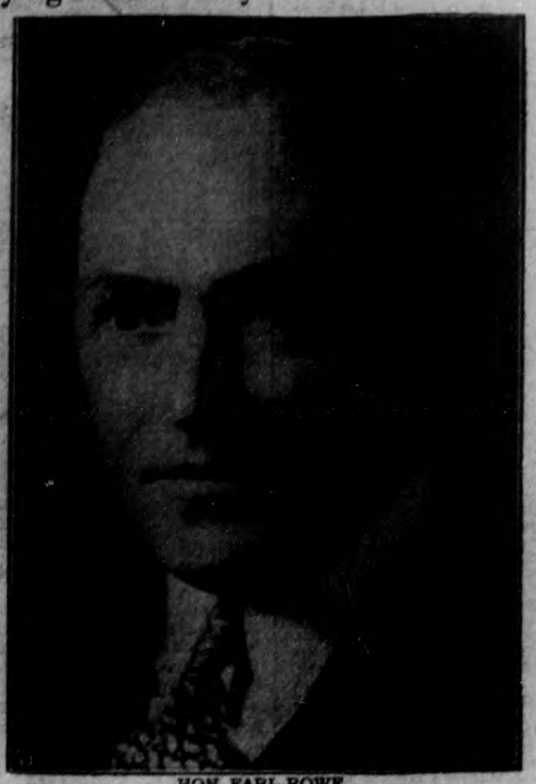
Pre-Election Strategy Occupying Ontario Party Chieftains

HON. MITCHELL F. HEPBURN



HON. EARL ROWE

Though Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, premier of Ontario, has declined to admit that an election is forthcoming, both Liberal and Conservative party organizations are fairly certain that an appeal will be made to Ontario votors in October or November of this year without a preliminary session of parliament, and Toronto reports indicate that cabinet ministers have been notified of the fact. Both major parties are working on pre-election plans; candidates have been named already in many constituencies and in others conventions to nominate party representatives have been announced. Hon. Earl Rowe faces his first provincial election since elevation to leadership of the Conservative party and Mr. Hepburn seeks re-election for the first time. The party leaders are pictured here in recent portraits.

FINES ARE LEVIED IN TRAFFIC COURT

Two Motorists Found Guilty of Parking Near Fire Hydrant.

For parking within six feet of a fire hydrant two offenders paid fines and costs before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning. They were S. R. Pearson, city, $1 and costs, and Harry Wheeler, Otonabee Township $2 and costs. Reeve George E. Mullen of Smith Township paid a fine of $10 and $2.50 costs for operating a commercial vehicle without carrying his permit. When he urged that he could have produced the permit within five minutes when stopped by the officer, the latter countered by suggesting that he could have laid other charges. He said the truck was without flares, tail light and reflector. For cutting-in on traffic Clinton McCall of Lakefield contributed $3 and $5 costs; Gordon Poolman, city and H. W. Patrick, Toronto paid fines of $10 and $3 costs each on entering pleas of guilty to speeding charges, while Frank Begga, city was assessed $10 and costs for driving a car without a permit. A minor forfeited $1 and $2.50 costs for riding two on a bicycle. A charge of reckless driving against Donald O'Connor and a charge of failing to halt at a stop sign against Mrs. Beatrice Cornell were enlarged until August 18. The two charges resulted from a recent accident on Water street in which a pedestrian suffered a broken leg.

7 MORE CANADIANS KILLED IN SPAIN

C. C. F. Youth From Toronto Reported Missing in Jarama Sector.

TORONTO, July 28 (CP)—List of Candains killed on the Spanish war fronts reached more than 30 with announcement by the Friends of the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion, of the death of seven more Canadians in the war. The Toronto Leftist organization also reported another Canadian missing.

Six of those reported dead had joined the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion early this year. The other was Tom Cacic, 43, Toronto, a member of the Dimitroff (Soviet) Battalion and a member of the Communist party in Canada. He was convicted along with Tim Buck, general secretary of the party in 1932 in the "Section 98" trial of belonging to an "illegal" party.

The seven died while fighting with government forces on the Madrid, Jarama and Guadalajara war fronts, according to the telegram received here. Thomas Beckett, 22, Toronto, was reported "missing" in the Jarama sector. He was a member of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Cacic had joined the Spanish government forces shortly after the outbreak of the war. He had been deported from Canada before his two-year term at Kingston Penitentiary had expired. Enroute through Austria to his native Jugoslavia, he escaped from the secret police escorting him and entered Russia where he volunteered for service in Spain.

Leigo Clare, 23, Toronto, was the youngest of the seven. A member of Ward Eight (Toronto) Workers' Association, and the Progressive Youth Club, he met death on Jarama front.

The charge resulted from an altercation that arose when Herman Killingbeck, relief and sanitary officer for the township, spoke to the defendant about a shack he was erecting, and which it was claimed did not comply with health regulations.

FINGER ON BLUE SAILORS

For all their beauty "blue sailors" have been prescribed as Ontario's No. 1 noxious weed. They are blooming these days along many of the sidewalks in the outer wards of the city, their gay cerulean flowers lending attractive color among the towny grass and clovers. Some person of poetic imagination once called them "blue sailors," investing them with a certain charm of personality which fails to win the approval of the Department of Agriculture. As the chicory, whose roots in some countries have been used as a substitute for coffee, "blue sailors" are just a weed, enemy of farmers and their industry, and listed with poison ivy and other plant pests that should be destroyed.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday July 29

The auguries for this day are rather satisfactory, if certain tendencies to jump at conclusions, with correspondingly hasty actions, are kept in check. A piece of news may incite this reckless tendency, which might be an unsettling influence, causing change, travel and possibly a trend toward extravagant outlay.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather lively year, in which good news seems to be a mainspring of activity. But this should not be submitted to snap judgments or rash speculation or extravagance, as there is danger of loss and regret.

A child born on this day may be versatile, lively and ambitious, with inclination to sudden moves and hasty or reckless judgments as well as extravagance. It may be popular and have much social or domestic pleasure in life.

HERBERT McCREA WESTERN EDITOR DEAD AT HANNA

Publisher of Hanna Herald Born in Peterboro 45 Years Ago.

MOTHER LIVES HERE.

HANNA, Alta., July 28.—(CP). — Herbert C. McCrea, 45, editor and publisher of the Hanna Herald, one of Alberta's outstanding weekly newspapers, died at his home here yesterday.

Mr. McCrea was born in Peterborough, Ont., and came to Western Canada in 1909. For a short time he published a paper at Langdon, 20 miles east of Calgary, but in 1913 he came to this town 100 miles north-east of Calgary to found the Herald. For the first time in the 26 years since he put out the Herald's first issue, it will suspend publication this Thursday.

For the last 11 years, Mr. McCrea was secretary on the Alberta branch of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association. He was a former president. A tireless worker, he had fought ill health during most of his career.

Mr. McCrea was among the first to campaign for a rehabilitation scheme for the prairie provinces. He also advocated adoption of the William Pearce irrigation project, a gigantic scheme for irrigation of large territories in Southern Alberta and parts of Saskatchewan.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter Hazel, two sons, Bob and Jack, all of whom assisted in the Herald's publication, his mother in Peterborough and a brother, H. W. McCrea of Toronto, who was here at the time of his death.

Mr. Florence announced that with this future in view, unusual bargains are now being offered in his 30th Annual August Furniture Sale at 204 Charlotte street. Particulars of the large selection of modern furniture are given on page 2 of this issue.

PETERBORO' MAN AT SAFETY RALLY

H. A. Cranfield Attends Meeting of Metal Trades Directors.

TORONTO, July 28.—H. A. Cranfield, of the Canadian General Electric Co., Peterborough, attended a meeting here Tuesday of the directors of the Metal Trades Safety Association held in the Royal York hotel. Directors were present from Brantford, St. Catharines, Toronto and several other points in Ontario.

Continued penalization, as authorized under the Workmen's Compensation Act, was recommended against firms failing to provide reasonable safeguards for the protection of employees. An upward adjustment of rates for firms failing to co-operate, it was pointed out, would bring to their attention the fact that safety prevention might easily be cheaper and more satisfactory.

The mounting toll of highway accidents was discussed and continued attention will be given by industrial firms to accident prevention in educational work amongst truck drivers and other employees whose duties involve highway travel.

An increasing number of serious injuries to eyes indicated, the meeting was advised, that employees were not wearing protecting goggles on hazardous jobs.

Minor injuries which later resulted in serious loss of life or limbs has led the association to ask that serious consideration be given to antitetanus serum for application to wounds, even when they appear to be of a minor nature. Application of this serum would be preliminarily prescribed in instances where the wound might come in contact with foam or earth.

STAFF STUMPED BY UNUSUAL BUG

Billy Curtis Comes to Bat With Something New in Pet Line.

To be quite frank about the matter Billy Curtis, 14, of 531 Parnell street presented The Examiner with a poser this morning for which no immediate answer could be found.

Billy walked in with a fearsome though colorful-looking bug which he found on a black currant bush and demanded to know what it was.

Someone suggested it might be a tomato bug, but Billy not to be put off so easily firmly declared it was not. Told that it was probably the larvae of a luna moth, the lad was counseled to keep the insect, watch it develop through the various cycles of its existence and test the truth of the prognostication.

If he found that process too tedious for his youthful patience, he was advised he might go to the public library and refer to reference books on the subject.

The insect had a pea green body; four orange-colored and black-dotted balls on its head; thirteen bright yellow projections running the length of its back; a couple of rows of light blue feelers on each side of its body; and a set of legs fitted with pneumatic tfeads that ensure a firm grip. Believe it or not the creature had a set of molars that had every appearance of providing it with a formidable weapon of defence.

STRIKERS SHEET SEES AGREEMENT COMING ANY TIME

Official Publication Says Settlement of Major Problem is Imminent.

PARLEYS CONTINUE.

Announcement that the month-old strike of Bonner-Worth and Auburn workers may be settled "at any time" now, was made by strike leaders this morning. The statement said the company has made many concessions during the negotiations which began Monday, and are continuing this afternoon.

The announcement was in the form of a notice in the daily typewritten "Aubonner," strike news sheet which has been sent out each morning from strike headquarters. It read:

"Negotiations are still in progress. Many concessions have been granted and a satisfactory settlement of the major problem is expected at any time. Please be content with what we have been able to divulge and a detailed account of negotiations will be given at the first closed meeting."

Brighiens Outlook

Appearance of the notice brightened the outlook for the general strike body, which has been totally inactive this week and as much in the dark as to what has been taking place in negotiation sessions as the general Peterborough public. No mass meetings of strikers, either private or public, had been held the previous two days, and restlessness in the strike ranks was apparent.

For strike leaders and members of the bargaining committee, Monday, Tuesday and to-day have been very busy. Following its adjournment Monday evening, negotiation sessions were to resume at 10.30 o'clock Tuesday morning, but were postponed unexpectedly to the afternoon. The postponement was reported to have been made at the request of the strike legal adviser, J. L. Cohen. Again in the afternoon, the full negotiation session which was scheduled was postponed to allow Louis Fine, Department of Labor conciliator, to meet with Cohen and R. L. Kilboch, company legal adviser.

Negotiations were resumed at 11 o'clock this morning, and adjourned at 12.30 noon. It was announced then that they would begin again at 2.15 o'clock.

Mass Meeting Tonight

The notice posted in the "Aubonner" was the first official statement from either side concerning the trend of negotiations. Strike leaders announced a mass meeting at the Market Square at 8 o'clock this evening, but declined to say whether or not whether any word of negotiations progress would be given at that time. It was expected that Arthur Laverty, organizer behind the big Cornwall strike of Canadian Cottons Limited workers would be a speaker at the rally.

ALBERTA'S BANKS READY TO ASSIST

Aberhart Scores Rumors of Confiscation as Manager Answers His Call.

EDMONTON, July 28 (CP).—Publication of "malicious rumors" which Premier Aberhart said suggested the Alberta government intended to confiscate bank assets was criticized by the Premier today as he acknowledged replies from managers of "most Alberta banks" to his recent request for co-operation in establishing social credit.

In a statement in Toronto Monday, S. H. Logan, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, said Alberta may count on the willingness of Canadian banks to serve the people and Province of Alberta within the provisions of the Canada Bank Act, and in keeping with the principles of sound banking.

Commenting on the statement here last night, Premier Aberhart said:

"I am very glad to state that we have heard from the managers of most of our Alberta banks, and in the main these express a desire to give every possible assistance to the government in their endeavor for welfare of the people of Alberta. These replies indicated, too, that the banks are looking to the government for guidance and assistance in implementing the will of the people.

"I am quite aware, of course, that it is not the duty of the government to give direction or to provide technicians for the purpose of helping the financial experts, but I can say nevertheless that this can be arranged in due course."

MEDWICK'S HIT DEFEATS GIANTS FOR 9-8 COUNT

'Miracle' Victory For Cardinals Drops Giants 3 Games Behind Cubs.

YANKS WIDEN LEAD.

NEW YORK, July 28—(CSP). — Outside of a fist-swinging, bat-waving free-for-all in which he can take part by heaving a pop bottle, there's nothing the baseball fan loves more than the "miracle" finish.

The home run that zooms over a distant fence with the score tied and two out in the last half of the ninth, or the relief pitcher who strolls in to fan the heavy hitter with three men on—that's the kind of story-book ending that keeps conversation alive.

There was enough fruit for conversation tied up in yesterday's big league baseball show for husbands to bore half the country's wives to distraction. Four of the eight games weren't decided until the last half of the final innings.

Most spectacular of the blows struck in winnings causes were those delivered by Joseph Medwick of the Cardinals, Robert (Red) Rolfe of the Yankees and Leslie Scarsella of the Reds.

Medwick, who has been leading the National League batting parade for so long it's a habit, waited for the truly psychological moment to uncork his 21st homer of the year.

Wins the Ball Game

The Giants had tied the score at 8-8 after the Gas House Gang's eight-run blast knocked Carl Hubbell from his props and third Giant pitcher Al Smith had retired the first two men to face him in the ninth. Then up came Ducky-Wucky and plastered one against the left field bleacher rail to win the ball game, 9-8, and drop the Giants three games behind the Cubs, who won a 5-2 decision over the Dodgers.

Scarsella's four-master, which scored Ivan Goodman ahead of him, saved the day and his 10th victory left Lee Grissom, the Reds' rookie who had given up only one hit for eight innings, then was clipped for three and two runs in the ninth. Scarsella's blow made the final score 3-2 for Cincinnati.

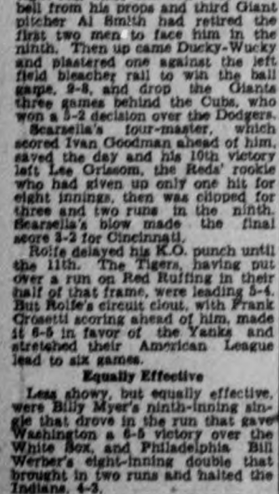
Rolfe delayed his K.O. punch until the 11th. The Tigers, having put over a run on Red Ruffing in their half of that frame, were leading 5-4. But Rolfe's circuit clout, with Frank Crosetti scoring ahead of him, made it 6-5 in favor of the Yanks and stretched their American League lead to six games.

Equally Effective

Less showy, but equally effective, were Billy Myer's ninth-inning single that drove in the run that gave Washington a 6-5 victory over the White Sox, and Philadelphia Bill Werber's eight-inning double that brought in two runs and halted the Indians, 4-3.

In the other games, Red Lucas pitched a six-hitter on the Phillies to give Pittsburgh a 4-1 triumph, and the Browns' 15-hit attack topped the Red Sox, 8-5, as dgave Manager Jim Bottomley his first triumph on the road.

Polish Invader



Wearing a radiant smile and something cute in hats, Miss Padwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland's number one woman tennis player, is pictured as she arrived in New York. The smiling lady who created such a sensation at the Wimbledon championships in England, will seek greener laurels in United States, starting with the Seabright tournament on July 26.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LONG, lean Walter Gerow and his gallant gang of Gibbards are here this evening for a ball game with the Petes. It'll start at 6.15 in Riverside Park and is the Naps' home game, transferred here. Looks like the starting moundsmen will be Lefty Pointer and Gunner Whitehill, and the latter ought to go okay after a lengthy layoff—but for his recent chore in Kingston. The Petes have been jinxing the Naps so far this season but Walt's outfit should be about set to get a bite of the law of averages. It is plenty important to both teams, seeing as how they are battling away to get a grip on the third rung of the Central Loop ladder—ye third rung assuring the holder of a playoff berth. The Gray should pack in a neat gang of midweek rooters.

* * * * * *

WE kind of figure this year will wind up Napanee in the old C.O.B.L. The team has been going pretty fair, defeating Oshawa—the 1936 senior C.O.B.L. champs—regularly and even knocking off Kingston. But the Gibbards are in fourth place and have played some of their poorer games at home. That seems to have soured the crowd, and the fans flock out now to their games like hubby hurrying to the station to meet the wife's mom! Or nearly as bad, anyway. So you can't blame Ernie Gibbard or Walt Gerow for getting a bit discouraged when the team gets no financial support at home. Yet it isn't a bad ball team at all and may make the playoffs yet.

CLYDE ENGEL, who was slated to conduct a baseball training class here this aft and this eve, is doing such missionary work all over Ontario for the Toronto Leafs. He works also with Smoky Joe Wood in coaching Yale ball teams. Engel has quite a diamond background, being for years in the big leagues. His best work was with Boston Red Sox way back when that club won a world's championship in 1912. Clyde clouted the ball which resulted in the famous Snodgrass muff in the deciding game of the world's serial. This blow caused the downfall of Christy Mathewson who had been hurling great ball, but the Snodgrass slip and Merkle's boner finished him. All this is baseball history—and Engel was in the middle of it.

KINGSTON SCRIBE says: "The ball game Saturday was a typical meeting of the old rivals, featured by scraps and arguments with Joe Daley being forced off the Ponies' bench by the police after a hot debate with Umpire Corrigan. It is the first this season the scrappy Joe has been chased but not any new experience for him, especially in Peterborough. With the scrap of this game and the squabbles in the Napanee-Oshawa game which resulted in threatened protests, the boys in the Central circuit seem to be really playing for keeps. By playoff time, martial law may have to be declared. But it all adds fan interest which is needed in the Central wheel this season, with gates smaller than other seasons."

ORILLIA TERRIERS came, were seen and they conquered. They took a 24-11 win from our Auburns before over 2,000 fans—but the score was only incidental. The locals made it a battle in the first half but faded before the sustained attack of the Dominion senior champs during the final two frames. It was no disgrace at all, and the Woollens went down battling to the best team in this country. Fans seemed to like the setto fine and everything ran along okay, except for an unfortunate accident to Coach Chute of the Petes. Early in the third heat he fell heavily on his right shoulder in a scramble near the home net, and dislocated the shoulder. He was carried off and taken to a hospital but is home again with his arm in a sling. No bones broken but he'll be out of the game awhile, and will be missed muchly Friday when Oshawa plays here.

* * * * * *

THE TERRIERS' uncorked a passing attack that was smooth as satin while they ghosted around local players at times as if the latter were stuck in mud to their knees. They had a lovely combination system and were smart in around the goal. Good net work by Red Creighton kept 'em from tallying a bunch more. But they had to hustle plenty the first two quarters to hold an edge in scoring. All the Auburns put up a good showing but they were just outclassed. Don Wilson, just re-instated, played for the Terriers (he was No. 10) in his first game this year. They had almost all their regulars on hand. Yeah, it was a good game and quite a feather in the caps of the local lacrosse moguls. And now Oshawa's 222 team claim they are going to see Friday that Auburns lose two games in one week! Well, we'll see.

* * * * * *

ELSEWHERE today is an article from Prexy Harry Moore of Trenton stating that Cobourg has dropped out of the C.O.L.A., defaulting remaining games. Too bad, but they've lost several good players and couldn't carry on. So the revised standing and schedule is in this eve. Moore also points out that Joe Gould—who played last game in Norwood—is ineligible and belongs to Belleville. He must play for the Rovers or no one this season. It is looking like the group honors will be between Oshawa and the Auburns, the Motor City gang having strengthened up plenty. They hope to cop a win here this Friday, and it should be quite a brawl—with maybe a few fights as in their last meeting. The locals practise Thursday p.m. at seven o'clock.

British Track Squad Meets Keen Competition

44 Yachts Sail Off In Freeman Cup Race

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 28 (AP) —A fleet of 44 yachts sailed majestically across Lake Ontario today, the eyes of 36 of the skippers upon the Freeman, famed fresh water yachting trophy.

The 36 crossed the starting line of the 48-mile cruise at Cobourg, Ont., late yesterday shortly before eight smaller craft started a secondary race for the Louise Freeman trophy.

Expected to arrive at the finish line off Summerville sometime today, the yachts will participate tomorrow, Friday and Saturday in the annual Lake Racing Association's regatta to be staged there.

Leading the starters into the long-distance grind was the Norseman from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto, and last year's cup winner. Also entered was the Mist, the Olcott six-metre sloop which lost its George Cup last week.

The Freeman Cup, awarded to the ship of any class making the best corrected time on the cruise, is but one of the trophies to be given for various class boats in the race.

New Plan Announced For Rugby Playoffs

TORONTO, July 28 (C.P.). — Intermediate and Junior sections of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will be divided into "A" and "B" groups for the playdowns when a new plan goes into effect this fall, Secretary R. H. Bailey announced to-day.

Groups in both sections will play out their schedule as previously, playing home-and-home games until the schedule is completed. The club finishing first in each group will enter the playoffs in Intermediate or Junior "A" series, while the second place club in each group will play-off in Intermediate or Junior "B" series.

The playdowns of the "A" and "B" groups will be conducted separately and a championship declared in each class. The trophies now in use will be played for by the "A" teams and new trophies will be provided for the second group.

Another new plan to operate this year in the O.R.F.U. will be put in operation to avoid group playoffs. In case of a tie for any of the playoff positions the team scoring the greater number of game points during the season will have the preference.

COSTLY YACHTS READY TO RENEW 85-YEAR-OLD SAILING BOAT RACE

T. O. M. Sopwith of England and Harold S. Vanderbilt Again Rival Skippers.

FASTER CRAFTS.

By BILL BRAUCHER
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, July 28. — Two sailing yachts, representing investments of more than $1,000,000, will renew an 85-year-old feud on July 31 in the first of a series of races off Newport, R.I.

The challenger is a half-million-dollar sloop, brought to America for the competition by T. O. M. Sopwith and named the Endeavor II., successor to Endeavor I., in which Skipper Sopwith made his first vain effort in 1934 to win the ancient America's Cup.

The defender is Ranger, built at a personal cost of $500,000 to Harold S. Vanderbilt, who will take the wheel when the series of four-out-of-seven races begin.

Record is Topheavy.

This is Vanderbilt's third defence of the trophy, which only twice has been in danger of going back to England since the schooner America won it in 1851 in a race against the English fleet over a course around the Isle of Wight. In the 13 matches since that first encounter, Americans have won 39 races and lost five.

Vanderbilt entered the picture in 1930 when Sir Thomas Lipton, tea tycoon, made his last valiant attempt to recover what he affectionately called "the old mug." Vanderbilt swept the seas in four straight victories over Sir Thomas' Shamrock.

The last race was in 1934, and was Sopwith's first challenge. For a time it appeared the Endeavor I. would take the measure of Vanderbilt's Rainbow, Endeavor I. won the first two races and the British airplane manufacturer who sailed the victories was beginning to feel the thrill of triumph when Skipper Vanderbilt put away his book and began to sail. Four straight races Vanderbilt's Rainbow won, each of them by time margins of only a few minutes. Sopwith protested illegal tactics by the defender, but the claim was not allowed. Yacht circles still are breezing with argument as to the merit of the challenger's charge, and many declare he was given much the worst of it by rulings which upheld Vanderbilt.

Faster This Year.

This time the challenger has brought along a crew of professional sailors who are willing to bet a few quid (at proper odds) that Endeavor II. will take the trophy. Endeavor II. is much faster than the boat Sopwith sailed in 1934. Yachting experts said that it was only Vanderbilt's sailing skill and quickness to profit by his rival's errors that won the race last time, because Endeavor I. was the best Class J. boat the world ever had seen.

Certain mistakes in steering were made by the challenger in the 1934 series. Observers say that the British invader has improved on his sailing since then.

Well, there they are. What'll yours?

Next: The Rival Skippers.

Could Barred From Playing With Norwood Lacrosse Club

O. A. L. A. Secretary Regrets Ban Placed Upon Veteran Quinte Player.

COBOURG TEAM DEFAULTS.

The following article was sent to The Examiner by Harry Moore, Trenton, president of the Central Ontario Lacrosse Association, being received this morning. It is self-explanatory:

Unable to carry on through lack of players and attendance, the Cobourg entry in the Central Ontario Lacrosse League notified the president on Tuesday that they were forced to drop out of the league. The Cobourg team had four more games to play and all of them away from home, so their default will count as a win for each of the other four teams in the league and makes the standing at this writing (Tuesday) and before the Rovers met Norwood here, as follows:

	W	L	TP
Peterborough	10	0	6
Oshawa	8	3	5
Belleville-Trenton	6	5	5
Norwood	4	8	4
Cobourg	2	14	0

Cobourg were scheduled to play in Oshawa on Monday night but were unable to get a team together so Gene Dopp of the O.A.L.A. was notified not to send a referee.

The following are the games left in the schedule to play: July 28, Norwood at Belleville-Trenton; July 30, Oshawa at Peterborough; August 2, Belleville at Oshawa, Norwood at Peterborough; August 6, Oshawa at Belleville; August 13, Oshawa at Norwood, Belleville-Trenton at Peterborough; August 17, Peterborough at Norwood; August 20, Peterborough at Belleville.

On Friday night of last week Joe Gould, formerly of the Belleville-Trenton Rovers, played for Norwood against Oshawa in the northern village. The Norwood team informed Oshawa that the president of the league, who is managing the Rovers, had given Gould his release. This was not so in any sense of the word as Gould had never approached us for any such purpose and we couldn't give him is release if we wanted to. The game was played under protest, but as Oshawa won that game the protest will not be pressed.

Gould Barred

However, the matter was brought to the attention of Gene Dopp, Secretary of the O.A.L.A. with which this Central Ontario League is affiliated, and Mr. Dopp has notified us that Gould cannot play with Norwood. The lacrosse association ruling in the matter is that "if Gould played more than two games (took part in more than two) with Belleville, then he cannot play anywhere else, and even if he only played two or less he still cannot play for Norwood without a release from the club with which he was first playing."

While our sympathies in lacrosse matters in this league will always be with Norwood—and Joe Gould—for keeping lacrosse going when all other places hereabouts failed, still there must be no leeway given to any player in this league else there would be all sorts of trouble. Joe Gould is a fine lacrosse player, an invaluable player to the Rovers team, and he will find the light burning in the window for his return.

The Rovers are scheduled to play two games next week with Oshawa—in the motor city on Monday night and in the Trenton Arena on Friday night. A suggestion has been made by the Oshawa manager that these games be laid over unless they effect the standing and play-off chances of the two teams. However, that will have to be thrashed out this week-end.

President C.O.L.A.

Norwood Defeats Belmont Gang 7-6

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, July 28. — Norwood softballers defeated Belmont by a score 7-6 score here on Monday. Considerable time was wasted in arguing, but the game proved to be fairly exciting. Brunton, star pitcher of the Havelock team, pitched for Belmont until about the middle of the fifth inning, when he refused to play any longer. He was replaced by another pitcher, and the game went on. At this time the score was 5-2, with Belmont well in the lead. Norwood team played up in the fifth and sixth innings, and the score at the beginning of the seventh inning was a tie with each team having six runs.

Towards the end of the seventh inning Bernard Puffer broke the tie and placed Norwood in the lead. Don Clarke pitched for the Norwood team.

A reversal means much to the average player and, as a rule, very little to the expert. An example of the latter was had in the performance of my brother Fred during a match at Detroit.

The very first shot he hit on his first round was about as bad as any beginner could make. His drive off the first tee travelled about 25 feet. The miss was caused by an injury to his hands and not by nervousness as one might suspect. He has won many open tournaments wherein the big names have competed, so that his recovery was to be expected. He went on to get a par four on the first hole and anoor, a 71 for the round. Obviously, he could have given some good excuses for being upset over the reversal on the first tee but he didn't, much to his advantage.

The average player could follow his example to even greater advantage if he wanted to. I'll admit that it isn't the easiest thing in the world to brush aside reversals, especially on the golf course, but it is possible and most practical. An air of optimism is almost necessary to success with future shots.

Immediately after missing a shot you should return the club to the bag, take a long deep breath and continue to breathe deeply until relaxed. Then begin to think in terms of swinging smoothly for your next shot and breathing normally.

Orillia Club Wins Over Auburns, 24-11 In Exhibition Match

Good Lacrosse Tilt as Dominion Senior Champions Defeat Locals.

CROWD OF 2,200.

Orillia Terriers took a 24-11 victory over the Auburns in an exhibition lacrosse match here last night before 2200 fans. It was the locals' first defeat in 14 starts this season and they gave the Dominion senior champions a good battle. It was a tight tussle during the first half but the Mann Cup holders proved their superiority during the last two quarters as they piled up the count.

Fans liked this fixture as the Terriers, at full strength—including Don Wilson, who was just re-instated the previous night and was playing his first game of the year—dished up the nifty passing and shooting which has carried them to three Canadian titles; and the Auburns flashed the fight that has kept them on top of their Central Ontario group all season. Play was fast and clean, with plenty of excitement in the tilt.

Orillia only had a 3-1 edge in the first quarter, and they just outscored Auburns 4-3 in the second heat. However, they had a decided edge in the third with their smooth-passing plays and fine all-around condition to run the count up to 14-5 as they went into the fourth. They again had a good margin of play in the final frame. Auburns kept scrapping all the time and never quit trying, but they were outclassed—even if not by too big a margin, considering the fact that they were playing senior champions of Canada for the past three years.

USE TWO GOALIES.

McArthur and Mortimore alternated in goal for the visitors and both looked good. Red Creighton in the Auburns' net also gave a nice performance to rob the Terriers of a dozen ticketed markers. Coach Rowan Chute of the locals was injured in the third quarter, suffering a dislocated right shoulder, when he fell on his shoulder. He was carried off the field.

There were no individual stars for the losers, everyone working hard and giving all he had. Whitton, King, Dundas and Dallin of the veterans were prominent, and Magee, Vitarelli and Crowe of the younger players; and the rest also showed up good. For Orillia, Wilson, Curran, Cheevers, Coles and Bain all looked smart, but there was little to choose as they all showed a lot of class. They had speed, condition and plenty of experience as shown in their stickhandling, passing, checking and shooting. Auburns were not disgraced and made a neat showing to score 11 goals against such a smart squad.

The teams:

Orillia: Goal, Mortimore; defence, Bain and Boettiger; centre, Snowden; wings, Cheevers and Kelly; rover, Jordan; alternates, McArthur, Wilson, Steggall, Connell, Walsh, E. Curran, Coles and Prosser.

WESTCLOX WINS FROM SCRUB TEAM

Barons Fail to Field Full Team and Game Develops Into Comic Affair.

The Westclox climbed another notch higher in the race by whitewashing a Baron scrub team by the impressive score of 19 to 0. From the start the game was a comic match more than a ball game. With about half a team out the Barons shoved in a bunch of bench jans in the field. In the middle of the game with a handsome lead the Westclox also used their subs, having everybody in the game but their bat-boy.

The old veteran, Lefty Sturgeon was on the mound for the Westclox, striking out 5, keeping six hits scattered and walking 3, in a good performance. Miller on the other mound had a hard time subduing the big bats of the Clockmakers who nicked him for 18 safe hits and seven walks. Currie relieved him in the eighth, but did no better.

For the winners, Calladine had a perfect evening at bat with three hits in as many times up. Playford also hit well with two doubles and two singles. Dormer, Ellis, O'Leary, Currie all hit twice, with most of the others having one hit each. One of Ellis' hits was a homer.

For the Barons Akers and Delpellaro led with two hits each. Gordon and Watson getting their others. No spectacular fielding features were pulled off. The teams:

Barons: Akers' c; Miller, p, as; Gordon, 1b; Delpellaro, 2b; Currie, as, p; Watson, 3b; Swears, rf; Coughlin, cf; English, lf.

Westclox: Calladine, c; Dormer, 3b; Starr, as; Ellis, 1b; Playford, cf; O'Leary, lf; Stanger, 2b; Sturgeon, p; Currie, rf, p; Thirnbeck, 3b; Nalsh, lf; Parsons, rf.

Two Extra Periods Played In C.C.F.–Smelters Replay

Phil Thorn Heads in Winning Counter—Deloro Has Ten Players.

C.C.F. 5, DELORO 4.

With keen precision on the timing of the flight of the ball, Phil Thorn, of the C.C.F., registered the winning counter as he headed the corner-kick into the net to defeat the Deloro team, by the score of 5 to 4, in the semi-final replay match of the Injured Players' Cup, last night, on King Edward Park, before a good attendance of spectators. Two extra periods were played—one of ten minutes each way and another five minutes each way. Every one of the goals was of the highest calibre and O'Neill, Deloro, deserves praise for the manned in which he handled his position in goal. The winners now meet the Canada Packers in the final. The Politicians are the present holders.

Goal In 30 Seconds

Within 30 seconds Dyer had the ball in the net after he had accepted a timely pass by Thorn from the kick off as he met the pass with a first timer that found the rigging in below the cross bar. On the next visit, Leggatt missed an open goal but he made amends for his previous failure by sending a low grounder into the far corner of the net. Throughout the success by the locals, the visitors kept up a steady attack upon the C.C.F. goal to finally reduce the lead through Brooks after Brown rattled the sticks with a terrific drive. Encouraged by their success, they bombarded the Politicians citadel from all angles which brought out the smart and effective defense of Adams and Castle. The Smelters' goal-keeper made many clever clearances from the long shot designated for the rigging below the bar, but his outstretched arms seemed to pop up at the opportune moment to save his charge. Townson intercepted a dangerous move to punt upfield. Bradley dribbled his way towards goal to slip the ball forwards to Brooks who made good use of the opening by scoring the equalizer, Deloro 2, C.C.F. 2.

Goals Aplenty

The second period had only gone about five minutes when Brown sent an oblique shot past the local custodian to take the lead for the first time. A little later, Dyer put his team on even beats again to make the score read 3-3. The same player registered another count on the next raid to read thus, 4-3. Throughout this half the players endeavored to increase their percentage but it only materialized in another eventually as Brooks accepted a timely pass from Jack Hart from the left wing. Time and again, O'Holloran would break through to test the goal-keeper or send a terrific drive against the posts. O'Neill seemed to measure his shots with accuracy as he simply pulled the ball out of the air to hold the locals scoreless. A goal looked promising when O'Halloran passed a smashing drive into goal. O'Neill with outstretched arms clutched the ball to kick clear. With the score standing 4-4 at the final period.

Two Extra Periods

Two ten minute sessions brought nothing tangible as the players forced the play in their attempt to break the deadlock but it remained the same after twenty minutes of play. Another five minutes of play ensued with both custodians holding the attack off the score line. Although Jack Hart's shots that hit the crossbar about climaxed the issue but the rebound just missed Brook's head as he tore in to register. After a break away by the visitors, Castle stepped into the play in the nick of time by sending Smelt into the corner with the ball. He was rewarded with a flag kick that resulted in Phil Thorn diverting the ball into the rigging with his head from the corner kick taken by Smelt. This ended the scoring, C.C.F. 5, Deloro 4.

The teams:

Deloro—Clare O'Neill, goal; W. Townson, full back; W. Hart, E. Bradley and J. Sproule, halves; W. Richardson, T. Cousins, G. Brooks, W. Brown and J. Hart, forwards.

C.C.F.—J. Tarkington, goal; H. Adams and H. Castle, full backs; F. Mayette, A. O'Halloran and F. Lawrence, halves; S. Henwood, F. Dyer, S. Leggatt, P. Thorn and R. Smelt, forwards; G. McDonald and J. Bolton, subs.

Gunner Whitehill To Pitch To-night

Eddie (Gunner) Whitehill will pitch for the Petes here tonight (Wednesday) when they clash with Napanee at 6.15 in Riverside Park. This C.O.B.I. contest is Napanee's home game, transferred here, and both teams will be in there battling hard for the win. These teams are hot after the third-place playoff berth as the schedule nears its finish, and tonight's tilt is highly important to both. The Petes at present have a lead of two and a half games over the Gerowmen, but a loss would cut off a full game. Lefty Pointer is expected to twirl for the Furniture Men, with Spratt and Blasetich in reserve. The locals have Jakafby and Kitchen in case the Gunner requires any help.

A big midweek crowd is expected to see this fixture, provided the weather is suitable. The locals have been quite successful so far this season in subduing the Gibbards but some of the games have been mighty close. And the Naps — who have been beating Oshawa regularly and Kingston occasionally—are about due to upset the Petes. Ash will likely be absent for the Collins' line-up, but otherwise the team will probably be at full strength. And Napanee will be here in force in a desperate effort to keep in the race.

TOP TOSSERS In the Majors

TEX CARLETON

From the time James O. (Tex) Carleton, right-handed pitcher of the Chicago Cubs fanned 15 gents in a nine-inning game in 1926 in Austin, Tex., until he was brought up by the St. Louis Cardinals, in 1932, the Cub castor was ticketed for a major league berth.

When 19 and out of college — he attended Texas Christian University, but was not graduated—Tex began seeking employment as a baseball player. He pitched on school teams, and in 1925 got his first break —he signed with an East Texas League club. The next year he was with Austin, where he won 11 and lost 9.

Then followed several minor league trips, including Syracuse, Houston and Rochester, climaxed by a 20-win season with Houston in 1931 which was enough for the Cards.

For three years Tex pitched for the Cards, showing to good advantage, and then he was traded to the Cubs. He won 14 and lost 10 last season. Right now he is pressing National League slabsters for "Tops in Tossers."

Several outstanding performances stand out in Tex's career. In 1930, with Rochester, he steped to the plate five times with orders to bunt and followed directions to perfection, making four hits and one sacrifice.

Tex has pitched one no-hit game —for Rochester. Once he fanned 12 Baltimore batters in five innings, facing only 15 men.

Tex was born in Comanche, Tex., and his Lone Star state home is the origin of the moniker. He is 30 years old, stands over six feet and weighs 175 pounds.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Red Rolfe, Yankees—Former's 11th-inning homer with man on whipped Tigers, 6-5; latter went route for 13th win.

Joe Medwick, Cardinals—Ninth-inning homer gave St. Louis 9-8 triumph over Giants.

Bill Werber, Athletics — His double in eighth drove in two runs that whipped Indians, 4-3.

Lou Kopal, Browns, and Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox—Former scattered nine hits to check Sox, 8-5; latter had perfect day at bat with four-bagger and pair of doubles.

Lee Grissom and Les Scarsella, Reds—Grissom fanned 10, gave up one walk and only four hits to halt Bees, 3-2; latter's ninth-inning homer with man on provided winning margin.

Billy Myers, Senators — Singled in ninth to drive in run that beat White Sox, 8-5.

3 VETERANS ARE ELIMINATED IN CANUCK GOLF

Lawson of Victoria, Corrigan of Ottawa, Palmer of Winnipeg, Early Victims.

FEW OTHER UPSETS.

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP)—Augmented by 31 fortunates who had first round byes, 64 players started out today at match play in the second 18 holes of the Canadian amateur golf championship. Only 16 of the 64 could still be in the running by nightfall, for another 18 holes started as the survivors finished the morning tour. Two more rounds Thursday will bring the field down to the four semi-finalists who will play 36 holes to determine the two left for Saturday's final, another 36-hole affair.

Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, 1936 champion, drew a bye in yesterday's 18 holes of play and was drawn today against Russ Case of Vancouver, who moved along by defeating J. Wood of Hamilton 9 and 8, record score of the day.

Scattered Upsets.

Scattered upsets marked the opening skirmish Tuesday. Ken Lawson of Victoria disappeared from the tournament when Frank Sherman Jr., 20-year-old Hamilton youngster, won out on the 18th.

Frank Corrigan of Ottawa Chaudiere took a surprise defeat at the hands of Bert Barnabe, Ottawa Rivermead, 2 and 1, and Ernie Palmer of Winnipeg, member of Manitoba's Willingdon cup team, was eliminated by Jim McLaughlin of the home club 2 and 1.

Sandy Somerville of London, who advanced with a 4 and 3 win over Bobby Runge, Ottawa Hunt, was drawn against J. P. Cowie of Montreal.

Phil Farley, Quebec champion, winner over Ken Findlay of Fonthill, Ont., 7 and 5, drew Jack Cameron of Montreal Laval.

Only one of there Americans who appeared in the first round survived. He is Harry Kushing of Butler, Pa., who moved to the second round with seven of his countrymen, including Haas, who had byes.

KEN ASH HURLS NO-HIT TUSSLE

Beats Syracuse Chiefs 2-0 in Opening Game of Double-header.

LEAFS SPLIT TWIN.

TORONTO, July 28 (C.P.). — A little more of this no-hit pitching in the International League and batters can spend their time in the dugouts reading funnies and playing cards.

Ken Ash, veteran Buffalo right-hander, pitched the second no-hit, no-run performance in three days, and the third of the league season last night when he beat Syracuse Chiefs, 2-0, in the opening game of a double bill. Lloyd (Whitey) Moore of Syracuse tossed a no-hitter on Sunday and Crip Polli of Montreal pitched another earlier in the season.

Ash's performance was somewhat marred because the game went only seven innings.

Bill Harris followed Ash's game with a four-hitter and handed the Chiefs their second shutout of the evening 7-0. Johnny Vandermeer's wildness and errors afield contributed heavily to the Bisons' scoring.

Hitting, a rare thing in the International League, for the past two days, bobbed up at Montreal where the Giants and Royals split a double bill. Giants won the opener 12-7, and Royals took the nightcap 8-6. Phil Weintraub and Jack Redmond hit homers for the Giants in the opener, and Gus Dugas got his 11th in the same game.

Paul Dunlap, Montreal centre-fielder, suffered a concussion of the brain, when he was felled by one of Pitcher John Meketi's pitches in the first game.

Newark Bears blasted out their 72nd victory of the season with a 10-5 win over Rochester, and Toronto Maple Leafs split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, winning the opener 3-0, behind John Berly, and losing the second game in the 11th inning.

The national joint committee for Spanish relief said it had received a report that Insurgents kept the British steamship Marian Moller, laden with food and medical supplies, from entering the Spanish government port of Santander.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 44

Whatever the penalties, Igor, the printer, felt that moment was worth all the risk. He gloated as he stared down the barrel of his revolver at the two executives, now cringing in one corner of their elaborate office. For once Abe had nothing to say, fear silencing his tongue. Walt, on the contrary, was cursing his partner roundly for involving him in such a scrape.

"Dunderhead," he hissed between clenched teeth, "I should have known better than to let you get your grabby hands on a deal like this."

Igor's voice crackled as he told the partners in no uncertain terms what he thought of their unfair practices. "You deserve all we're going to give you," he yelled. "It's your kind that spoils a business for decent men. Never satisfied, that's what you ain't. Can't let a little fellow make a honest living. Naw, you have to take it all! Well, let's see if you can take this!"

Igor obviously gathered all his nerve to fire the gun, but as the men raised their voices in terrified protest, he suddenly lost his courage. With this momentary indecision, he seemed to deflate before their eyes. Then with a sullen gesture, he lowered the gun and resentfully fired one, two, three shots into the floor and cast the weapon from him in disgust.

Mazie, who had fled the office at the first loud sounds from Abe's office, was shouting hysterically up and down the halls. "Help! Fight!" she called.

"What is this, a recrootin' office?" one fat passerby grinned, then joyfully realizing from the racket that it was indeed a battle, he pushed by her. "Gosh, a fight. What a break!"

It took only a second for an excited crowd to gather, and as Igor reached the tragic anti-climax of his little act, he turned around to face a motley group of spectators. "Come in, gentlemen," he said, suddenly seeming to regain his reason. "I'm sorry to admit it, but I couldn't shoot these vultures. Shooting is too good for them. Why, do you know what they done?"

Abe and Walt were forcibly trying to eject both Igor and the threatening crowd, but Igor shook free of them. With growing eloquence he pleaded the cause of underdogs like himself, who had been crushed by the growing ambition of Acme. "The business that I love, they make it a tool to get what they want. To get money, pah! I thought I could put them where they wouldn't bother such as me again, but I—I haven't got the nerve." Weakly, he sat down on a chair, brushing tears of frustration from his bloodshot eyes.

Into the crowd pushed a rather slight man with a brief case under his arm. He adjusted the gold-framed glasses on his aristocratic nose, took off his fraying fedora, and addressed the crestfallen Igor.

"I would like to pay my respects to a great man," he shouted above the hubbub, as Abe and Walt renewed their efforts to eject the crowd out. "I have long resented the grubby Mr. Zimmerman and his distasteful partner, Hartley. You are a brave man, a hero. I am publicity director for the great Maestro Donevski, but I could write a poem on your bravery— Bacre! Of course, this is my chance!"

Suddenly the stranger cast off his fancy manners as on overpowering idea took hold of him. Too often he had wished the placid current of his life could carry him into exciting depths, that he could write of thrilling bloodthirsty events in the world of men. In Igor he saw the subject for a dramatic story, and his nose itched with the unaccustomed smell of real news.

With an almost fanatical gleam in his eyes, he grabbed the now sullen Igor by the arm and forced him through the grumbling crowds. Luckily for Igor, the police didn't arrive until he had been safely hustled outside by the music critic, Mendel by name.

Once in the sunshine again, Igor drew a deep breath, then turned to his new found admirer and shook his possessive hand from his shoulder. "What do you want with me?" he cried petulantly. He was rather ashamed of the impotent part he had played that afternoon, ashamed that he had not the courage to make good his threat.

"Want with you? Why man you're news! You're a front page story. You socked a couple of gangsters in the—," Mendel stopped, shocked at his own language. "I mean, my dear fellow, that you are a champion of the people, and I am going to appoint myself your representative."

"For what?" he asked suspiciously.

"You have a righteous grievance against this Zimmerman and Hartley. They've no ethics, they are unscrupulous. Even I have heard of their tight-fisted ways, and I am determined to fling myself into the battle with you. I will fight—with words!" Pompously he swaggered in front of the mystified Igor.

"Words. Pff! What good are they?"

"Plenty of good, when they are printed in bold type in a newspaper. Don't you understand, I am a reporter by instinct. Until now I have been describing symphonies in music; now I make newspaper history about the jangling chorus of false dollars, the mad bellowings of the bullish Zimmerman, reaching a crashing crescendo when you fired those three clear shots into the air."

"It was the rug," Igor corrected regretfully.

Whereupon Mendel moaned, "To spoil a good climax was a sin. If only you could have blown the heads right off their necks! Regardless—it was a shooting and shooting is first-class news. I'll show those boy reporters how to write!"

"—and me?"

"You? Well, maybe you'd better hide out for a few days. But think of the vengeance, the beautiful revenge. Is it not worth it?" Mendel asked, with his eyes ablaze with excitement that suddenly had made his life worth living. At Igor's nod, he started to question him carefully. When he had the facts, he headed for the nearest newspaper in a swift and undignified dogtrot.

Instead of entering the genteel music critics' offices where he usually went, he dashed dramatically to the city editor's desk.

"I've got a story! Stop the presses—a madman tried to kill Zimmerman and Hartley over at Acme. Shot three times and missed. Shot again. Crowds. Wow, what a battle!" Excited and pleased with himself, Mendel fanned his perspiring brow.

The city editor listened indulgently at first, then with more attention. This had the makings of a real human interest story, right in keeping with their "better business" policies, too. The unscrupulous firms trying to make a living off of their less fortunate brothers; the little fellows who were the brunt of their methods. And Igor, champion of them all! The city editor turned to a fat man behind his desk. "Take that cigar out of your face and get onto this. Let's give this fellow a break; if he was that desperate he deserves it. Just stick to facts and hang every statement on this Igor."

"Oke," came the laconic answer. "I just hope they don't hang poor Igor. Come on, Mendel, spill the rest of it."

Mendel stated his case well, even raced over to Igor's to get substantiating bills and papers. A few hours later the Gazette carried a story that was destined to break Acme. Carefully quoting Igor Bardoni, the story outlined how he had been forced out of business by alleged underhanded methods.

For several days the story was "hot" news, with other victims of Acme adding versions that completed the debacle. Acme lost four accounts in a single day, and Walt and Abe called a hasty conference to discuss the situation.

"I'd like to do what that yellow-bellied Igor didn't have the nerve to do," Walt said pointedly. "We had a nice safe game all sewed up, until you had to overshoot your hand. Why couldn't you be satisfied with 100 per cent. profit? Well that's the end. This racket is finished as far as I'm concerned. You can salvage the wreck if you think she's worth it," he said. Having thus quit the sinking ship, he walked out.

As Marcia once prophesied, Abe had turned his original "shoestring" into a rope long and strong enough to hang him. Gingerly, he loosened his collar, then breathed deeply. He'd never intended to get in as deep as this. His creed was to take all he could until a man resented it and "when he hollers let him go" as the old jingle had it. Well, Igor had hollered, but the noise he made had echoed throughout the city. The only catch to his little theory, Abe thought with a characteristic shrug, was that he finally was the one who had to go.

THE TUTTS By Crawford Young

LABORITES UNEASY

LONDON, July 28 (AP)—The National Council of Labor charged today there was "grave danger" the government would take advantage of the next parliamentary recess to recognize the Insurgent Spanish administration of General Francisco Franco. The statement, issued after a conference here, said: "The rights of belligerents in international law, even in restricted form, ought not to be granted to rebels.

BRITISH HOUSE TURNS TO ALBERTA

Wonder About Government Default in Bonds, Also About Registration.

LONDON, July 28—(CP Cable)—Question of Alberta bonds came up in the House of Commons today when Herbert Williams, Conservative, asked Malcolm Macdonald, secretary for the Dominions, if he was in a position to make a statement "with respect to the default of the Government of Alberta."

Sir John Mellor, Conservative, also asked if Macdonald was aware the Alberta Government had requested all holders of Alberta securities to register their names and addresses with the Government before August 16, together with a declaration of beneficial ownership, and whether he had any information to give regarding the purpose of such action.

"I discussed this matter with the Canadian Minister of Finance when he was in London recently," Macdonald replied. "As a result, I have communicated further with the accredited representatives of bondholders in this country, informing them of the position hitherto adopted by the Dominion Government.

"I have asked the High Commission for Canada to keep me informed of all developments."

Williams asked if Macdonald proposed to "exert any appropriate pressure on those concerned."

"Anything I can do which might prove effective, I shall be glad to do," Macdonald said.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LAUGH

"All ready now!" whispered Billie Bushytail.

"All ready now," answered his brother Johnnie. "I'll make a leaf-rustling noise in front of the Fox and you climb down inside the hollow tree. Uncle Wiggily will soon be here and we must drive the Fox away before he comes."

The two squirrel boys on their way to visit Buster, the rabbit boy in the camp near Blue Lake, had seen the Fox sitting on Uncle Wiggily's adventure stump waiting to catch the rabbit.

"Well, I wish he would hurry along!" growled the Fox to himself. "I can't wait here all day for just one rabbit."

He sat still and listened. Then he said:

"I hear leaves rustling. That must be Uncle Wiggily coming now. I'll get ready to bite him."

On His Way

But though the sound of rustling leaves grew louder, no rabbit gentleman appeared. It is true Uncle Wiggily was on his way to the woods to sit on his adventure stump, but he wasn't quite there yet.

"Bah! Only a squirrel up in a tree rustling the leaves!" yapped the Fox when he saw it was Johnnie Bushytail making the noise. "Get away from there, you!" ordered the Fox, most impolitely.

"No!" chattered Johnnie. "I have as much right here as you have, Mr. Fox, and you can't climb a tree to get me, either."

"Bah!" sneered the Bad Chap for well he knew this to be true.

"What are you doing here on Uncle Wiggily's adventure stump?" asked the squirrel boy.

"Pooh! As if I'd tell you!" sneered the Fox again.

"Maybe I know already," laughed Johnnie, as, indeed, he did.

"Pooh! Go on away!" ordered the Fox and he looked off through the woods to see if Uncle Wiggily might be coming. But the rabbit gentleman wasn't in sight. Neither was Billie, the other squirrel.

While his brother was rustling leaves in front of the Fox, Billie was softly climbing up outside the hollow tree. Well above the head of the Fox, who sat on the flat stump, was a hole in the tree. Through this hole Billie could go down inside to where near the bottom was another hole.

Hears Singing

Soon, off in the woods was heard a whistled song.

"Here comes Uncle Wiggily now!" whispered the Fox.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Johnnie rustling more leaves.

"Will you go away before I get angry at you?" said the Fox.

"No!" chattered Johnnie. "I'm not afraid of you!"

The whistling of Uncle Wiggily sounded nearer. The old rabbit gentleman was feeling jolly that day.

"But wait until I get him!" gargled the Fox to himself.

Suddenly Uncle Wiggily came in sight. When he saw the Fox sitting on the adventure stump, the rabbit was so surprised that for a moment he couldn't move.

"Here's where I get him!" whispered the Fox. He was just going to leap off the stump and catch Uncle Wiggily when, all of a sudden, Billie popped out of the hollow tree through the bottom hole and gave the Fox a hard bite on his back.

"Oh, wouch! Oh, scouch! Oh, bouch!" howled the Bad Chap. Up he sprang and he ran away so fast he made quite a wind. When Uncle Wiggily saw the squirrel boys and heard what happened the rabbit gentleman laughed so hard the twinkle popped right off his pink nose. But he soon put it back on again and all was well.

So if the straw hat will lend the baseball a pair of rubber boots to go swimming. I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's sassafras.

More Care Taken Of Animals Than Children Says Doctor

Charges There is No Need For Rickets if Diet, Sunlight Provided.

VITAMIN D ESSENTIAL.

ORILLIA, Ont., July 28—(CP)—"We take better care in the breeding of cattle and pigs and domestic animals than we do in the bringing up of our own children," Dr. E. W. May, child specialist of Detroit, said here yesterday in a service club address on the cure and prevention of rickets. "The attitude seems to be among parents that today's child will take care of itself."

"Rickets," said the doctor, "could be wiped out in 15 years if mothers looked after the diet and sunlight condition of their babies, as is the case with domestic farm animals. There really is no excuse for rickets in our civilized world today."

"Vitamin D," said Dr. May, "gives the necessary calcium and phosphorus required for bone building and a child not yet born naturally robs its mother of that quality. If the mother hasn't a sufficient quantity of it, resulting rickets in the child is inevitable. Expectant mothers must prepare a proper diet."

Doctor May told of experiments with pigeons under the x-ray. It was found the wings of the pigeon at the time it lays its eggs are devoid of calcium and phosphorus, and that 24 hours after, the wings regain these natural salts. In the same respect with human mothers, the wrists and hands are the equivalent of the wings of the pigeon. When babies are expected mothers often complain of an irritating itchiness about the wrists, caused by the lack of the proper salts.

Vitamin D can be radiated to the blood either by the ultra-violet ray of the sun through the skin, or by indigestion through use of cod liver oil, or by irradiated evaporated milk, or by any one of the eight known forms of the vitamin, he said.

TRADE PROTEST DRAWS CRITICISM

Canadian Journal Sees Harm in Claim Exchange Unfairly Balanced Against Britain.

LONDON, July 28—(CP-Cable)—The journal of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain deplores criticism of Anglo-Canadian trade on the ground that exchange of goods is unfairly balanced against the United Kingdom.

"The suggestion is being paraded that inter-Empire trade is not evenly balanced—that is not working out dollar for dollar, as according to this narrow view it ought to do," the journal said.

"So far as Canada is concerned, reciprocity is certainly not being doled out in miserly measure and the campaign now being fostered in certain quarters if persisted in, will do a great amount of harm. It is not in the spirit of the Imperial Conference."

Last week a deputation from the Parliamentary Policy Committee called on Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to complain competition from Canada and other Dominions was affecting British industry. The deputation suggested there might be some "dumping" from Canada of surplus goods offered for sale in the United Kingdom at prices below those charged in Canada.

Pointing out Canada's exports of manufactured goods to the United Kingdom amounts to five per cent. of her total exports, the journal asked: "What about foreign competitors?" It cited Denmark, Germany and Argentina.

At the time of the Ottawa Conference and since, the journal continued, successive Canadian budgets have accorded increased preferences in favor of the United Kingdom.

"Under existing economic conditions, could Canada have done more?" it asked.

"Let the facts be squarely faced. The various units of the Empire must work together and it is for businessmen of sound, common sense to take such steps as will nullify this adverse form of propaganda."

Real Wedding Binge Enriches Court $25

London, Ont., July 28 (CP).

MARRIED Thursday, 55-year-old Thomas Moffatt who operates a fish and chip booth told Magistrate Menzies his friends were just helping him celebrate the occasion early yesterday when police raided his place.

Constables Swann, Shipley and Harold told the court that in a room about six feet by 19 feet they found 14 persons, 21 empty beer bottles, two partly filled bottles of beer, nine full ones and one part full of gin. They said a number of the guests were drunk while all were drinking.

Magistrate Menzies decided it looked like more than an ordinary celebration so he found Moffat guilty of permitting drunkenness at his home and imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

9 MILLION ACRES OF PRAIRIE LANDS PICTURED DESERT

C.C.F. Member Claims If Easterners Could See It Rehabilitation Would Not Be Opposed.

REPORTS TWO SUICIDES.

WINIPEG, July 28.—(CP)—Picturing 9,000,000 acres of western Canada farm land as 'complete devastation," M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Member of Parliament for Rosetown-Biggar, yesterday urged the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation fifth annual convention to fight for extended government assistance and a long-term rehabilitation program.

If people in Eastern Canada who had objected to government assistance could see at first hand the conditions prevailing in drought areas, they would withdraw opposition to rehabilitation, he said. He mentioned two suicides due to conditions and declared the situation threatened the economic structure of the Dominion.

A resolution urging a long-time rehabilitation program was before the convention.

Robert England of Toronto, urged skilled technicians be engaged to organize irrigation projects which were necessary on a large scale. He refered to conditions in India where huge irrigation projects had been carried out and suggested some of the experts from India be brought to Canada.

Mr. Coldwell drew a parallel between floods, fires and drought. If 9,000,000 acres with 1,000,000 persons were afected by fire or flood, quick aid would be given. The prairie drought situation warranted the same action, he declared.

No Crops For Nine Years.

There were areas where fair crops would be harvested, but there were many where event recent rains would not provide cattle fodder. Crops had failed in some areas for the last nine years. A man and a woman he knew had committed suicide, Mr. Coldwell said, and there were children who had never known the taste of fresh fruit.

There had to be removal of people from the drought areas, he said. Land companies had settled southern areas which were not fitted for farming but would provide pasture for cattle. And the removal of people did not mean farmers only but people who lived in towns in farming areas.

"We demand they be moved and be not burdened with debts they have had to incur in the districts in which they now live," he said. The land abandoned should be put back to what nature intended them for—pasture for cattle. More was needed than the expenditure of relief funds by governments. "We must plan our agriculture intelligently," he said.

Some took a view that if Western Canada had one good crop "it would be back on its feet." he said. "I take issue with that statement."

England Providing $398,500 Site 'Heart Of Empire' For George V Shaft

London, July 28 (CP-Cable)

THE state will make a gift of land valued at £80,000 ($398,000) in the Abingdon street area of London for the King George V memorial, Sir Phillip Sasson, First Commissioner of Works, announced today.

The proposal will be submitted for the specific approval of parliament at the next session, Sir Phillip said.

The Abingdon street scheme will be part of the National Memorial and will consist of a statue erected opposite Victoria Tower in "the very heart of the Empire."

A number of old buildings, with no architectural features to commend them, he said, will be abolished, affording a "wonderful vista to Westminster Abbey."

Lord Macmillan, chairman of the memorial committee, said: "It is desirable that the memorial should be on a site with which the great events of King George's life were associated—the Victoria Tower, Westminster Abbey and Westminster Hall."

The King George memorial fund, established following King George's death, was organized to provide playing fields throughout the country for the use of young people and to set up a monument in London.

World Watches As Spanish Armies Fight For Madrid

General Jose Miaja

NEW THEATRE OF WARFARE

General Francisco Franco

Spain's war reached a climax as the "battle of Madrid" locked loyalist and insurgent forces in the mightiest armed struggle that has taken place since the Great War. Insurgent forces fought for a stranglehold at the neck of loyalist's salient into insurgent siege lines west of Madrid. Rebel leaders, in an effort to gain back the ground lost when loyalist forces drove a spearhead salient through rebel lines, are said to have massed 200,000 troops for a concerted drive against the western flank of General Jose Miaja's forces. General Miaja is loyalist defender of Madrid. The additional rebel reinforcements are being drawn from less active fronts. At the same time Great Britain and France issued a warning to General Franco demanding explanation of a battery of big guns mounted at the Spanish port of Algeciras and trained on Britain's stronghold of Gibraltar. The note warned against secret agreement with a foreign power.

CLIMB OVER FENCE STARTED A CAREER

Youth Who Invaded Marconi's Office Now Designs Ocean Plane Transmitters.

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 28 (CP).—An adventurous climb over a high picket fence 31 years ago started the professional career of William A. Appleton, designer of the wireless transmitter used on Imperial Airways transatlantic flying boats.

The fence surrounded the station in which Guglielmo Marconi was making experiments an transatlantic wireless, and Appleton was a stripling of 16 years.

To his surprise the curious youth was not "kicked out" after he got inside the enclosure. He was invited inside a building and shown the equipment on which Marconi was attemping to transmit signals to Europe.

Later the inventor asked him to have lunch with the group, and then "Would you like to work with me?" Appleton "would," and did, and he has been in the wireless game ever since.

Now, while Imperial Airways flying boats are charting a transatlantic commercial route through the air they are using a wireless transmitter designed by Appleton.

Pension At 55 Is Spinsters' Plea Million Sent Petition To Commons

London, Ont., July 28 (CP).

SIGNATURES of 1,000,000 spinsters seeking pensions at the age of 55 were carried into the House of Commons yesterday in sacks, wooden tea chests and brown paper parcels.

In a demonstration last night London spinsters marched with banners to Westminster to greet Miss Florence White, leader of their movement, when she arrived with a petition. She had brought it 190 miles from Bradford in the north of England in a gaily-decorated truck.

Under the tolerant eyes of the police, they cheered and sang "For she's a jolly good spinster" as Miss White waved a banner from the top of the truck. The spinsters —many of who are "war spinsters" —complained they have to go on working until they are 65 before they get a pension while a widow may get her pension earlier.

JUSTICE FROWNED ON IRISH CUSTOM

Raid Of 'Straw Men' At Wedding Feast No Joke, Raiders Pay Costs

BOYLE, Irish Free State, June 11—(CP)—It may have been an old Irish custom but the bench didn't see it that way.

Twenty-five men who had masqueraded as "straw men" at a wedding feast were charged with unlawful assembly. District Justice Rice suspended sentence but levied $1.25 costs against each.

According to evidence the "straw men" arrived at Thomas Frain's wedding party, some with scythe blades. They wore costumes and headgear of straw. After dancing for a time Frain was handed a note which read: "This is to demand not more than three pound ten ($17.50) which will enable us to leave your premises peacefully, and if you don't comply we will do some destruction, so do not delay. Wishing you and your wife all the joys of married life."

Frain said he didn't give the men any money and later they damaged the gate with the scythe blades.

Defence counsel Callan said the custom was an old tradition. "It may be an old custom, but it will have to stop as far as I am concerned," retorted Justice Rice.

The South Manchuria Railway of Manchuria made a net profit of $15,500,000 in the last fiscal year.

Grandmother's Day At Percy Institute

WARKWORTH, July 28. — The regular meeting of the Percy W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Jesse Young on Wednesday, July 21. The president, Mrs. G. A. Wilson occupied the chair. Mrs. George Partridge and Mrs. Fred Simms were appointed a committee to make inquiry concerning the placing of a light at the entrance to the Community Hall.

Mrs. Alec Merrill and Mrs. Will Herriott gave reports of the Girls' Achievement Day held on June 30. There was a discussion on Canadian Industries, each naming an article made in Canada and where.

A very interesting program was given as follows: Paper by Mrs. Lorne Evans on "What the Women's Institute may do for the Home, School and Community"; reading, "Grandmothers" by Mrs. Alec Merrill; community singing; reading, "Is Grandmother's Place in the Home or in the Hum?" by Mrs. Puffer; Mrs. W. J. Harper reviewed Current Events in a very interesting manner.

Prizes for the oldest and youngest grandmother present were won by Mrs. C. W. Maidens and Mrs. Jesse Young respectively.

The president then announced the next meeting would be the Girls' Day and urged all to be present to see the girls' exhibits and demonstration and to encourage them in their club work.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting, after which a dainty lunch was served.

Sino-Jap Peace Hangs On Rope

A current instance of the strange ways of the East is graphically illustrated by these pictures. At LEFT you see Wang Len-Chai, Chinese representative, and RIGHT a Japanese officer, as they were lowered by rope into the town of Wangping to confer on terms of mediation in the present crisis between Chinese and Japanese belligerents. The city's gates had been locked at the outbreak of the clash, which threatens to grow into open warfare.

BRITISH DEFENCE HELD INADEQUATE

Liberal Chief Charges Balloon Barrage Marking Time—No Bomb Shelters Provided.

LONDON, July 28.—(CP Cable.)—Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Opposition Liberals, pressed in the House of Commons for more adequate defence on the home front.

Passive measures menaced nobody, he said. Perhaps the most appalling feature of the bombardment of Guernica (in Spain) was the fact that no government protested.

"We must prevent a foreign enemy from making a Guernica of any British town," Sir Archibald exclaimed.

Geography, he said, would impose a heavy handicap on British pilots in any competition in destructiveness.

He urged more co-ordination. The home front was the most exposed and most vulnerable part of the Empire. Territorial anti-aircraft units, according to reports, still were practising with old three-inch guns designed for the navy 30 years ago.

The balloon barrage still hung fire. In two years no action had been taken except in regard to anti-gas precautions and ambulances. The government apparently had done nothing to provide bomb-proof shelters and protect telephone exchanges and fire stations.

Sir Archibald said he believed indispensable parts of munitions were being manufactured in the most dangerous zones around London and near the east coast. Plans should be drawn up, he urged, for evacuation of the people from London and for provisioning camps and shelters for those evacuated. Underground railways should be gas proof.

Freddie Bartholomew is Replaced In Picture, Over Pay Question

CULVER CITY, Calif., July 28.—(AP)—Freddie Bartholomew can look at any queen in movieland and say, "Hi, yah, pal."

Freddie is having a salary trouble. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, preparing to film "Thoroughbreds" indirectly made this known when it was announced replacement of Bartholomew by Douglas Scott. It was feared Freddie's dispute might get to court and delay production. Freddie has been getting $1,200 a week. His aunt and guardian, Mylicent Bartholomew, in a guardianship action last week said she was trying to double her adopted son's income.

Lad 7, Barred By Border Law Sees Dad First Time 4 Months

Wonders Why Father Shaking as Officials Allow Re-union.

MOTHER IN STATES.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 28—(CP)—Barred from his home in Detroit by immigration rules, Colin Fraser, 7, was reunited here yesterday with his father, whom he had not seen for more than four months. The reunion took place in the office of George Sinclair, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, looking after the boy for the past several weeks.

"Daddy, daddy," cried the boy as he caught sight of his father. He raced toward him and threw his arms around his neck. Mr. Fraser picked up Colin and perched him on his knee.

"Why, daddy, you're shaking," the boy said. Mr. Fraser laughed nervously in an effort to appear unconcerned.

Colin and his father desire to get back to Detroit, where Mrs. Fraser and her four children await their return.

The difficulty is that while the latter are United States citizens, Mr. Fraser and Colin are British subjects.

Mr. Fraser understands that application to re-enter the United States can be made a year and a day after deportation. He is hopeful, however, that Colin may be able to rejoin his mother in Detroit before the expiration of this period on October 31. Friends, he said, have interested themselves in the boy's case and are making representations to Washington.

Britain Changes "Hands Off" Plan

LONDON, July 28 (C.P.-Havas)—After making last-minute changes to prevent a new clash of French and Italo-German view, Great Britain Monday sumbitted to the Steering Committee of the "Hands Off Spain" Committee a seven-point questionnaire on its non-intervention compromise plan.

Yes or no answers from all interested Powers were expected by Thursday, to permit a new meeting of the chairman's sub-committee at 4 p.m. on Friday.

One reported change, favorable to the Italo-German position, placed the ending of naval patrol of Spain and the re-establishment of land control in the first question.

Belgium is preparing for an increase in living costs.

THAIN FOUND NEAR STIRLING IS TAKEN HOME

Missing Rawdon Township Man Turns Up at Cooney Home.

IN DAZED CONDITION.

He Apparently Had Been Wandering Through Bush and Swamp.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29.—The absence of Fred Thain, Rawdon township farmer who had been missing since Tuesday afternoon, was happily terminated by his arrival at 2 o'clock this morning at the farm of Theodore Cooney on No. 14 highway, five miles north of Stirling. He was taken to his home several hours later.

It was reported that Mr. Thain was in a dazed condition when he aroused the Cooney family in the middle of the night, and had apparently been wandering through bush and swamp in the district east of his home and the place where his buggy was found Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock.

Groups of farmers had searched the countryside along the seventh and eighth concessions of Seymour township and on the road toward his home all Tuesday night, fearing that he had met with an accident while driving home from Campbellford. The buggy was found beside the road about a mile west of his house, after the horse had walked up the lane into its stall with part of the harness missing.

Mr. Thain's farm in Rawdon Township, Hastings County, is about eight miles east of Campbellford, on the road which is an extension of the Eighth Concession of Seymour in Northumberland County.

The buggy was found about a mile or so west of the Thain homestead, upright on its wheels in the grass alongside the narrow township road. Its crossbar supporting the whiffletree was broken, but there was no other sign of damage, except the broken end of one trace where it attaches to the whiffletree. The remaining britching strap on the left shaft was buckled, and none of the harness was broken except the end of one trace or tug.

The arrival of the horse without the buggy and Mr. Thain alarmed

JAP BOMBERS FIRE CITY OF TIENTSIN

Thousands of Non-Combatant Men, Women, Children Victims of "Protection" Raid.

SHANGHAI, July 29.—(AP)—Flames from Japanese aerial bombardments roared through sections of Tientsin tonight after planes bearing the red insignia of the rising sun took a toll declared by Chinese to be thousands of non-combatant men, women and children killed and injured.

The bombardment, carried out by the Japanese in an attempt to rout a Chinese attack threatened to drive Japanese from the city, endangered the lives of many foreigners.

Lieut.-General Kyoshi Kaisuki, Japanese commander in North China, told foreign consuls the action was to "protect" the 10,000 Japanese who live in the Tientsin Japanese concession. He declared his men acted in accordance with the Boxer Protocol of 1901 in which China undertook not to station troops within two miles of Tientsin.

GORDON REPLIES TO HENRY BARRETT ON STRIKE ISSUE

Calls Directors of Company "Tough Outfit," Keeping Labor Upset.

FIGURES DISCUSSED.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., stated to The Examiner that he had just read Mr. Barrett's statement this morning after his return from the West.

"Hon. Mr. Hoes in the House of Commons, in 1924," said Mr. Gordon, "showed that the Canadian Woollens, which was taken over by the Dominion Textiles, absorbed the following companies which had the following assets which were appraised by an appraisal company: Bonner-Worth, $151,444.79; Auburn Mills, $271,895.33; Standard Knitting Company, $341,100.06. This appraisal was a wartime valuation, made as of July, 1919, and was probably 30 per cent. in excess of actual values.

"Then the Canadian Woollens was incorporated with $1,750,000.00 of preferred stock, $1,750,000.00 of common stock, or a total of $3,500,000.00. The Canadian Woollens represented in their prospectus for the sale of stock that they had secret processes and patents valued at $440,937.81 and goodwill of $1,000,000.00.

He Makes Search.

"A search in the office of the Commissioner of Patents in Ottawa in 1924, made by me, disclosed that they had not a single patent registered in the Company's name and the $1,000,000.00 value of goodwill meant that practically all of it was to represent watered stock.

"The year following, Mr. E. Worth drew a salary of $30,460.96 and J. W. Worth a salary of $10,618.40. In 1921 Canadian Woollens showed a loss of $351,526.57, and yet that same year they paid a dividend of $166,-260.00.

Ford 74, Friday Not Celebrating

DETOIT, July 29.—(AP)—Henry Ford's 74th birthday to-morow is just another day in the calendar, so far as the automobile manufacturer himself is concerned, but he admitted with a chuckle he is already looking forward to a wedding anniversary eight months in the future.

"I have never really celebrated a birthday," Ford explained. "I guess I never gave the occasion much thought. I always kept myself so busy with my work that I had very little time to celebrate.

"We'll save the celebration until Mrs. Ford's birthday next year," he added. "Then we can also celebrate our golden wedding anniversary. We were married on her birthday, 49 years ago."

CHINESE DEFENSE COLLAPSES—ARMY LEAVES PEIPING

Wednesday Battle Reported Sham to End Crisis Without Loss of Face.

FOREIGNERS WATCHFUL.

PEIPING July 29—(By wireless to Shanghai) (A.P.)—Chinese resistance to the surging drive of the Japanese army against Peiping collapsed to-day.

No Chinese soldiers remained within Peiping or in the surrounding area. All local units of the 29th Chinese Army were withdrawn 80 miles to the southwest of Paotingfu. Paotingfu on the strategic Peiping to Hankow Railway is the base of the main body of the 29th Army.

The barricades erected by the Chinese garrison were being torn down and the trenches they dug in the main streets of the city were being filled in. Foreigners, however, did not relax their vigilance and remained within the guarded confines of embassy quarter.

Gen. Sung Cheh-Yuan, Commander of the 29th Army, left the city before his troops began moving to the south.

An amazing report was circulating among Chinese here, that the present evacuation and yesterday's severe fighting were but parts of a prearranged Sino-Japanese understanding to end the crisis without loss of face.

Admittedly the fighting yesterday was heavy and many soldiers were killed on both sides but the Chinese sources claim that developments show it was in reality little more than a sham battle with real ammunition.

Youth 18, Installed Monarch Of Ancient Egyptian Empire

Ancient Islamic Law Bars Rich Crowning Ceremony for Farouk I.

THOUSANDS PAY TRIBUTE.

CAIRO, July 29 (CP).—Farouk I, a stalwart youth of 18; today was invested as the first king of an independent Egypt since the Mameluke rulers were overrun by the Turkish hordes of the 16th century. With a dignity far beyond his years, the husky-shouldered monarch took the oath before his assembled parliament.

He vowed "by Almighty God to respect and obey the constitution and laws of the Egyptian people, safeguard my country's independence and defend its territory."

Shouts of "Yehia si Maleki!—"Long live the king!"—throughout his land echoed the acclaim that broke out among the assembly in the parliament building.

There is no crown of Egypt and the ceremony was an investiture rather than a coronation in the western sense. The suggestion that Farouk should be crowned with a 3,000-year-old diadem of Tut-ankh-Amen had been overruled because the

Newman's Neighbors Build Him A Barn

Lindsay, July 29 (Special).

THREE weeks ago William Newman, M.L.A., of Verneville, suffered a $5,000 loss when his barn and contents were destroyed by fire. At the time neighbors said they would erect a new one for him and that he could attend to his creamery business and politics. Today more than 100 neighbors carried out their promise and a fine new barn was erected.

One of the men present was William McLean of Woodville, who helped to erect the old barn sixty-five years ago.

The neighbors, 200 of them, surrounded the festive board for evening dinner after the raising and as the member for Victoria remarked: "They brought every thing. All Mrs. Newman and I had to do was provide the tea and sugar."

Raging Tenement Blaze Burns Three To Death

Girl and Unknown Man Found Suffocated in Bed—Dozen Others Escape.

CHASE NAKED WOMAN.

MONTREAL, July 29.—(CP). —A woman and two men, one still unidentified, lost their lives in flames which swept a rooming house early to-day in the centre of the city at the corner of Clark and Vercheres streets.

Firemen ascribed death of Arthur Crouk, 42, Eva Clark, 30, and a man found in the woman's room, to suffocation and burns from the fire which swept the top floor of the three-storey stone and wood house.

Cecile Boisvert, 21, of Ste. Therese, Que., holidaying in the city, was taken to hospital suffering from serious burns to her face, head and shoulders and severe head wounds caused by breaking glass.

First warning of the fire, thought to have started from a heater in the hallway on the third storey, came from a woman living in a flat adjoining the rooming house.

Firemen arrived at the same time as Nelson Vezina, 27, a lodger in the rooming house, led Miss Boisvert to safety. Vezina, trapped in his own room by smoke and flames, climbed through a window and edged his way along a narrow terrace to reach Miss Boisvert's room. Vezina, clad only in underwear, dragged the young woman to a small gallery, from where they were rescued by firemen, who wrapped Miss Boisvert in a cloak.

Dozen Escape Safely

There were about 15 persons in the house when the fire started, with most of them, living on the second floor, making their way to safety. The flames had grown to such proportions, however, it was impossible to reach those on the top floor.

About a half hour later firemen arrived they were able to venture into the uppermost rooms where the three persons had been trapped. Miss Clark and a man known only as "Joe" were found side by side, evidently overcome by fumes in their sleep.

Forcing entry into another room, firemen found the body of Crouk, a Russian, on the floor. Hearing moans coming from a small gallery off the rear of the next room, investigating firemen found a sobbing, naked woman who ignored a coat thrown to her. After firemen proved unable to persuade the woman to get dressed, the job was turned over to policemen who faced no better. However, when it was thought she might have to be forcefully removed women neighbors came to the rescue with articles of clothing which apparently were suitable.

A Chinese roomer, who had all his clothes burned, lolled about in a ladies dressing gown.

BUFFALO TRUCKERS WIN THEIR STRIKE AS FOOD GIVES OUT

Begin Rushing Deliveries to Grocery Stores Empty After 8-day Holdout.

GET MORE WAGES.

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 29—(AP). —Union drivers hopped back on their trucks to-day to rush groceries to store shelves, emptied by an eight-day strike that won wage increases and a preferential shop.

The 1,000 drivers, members of a teamsters' union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, accepted a compromise contract with 44 Buffalo wholesale provision dealers just as the food shortage became acute.

Negotiators continued efforts to settle a strike of 1,000 C.I.O. union butchers in three of the city's four major packing plants which, impaired the fresh meat supply and caused a price hike. Storage supplies were expected to meet the demand until Friday, when packers are to answer the union's request for a closed shop and pay increases up to 25 per cent.

City Councilman John N. Doyle, member of the union negotiating committee hailed the settlement, approved at a mass meeting last night, as "the greatest victory scored by a union local in 26 years."

The contract gave the union a preferential shop a minimum wage of $25.20 for unskilled workers laboring 48 hours a week; a blanket five per cent pay hike for all those who have had no increase since March 1, time and a half for overtime, and one week vacations with pay annually.

Miss Balmforth said she was positive that when she arrived Ashton was lying on the ground beside the vehicle.

Girl Chases Lion Mauling Ex-Vicar

SKEGNES, England, July 29.—(AP). — Harold Davidson, former Vicar of Stiffkey, defrocked in 1932 when found guilty of immorality, was injured yesterday when mauled by a lion in a side-show here.

The 65-year-old ex-rector, earning his living in side-shows since his sensational case, probably would have been killed if Rene Somer, 16, attendant, had not intervened. She drove the lion of with a whip and iron rod.

A Church of England court found Davidson guilty of immorality and the Bishop of Norwich prohibited him from performing church duties. After the trial and unfrocking, he attempted suicide.

Bees Kill Horse Pulling A Binder, Leave 350 Stingers In The Farmer

Owen Sound, Ont., July 29 (CP).

ATTACKED by a swarm of bees, one horse died yesterday and its mate is in serious condition while their owner and driver, William Forrester, Sangeen Township, had more than 350 stingers removed from his face and arms. Forrester suffered intense pain but his condition was not regarded as serious.

The bees were so thick they covered the horses bodies. One horse dropped to the ground and tried to roll over. His action prevented the other horse from getting away and it died.

Forrester was operating a binder on his farm when the bees came. He said he had no opportunity to escape the attack. Dr. J. A. Cordle, Paisley veterinarian, was called to attend the remaining horse and a Port Elgin physician attended Forrester.

Concessions Proposed Decided By J. L. Cohen, Counsel For Strikers.

NO GENERAL INCREASE.

"Mountain Labored and Brought Forth Mouse" Strike Leader Says.

Two hundred Auburn and Bonner-Worth strikers shouted a unanimous "No!" to a company proposal for a strike settlement which was tendered them for their consideration at a general strike meeting in the East City Community Hall this morning. Although the current negotiations have not yet been officially abandoned, strikers set aside all hope for any present solution.

Developments in the situation up to noon today were:

Dismissal of the company proposal by the strike body and report of that decision to Department of Labor Conciliator Louis Fine by J. L. Cohen, strikers' counsel.

Agreement of the strike body to appeal to the Ontario Industry and Labor Board for strike arbitration by an impartial body.

Announcement to strikers of an offer by Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., to lead a citizens committee which will provide $1,000 a week for strike maintenance and relief.

What Company Offered

The company proposal read to the strike body by Cohen at the conclusion of a 90-minute report on this week's negotiations follows:

"To the company's employees;

"The company has been invited to make a general increase in its wages to all employees engaged in the Auburn and Bonner-Worth Mills. "The company is prepared to do the following:

(1) Institute a system of rest periods for its female workers at or about 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. during each working day.

(2) The company will institute a system of payment to piece workers who are kept idle for any reason while required to remain in the company's plant, namely in the event of an employee being idle more than eight minutes he or she is to be paid at the prevailing day rate to the nearest quarter hour of such idleness.

(3) The company will pay time and one-half for overtime, including holidays and Sundays. A maximum of fifty hours will constitute a week's work at the Auburn Mill. For day workers when the mill is working one shift this will be composed of five nine-hour days and five hours on Saturday. At the Bonner-Worth Mills until October 1st, 1937, the maximum week will be fifty-five hours and in the same way for day workers when the mill is working one shift this shall be composed of five ten-hour days and five hours on Saturday. After October 1st, 1937, the situation shall be the same as at the Auburn Mill.

(4) The company will negotiate any grievances in each mill with a shop committee of five employees for each mill, such employees to be duly elected by their fellow employees; all employees other than foreman, office workers and superintendents to have the right to vote on the selection of such a committee. The personnel of such committee must be selected from five different departments.

(5) All employees may return to work without discrimination, and no employee shall be penalized for his or her participation in the strike, and all employees shall be free from intimidation either for or against trade union membership.

The Piece Work Question.

(6) Piece work shall be fairly distributed amongst the employees.

(7) The Company will provide a minimum of four hours' work for any employee called into the plant.

(8) Wages shall be paid in cash every two weeks. The company will investigate the possibility of paying weekly.

(9) With regard to wages the company will:

(a) Guarantee a minimum of 32c per hour to experienced weavers in the Auburn Mill while required to remain in the plant.

(b) The company prior to the strike was engaged in a survey in the Bonner-Worth Mills and proposes to guarantee to experienced operators a minimum of 32c per hour in the spinning and twisting departments with a bonus. PLANTED MINE BEHIND BLAST BELFAST CITY

Plot to Wreck Train Carrying Visitors to Welcome King, Uncovered.

MONARCH UNPERTURBED.

Feeling Runs High in City After Explosion Rocks Wide Area.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 29 (CP) — Police announced last night a deliberately planted mine caused yesterday's violent explosion here during the Royal parade marking the Coronation visit of the King and Queen to Ulster.

The explosion shook a wide area of Belfast, only a half mile from the parade route followed by their Majesties.

Police said they also had discovered a plot to wreck trains carrying police and other visitors to Belfast on their return to the Londonderry area. A mine was discovered beneath the railway line at Temple Patrick in Antrim County.

The explosion within Belfast was one of a series of acts of violence during the day, attributed by police to extremist Irish Republicans.

Facts Temporarily Withheld

Feeling ran high in Belfast last night and police had purposely withheld announcement of the mine plant until after departure of the King and Queen aboard the Royal yacht, Victoria and Albert. It was at first stated that the explosion was caused by a gas main leak.

Even as they sailed homeward to the strains of "Come Back To Erin," another disorder occurred west of Belfast. A police constable patrolling at Dunville Park was surrounded by a gang of about forty men, several of whom drew guns, disarming the officer and then fled.

The explosion in a warehouse in Academy Street at midday was heard by the King and Queen as they were driven through the city's streets, but they gave no sign of perturbation and the parade went along as scheduled.

"There is not the slightest doubt but that the blast was caused by explosives," police said. "There was found in the hole caused by the explosion what looks like a bag of rags and which also contained some explosives."

This government lacks knowledge of Polar conditions," he said, and would have the navy, army and the weather bureau study possible value in the proposed flight.

DUPLESSIS AIMING AT CONTROL MOVE OVER NEWSPRINT

Expects To Obtain Hepburn's Aid in Assisting Quebec Plan.

END OVER-PRODUCTION.

CHANDLER, Que. July 29 (CP—Government regulation in some measure faces the newsprint industry of Quebec and Ontario if Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec gets "co-operation" from the sister province.

The premier's belief conservation of the wealth of the forests called for a certain extent of control over the industry was expressed here in an address at the re-opening of the seven-years-idle Chandler sulphite mill. The question, he said, had been studied, and:

"I believe that, with the co-operation of the Ontario government, which I think I shall obtain, the two governments will not administer, but direct, the newsprint industry."

Soon after Duplessis' speech yesterday, Premier Hepburn of Ontario announced he and the union nationale government head planned a conference of natural resouces shortly, and he hoped to "introduce measures of mutual advantage." He declined to define "natural resources."

From the newsprint industry, there was little reaction immediately. Only executive to comment last night was C. V. Caesar, general manager of th E. B. Eddy Company, who said he thought both premiers were "trying to do something constructive for the industry.

The Quebec premier told the gathering here stabilization of the newsprint industry was necessary if mills running were to go on operating. In the past, there had been over-production; in the future, there must be "sanity."

Stopping Export

Business in Quebec, Duplessis said, had an inclination to "wear long pants before growing up." But it must get out of bounds no more, or he would "slap its wrist."

As one means of ending over-production, Duplessis reiterated, his government had turned its face definitely against any export of pulp wood from Quebec. He repeated too, his administration's policy that no new newsprint mills were to be opened in the province until those now closed had been started up again.

The Chandler mill is the first re-opened under this program. It was first established in 1912, by a Philadelphian who gave his name to this Gaspe Peninsula town of 1,500. Under present plans it will employ 250 workers.

Most of the workers were present at a public meeting last night to hear the Premier, who spoke for their benefit some hours after his afternoon address.

He told them:

1.—There would be no provincial election in Quebec before the expiration of his government's four-year term that began August 17 of last year.

2.—That he was definitely against the "Separatist" movement agitating for the setting up a French-Canadian state in Quebec.

3.—That Labor should come to him with its troubles, rather than call "useless strikes."

4.—That the rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority will be respected.

Hepburn to See Duplessis.

TORONTO, July 29 (C.P.). — Premier Hepburn of Ontario last night announced his intention to confer with Premier Duplessis of Quebec in the near future regarding "the administration of our natural resources." At Chandler, Que., yesterday Premier Duplessis forecast Government direction of the newsprint industry in Quebec and Ontario.

The Ontario Premier declined to define his term "natural resources" when asked whether he had in mind both power and timber. He expressed the hope that agreement would emerge from the projected conversations with Premier Duplessis and that the two Governments might "introduce measure of mutual advantage."

"When he took office," said Mr. Hepburn, "practically all the (pulp and paper) mills were in the hands of receivers. As the result of co-operation with the Government of Quebec we have been able to rehabilitate the properties and they are more prosperous to-day than ever before.

"We are hoping to receive the same measure of co-operation from Quebec in the future. I hope very shortly to have a conference with the Premier of Quebec regarding the administration of natural resources, and hope to introduce measures of mutual advantage."

Final report of the credentials committee showed 53 voting delegates, including 12 members of the national council. Besides national council members, Quebec had three delegates; Ontario 10; British Columbia six; Alberta three; Saskatchewan 21 and Manitoba eight.

PROOF NEEDED.

Movement to Change Garb on Priest in Plaque Finds Opposition.

CHICAGO, July 29 (AP).—Father Jacques Marquette, 17th century missionary-explorer, may get a proper cloak on a Michigan Avenue bridge plaque, Oscar Hewitt, Public Works Commissioner, said to-day, if ——.

The persons who criticize the plaque can prove the famous Jesuit is improperly garbed; if a new plaque is approved by Catholic church authorities, and if the change can be made without municipal expense.

Dr. Marjorie Nesbit led the movement to change the priest's cloak, contending it showed him in the garb of a Franciscan monk instead of a Jesuit priest.

CLUE TO PYORRHEA.

Dentists Believe It is Due To Lack Of Vitamin C In Diet.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 29 (AP) —Two Harvard dentists yesterday announced they had found what might be an important clue in determining the cause of true pyorrhea.

Drs. Paul Boyle and David Weisberger said their research among humans and guinea pigs indicated true pyorrhea was caused by a deficiency of vitamin C in the diet.

The Harvard Dental Record, the school's quarterly alumni magazine, contained their observations.

Wants Pressure Brought to End Outrages in Ethiopia

LONDON, July 29 (CP-Havas) —Haile Selassie appealed to world Christendom last night to bring pressure to end "abominable outrages" allegedly inflicted on Ethiopia by Italy.

The Emperor charged the conquerors of Ethiopia had killed women and children by the hundreds and forced thousands of women and young girls to live in concentration camps and surrender themselves to Italian soldiers.

SLIPS UNDER TRAIN DIES IN TWO HOURS

Woodstock Man Has Both Legs Severed as He Leaves Sleeper.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 29 (CP) — George A. Kennedy, 55, Woodstock, Ont., died in hospital early today, two hours after both his legs were severed when he fell under the wheels of train No. 4 at the Canadian Pacific Railway station here.

Kennedy was leaving a sleeping car when he slipped and fell under the train. Rushed to hospital, he died two hours later.

Kennedy was travelling on a ticket from Winnipeg to Toronto, train officials said, but it was believed his final destination was Innerkip, Ont., five miles east of Woodstock. His body will be sent to Innerkip tonight. Coroner Dr. P. E. Laflamme said an inquest would be held.

SEVERELY BURNED IN THRESHING FIRE

Dummer Barn is Completely Destroyed and Percy Bell Injured.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, July 29. — Percy Bell was severely burned about the arms, face and head in a disastrous threshing fire at his farm on the Second Line of Dummer on Wednesday afternoon.

Fire which broke out from an undetermined cause during threshing of fall wheat, resulted in total loss of a large frame barn, together with a quantity of newly-threshed grain, hay and straw and also a calf. The implement shed was also razed, with the loss of all the implements with exception of the binder.

The loss, which will be considerable, was stated to be partly covered by insurance.

Willing neighbors who formed a bucket brigade to fight the blaze, were hampered by a high wind, but their ceaseless efforts were successful in preventing spead of the outbreak to the farm residence, which was several times threatened.

$1 SAFETY TAX

TORONTO, July 29 — (C.P.) — The Board of Control to-day sent forward to its legislative committee a proposal that a $1 "traffic regulation and safety tax" be imposed on every Toronto motorist to raise a special street safety fund for Toronto. Guns Halt Careers Of Canadian And U.S. Desperadoes

VICTOR GRAY PETE TRAXLER TOM PONARMARENKIO

Four desperadoes, two in Canada and two in the United States, had their lawless careers brought to a halt with their shooting by Canadian police officers and by a United States oil worker. Sought for more than 10 days, Victor Gray, alias Szymonski, was killed and Tom Ponarmarenkio, his companion, seriously wounded when they walked into an ambush prepared by provincial police near Spanish river, 40 miles west of Sudbury. The two men are alleged to have shot and killed Davidson as he approached an automobile from which the license plates were being removed. In Oklahoma, Pete Traxler, the southwest's most dangerous gunman and his companion Fred Tindol, were captured by an oil field worker whom they had kidnapped. Snatching a pistol from the lap of Tindol as he dozed in the back seat of an automobile in which he was held captive, J. E. Denton shot and killed Tindol and wounded Traxler. The killing of one criminal and the capture of the other brought to a close the gigantic search which had been organized following the prison break of nine incorrigibles from Eastham prison farm near Weldon, Tex., two weeks before. Traxler and his companion had led a posse of 500 persons on a zigzag chase through the southwest and it is thought he was attempting to reach the Canadian border

LEAGUE COVENANT GUIDING BRITAIN

Never Use Her Armaments For Anything Outside Pledge Says Earl of Plymouth.

LONDON July 29 (CP Cable) — "Great Britain's armament," declared the Earl of Plymouth, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in the House of Lords yesterday, "never will be used for anything inconsistent with the principles of the League of Nations covenant."

"The government's policy," he added, "will continue to be based upon membership in the league, which they would co-operate wholeheartedly in strengthening, both by enlargement of its membership and by the confidential loyalty of its members."

The House was discussing league reform. Lord Davies, Liberal, who raised the question, said he would like to see two kinds of league reform: (1) Moral reform expressed in the willingness of league members to pledge themselves to law and order; (2) Improvement and strengthening of the league machinery in order that it may carry out its responsibilities and obligations.

"What we must have is some sort of guarantee that agreements and treaties will be honorably observed," Lord Davies declared. "That guarantee can only be found in an effective system of collective security.

The Question of Security

"Until the fundamental question of security is adequately and effectively dealt with we cannot look forward to any great economic expansion or co-operation between nations."

He urged that effect should be given to article IX of the covenant by constitution of a commission to advise the league council on matters relating to enforcement by common action of international obligations.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood said: "I think it would be quite possible for the league council to appoint a commission to examine the present position of Spain and make any recommendations which they thought would contribute to the stoppage of the war and any observation anent conditions which they thought likely to prolong it.

"I doubt whether the policy of non-intervention is really a policy which is practicable and, if practicable, whether it is sufficient. It would be better really to admit that the only satisfactory way of stopping intervention by other powers is by stopping the war itself. Our policy ought to be directed not so much to keeping a ring as topping the right."

THIRD WIFE FLEES "PROBIC PRISON"

Divorces Professor Who Fears to Leave Six Block Radius.

MADISON, Wis., July 29—(UP)—Grace Golden Leonard, third wife to share the "phobic prison" of William Ellery Leonard, white-haired University of Wisconsin professor-poet, divorced him for the second time in Circuit Court yesterday.

With charges of "cruel and inhuman treatment," Mrs. Leonard freed herself from the "prison' she shared with the famed instructor for two years and attempted to deliver him.

"I was pretty badly shot to pieces," she told Judge A. C. Hoppmann during the hearing conducted in his chambers.

Leonard has been confined to a six-block radius around the university of Wisconsin campus by a phobia resulting from fear of a railroad train as a small child.

Mrs. Leonard, now 29, herself a poet, fell in love with 61-year-old Leonard while a student in his English class.

MOTHER HELPED BY KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child. I tried everything. Very reluctantly, I tried your ALL-BRAN with no faith in it at all.

"Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King (address on request).

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this needed "bulk."

Within the body, this cereal absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently sponges out the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Enjoy this food instead of taking weakening pills and drugs. Serve as a cereal, with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes.

ALL-BRAN is sold by your grocer. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

FROST SANCTIONS HEPBURN'S STAND AGAINST THE C.I.O.

Opposes, However, Premier's Methods—Newman Raps Foreign Agitator.

BALSAM LAKE PICNIC.

LINDSAY, July 29.—Opposition to Premier Hepburn's methods of opposing the C.I.O. although, he said, he did not oppose the Premier's stand against this organization, was expressed by Leslie M. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay, Conservative candidate in Victoria, speaking on the same platform as William Newman, Liberal M.L.A. for the same riding, at a monster picnic at Birch Point, Balsam Lake, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Newman, speaking on the same subject, declared he had "no sympathy for the foreigner from outside who comes in and causes strikes," but he did have sympathy for "the man who is working for the capitalist at Oshawa doing piecework."

"My sympathy goes out to the man looking for a job," he said. "But young men of education will have to forget that they must have a living from pen and ink. They must be prepared to do manual work, and work with the resources God has blessed this country with."

Sales Tax Burden Cut.

The Hepburn Government, he said, had lessened the burden of the taxpayer and cut down expense of government. Members of the Cabinet had cut their salaries $2,000, bought their own cars, and the school examination fee had been done away with. Hydro contracts repudiated, and new contracts made at a great saving.

"This country has been saved $22.00 by the Government's action regarding old age pensions and mothers' allowances," he said.

The Conservative candidate criticized the Government's administration of the Liquor Control Act, which, he said, had eliminated "the control." He advocated that real estate taxes be cut one-third, and declared the Hepburn Government's revenue was "taken from the pockets of the people."

BRITAIN KEEPING MILK DUTY DOWN

Organized Producers Have Increase Request Refused By Board.

LONDON, July 29—(CP).—Application of organized milk producers of the United Kingdom for an increase in duties on butter and cheese was turned down by the Import Duties Advisory Committee. Lieut.-Col. John Colville, Financial Secretary of the Treasury, informed the House of Commons yesterday.

Colville said the committe decided it could not recommend a reduction, as no material assistance would be given producers by this method of restricting imports. Defending the decision, a number of members asserted the cost of living in England was too high, and care must be taken against further increasing it.

Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, agreed the cost of living was high, but said it was not as high as in 1929 or 1930. He defended the tariff as now exists as encouraging agriculture in the United Kingdom. Such encouragement was necessary, he added.

London Grandmother At 35 Claims She Equals Record In Gananoque

London, July 29—(CP).—MRS. H. B. Martyn, of London, came forward to-day to dispute the claim of Alonzo Raymond Buell of Gananoque, that he is the youngest grandparent in Ontario.

Mrs. Martyn, a grandmother at 35, lays no claim to beating Mr. Buell, but she at least equals his record, she said.

Her five-months-old granddaughter is Betty Lou Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Parker, of London.

Not only is Mrs. Martyn a grandmother but something in the way of a record for youthful motherhood is established by her daughter Mrs. Parker had just passed her 17th birthday when her daughter was born.

There are four generations living in Mrs. Martyn's family. The eldest—Mrs. Martyn didn't say their ages—are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes of London.

Mrs. Martyn's daughter was married to William Parker when she was 16 and the groom 17.

With a seven-months-old granchild, daughter of their 17-year-old child, Mr. and Mrs. Buell of Gananoque yesterday claimed a record for the province when they said they were only 35.

TWO MINERS DIE IN 100-FOOT FALL

Rock Ledge Gives Way at Noranda—Both Leave Families.

NORANDA, Que., July 29 (CP)—Under a temporary coroner, an inquiry was to be conducted today into the deaths of Julian Mucha, 38, and Eugenio Pugliese, 36, fatally injured 2,000 feet underground in Noranda Gold Mines yesterday. Immediate investigation of the double-fatality was delayed pending the appointment of an official to act for Coroner O. A. Rioux, who is abroad.

Mucha and Pugliese working together as "nippers" above the mine's 2,100-foot level were flung 100 feet into a pile of muck when part of a rock ledge on which they were standing gave way.

A safety belt saved one of the pair's helpers, working only a few feet away and a machine man nearby also was uninjured.

Mucha left a wife and four children in Noranda. Pugliese is survived by his widow and two children in his native Italy.

MERCHANTS FALL FOR SMOOTH GAME

Lindsay Police Asked to Look Out For Cheque Artists.

LINDSAY, July 29.—The local police have been asked to watch out for a smart crook who pulled off a smooth one in Uxbridge during the past few days. The stranger called himself George Burton. He made a few small purchases in a number of Uxbridge stores, presenting a twenty dollar cheque. In one or two stores he simply asked the manager to cash the cheque. He claimed he was working in Scott township and could not get into town during banking hours. Four merchants accepted phoney cheques for twenty dollars. The stranger then hired a taxi to take him to Aurora, where he said he could catch a street car. The driver, however, informed him, that the cars did not run that far. This did not seem to bother the man, as he offered the driver extra pay to take him to Aurora. The sharper, it is said, pulled the same racket in Port Perry on the same day he visited Uxbridge.

The man was located, and on Tuesday he visited Chief Lawler and informed the officer that another passenger in his car had tossed the clock over the Bloor street viaduct in Toronto. Further investigation is being made by the police.

The residents of the village of Gooderham were greatly excited this week when the disappearance of nine year old Preston Hadley was announced.
